[Approved by Governor June 30, 2011. Filed with Secretary of State June 30, 2011.]

LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL'S DIGEST

AB 114, Committee on Budget. Education finance.

(1) Existing law requires a county superintendent of schools to certify in writing whether or not the county office of education is able to meet its financial obligations for the current and 2 subsequent fiscal years. Existing law requires a county superintendent of schools to approve, conditionally approve, or disapprove the adopted budget for the school districts under his or her jurisdiction and to determine whether the adopted budget is consistent with a financial plan that will enable the district to satisfy its multiyear financial commitments.

This bill would require the budgets of a county office of education and a school district for the 2011–12 fiscal year to project the same level of revenue per unit of average daily attendance as it received in the 2010–11 fiscal year, and would delete the certification requirement regarding the 2 fiscal years subsequent to the 2011–12 fiscal year. The bill would prohibit the Superintendent of Public Instruction from requiring a county office of education to do otherwise.

(2) Existing law requires a revenue limit to be calculated for each county superintendent of schools, adjusted for various factors, and reduced, as specified. Existing law reduces the revenue limit for each county superintendent of schools for the 2011–12 fiscal year by a deficit factor of 19.892%.

This bill instead would set the deficit factor for each county superintendent of schools for the 2011–12 fiscal year at 20.041%.

(3) The Child Care and Development Services Act, administered by the State Department of Education, provides that children who are 10 years of age or younger, children with exceptional needs, children 12 years of age or younger who are recipients of child protective services or at risk of abuse, neglect, or exploitation, children 12 years of age or younger who are provided services during nontraditional hours, children 12 years of age or younger who are homeless, and children who are 11 and 12 years of age, as funding permits, as specified, are eligible, with certain requirements, for child care and development services.

This bill would instead provide that children from infancy to 13 years of age and their parents are eligible, with certain requirements, for child care and development services.

(4) Existing law requires that a child who is 11 or 12 years of age and who is otherwise eligible for subsidized child care and development services, except for his or her age, be given first priority for enrollment, and in cases of programs operating at full capacity, first priority on the waiting list for a before or after school program, as specified. Existing law also requires contractors to provide each family of an otherwise eligible 11 or 12 year old child with information about the availability of before and after school programs located in the family's community.

This bill would instead provide that the preferred placement for children who are 11 or 12 years of age and who are otherwise eligible for subsidized child care and development services is in a before or after school program. The bill would specify criteria for the provision of subsidized child care services for children who are 11 and 12 years of age.

(5) Existing law, effective July 1, 2011, requires the State Department of Education to reduce the maximum reimbursable amounts of the contracts for the Preschool Education Program, the General Child Care Program, the Migrant Day Care Program, the Alternative Payment Program, the CalWORKs Stage 3 Program, and the Allowance for Handicapped Program by 15%, as specified.

This bill would instead provide that the reduction in the maximum reimbursable amounts of the contracts for the programs listed above would be 11% or whatever proportion is necessary to ensure that expenditures for these programs do not exceed the amounts appropriated for them, including any reductions made subsequent to the adoption of the annual Budget Act.

(6) Existing law requires that the cost of state-funded child care services be governed by regional market rates, and establishes a family fee schedule reflecting specified income eligibility limits. Existing law revises the family fee schedule that was in effect for the 2007–08, 2008–09, 2009–10, and 2010–11 fiscal years to reflect an increase of 10% to existing fees, and requires the State Department of Education to submit an adjusted fee schedule to the Department of Finance for approval in order to be implemented by July 1, 2011.

This bill would delete the provision requiring the fee schedule to reflect a 10% increase in family fees.

(7) Under existing law (Proposition 98), the California Constitution requires the state to comply with a minimum funding obligation each fiscal year with respect to the support of school districts and community college districts. Existing statutory law specifies that state funding for the Child Care and Development Services Act is included within the calculation of state apportionments that apply toward this constitutional funding obligation.

This bill would, commencing July 1, 2011, specify that funds appropriated for the Child Care and Development Services Act do not apply toward the constitutional minimum funding obligation for school districts and community college districts, with the exception of state funding for the part-day California state preschool programs and the After School Education and Safety Program.

The bill would make related changes in the calculation of the minimum funding obligation required by Proposition 98.

(8) Existing law prescribes the percentage of General Fund revenues appropriated for school districts and community college districts for purposes of the provisions of the California Constitution requiring minimum funding for the public schools.

This bill would state that specified sales and use tax revenues transferred pursuant to certain provisions of the Revenue and Taxation Code are not General Fund revenues for these purposes. The bill would provide that its provisions would be operative for the 2011–12 fiscal year and subsequent years only if one or more ballot measures approved before November 17, 2012, authorize those revenues to be so treated, and provide funding for school districts and community college districts in an amount equal to that which would have been provided if the tax revenues were General Fund revenues.

The bill would require, if the aforementioned provisions of law are rendered inoperative because the ballot measure or measures are not approved, that by December 17, 2012, the Director of Finance, in consultation with the Superintendent of Public Instruction, determine the amount by which the minimum amount of moneys required to be applied by the state for the support of school districts and community college districts was reduced pursuant to the operation of the aforementioned provisions of law for the 2011–12 fiscal year. Following the determination of this amount, the bill would appropriate an amount equal to 17.8% of that amount from the General Fund to the Superintendent for each of the 2012–13 to 2016–17, inclusive, fiscal years in accordance with a specified priority order, and would appropriate 2.2% of that amount from the General Fund to the Chancellor of the California Community Colleges for each of the 2012–13 to 2016–17, inclusive, fiscal years, in accordance with a specified priority order.

(9) Existing law requires the county superintendent of schools to determine a revenue limit for each school district in the county, and requires the amount of the revenue limit to be adjusted for various factors. Existing law reduces the revenue limit for each school district for the 2011–12 fiscal year by a deficit factor of 19.608%.

This bill instead would set the deficit factor for each school district for the 2011–12 fiscal year at 19.754%.

(10) Under existing law, county offices of education receive certain property tax revenues. Existing law requires a revenue limit to be calculated for each county superintendent of schools, and requires the amount of the revenue limit to be adjusted for various factors, including the amount of property tax revenues a county office of education receives.

This bill would require the Superintendent of Public Instruction for the 2011–12 fiscal year to determine the amount of excess property taxes available to county offices of education, and would require the auditor-controller of each county to distribute those amounts to the Supplemental Revenue Augmentation Fund within the county exclusively to reimburse the state for the costs of providing trial court services and costs until those moneys are exhausted. By imposing additional duties on local agency officials, this bill would impose a state-mandated local program.

(11) Existing law requires the Superintendent of Public Instruction to allocate, for the 2010–11 and 2011–12 fiscal years, a supplemental categorical block grant to a charter school that begins operation in the 2008–09, 2009–10, 2010–11, or 2011–12 fiscal year. Existing law requires that this supplemental categorical block grant equal $127 per unit of charter school average daily attendance as determined at the 2010–11 2nd principal apportionment for schools commencing operations in the 2008–09, 2009–10, or 2010–11 fiscal year and at the 2011–12 2nd principal apportionment for schools commencing operations in the 2011–12 fiscal year. Existing law prohibits a locally funded charter school that converted from a preexisting school between the 2008–09 and 2011–12 fiscal years, inclusive, from receiving these funds.

This bill instead would provide that, to the extent funds are provided, for the 2010–11 to the 2014–15 fiscal years, inclusive, a supplemental categorical block grant would be allocated to charter schools commencing operations during or after the 2008–09 fiscal year. The bill would provide that a locally or direct funded charter school, not just a locally funded charter school, that converted from a preexisting school between the 2008–09 and 2014–15 fiscal years, inclusive, would be prohibited from receiving these funds.

The bill would provide that for, the 2010–11 to the 2014–15 fiscal years, inclusive, the supplemental categorical block grant received by eligible charter schools would equal $127 per unit of charter school average daily attendance for charter schools commencing operations during or after the 2008–09 fiscal year, as specified.

(12) Existing law authorizes the governing board of a school district to terminate the services of any certificated employees of the district during the time period between 5 days after the enactment of the Budget Act and August 15 of the fiscal year to which that Budget Act applies if the governing board of a school district determines that its total revenue limit per unit of average daily attendance for the fiscal year of that Budget Act has not increased by at least 2% and if in the opinion of the governing board it is therefore necessary to decrease the number of permanent employees in the district.

This bill would make this provision inoperative from July 1, 2011, to July 1, 2012, inclusive.

(13) Existing law sets forth the minimum number of instructional days and minutes school districts, county offices of education, and charter schools are required to offer.

This bill, for the 2011–12 school year, would reduce the minimum number of required instructional days and minutes by up to 7 days, and would reduce the revenue limit for each school district, county office of education, and charter school, as specified. The bill would require implementation of this reduction by a school district, county office of education, and charter school that is subject to collective bargaining to be achieved through the bargaining process, provided that the agreement has been completed and reductions implemented no later than June 30, 2012. These provisions would be operative only for the 2011–12 school year and only if the Director of Finance determines that the state revenue forecast does not meet a specified amount.

(14) Existing law requires school districts, county offices of education, and special education local plan areas to comply with state laws that conform to the federal Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), in order that the state may qualify for federal funds available for the education of individuals with exceptional needs. Existing law requires school districts, county offices of education, and special education local plan areas to identify, locate, and assess individuals with exceptional needs and to provide those pupils with a free appropriate public education in the least restrictive environment, and with special education and related services as reflected in an individualized education program (IEP). Existing law requires the Superintendent of Public Instruction to administer the special education provisions of the Education Code and to be responsible for assuring provision of, and supervising, education and related services to individuals with exceptional needs as required pursuant to the federal IDEA.

Existing law authorizes referral, through a prescribed process, of a pupil who is suspected of needing mental health services to a community mental health service. Existing law requires the State Department of Mental Health or a designated community mental health service to be responsible for the provision of mental health services, as defined, if required in a pupil's IEP.

This bill would make these provisions concerning referral for mental health services inoperative as of July 1, 2011, would repeal them as of January 1, 2012, and would make other related conforming changes.

(15) Existing law, for the 2008–09 to the 2014–15 fiscal years, inclusive, provides that the governing board of a school district is not required to provide pupils with instructional materials by a specified period of time following adoption of those materials by the State Board of Education.

This bill would make a technical, nonsubstantive change in this provision by changing its section number.

(16) Existing law, the Ortiz-Pacheco-Poochigian-Vasconcellos Cal Grant Program (Cal Grant Program), establishes the Cal Grant A and B Entitlement Awards, the California Community College Transfer Entitlement Awards, the Competitive Cal Grant A and B Awards, the Cal Grant C Awards, and the Cal Grant T Awards under the administration of the Student Aid Commission, and establishes eligibility requirements for awards under these programs for participating students attending qualifying institutions.

Existing law imposes requirements on qualifying institutions, requiring the commission to certify by October 1 of each year the institution's latest 3-year cohort default rate as most recently reported by the United States Department of Education. Existing law provides that an otherwise qualifying institution that did not meet a specified 3-year cohort default rate would be ineligible for new Cal Grant awards at the institution. Under the Cal Grant Program, for the 2012–13 academic year and every academic year thereafter, an otherwise qualifying institution with a 3-year cohort default rate that is equal to or greater than 30% is ineligible for initial or renewal Cal Grant awards at the institution, except as specified.

This bill instead would specify that an otherwise qualifying institution with a 3-year cohort default rate that is equal to or greater than 30% is ineligible for initial and renewal Cal Grant awards at the institution, except as specified.

(17) Existing law establishes the California State University under the administration of the Trustees of the California State University. Existing law authorizes the trustees to draw from funds appropriated to the university, for use as a revolving fund, amounts necessary to make payments of obligations of the university directly to vendors. Existing law requires the trustees to contract with one or more public accounting firms to conduct systemwide and individual campus annual financial statement and compliance audits. Existing law further requires that at least 10 individual campus audits be conducted annually on a rotating basis, and that each campus be audited at least once every 2 years.

This bill would require the annual audits to be conducted in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles. The bill would delete the requirements that at least 10 individual campus audits be conducted annually on a rotating basis, and that each campus be audited at least once every 2 years. The bill would require that the statements of net assets, revenues, expenses, changes in net assets, and cashflows be included as an addendum to the annual systemwide audit.

(18) Existing law requires the governing board of each community college district to charge each student a fee, and sets that fee at $36 per unit per semester.

This bill would raise the fee to $46 per unit per semester if the Director of Finance determines that the state revenue forecast does not meet a specified amount.

(19) Under the California Constitution, whenever the Legislature or a state agency mandates a new program or higher level of service on any local government, the state is required to provide a subvention of funds to reimburse the local government, with specified exceptions. Existing law provides that no local agency or school district is required to implement or give effect to any statute or executive order, or portion thereof, that imposes a mandate during any fiscal year and for the period immediately following that fiscal year for which the Budget Act has not been enacted for the subsequent fiscal year if specified conditions are met, including that the statute or executive order, or portion thereof, has been specifically identified by the Legislature in the Budget Act for the fiscal year as being one for which reimbursement is not provided for that fiscal year. Existing law provides that only certain specified mandates are subject to that provision.

This bill would specify that 2 additional mandates relating to community college districts are included among those that are subject to the provision.

(20) The Administrative Procedure Act, among other things, sets forth procedures for the development, adoption, and promulgation of regulations by administrative agencies charged with the implementation of statutes.

This bill would authorize the State Department of Social Services and the State Department of Education, notwithstanding the procedures required by the Administrative Procedure Act, to implement the provisions of the bill that relate to the Child Care and Development Services Act through all-county letters, management bulletins, or other similar instructions.

(21) This bill would provide that the implementation of the provisions of the bill related to the provision of child care services would not be subject to the appeal and resolution procedures for agencies that contract with the State Department of Education for these purposes.

(22) This bill would express the intent of the Legislature that specified funding in the Budget Act of 2011 related to educationally related mental health services would be exclusively available only for the 2011–12 and 2012–13 fiscal years.

(23) This bill would express the intent of the Legislature that the State Department of Education and appropriate departments within the California Health and Human Services Agency modify or repeal regulations pertaining to the elimination of statutes pursuant to this bill related to mental health services provided by county mental health agencies. The bill would require the State Department of Education and appropriate departments within the California Health and Human Services Agency to review regulations to ensure appropriate implementation of educationally related mental health services required by the federal Individuals with Disabilities Education Act and of certain statutes enacted pursuant to this bill. The bill would authorize the State Department of Education and appropriate departments within the California Health and Human Services Agency to utilize the statutory process for adopting emergency regulations in implementing certain statutes enacted pursuant to this bill.

(24) This bill would make conforming changes, correct some cross-references, and make other technical, nonsubstantive changes.

(25) The California Constitution requires the state to reimburse local agencies and school districts for certain costs mandated by the state. Statutory provisions establish procedures for making that reimbursement.

This bill would provide that, if the Commission on State Mandates determines that the bill contains costs mandated by the state, reimbursement for those costs shall be made pursuant to these statutory provisions.

(26) Existing law requires the State Department of Education to award grants to school districts, county superintendents of schools, or entities approved by the department for nonrecurring expenses incurred in initiating or expanding a school breakfast program or a summer food service program.

This bill would make an appropriation of $1,000 for purposes of these grants.

(27) The funds appropriated by this bill would be applied toward the minimum funding requirements for school districts and community college districts imposed by Section 8 of Article XVI of the California Constitution.

(28) This bill would declare that it is to take effect immediately as a bill providing for appropriations related to the Budget Bill.

Appropriation: yes.

The people of the State of California do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. Section 1240 of the Education Code is amended to read:

1240. The county superintendent of schools shall do all of the following:

(a) Superintend the schools of his or her county.

(b) Maintain responsibility for the fiscal oversight of each school district in his or her county pursuant to the authority granted by this code.

(c) (1) Visit and examine each school in his or her county at reasonable intervals to observe its operation and to learn of its problems. (2) (A) For fiscal years 2004–05 to 2006–07, inclusive, to the extent that funds are appropriated for purposes of this paragraph, the county superintendent, or his or her designee, annually shall submit a report, at a regularly scheduled November board meeting, to the governing board of each school district under his or her jurisdiction, the county board of education of his or her county, and the board of supervisors of his or her county describing the state of the schools in the county or of his or her office that are ranked in deciles 1 to 3, inclusive, of the 2003 base Academic Performance Index (API), as defined in subdivision (b) of Section 17592.70, and shall include, among other things, his or her observations while visiting the schools and his or her determinations for each school regarding the status of all of the circumstances listed in subparagraph (J) and teacher misassignments and teacher vacancies. As a condition for receipt of funds, the county superintendent, or his or her designee, shall use a standardized template to report the circumstances listed in subparagraph (J) and teacher misassignments and teacher vacancies, unless the current annual report being used by the county superintendent, or his or her designee, already includes those details for each school.

(B) Commencing with the 2007–08 fiscal year, to the extent that funds are appropriated for purposes of this paragraph, the county superintendent, or his or her designee, annually shall submit a report, at a regularly scheduled November board meeting, to the governing board of each school district under his or her jurisdiction, the county board of education of his or her county, and the board of supervisors of his or her county describing the state of the schools in the county or of his or her office that are ranked in deciles 1 to 3, inclusive, of the 2006 base API, pursuant to Section 52056. As a condition for the receipt of funds, the annual report shall include the determinations for each school made by the county superintendent, or his or her designee, regarding the status of all of the circumstances listed in subparagraph (J) and teacher misassignments and teacher vacancies, and the county superintendent, or his or her designee, shall use a standardized template to report the circumstances listed in subparagraph (J) and teacher misassignments and teacher vacancies, unless the current annual report being used by the county superintendent, or his or her designee, already includes those details with the same level of specificity that is otherwise required by this subdivision. For purposes of this section, schools ranked in deciles 1 to 3, inclusive, on the 2006 base API shall include schools determined by the department to meet either of the following:

(i) The school meets all of the following criteria:

(I) Does not have a valid base API score for 2006.

(II) Is operating in fiscal year 2007–08 and was operating in fiscal year 2006–07 during the Standardized Testing and Reporting (STAR) Program testing period.

(III) Has a valid base API score for 2005 that was ranked in deciles 1 to 3, inclusive, in that year.

(ii) The school has an estimated base API score for 2006 that would be in deciles 1 to 3, inclusive.

(C) The department shall estimate an API score for any school meeting the criteria of subclauses (I) and (II) of clause (i) of subparagraph (B) and not meeting the criteria of subclause (III) of clause (i) of subparagraph (B), using available test scores and weighting or corrective factors it deems appropriate. The department shall post the API scores on its Internet Web site on or before May 1.

(D) For purposes of this section, references to schools ranked in deciles 1 to 3, inclusive, on the 2006 base API shall exclude schools operated by county offices of education pursuant to Section 56140, as determined by the department.

(E) In addition to the requirements above, the county superintendent, or his or her designee, annually shall verify both of the following:

(i) That pupils who have not passed the high school exit examination by the end of grade 12 are informed that they are entitled to receive intensive instruction and services for up to two consecutive academic years after completion of grade 12 or until the pupil has passed both parts of the high school exit examination, whichever comes first, pursuant to paragraphs (4) and (5) of subdivision (d) of Section 37254.

(ii) That pupils who have elected to receive intensive instruction and services, pursuant to paragraphs (4) and (5) of subdivision (d) of Section 37254, are being served.

(F) (i) Commencing with the 2010–11 fiscal year and every third year thereafter, the Superintendent shall identify a list of schools ranked in deciles 1 to 3, inclusive, of the API for which the county superintendent, or his or her designee, annually shall submit a report, at a regularly scheduled November board meeting, to the governing board of each school district under his or her jurisdiction, the county board of education of his or her county, and the board of supervisors of his or her county that describes the state of the schools in the county or of his or her office that are ranked in deciles 1 to 3, inclusive, of the base API as defined in clause (ii).

(ii) For the 2010–11 fiscal year, the list of schools ranked in deciles 1 to 3, inclusive, of the base API shall be updated using the criteria set forth in clauses (i) and (ii) of subparagraph (B), subparagraph (C), and subparagraph (D), as applied to the 2009 base API and thereafter shall be updated every third year using the criteria set forth in clauses (i) and (ii) of subparagraph (B), subparagraph (C), and subparagraph (D), as applied to the base API of the year preceding the third year consistent with clause (i).

(iii) As a condition for the receipt of funds, the annual report shall include the determinations for each school made by the county superintendent, or his or her designee, regarding the status of all of the circumstances listed in subparagraph (J) and teacher misassignments and teacher vacancies, and the county superintendent, or his or her designee, shall use a standardized template to report the circumstances listed in subparagraph (J) and teacher misassignments and teacher vacancies, unless the current annual report being used by the county superintendent, or his or her designee, already includes those details with the same level of specificity that is otherwise required by this subdivision.

(G) The county superintendent of the Counties of Alpine, Amador, Del Norte, Mariposa, Plumas, and Sierra, and the City and County of San Francisco shall contract with another county office of education or an independent auditor to conduct the required visits and make all reports required by this paragraph.

(H) On a quarterly basis, the county superintendent, or his or her designee, shall report the results of the visits and reviews conducted that quarter to the governing board of the school district at a regularly scheduled meeting held in accordance with public notification requirements. The results of the visits and reviews shall include the determinations of the county superintendent, or his or her designee, for each school regarding the status of all of the circumstances listed in subparagraph (J) and teacher misassignments and teacher vacancies. If the county superintendent, or his or her designee, conducts no visits or reviews in a quarter, the quarterly report shall report that fact.

(I) The visits made pursuant to this paragraph shall be conducted at least annually and shall meet the following criteria:

(i) Minimize disruption to the operation of the school.

(ii) Be performed by individuals who meet the requirements of Section 45125.1.

(iii) Consist of not less than 25 percent unannounced visits in each county. During unannounced visits in each county, the county superintendent shall not demand access to documents or specific school personnel. Unannounced visits shall only be used to observe the condition of school repair and maintenance, and the sufficiency of instructional materials, as defined by Section 60119.

(J) The priority objective of the visits made pursuant to this paragraph shall be to determine the status of all of the following circumstances:

(i) Sufficient textbooks as defined in Section 60119 and as specified in subdivision (i).

(ii) The condition of a facility that poses an emergency or urgent threat to the health or safety of pupils or staff as defined in district policy or paragraph (1) of subdivision (c) of Section 17592.72.

(iii) The accuracy of data reported on the school accountability report card with respect to the availability of sufficient textbooks and instructional materials, as defined by Section 60119, and the safety, cleanliness, and adequacy of school facilities, including good repair as required by Sections 17014, 17032.5, 17070.75, and 17089.

(iv) The extent to which pupils who have not passed the high school exit examination by the end of grade 12 are informed that they are entitled to receive intensive instruction and services for up to two consecutive academic years after completion of grade 12 or until the pupil has passed both parts of the high school exit examination, whichever comes first, pursuant to paragraphs (4) and (5) of subdivision (d) of Section 37254.

(v) The extent to which pupils who have elected to receive intensive instruction and services, pursuant to paragraphs (4) and (5) of subdivision (d) of Section 37254, are being served.

(K) The county superintendent may make the status determinations described in subparagraph (J) during a single visit or multiple visits. In determining whether to make a single visit or multiple visits for this purpose, the county superintendent shall take into consideration factors such as cost-effectiveness, disruption to the schoolsite, deadlines, and the availability of qualified reviewers.

(L) If the county superintendent determines that the condition of a facility poses an emergency or urgent threat to the health or safety of pupils or staff as defined in district policy or paragraph (1) of subdivision (c) of Section 17592.72, or is not in good repair, as specified in subdivision (d) of Section 17002 and required by Sections 17014, 17032.5, 17070.75, and 17089, the county superintendent, among other things, may do any of the following:

(i) Return to the school to verify repairs.

(ii) Prepare a report that specifically identifies and documents the areas or instances of noncompliance if the district has not provided evidence of successful repairs within 30 days of the visit of the county superintendent or, for major projects, has not provided evidence that the repairs will be conducted in a timely manner. The report may be provided to the governing board of the school district. If the report is provided to the school district, it shall be presented at a regularly scheduled meeting held in accordance with public notification requirements. The county superintendent shall post the report on his or her Internet Web site. The report shall be removed from the Internet Web site when the county superintendent verifies the repairs have been completed.

(d) Distribute all laws, reports, circulars, instructions, and blanks that he or she may receive for the use of the school officers.

(e) Annually, on or before August 15, present a report to the governing board of the school district and the Superintendent regarding the fiscal solvency of a school district with a disapproved budget, qualified interim certification, or a negative interim certification, or that is determined to be in a position of fiscal uncertainty pursuant to Section 42127.6.

(f) Keep in his or her office the reports of the Superintendent.

(g) Keep a record of his or her official acts, and of all the proceedings of the county board of education, including a record of the standing, in each study, of all applicants for certificates who have been examined, which shall be open to the inspection of an applicant or his or her authorized agent.

(h) Enforce the course of study.

(i) (1) Enforce the use of state textbooks and instructional materials and of high school textbooks and instructional materials regularly adopted by the proper authority in accordance with Section 51050.

(2) For purposes of this subdivision, sufficient textbooks or instructional materials has the same meaning as in subdivision (c) of Section 60119.

(3) (A) Commencing with the 2005–06 school year, if a school is ranked in any of deciles 1 to 3, inclusive, of the base API, as specified in paragraph (2) of subdivision (c), and not currently under review pursuant to a state or federal intervention program, the county superintendent specifically shall review that school at least annually as a priority school. A review conducted for purposes of this paragraph shall be completed by the fourth week of the school year. 8263.2. (a) Notwithstanding any other law, effective July 1, 2011, the department shall reduce the maximum reimbursable amounts of the contracts for the Preschool Education Program, the General Child Care Program, the Migrant Day Care Program, the Alternative Payment Program, the CalWORKs Stage 3 Program, and the Allowance for Handicapped Program by 11 percent or by whatever proportion is necessary to ensure that expenditures for these programs do not exceed the amounts appropriated for them, including any reductions made subsequent to the adoption of the annual Budget Act. The department may consider the contractor's performance or whether the contractor serves children in underserved areas as defined in subdivision (ag) of Section 8208 when determining contract reductions, provided that the aggregate reduction to each program specified in this subdivision is 11 percent or by whatever proportion is necessary to ensure that expenditures for these programs do not exceed the amounts appropriated for them, including any reductions made subsequent to the adoption of the annual Budget Act.

(b) Notwithstanding any other law, effective July 1, 2011, families shall be disenrolled from subsidized child care services, consistent with the priorities for services specified in subdivision (b) of Section 8263. Families shall be disenrolled in the following order:

(1) Families whose income exceeds 70 percent of the state median income (SMI) adjusted for family size, except for families whose children are receiving child protective services or are at risk of being neglected or abused.

(2) Families with the highest income below 70 percent of the SMI, in relation to family size.

(3) Families that have the same income and have been enrolled in child care services the longest.

(4) Families that have the same income and have a child with exceptional needs.

(5) Families whose children are receiving child protective services or are at risk of being neglected or abused, regardless of family income.

SEC. 9. Section 8263.4 of the Education Code is amended to read:

8263.4. (a) The preferred placement for children who are 11 or 12 years of age and who are otherwise eligible for subsidized child care and development services shall be in a before or after school program.

(b) Children who are 11 or 12 years of age shall be eligible for subsidized child care services only for the portion of care needed that is not available in a before or after school program provided pursuant to Article 22.5 (commencing with Section 8482) or Article 22.6 (commencing with Section 8484.7). Contractors shall provide each family of an eligible 11 or 12 year old with the option of combining care provided in a before or after school program with subsidized child care in another setting, for those hours within a day when the before or after school program does not operate, in order to meet the child care needs of the family.

(c) Children who are 11 or 12 years of age, who are eligible for and who are receiving subsidized child care services, and for whom a before or after school program is not available, shall continue to receive subsidized child care services.

(d) A before or after school program shall be considered not available when a parent certifies in writing, on a form provided by the department that is translated into the parent's primary language pursuant to Sections 7295.4 and 7296.2 of the Government Code, the reason or reasons why the program would not meet the child care needs of the family. The reasons why a before or after school program shall be considered not available shall include, but not be limited to, any of the following:

(1) The program does not provide services when needed during the year, such as during the summer, school breaks, or intersession.

(2) The program does not provide services when needed during the day, such as in the early morning, evening, or weekend hours.

(3) The program is too geographically distant from the child's school of attendance.

(4) The program is too geographically distant from the parents' residence.

(5) Use of the program would create substantial transportation obstacles for the family.

(6) Any other reason that makes the use of before or after school care inappropriate for the child or burdensome on the family.

(e) If an 11 or 12 year old child who is enrolled in a subsidized child development program becomes ineligible for subsidized child care under subdivision (b) and is disenrolled from the before or after school program, or if the before or after school program no longer meets the child care needs of the family, the child shall be given priority to return to the subsidized child care services upon the parent's notification of the contractor of the need for child care.

(f) This section does not apply to an 11 or 12 year old child with a disability, including a child with exceptional needs who has an individualized education program as required by the federal Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (20 U.S.C. Sec. 1400 et seq.), Section 504 of the federal Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (29 U.S.C. Sec. 794), or Part 30 (commencing with Section 56000) of Division 4 of Title 2.

(g) The savings generated each contract year by the implementation of the changes made to this section by the act amending this section during the 2005–06 Regular Session shall remain with each alternative payment program, child development center, or other contractor for the provision of child care services, except for care provided by programs pursuant to Article 15.5 (commencing with Section 8350). Each contractor shall report annually to the department the amount of savings resulting from this implementation, and the department shall report annually to the Legislature the amount of savings statewide resulting from that implementation.

SEC. 10. Section 8447 of the Education Code is amended to read:

8447. (a) The Legislature hereby finds and declares that greater efficiencies may be achieved in the execution of state subsidized child care and development program contracts with public and private agencies by the timely approval of contract provisions by the Department of Finance, the Department of General Services, and the State Department of Education and by authorizing the State Department of Education to establish a multiyear application, contract expenditure, and service review as may be necessary to provide timely service while preserving audit and oversight functions to protect the public welfare.

(b) (1) The Department of Finance and the Department of General Services shall approve or disapprove annual contract funding terms and conditions, including both family fee schedules and regional market rate schedules that are required to be adhered to by contract, and contract face sheets submitted by the State Department of Education not more than 30 working days from the date of submission, unless unresolved conflicts remain between the Department of Finance, the State Department of Education, and the Department of General Services. The State Department of Education shall resolve conflicts within an additional 30 working day time period. Contracts and funding terms and conditions shall be issued to child care contractors no later than June 1. Applications for new child care funding shall be issued not more than 45 working days after the effective date of authorized new allocations of child care moneys.

(2) Notwithstanding paragraph (1), the State Department of Education shall implement the regional market rate schedules based upon the county aggregates, as determined by the Regional Market survey conducted in 2005.

(3) Notwithstanding paragraph (1), for the 2006–07 fiscal year, the State Department of Education shall update the family fee schedules by family size, based on the 2005 state median income survey data for a family of four. The family fee schedule used during the 2005–06 fiscal year shall remain in effect. However, the department shall adjust the family fee schedule for families that are newly eligible to receive or will continue to receive services under the new income eligibility limits. The family fees shall not exceed 10 percent of the family's monthly income.

(4) Notwithstanding any other law, the family fee schedule that was in effect for the 2007–08, 2008–09, 2009–10, and 2010–11 fiscal years shall be adjusted to reflect the income eligibility limits specified in subdivision (b) of Section 8263.1 for the 2011–12 fiscal year, and shall retain a flat fee per family. The revised family fee schedule shall begin at income levels at which families currently begin paying fees. The revised family fees shall not exceed 10 percent of the family's monthly income. The State Department of Education shall first submit the adjusted fee schedule to the Department of Finance for approval in order to be implemented by July 1, 2011.

(5) It is the intent of the Legislature to fully fund the third stage of child care for former CalWORKs recipients.

(c) With respect to subdivision (b), it is the intent of the Legislature that the Department of Finance annually review contract funding terms and conditions for the primary purpose of ensuring consistency between child care contracts and the child care budget. This review shall include evaluating any proposed changes to contract language or other fiscal documents to which the contractor is required to adhere, including those changes to terms or conditions that authorize higher reimbursement rates, that modify related adjustment factors, that modify administrative or other service allowances, or that diminish fee revenues otherwise available for services, to determine if the change is necessary or has the potential effect of reducing the number of full-time equivalent children that may be served.

(d) Alternative payment child care systems, as set forth in Article 3 (commencing with Section 8220), shall be subject to the rates established in the Regional Market Rate Survey of California Child Care Providers for provider payments. The State Department of Education shall contract to conduct and complete a Regional Market Rate Survey no more frequently than once every two years, consistent with federal regulations, with a goal of completion by March 1.

(e) By March 1 of each year, the Department of Finance shall provide to the State Department of Education the State Median Income amount for a four-person household in California based on the best available data. The State Department of Education shall adjust its fee schedule for child care providers to reflect this updated state median income; however, no changes based on revisions to the state median income amount shall be implemented midyear.

(f) Notwithstanding the June 1 date specified in subdivision (b), changes to the regional market rate schedules and fee schedules may be made at any other time to reflect the availability of accurate data necessary for their completion, provided these documents receive the approval of the Department of Finance. The Department of Finance shall review the changes within 30 working days of submission and the State Department of Education shall resolve conflicts within an additional 30 working day period. Contractors shall be given adequate notice prior to the effective date of the approved schedules. It is the intent of the Legislature that contracts for services not be delayed by the timing of the availability of accurate data needed to update these schedules.

(g) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, no family receiving CalWORKs cash aid may be charged a family fee.

(c) "General Fund revenues appropriated for school districts," as used in paragraph (1) of subdivision (b) of Section 8 of Article XVI of the California Constitution, means the sum of appropriations made that are for allocation to school districts, as defined in Section 41302.5, regardless of whether those appropriations were made from the General Fund to the Superintendent of Public Instruction, to the Controller, or to any other fund or state agency for the purpose of allocation to school districts. The full amount of any appropriation shall be included in the calculation of the percentage required by paragraph (1) of subdivision (b) of Article XVI, without regard to any unexpended balance of any appropriation. (e) "Total allocations to school districts and community college districts from General Fund proceeds of taxes appropriated pursuant to Article XIII B," as used in paragraph (2) or (3) of subdivision (b) of Section 8 of Article XVI of the California Constitution, means the sum of appropriations made that are for allocation to school districts, as defined in Section 41302.5, and community college districts, regardless of whether those appropriations were made from the General Fund to the Controller, to the Superintendent of Public Instruction, to the Chancellor of the California Community Colleges, or to any other fund or state agency for the purpose of allocation to school districts and community college districts. The full amount of any appropriation shall be included in the calculation of the percentage required by paragraph (2) or (3) of subdivision (b) of Section 8 of Article XVI, without regard to any unexpended balance of any appropriation. Commencing with the 1995–96 fiscal year, and each fiscal year thereafter, "General Fund revenues that are the proceeds of taxes," as defined in subdivision (c) of Section 8 of Article XIII B of the California Constitution, includes any portion of the proceeds of taxes received from the state sales tax that are transferred to the counties pursuant to, and only if, legislation is enacted during the 1995–96 fiscal year the purpose of which is to realign children's programs. In no event shall the revenues or receipts derived from student fees be considered "allocated local proceeds of taxes."

(i) For purposes of calculating the 4-percent entitlement pursuant to subdivision (a) of Section 8.5 of Article XVI of the California Constitution, "the total amount required pursuant to Section 8(b)" shall mean the General Fund aid required for schools pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 8 of Article XVI of the California Constitution, and shall not include allocated local proceeds of taxes.

(j) This section shall become operative on July 1, 2011.

SEC. 14. Section 41202.5 is added to the Education Code, to read:

41202.5. (a) The finds and declares as follows:

(1) The Legislature acted to implement Proposition 98 soon after its passage by defining "total allocations to school districts and community college districts from General Fund proceeds of taxes" to include the entirety of programs funded under the Child Care and Development Services Act (Chapter 2 (commencing with Section 8200) of Part 6 of Division 1 of Title 1).

(2) In California Teachers Assn. v. Hayes (1992) 5 Cal.App.4th 1513, the Court of Appeal permitted the inclusion of child care within the Proposition 98 minimum funding guarantee but left open the possibility of excluding particular child care programs that did not directly advance and support the educational mission of school districts.

(b) It is the intent of the Legislature to clarify that the part-time state preschool programs and the After School Education and Safety Program fall within the Proposition 98 guarantee and to fund other child care programs less directly associated with school districts from appropriations that do not count toward the Proposition 98 minimum guarantee.

(c) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, for purposes of making the computations required by subdivision (b) of Section 8 of Article XVI of the California Constitution in the 2011–12 fiscal year and each subsequent fiscal year, both of the following apply:

(1) For purposes of paragraph (1) of subdivision (b) of Section 8 of Article XVI of the California Constitution, the term "General Fund revenues appropriated for school districts and community college districts, respectively, in fiscal year 1986–87" does not include General Fund revenues appropriated for any program within Chapter 2 (commencing with Section 8200) of Part 6 of Division 1 of Title 1, with the exception of the part-day California state preschool programs set forth in Article 7 (commencing with Section 8235) and the After School Education and Safety Program in Article 22.5 (commencing with Section 8482). The Director of Finance shall adjust accordingly "the percentage of General Fund revenues appropriated for school districts and community college districts, respectively, in fiscal year 1986–87," for purposes of applying that percentage in the 2011–12 fiscal year and each subsequent fiscal year in making the calculations required under paragraph (1) of subdivision (b) of Section 8 of Article XVI of the California Constitution.

(2) General Fund revenues appropriated in the 2010–11 fiscal year or any subsequent fiscal year for any program within Chapter 2 (commencing with Section 8200) of Part 6 of Division 1 of Title 1, with the exception of the part-day California state preschool programs set forth in Article 7 (commencing with Section 8235) and the After School Education and Safety Program in Article 22.5 (commencing with Section 8482), are not included within the "total allocations to school districts and community college districts from General Fund proceeds of taxes appropriated pursuant to Article XIII B" for purposes of paragraph (2) or (3) of subdivision (b) of Section 8 of Article XVI of the California Constitution.

SEC. 15. Section 41210 is added to the Education Code, to read:

41210. (a) The revenues transferred pursuant to Section 6015.15 and 6201.15 of the Revenue and Taxation Code are not "General Fund revenues" as that term is used in Section 8 of Article XVI of the California Constitution.

(b) This section shall be operative for the 2011–12 fiscal year and subsequent years so long as one or more ballot measures approved before November 17, 2012, authorize the determination in subdivision (a) and provide funding for school districts and community college districts in an amount equal to that which would have been provided if the revenues referenced in subdivision (a) were General Fund revenues for purposes of Section 8 of Article XVI of the California Constitution.

SEC. 16. Section 41211 is added to the Education Code, to read:

41211. The following shall apply if Section 41210 is rendered inoperative because the ballot measure or measures described in subdivision (b) of that section are not approved:

(a) Before December 17, 2012, the Director of Finance, in consultation with the Superintendent, shall determine the amount of funding that would have been provided in the 2011–12 fiscal year to school districts and community college districts if the revenues described in subdivision (a) of Section 41210 were General Fund revenues for purposes of Section 8 of Article XVI of the California Constitution.

(b) For each of the 2012–13 to 2016–17, inclusive, fiscal years, 17.8 percent of the amount determined in subdivision (a) is appropriated from the General Fund to the Superintendent and shall be distributed in the following priority:

(1) To reduce amounts deferred under Section 14041.6.

(2) To repay obligations to school districts and county offices of education under Section 6 of Article XIII B of the California Constitution.

(3) To use for other one-time purposes as provided by statute enacted after the effective date of this section.

(c) For each of the 2012–13 to 2016–17, inclusive, fiscal years, 2.2 percent of the amount determined in subdivision (a) is appropriated from the General Fund to the Chancellor of the California Community Colleges and shall be distributed in the following priority:

(1) To reduce amounts deferred under Section 84321.6.

(2) To repay obligations to community college districts under Section 6 of Article XIII B of the California Constitution.

(3) To use for other one-time purposes as provided by statute enacted after the effective date of this section.

(d) For the 2011–12 fiscal year and subsequent fiscal years, the computations required by Section 8 of Article XVI of the California Constitution shall include the amount determined in subdivision (a).

SEC. 17. Section 42127 of the Education Code is amended to read:

42127. (a) On or before July 1 of each year, the governing board of each school district shall accomplish the following:

(1) Hold a public hearing on the budget to be adopted for the subsequent fiscal year. The budget to be adopted shall be prepared in accordance with Section 42126. The agenda for that hearing shall be posted at least 72 hours prior to the public hearing and shall include the location where the budget will be available for public inspection.

(A) For the 2011–12 fiscal year, notwithstanding any of the standards and criteria adopted by the state board pursuant to Section 33127, each school district budget shall project the same level of revenue per unit of average daily attendance as it received in the 2010–11 fiscal year and shall maintain staffing and program levels commensurate with that level.

(B) For the 2011–12 fiscal year, the school district shall not be required to demonstrate that it is able to meet its financial obligations for the two subsequent fiscal years.

(2) Adopt a budget. Not later than five days after that adoption or by July 1, whichever occurs first, the governing board shall file that budget with the county superintendent of schools. That budget and supporting data shall be maintained and made available for public review. If the governing board of the district does not want all or a portion of the property tax requirement levied for the purpose of making payments for the interest and redemption charges on indebtedness as described in paragraph (1) or (2) of subdivision (b) of Section 1 of Article XIII A of the California Constitution, the budget shall include a statement of the amount or portion for which a levy shall not be made.

(b) The county superintendent of schools may accept changes in any statement included in the budget, pursuant to subdivision (a), of the amount or portion for which a property tax levy shall not be made. The county superintendent or the county auditor shall compute the actual amounts to be levied on the property tax rolls of the district for purposes that exceed apportionments to the district pursuant to Chapter 6 (commencing with Section 95) of Part 0.5 of Division 1 of the Revenue and Taxation Code. Each school district shall provide all data needed by the county superintendent or the county auditor to compute the amounts. On or before August 15, the county superintendent shall transmit the amounts computed to the county auditor who shall compute the tax rates necessary to produce the amounts. On or before September 1, the county auditor shall submit the rate computed to the board of supervisors for adoption.

(c) The county superintendent of schools shall do all of the following:

(1) Examine the adopted budget to determine whether it complies with the standards and criteria adopted by the state board pursuant to Section 33127 for application to final local educational agency budgets. The county superintendent shall identify, if necessary, any technical corrections that are required to be made to bring the budget into compliance with those standards and criteria.

(2) Determine whether the adopted budget will allow the district to meet its financial obligations during the fiscal year and is consistent with a financial plan that will enable the district to satisfy its multiyear financial commitments. In addition to his or her own analysis of the budget of each school district, the county superintendent of schools shall review and consider studies, reports, evaluations, or audits of the school district that were commissioned by the district, the county superintendent, the Superintendent, and state control agencies and that contain evidence that the school district is showing fiscal distress under the standards and criteria adopted in Section 33127 or that contain a finding by an external reviewer that more than three of the 15 most common predictors of a school district needing intervention, as determined by the County Office Fiscal Crisis and Management Assistance Team, are present. The county superintendent of schools shall either conditionally approve or disapprove a budget that does not provide adequate assurance that the district will meet its current and future obligations and resolve any problems identified in studies, reports, evaluations, or audits described in this paragraph.

(d) On or before August 15, the county superintendent of schools shall approve, conditionally approve, or disapprove the adopted budget for each school district. If a school district does not submit a budget to the county superintendent of schools, the county superintendent of schools shall, at district expense, develop a budget for that school district by September 15 and transmit that budget to the governing board of the school district. The budget prepared by the county superintendent of schools shall be deemed adopted, unless the county superintendent of schools approves any modifications made by the governing board of the school district. The approved budget shall be used as a guide for the district's priorities. The Superintendent shall review and certify the budget approved by the county. If, pursuant to the review conducted pursuant to subdivision (c), the county superintendent of schools determines that the adopted budget for a school district does not satisfy paragraph (1) or (2) of that subdivision, he or she shall conditionally approve or disapprove the budget and, not later than August 15, transmit to the governing board of the school district, in writing, his or her recommendations regarding revision of the budget and the reasons for those recommendations, including, but not limited to, the amounts of any budget adjustments needed before he or she can conditionally approve that budget. The county superintendent of schools may assign a fiscal adviser to assist the district to develop a budget in compliance with those revisions. In addition, the county superintendent of schools may appoint a committee to examine and comment on the superintendent's review and recommendations, subject to the requirement that the committee report its findings to the superintendent no later than August 20. For the 2011–12 fiscal year, notwithstanding any of the standards and criteria adopted by the state board pursuant to Section 33127, the county superintendent, as a condition on approval of a school district budget, shall not require a school district to project a lower level of revenue per unit of average daily attendance than it received in the 2010–11 fiscal year nor require the school district to demonstrate that it is able to meet its financial obligations for the two subsequent fiscal years.

(e) On or before September 8, the governing board of the school district shall revise the adopted budget to reflect changes in projected income or expenditures subsequent to July 1, and to include any response to the recommendations of the county superintendent of schools, shall adopt the revised budget, and shall file the revised budget with the county superintendent of schools. Prior to revising the budget, the governing board shall hold a public hearing regarding the proposed revisions, to be conducted in accordance with Section 42103. In addition, if the adopted budget is disapproved pursuant to subdivision (d), the governing board and the county superintendent of schools shall review the disapproval and the recommendations of the county superintendent of schools regarding revision of the budget at the public hearing. The revised budget and supporting data shall be maintained and made available for public review.

(1) For the 2011–12 fiscal year, notwithstanding any of the standards and criteria adopted by the state board pursuant to Section 33127, each school district budget shall project the same level of revenue per unit of average daily attendance as it received in the 2010–11 fiscal year and shall maintain staffing and program levels commensurate with that level.

(2) For the 2011–12 fiscal year, the school district shall not be required to demonstrate that it is able to meet its financial obligations for the two subsequent fiscal years.

(f) On or before September 22, the county superintendent of schools shall provide a list to the Superintendent identifying all school districts for which budgets may be disapproved.

(g) The county superintendent of schools shall examine the revised budget to determine whether it (1) complies with the standards and criteria adopted by the state board pursuant to Section 33127 for application to final local educational agency budgets, (2) allows the district to meet its financial obligations during the fiscal year, (3) satisfies all conditions established by the county superintendent of schools in the case of a conditionally approved budget, and (4) is consistent with a financial plan that will enable the district to satisfy its multiyear financial commitments, and, not later than October 8, shall approve or disapprove the revised budget. If the county superintendent of schools disapproves the budget, he or she shall call for the formation of a budget review committee pursuant to Section 42127.1, unless the governing board of the school district and the county superintendent of schools agree to waive the requirement that a budget review committee be formed and the department approves the waiver after determining that a budget review committee is not necessary. Upon the grant of a waiver, the county superintendent immediately has the authority and responsibility provided in Section 42127.3. Upon approving a waiver of the budget review committee, the department shall ensure that a balanced budget is adopted for the school district by November 30. If no budget is adopted by November 30, the Superintendent may adopt a budget for the school district. The Superintendent shall report to the Legislature and the Director of Finance by December 10 if any district, including a district that has received a waiver of the budget review committee process, does not have an adopted budget by November 30. This report shall include the reasons why a budget has not been adopted by the deadline, the steps being taken to finalize budget adoption, the date the adopted budget is anticipated, and whether the Superintendent has or will exercise his or her authority to adopt a budget for the school district. For the 2011–12 fiscal year, notwithstanding any of the standards and criteria adopted by the state board pursuant to Section 33127, the county superintendent, as a condition on approval of a school district budget, shall not require a school district to project a lower level of revenue per unit of average daily attendance than it received in the 2010–11 fiscal year nor require the school district to demonstrate that it is able to meet its financial obligations for the two subsequent fiscal years.

(h) Not later than October 8, the county superintendent of schools shall submit a report to the Superintendent identifying all school districts for which budgets have been disapproved or budget review committees waived. The report shall include a copy of the written response transmitted to each of those districts pursuant to subdivision (d).

(i) Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, the budget review for a school district shall be governed by paragraphs (1), (2), and (3) of this subdivision, rather than by subdivisions (e) and (g), if the governing board of the school district so elects and notifies the county superintendent in writing of that decision, not later than October 31 of the immediately preceding calendar year. On or before July 1, the governing board of a school district for which the budget review is governed by this subdivision, rather than by subdivisions (e) and (g), shall conduct a public hearing regarding its proposed budget in accordance with Section 42103.

(1) If the adopted budget of a school district is disapproved pursuant to subdivision (d), on or before September 8, the governing board of the school district, in conjunction with the county superintendent of schools, shall review the superintendent's recommendations at a regular meeting of the governing board and respond to those recommendations. The response shall include any revisions to the adopted budget and other proposed actions to be taken, if any, as a result of those recommendations.

(2) On or before September 22, the county superintendent of schools will provide a list to the Superintendent identifying all school districts for which a budget may be tentatively disapproved.

(3) Not later than October 8, after receiving the response required under paragraph (1), the county superintendent of schools shall review that response and either approve or disapprove the budget. If the county superintendent of schools disapproves the budget, he or she shall call for the formation of a budget review committee pursuant to Section 42127.1, unless the governing board of the school district and the county superintendent of schools agree to waive the requirement that a budget review committee be formed and the department approves the waiver after determining that a budget review committee is not necessary. Upon the grant of a waiver, the county superintendent has the authority and responsibility provided to a budget review committee in Section 42127.3. Upon approving a waiver of the budget review committee, the department shall ensure that a balanced budget is adopted for the school district by November 30. The Superintendent shall report to the Legislature and the Director of Finance by December 10 if any district, including a district that has received a waiver of the budget review committee process, does not have an adopted budget by November 30. This report shall include the reasons why a budget has not been adopted by the deadline, the steps being taken to finalize budget adoption, and the date the adopted budget is anticipated. For the 2011–12 fiscal year, notwithstanding any of the standards and criteria adopted by the state board pursuant to Section 33127, the county superintendent, as a condition on approval of a school district budget, shall not require a school district to project a lower level of revenue per unit of average daily attendance than it received in the 2010–11 fiscal year nor require the school district to demonstrate that it is able to meet its financial obligations for the two subsequent fiscal years.

(4) Not later than 45 days after the Governor signs the annual Budget Act, the school district shall make available for public review any revisions in revenues and expenditures that it has made to its budget to reflect the funding made available by that Budget Act.

(j) Any school district for which the county board of education serves as the governing board is not subject to subdivisions (c) to (h), inclusive, but is governed instead by the budget procedures set forth in Section 1622.

These supplemental categorical block grant funds may be used for any educational purpose. Commencing in the 2011–12 fiscal year, a locally or direct funded charter school that converted from a preexisting school between the 2008–09 and 2014–15 fiscal years, inclusive, is not eligible for funding specified in this section. A charter school that receives funding pursuant to this subdivision shall not

The termination shall be pursuant to Sections 44951 and 44955 but, notwithstanding anything to the contrary in Sections 44951 and 44955, in accordance with a schedule of notice and hearing adopted by the governing board.

However, for high school graduates who apply after their senior year, "high school grade point average" includes senior year coursework.

The commission shall annually adjust the maximum household income and asset levels based on the percentage change in the cost of living within the meaning of paragraph (1) of subdivision (e) of Section 8 of Article XIII B of the California Constitution. The maximum household income and asset levels applicable to a renewing recipient shall be the greater of the adjusted maximum household income and asset levels or the maximum household income and asset levels at the time of the renewing recipient's initial Cal Grant award. For a recipient who was initially awarded a Cal Grant for an academic year before the 2011–12 academic year, the maximum household income and asset levels shall be the greater of the adjusted maximum household income and asset levels or the 2010–11 academic year maximum household income and asset levels. An applicant or renewal recipient who qualifies to be considered under the simplified needs test established by federal law for student assistance shall be presumed to meet the asset level test under this section. Prior to disbursing any Cal Grant funds, a qualifying institution shall be obligated, under the terms of its institutional participation agreement with the commission, to resolve any conflicts that may exist in the data the institution possesses relating to that individual.

(l) (1) "Qualifying institution" means an institution that complies with paragraphs (2) and (3) and is any of the following:

(A) A California private or independent postsecondary educational institution that participates in the Pell Grant Program and in at least two of the following federal campus-based student aid programs:

(i) Federal Work-Study.

(ii) Perkins Loan Program.

(iii) Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant Program.

(B) A nonprofit institution headquartered and operating in California that certifies to the commission that 10 percent of the institution's operating budget, as demonstrated in an audited financial statement, is expended for purposes of institutionally funded student financial aid in the form of grants, that demonstrates to the commission that it has the administrative capacity to administer the funds, that is accredited by the Western Association of Schools and Colleges, and that meets any other state-required criteria adopted by regulation by the commission in consultation with the Department of Finance. A regionally accredited institution that was deemed qualified by the commission to participate in the Cal Grant Program for the 2000–01 academic year shall retain its eligibility as long as it maintains its existing accreditation status.

(C) A California public postsecondary educational institution.

(2) (A) The institution shall provide information on where to access California license examination passage rates for the most recent available year from graduates of its undergraduate programs leading to employment for which passage of a California licensing examination is required, if that data is electronically available through the Internet Web site of a California licensing or regulatory agency. For purposes of this paragraph, "provide" may exclusively include placement of an Internet Web site address labeled as an access point for the data on the passage rates of recent program graduates on the Internet Web site where enrollment information is also located, on an Internet Web site that provides centralized admissions information for postsecondary educational systems with multiple campuses, or on applications for enrollment or other program information distributed to prospective students.

(B) The institution shall be responsible for certifying to the commission compliance with the requirements of subparagraph (A).

(3) (A) The commission shall certify by October 1 of each year the institution's latest three-year cohort default rate as most recently reported by the United States Department of Education.

(B) For purposes of the 2011–12 academic year, an otherwise qualifying institution with a 2008 trial three-year cohort default rate reported by the United States Department of Education as of February 28, 2011, that is equal to or greater than 24.6 percent shall be ineligible for initial and renewal Cal Grant awards at the institution, except as provided in subparagraph (F).

(C) For purposes of the 2012–13 academic year, and every academic year thereafter, an otherwise qualifying institution with a three-year cohort default rate that is equal to or greater than 30 percent, as certified by the commission on October 1, 2011, and every year thereafter, shall be ineligible for initial and renewal Cal Grant awards at the institution, except as provided in subparagraph (F).

(D) (i) An otherwise qualifying institution that becomes ineligible under this paragraph for initial and renewal Cal Grant awards may regain its eligibility for the academic year following an academic year in which it satisfies the requirements established in subparagraph (B) or (C), as applicable.

(ii) If the United States Department of Education corrects or revises an institution's three-year cohort default rate that originally failed to satisfy the requirements established in subparagraph (B) or (C), as applicable, and the correction or revision results in the institution's three-year cohort default rate satisfying those requirements, that institution shall immediately regain its eligibility for the academic year to which the corrected or revised three-year cohort default rate would have been applied.

(E) An otherwise qualifying institution for which no three-year cohort default rate has been reported by the United States Department of Education shall be provisionally eligible to participate in the Cal Grant Program until a three-year cohort default rate has been reported for the institution by the United States Department of Education.

(F) An institution that is ineligible for initial and renewal Cal Grant awards at the institution under subparagraph (B) or (C) shall be eligible for renewal Cal Grant awards for recipients who were enrolled in the ineligible institution during the academic year before the academic year for which the institution is ineligible and who choose to renew their Cal Grant awards to attend the ineligible institution. Cal Grant awards subject to this subparagraph shall be reduced as follows:

(i) The maximum Cal Grant A and B awards specified in the annual Budget Act shall be reduced by 20 percent.

(ii) The reductions specified in this subparagraph shall not impact access costs as specified in subdivision (b) of Section 69435.

(G) Notwithstanding any other law, the requirements of this paragraph shall not apply to institutions with 40 percent or less of undergraduate students borrowing federal student loans, using information reported to the United States Department of Education for the academic year two years prior to the year in which the commission is certifying the three-year cohort default rate pursuant to subparagraph (A).

(H) By January 1, 2013, the Legislative Analyst shall submit to the Legislature a report on the implementation of this paragraph. The report shall be prepared in consultation with the commission, and shall include policy recommendations for appropriate measures of default risk and other direct or indirect measures of quality or effectiveness in educational institutions participating in the Cal Grant Program, and appropriate scores for those measures. It is the intent of the Legislature that appropriate policy and fiscal committees review the requirements of this paragraph and consider changes thereto.

(m) "Satisfactory academic progress" means those criteria required by applicable federal standards published in Title 34 of the Code of Federal Regulations. The commission may adopt regulations defining "satisfactory academic progress" in a manner that is consistent with those federal standards.

In making these adjustments, the board of governors may round the per unit fee and the per term or per session fee to the nearest dollar.

(c) For the purposes of computing apportionments to community college districts pursuant to Section 84750.5, the board of governors shall subtract, from the total revenue owed to each district, 98 percent of the revenues received by districts from charging a fee pursuant to this section.

(d) The board of governors shall reduce apportionments by up to 10 percent to any district that does not collect the fees prescribed by this section.

(e) The fee requirement does not apply to any of the following:

(1) Students enrolled in the noncredit courses designated by Section 84757.

(2) California State University or University of California students enrolled in remedial classes provided by a community college district on a campus of the University of California or a campus of the California State University, for whom the district claims an attendance apportionment pursuant to an agreement between the district and the California State University or the University of California.

(f) The governing board of a community college district may exempt special part-time students admitted pursuant to Section 76001 from the fee requirement.

(g) (1) The fee requirements of this section shall be waived for any student who, at the time of enrollment, is a recipient of benefits under the Temporary Assistance to Needy Families program, the Supplemental Security Income/State Supplementary Program, or a general assistance program or has demonstrated financial need in accordance with the methodology set forth in federal law or regulation for determining the expected family contribution of students seeking financial aid.

(2) The governing board of a community college district also shall waive the fee requirements of this section for any student who demonstrates eligibility according to income standards established by regulations of the board of governors.

(3) Paragraphs (1) and (2) may be applied to a student enrolled in the 2005–06 academic year if the student is exempted from nonresident tuition under paragraph (3) of subdivision (a) of Section 76140.

(h) The fee requirements of this section shall be waived for any student who, at the time of enrollment, is a dependent, or surviving spouse who has not remarried, of any member of the California National Guard who, in the line of duty and while in the active service of the state, was killed, died of a disability resulting from an event that occurred while in the active service of the state, or is permanently disabled as a result of an event that occurred while in the active service of the state. "Active service of the state," for the purposes of this subdivision, refers to a member of the California National Guard activated pursuant to Section 146 of the Military and Veterans Code.

(i) The fee requirements of this section shall be waived for any student who is the surviving spouse or the child, natural or adopted, of a deceased person who met all of the requirements of Section 68120.

(j) The fee requirements of this section shall be waived for any student in an undergraduate program, including a student who has previously graduated from another undergraduate or graduate program, who is the dependent of any individual killed in the September 11, 2001, terrorist attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon or the crash of United Airlines Flight 93 in southwestern Pennsylvania, if that dependent meets the financial need requirements set forth in Section 69432.7 for the Cal Grant A Program and either of the following applies:

(1) The dependent was a resident of California on September 11, 2001.

(2) The individual killed in the attacks was a resident of California on September 11, 2001.

(k) A determination of whether a person is a resident of California on September 11, 2001, for purposes of subdivision (j) shall be based on the criteria set forth in Chapter 1 (commencing with Section 68000) of Part 41 of Division 5 for determining nonresident and resident tuition.

(l) (1) "Dependent," for purposes of subdivision (j), is a person who, because of his or her relationship to an individual killed as a result of injuries sustained during the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001, qualifies for compensation under the federal September 11th Victim Compensation Fund of 2001 (Title IV (commencing with Section 401) of Public Law 107-42).

Victim Compensation and Government Claims Board, is also entitled to the waivers provided in this section until January 1, 2013.

(m) (1) It is the intent of the Legislature that sufficient funds be provided to support the provision of a fee waiver for every student who demonstrates eligibility pursuant to subdivisions (g) to (j), inclusive.

(2) From funds provided in the annual Budget Act, the board of governors shall allocate to community college districts, pursuant to this subdivision, an amount equal to 2 percent of the fees waived pursuant to subdivisions (g) to (j), inclusive. From funds provided in the annual Budget Act, the board of governors shall allocate to community college districts, pursuant to this subdivision, an amount equal to ninety-one cents ($0.91) per credit unit waived pursuant to subdivisions (g) to (j), inclusive. It is the intent of the Legislature that funds provided pursuant to this subdivision be used to support the determination of financial need and delivery of student financial aid services, on the basis of the number of students for whom fees are waived. It also is the intent of the Legislature that the funds provided pursuant to this subdivision directly offset mandated costs claimed by community college districts pursuant to Commission on State Mandates consolidated Test Claims 99-TC-13 (Enrollment Fee Collection) and 00-TC-15 (Enrollment Fee Waivers). Funds allocated to a community college district for determination of financial need and delivery of student financial aid services shall supplement, and shall not supplant, the level of funds allocated for the administration of student financial aid programs during the 1992–93 fiscal year.

(n) The board of governors shall adopt regulations implementing this section.

SEC. 31. Section 7911.1 of the Family Code is amended to read:

7911.1. (a) Notwithstanding any other law, the State Department of Social Services or its designee shall investigate any threat to the health and safety of children placed by a California county social services agency or probation department in an out-of-state group home pursuant to the provisions of the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children. This authority shall include the authority to interview children or staff in private or review their file at the out-of-state facility or wherever the child or files may be at the time of the investigation. Notwithstanding any other law, the State Department of Social Services or its designee shall require certified out-of-state group homes to comply with the reporting requirements applicable to group homes licensed in California pursuant to Title 22 of the California Code of Regulations for each child in care regardless of whether he or she is a California placement, by submitting a copy of the required reports to the Compact Administrator within regulatory timeframes. The Compact Administrator within one business day of receiving a serious events report shall verbally notify the appropriate placement agencies and within five working days of receiving a written report from the out-of-state group home, forward a copy of the written report to the appropriate placement agencies.

(b) Any contract, memorandum of understanding, or agreement entered into pursuant to paragraph (b) of Article 5 of the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children regarding the placement of a child out of state by a California county social services agency or probation department shall include the language set forth in subdivision (a).

(c) The State Department of Social Services or its designee shall perform initial and continuing inspection of out-of-state group homes in order to either certify that the out-of-state group home meets all licensure standards required of group homes operated in California or that the department has granted a waiver to a specific licensing standard upon a finding that there exists no adverse impact to health and safety. Any failure by an out-of-state group home facility to make children or staff available as required by subdivision (a) for a private interview or make files available for review shall be grounds to deny or discontinue the certification. The State Department of Social Services shall grant or deny an initial certification or a waiver under this subdivision to an out-of-state group home facility that has more than six California children placed by a county social services agency or probation department by August 19, 1999. The department shall grant or deny an initial certification or a waiver under this subdivision to an out-of-state group home facility that has six or fewer California children placed by a county social services agency or probation department by February 19, 2000. Certifications made pursuant to this subdivision shall be reviewed annually.

(d) Within six months of the effective date of this section, a county shall be required to obtain an assessment and placement recommendation by a county multidisciplinary team for each child in an out-of-state group home facility. On or after March 1, 1999, a county shall be required to obtain an assessment and placement recommendation by a county multidisciplinary team prior to placement of a child in an out-of-state group home facility.

(e) Any failure by an out-of-state group home to obtain or maintain its certification as required by subdivision (c) shall preclude the use of any public funds, whether county, state, or federal, in the payment for the placement of any child in that out-of-state group home, pursuant to the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children.

(f) (1) A multidisciplinary team shall consist of participating members from county social services, county mental health, county probation, county superintendents of schools, and other members as determined by the county.

(2) Participants shall have knowledge or experience in the prevention, identification, and treatment of child abuse and neglect cases, and shall be qualified to recommend a broad range of services related to child abuse or neglect.

(g) (1) The department may deny, suspend, or discontinue the certification of the out-of-state group home if the department makes a finding that the group home is not operating in compliance with the requirements of subdivision (c).

(2) Any judicial proceeding to contest the department's determination as to the status of the out-of-state group home certificate shall be held in California pursuant to Section 1085 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

(h) The certification requirements of this section shall not impact placements of emotionally disturbed children made pursuant to an individualized education program developed pursuant to the federal Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (20 U.S.C. Sec. 1400 et seq.) if the placement is not funded with federal or state foster care funds.

(i) Only an out-of-state group home authorized by the Compact Administrator to receive state funds for the placement by a county social services agency or probation department of any child in that out-of-state group home from the effective date of this section shall be eligible for public funds pending the department's certification under this section.

SEC. 32. Section 7572 of the Government Code is amended to read:

7572. (a) A child shall be assessed in all areas related to the suspected disability by those qualified to make a determination of the child's need for the service before any action is taken with respect to the provision of related services or designated instruction and services to a child, including, but not limited to, services in the areas of occupational therapy and physical therapy. All assessments required or conducted pursuant to this section shall be governed by the assessment procedures contained in Article 2 (commencing with Section 56320) of Chapter 4 of Part 30 of Division 4 of Title 2 of the Education Code.

(b) Occupational therapy and physical therapy assessments shall be conducted by qualified medical personnel as specified in regulations developed by the State Department of Health Services in consultation with the State Department of Education.

(c) A related service or designated instruction and service shall only be added to the child's individualized education program by the individualized education program team, as described in Part 30 (commencing with Section 56000) of Division 4 of Title 2 of the Education Code, if a formal assessment has been conducted pursuant to this section, and a qualified person conducting the assessment recommended the service in order for the child to benefit from special education. In no case shall the inclusion of necessary related services in a pupil's individualized education plan be contingent upon identifying the funding source. Nothing in this section shall prevent a parent from obtaining an independent assessment in accordance with subdivision (b) of Section 56329 of the Education Code, which shall be considered by the individualized education program team.

(1) If an assessment has been conducted pursuant to subdivision (b), the recommendation of the person who conducted the assessment shall be reviewed and discussed with the parent and with appropriate members of the individualized education program team prior to the meeting of the individualized education program team. When the proposed recommendation of the person has been discussed with the parent and there is disagreement on the recommendation pertaining to the related service, the parent shall be notified in writing and may require the person who conducted the assessment to attend the individualized education program team meeting to discuss the recommendation. The person who conducted the assessment shall attend the individualized education program team meeting if requested. Following this discussion and review, the recommendation of the person who conducted the assessment shall be the recommendation of the individualized education program team members who are attending on behalf of the local educational agency.

(2) If an independent assessment for the provision of related services or designated instruction and services is submitted to the individualized education program team, review of that assessment shall be conducted by the person specified in subdivision (b). The recommendation of the person who reviewed the independent assessment shall be reviewed and discussed with the parent and with appropriate members of the individualized education program team prior to the meeting of the individualized education program team. The parent shall be notified in writing and may request the person who reviewed the independent assessment to attend the individualized education program team meeting to discuss the recommendation. The person who reviewed the independent assessment shall attend the individualized education program team meeting if requested. Following this review and discussion, the recommendation of the person who reviewed the independent assessment shall be the recommendation of the individualized education program team members who are attending on behalf of the local agency.

(3) Any disputes between the parent and team members representing the public agencies regarding a recommendation made in accordance with paragraphs (1) and (2) shall be resolved pursuant to Chapter 5 (commencing with Section 56500) of Part 30 of Division 4 of Title 2 of the Education Code.

(d) Whenever a related service or designated instruction and service specified in subdivision (b) is to be considered for inclusion in the child's individualized educational program, the local education agency shall invite the responsible public agency representative to meet with the individualized education program team to determine the need for the service and participate in developing the individualized education program. If the responsible public agency representative cannot meet with the individualized education program team, then the representative shall provide written information concerning the need for the service pursuant to subdivision (c). Conference calls, together with written recommendations, are acceptable forms of participation. If the responsible public agency representative will not be available to participate in the individualized education program meeting, the local educational agency shall ensure that a qualified substitute is available to explain and interpret the evaluation pursuant to subdivision (d) of Section 56341 of the Education Code. A copy of the information shall be provided by the responsible public agency to the parents or any adult pupil for whom no guardian or conservator has been appointed.

SEC. 33. Section 7572.5 of the Government Code is amended to read:

7572.5. (a) If an assessment is conducted pursuant to Article 2 (commencing with Section 56320) of Chapter 4 of Part 30 of Division 4 of Title 2 of the Education Code, which determines that a child is seriously emotionally disturbed, as defined in Section 300.8 of Title 34 of the Code of Federal Regulations, and any member of the individualized education program team recommends residential placement based on relevant assessment information, the individualized education program team shall be expanded to include a representative of the county mental health department.

(b) The expanded individualized education program team shall review the assessment and determine whether:

(1) The child's needs can reasonably be met through any combination of nonresidential services, preventing the need for out-of-home care.

(2) Residential care is necessary for the child to benefit from educational services.

(3) Residential services are available that address the needs identified in the assessment and that will ameliorate the conditions leading to the seriously emotionally disturbed designation.

(c) If the review required in subdivision (b) results in an individualized education program that calls for residential placement, the individualized education program shall include all of the items outlined in Section 56345 of the Education Code, and shall also include:

(1) Designation of the county mental health department as lead case manager. Lead case management responsibility may be delegated to the county welfare department by agreement between the county welfare department and the designated county mental health department. The county

(d) This section shall become inoperative on July 1, 2011, and, as of January 1, 2012, is repealed, unless a later enacted statute, that becomes operative on or before January 1, 2012, deletes or extends the dates on which it becomes inoperative and is repealed.

SEC. 35. Section 7576 of the Government Code is amended to read:

7576. (a) The State Department of Mental Health, or a community mental health service, as described in Section 5602 of the Welfare and Institutions Code, designated by the State Department of Mental Health, is responsible for the provision of mental health services, as defined in regulations by the State Department of Mental Health, developed in consultation with the State Department of Education, if required in the individualized education program of a pupil. A local educational agency is not required to place a pupil in a more restrictive educational environment in order for the pupil to receive the mental health services specified in his or her individualized education program if the mental health services can be appropriately provided in a less restrictive setting. It is the intent of the Legislature that the local educational agency and the community mental health service vigorously attempt to develop a mutually satisfactory placement that is acceptable to the parent and addresses the educational and mental health treatment needs of the pupil in a manner that is cost effective for both public agencies, subject to the requirements of state and federal special education law, including the requirement that the placement be appropriate and in the least restrictive environment. For purposes of this section, "parent" is as defined in Section 56028 of the Education Code.

(b) A local educational agency, individualized education program team, or parent may initiate a referral for assessment of the social and emotional status of a pupil, pursuant to Section 56320 of the Education Code. Based on the results of assessments completed pursuant to Section 56320 of the Education Code, an individualized education program team may refer a pupil who has been determined to be an individual with exceptional needs, as defined in Section 56026 of the Education Code, and who is suspected of needing mental health services to a community mental health service if the pupil meets all of the criteria in paragraphs (1) to (5), inclusive. Referral packages shall include all documentation required in subdivision (c), and shall be provided immediately to the community mental health service.

(1) The pupil has been assessed by school personnel in accordance with Article 2 (commencing with Section 56320) of Chapter 4 of Part 30 of Division 4 of Title 2 of the Education Code. Local educational agencies and community mental health services shall work collaboratively to ensure that assessments performed prior to referral are as useful as possible to the community mental health service in determining the need for mental health services and the level of services needed.

(2) The local educational agency has obtained written parental consent for the referral of the pupil to the community mental health service, for the release and exchange of all relevant information between the local educational agency and the community mental health service, and for the observation of the pupil by mental health professionals in an educational setting.

(3) The pupil has emotional or behavioral characteristics that satisfy all of the following:

(A) Are observed by qualified educational staff in educational and other settings, as appropriate.

(B) Impede the pupil from benefiting from educational services.

(C) Are significant as indicated by their rate of occurrence and intensity.

(D) Are associated with a condition that cannot be described solely as a social maladjustment or a temporary adjustment problem, and cannot be resolved with short-term counseling.

(4) As determined using educational assessments, the pupil's functioning, including cognitive functioning, is at a level sufficient to enable the pupil to benefit from mental health services.

(5) The local educational agency, pursuant to Section 56331 of the Education Code, has provided appropriate counseling and guidance services, psychological services, parent counseling and training, or social work services to the pupil pursuant to Section 56363 of the Education Code, or behavioral intervention as specified in Section 56520 of the Education Code, as specified in the individualized education program and the individualized education program team has determined that the services do not meet the educational needs of the pupil, or, in cases where these services are clearly inadequate or inappropriate to meet the educational needs of the pupil, the individualized education program team has documented which of these services were considered and why they were determined to be inadequate or inappropriate.

(c) If referring a pupil to a community mental health service in accordance with subdivision (b), the local educational agency or the individualized education program team shall provide the following documentation:

(1) Copies of the current individualized education program, all current assessment reports completed by school personnel in all areas of suspected disabilities pursuant to Article 2 (commencing with Section 56320) of Chapter 4 of Part 30 of Division 4 of Title 2 of the Education Code, and other relevant information, including reports completed by other agencies.

(2) A copy of the parent's consent obtained as provided in paragraph (2) of subdivision (b).

(3) A summary of the emotional or behavioral characteristics of the pupil, including documentation that the pupil meets the criteria set forth in paragraphs (3) and (4) of subdivision (b).

(4) A description of the counseling, psychological, and guidance services, and other interventions that have been provided to the pupil, as provided in the individualized education program of the pupil, including the initiation, duration, and frequency of these services, or an explanation of the reasons a service was considered for the pupil and determined to be inadequate or inappropriate to meet his or her educational needs.

(d) Based on preliminary results of assessments performed pursuant to Section 56320 of the Education Code, a local educational agency may refer a pupil who has been determined to be, or is suspected of being, an individual with exceptional needs, and is suspected of needing mental health services, to a community mental health service if a pupil meets the criteria in paragraphs (1) and (2). Referral packages shall include all documentation required in subdivision (e) and shall be provided immediately to the community mental health service.

(1) The pupil meets the criteria in paragraphs (2) to (4), inclusive, of subdivision (b).

(2) Counseling and guidance services, psychological services, parent counseling and training, social work services, and behavioral or other interventions as provided in the individualized education program of the pupil are clearly inadequate or inappropriate in meeting his or her educational needs.

(e) If referring a pupil to a community mental health service in accordance with subdivision (d), the local educational agency shall provide the following documentation:

(1) Results of preliminary assessments to the extent they are available and other relevant information including reports completed by other agencies.

(2) A copy of the parent's consent obtained as provided in paragraph (2) of subdivision (b).

(3) A summary of the emotional or behavioral characteristics of the pupil, including documentation that the pupil meets the criteria in paragraphs (3) and (4) of subdivision (b).

(4) Documentation that appropriate related educational and designated instruction and services have been provided in accordance with Sections 300.34 and 300.39 of Title 34 of the Code of Federal Regulations.

(5) An explanation of the reasons that counseling and guidance services, psychological services, parent counseling and training, social work services, and behavioral or other interventions as provided in the individualized education program of the pupil are clearly inadequate or inappropriate in meeting his or her educational needs.

(f) The procedures set forth in this chapter are not designed for use in responding to psychiatric emergencies or other situations requiring immediate response. In these situations, a parent may seek services from other public programs or private providers, as appropriate. This subdivision does not change the identification and referral responsibilities imposed on local educational agencies under Article 1 (commencing with Section 56300) of Chapter 4 of Part 30 of Division 4 of Title 2 of the Education Code.

(g) Referrals shall be made to the community mental health service in the county in which the pupil lives. If the pupil has been placed into residential care from another county, the community mental health service receiving the referral shall forward the referral immediately to the community mental health service of the county of origin, which shall have fiscal and programmatic responsibility for providing or arranging for the provision of necessary services. The procedures described in this subdivision shall not delay or impede the referral and assessment process.

(h) A county mental health agency does not have fiscal or legal responsibility for costs it incurs prior to the approval of an individualized education program, except for costs associated with conducting a mental health assessment.

(i) This section shall become inoperative on July 1, 2011, and, as of January 1, 2012, is repealed, unless a later enacted statute, that becomes operative on or before January 1, 2012, deletes or extends the dates on which it becomes inoperative and is repealed.

(b) If provided in a county plan, the county may continue to provide case management and supportive services under this section to former participants who become employed. The county may provide these services for up to the first 12 months of employment to the extent they are not available from other sources and are needed for the individual to retain the employment.

SEC. 51. Section 18356.1 is added to the Welfare and Institutions Code, to read:

18356.1. This chapter shall become inoperative on July 1, 2011, and, as of January 1, 2012, is repealed, unless a later enacted statute, that becomes operative on or before January 1, 2012, deletes or extends the dates on which it becomes inoperative and is repealed.

SEC. 52. Notwithstanding the rulemaking provisions of the Administrative Procedure Act (Chapter 3.5 (commencing with Section 11340) of Part 1 of Division 3 of Title 2 of the Government Code), the State Department of Social Services or the State Department of Education may implement Section 4, Sections 7 to 11, inclusive, and Section 50 of this act, through all-county letters, management bulletins, or other similar instructions.

LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL'S DIGEST

AB 602, Davis. Poochigian and Davis Special Education Reform Act.

Existing law sets forth a method for determining apportionments for the purposes of special education programs operated by school districts, county superintendents of schools, and special education local plan areas (SELPAs). That method is based in part on amounts based on personnel costs that are computed pursuant to statutory formulas, amounts based on support services costs that are computed pursuant to statutory formulas, and amounts specifically computed for early education for individuals with exceptional needs younger than 3 years of age, nonpublic, nonsectarian schools and agencies, individuals having low-incidence disabilities, and licensed children's institutions. The number of instructional personnel services units that may be claimed are computed for teachers for special day classes and centers, instructional aides, and resource specialists, on the basis of the ratio of those positions to a specified number of pupils.

This bill would enact the Poochigian and Davis Special Education Reform Act and would make legislative findings and declarations with respect to the problems arising from the existing method of financing special education and related services. The bill would declare the intent of the Legislature to establish a new method for financing special education that is based on the pupil population in each SELPA. The bill would further declare the intent of the Legislature that the new funding method, among other things, ensures greater equity in funding among SELPAs, avoids unnecessary complexity, requires fiscal and program accountability, and avoids financial incentives to inappropriately place pupils in special education. The bill would also contain a legislative finding and declaration that an areawide approach to special education services delivery through administration by SELPAs best serves differing population densities and provides local flexibility, as specified. The bill would also declare the intent of the Legislature to equalize funding among SELPAs.

This bill, to accomplish the intent of the Legislature, would do the following:

(1) This bill would repeal the existing method of computing special education apportionments and make numerous conforming changes to other provisions of law, including the repeal and amendment of supporting statutes relating to the funding of special education programs. The bill would set forth a new method for making apportionments, as follows:

(a) A method for computing one-time equalization adjustments to special education apportionments to school districts and county offices of education that is based upon computed amounts per each type of special education services unit would be established. The bill would require the Superintendent of Public Instruction (superintendent) to compute special education services unit rates (unit rates) for that purpose for teachers of special day classes and centers for pupils who are severely disabled, unit rates for instructional aides for pupils who are severely disabled, unit rates for teachers of special day classes and centers for pupils with exceptional needs who are not severely disabled, unit rates for instructional aides for pupils with exceptional needs who are not severely disabled, unit rates for resource specialists, and unit rates for designated instruction and services. Those unit rates would be based on amounts computed by the superintendent for the 1995–96 fiscal year. Those unit rates would be averaged for services to pupils who are not severely disabled, except with respect to the unit rates for instructional aides. The superintendent would be required to compute statewide average unit rates for the purposes of equalization adjustments. Based upon those computations, the superintendent would be required, for the 1997–98 fiscal year only, to make computations to determine the amount of equalization adjustments, if any, to be made to the special education funding. These equalization adjustments computed for the 1997–98 fiscal year would only be funded to the extent funds are appropriated for that purpose and would not create any future entitlements for equalization.

(b) Commencing in the 1998–99 fiscal year and each fiscal year thereafter, allocations of funds would be made to SELPAs and the administrator of each SELPA would be responsible for the fiscal administration of the annual budget allocation plan for special education programs and the allocation of state and federal funds to the school districts and county offices of education composing the SELPA in accordance with the local plan.

(c) For the 1998–99 fiscal year, each SELPA would be entitled to, at a minimum, an amount equal to the amount received per unit of average daily attendance in the 1997–98 fiscal year from specified state, local, and federal revenues for the purpose of special education for preschool pupils (ages 3 to 5 years), special education for pupils enrolled in kindergarten and grades 1 to 12, inclusive, and the amounts received for equalization, as described in subdivision (a), as adjusted for inflation, and equalization to the statewide target amount, changes in enrollment, and for the incidence of special disabilities, if applicable.

(d) Commencing with the 1999–2000 fiscal year and each fiscal year thereafter, the amount of funding computed for each SELPA would be subject to adjustment for changes in enrollment, equalization to the statewide target amount, inflation, and for the incidence of special disabilities, as specified. For purposes of equalization, each SELPA that would receive an amount per unit of average daily attendance for a fiscal year, as defined, that is below the statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance for SELPAs, as computed, would be entitled to an equalization adjustment for that fiscal year. Adjustments for equalization would continue through and including the fiscal year in which all SELPAs are funded, at a minimum, at the statewide target amount, as adjusted for inflation. The superintendent would be required to make various computations to determine the amounts available for the purposes of equalization and the amount of the equalization adjustment for each SELPA.

(e) Funding for licensed children's institutions would continue to be computed as required by existing law.

(f) The method of funding for nonpublic, nonsectarian school contracts would be revised. The State Department of Education would be required to administer an extraordinary cost pool to protect SELPAs from the extraordinary costs associated with single placements in nonpublic, nonsectarian schools. The Office of the Legislative Analyst, the Department of Finance, and the State Department of Education would be required to conduct a study, as specified, of nonpublic school and nonpublic agency costs with a final report to the appropriate policy and fiscal committees of the Legislature on or before May 1, 1998.

(g) Low-incidence funding would continue to be computed as required by existing law.

(h) The method of allocating funds for regionalized operations and services and the direct instructional support of program specialists would be revised.

(2) This bill would require each SELPA to submit a revised local plan on or before the time it is required to submit a local plan as specified. Until the superintendent approves the revised local plan, the SELPA would be required to continue to operate under the reporting and accounting requirements prescribed by the State Department of Education for the special education finance provisions repealed by this bill. The department would be required to issue transition guidelines on the accounting requirements that SELPAs would be required to follow, including, but not necessarily limited to, guidelines pertaining to accounting for instructional personnel service units and caseloads. The bill would prohibit the State Board of Education from approving any proposal to divide a SELPA into 2 or more units unless either equalization among SELPAs has been achieved or the division has no net impact on state costs for special education, provided, however, that a proposal may be approved if it was initially submitted prior to January 1, 1997.

(3) This bill would require each SELPA to administer the revised local plans described in (2) and the allocation of funds. The bill would require SELPAs that do not have approved revised local plans to continue to distribute funds under the methods set forth in existing law, as specified.

(4) This bill would revise the requirements for a SELPA that requests a designation as a necessary small SELPA.

(5) This bill would repeal provisions requiring the termination of the state's participation in special education programs for individuals with exceptional needs between the ages of 3 and 5 years if certain conditions occur.

(6) This bill would make some of the numerous necessary conforming substantive and technical changes to provisions of law relating to special education.

(7) To the extent that this bill would place new requirements on SELPAs, school districts, and county offices of education with respect to governance of SELPAs and the distribution of funds to SELPAs, this bill would impose a state-mandated local program.

(8) The bill would make legislative findings and declarations that the federal Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, as amended by the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act Amendments of 1997, contains specified provisions and that state and local education agencies are required to abide by federal laws.

(9) This bill would require the Office of the Legislative Analyst, in conjunction with the Department of Finance and the State Department of Education, to conduct a study of the distribution of severe and costly disabilities and the Office of the Legislative Analyst, the Department of Finance, and the State Department of Education to submit a report of their findings to the appropriate policy and fiscal committees of the Legislature on or before June 1, 1998.

(10) This bill would require the State Department of Education to convene a working group to develop recommendations for improving the compliance of state and local education agencies with state and federal special education laws and regulations and to submit a report of the recommendations to the appropriate policy and fiscal committees of the Legislature on or before September 1, 1998.

(11) The California Constitution requires the state to reimburse local agencies and school districts for certain costs mandated by the state. Statutory provisions establish procedures for making that reimbursement.

This bill would provide that no reimbursement is required by this act for a specified reason.

(12) This bill would provide that funding for this bill is contingent upon the enactment of an appropriation in the annual Budget Act, but would appropriate $100,000 from specified federal funds for the purpose of the Office of the Legislative Analyst, the Department of Finance, and the State Department of Education conducting the study of nonpublic school and nonpublic agency costs and $200,000 from specified federal funds for the purpose of the Office of the Legislative Analyst contracting for the request for proposal and study of the distribution of severe and costly disabilities.

Appropriation: yes.

The people of the State of California do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. (a) This act shall be known and may be cited as the Poochigian and Davis Special Education Reform Act.

(b) The Legislature hereby finds and declares the following:

(1) On December 1, 1995, approximately 9.4 percent of the 5,467,224 pupils enrolled in kindergarten and grades 1 to 12, inclusive, in California required some form of special education programming or service.

(2) Significant inequities in funding for special education exist in California. Special education funding derives from the value of a local education agency's various instructional personnel services unit rates plus the funds it generates from multiplying the total unit values by the agency's support services ratio. Since these values and ratios vary greatly among the local education agencies, widely disparate funding amounts are generated for the same type of program among local education agencies.

(3) In the 1994–95 fiscal year, the following range in funding amounts existed for each of the four types of instructional personnel services units providing services to the nonseverely disabled:

Unit Type	Lowest	Highest
Special classes and centers	$31,137	$80,044
Resource specialists	$26,064	$84,579
Designated instruction and services	$30,080	$91,760
Instructional aides	$ 9,601	$49,883

(4) The range in funding amounts in the 1994–95 fiscal year was even greater for instructional personnel services units for special education services for severely disabled pupils in special education classes, as follows:

Unit Type	Lowest	Highest
Special classes and centers	$31,137	$89,181
Instructional aides	$ 9,601	$55,577

(5) Equalization aid has not been provided to correct the disparities in special education funding since the Master Plan for Special Education was enacted for statewide implementation in 1980. Consequently, funding figures, based primarily on expenditures made in the base year 1979–80, are still being used.

(6) In recent years, some additional money has been provided to school districts to equalize revenue limit funding for regular education programs, and school districts with lower base revenue limits have had those revenue limits increased, resulting in those school districts attaining a base revenue limit that is closer to the statewide average.

(7) In February 1994, the Legislative Analyst, in the ''Analysis of the 1994–95 Budget Bill,'' cited a number of major problems with the state's current special education funding formula. Among the shortfalls cited included:

(A) Unjustified funding variation among local education agencies.

(B) Unnecessary complexity.

(C) Constraint on local innovation and on responses to changing requirements.

(D) Inappropriate fiscal incentives related to special education placements.

(8) The current method of funding special education programs unduly influences the manner and methods through which special education services are provided and inhibits the ability of local education agencies to appropriately individualize the provision of special education services to individuals with exceptional needs.

(9) Existing law provides for the annual calculation of additional instructional personnel services necessary to address the enrollment growth in special education programs. Over the last four years, the number of additional instructional personnel service units actually funded to address the enrollment growth has been well under one-half the number for which the calculation provides:

Fiscal Year	Calculated Need	Amount Funded	Percent Funded
1993-94	$ 87,259,893	$ 30,376,332	34.8
1994-95	106,704,203	51,947,000	48.7
1995-96	99,634,692	31,589,000	31.7
1996-97	134,444,158	56,887,715	42.3

(10) Individuals with exceptional needs and their families are protected by provisions of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (20 U.S.C. Sec. 1400 et seq.), Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (29 U.S.C. Sec. 794), the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 (42 U.S.C. Sec. 12101 et seq.), and federal regulations relating thereto. These protections include, but are not limited to, the following:

(A) Individuals with exceptional needs shall be identified, located, and appropriately evaluated in a nondiscriminatory manner.

(B) Individuals with exceptional needs have the right to a free appropriate public education pursuant to an individualized education program developed by local education agency representatives in partnership with the individual's parents.

(C) Individuals with exceptional needs and their families shall receive prior notification whenever a local educational agency intends or refuses to initiate the evaluation of the individual with exceptional needs.

(D) Whenever a local educational agency intends to change the educational placement of an individual with exceptional needs, the individual with exceptional needs and his or her family may review the contents of any records or other materials used to make educational decisions regarding the individual with exceptional needs.

(E) Due process protections, including the protection of seeking redress in the courts.

(11) The protections set forth in paragraph (10) and other requirements of federal law and regulations shall not be adversely affected or negated by any changes to state law which may occur from this act.

SEC. 2. It is the intent of the Legislature, in enacting this act, to accomplish the following:

(a) To establish a funding mechanism that:

(1) Ensures greater equity in funding among special education local plan areas so that pupils with exceptional needs receive the necessary level of services regardless of their geographical location.

(2) Eliminates financial incentives to inappropriately place pupils in special education programs.

(3) Recognizes the interaction among funding for special education programs and services, revenue limits for school districts, and funding for categorical programs.

(4) Phases in the newly developed funding formula on a gradual basis so as not to disrupt educational services to pupils enrolled in general or special education programs.

(5) Requires fiscal and program accountability in a manner that ensures effective services are provided to pupils who require special education services in compliance with federal laws and regulations and ensures that federal and state funds are used for the intended special education purposes.

(6) Establishes a funding formula that is understandable and avoids unnecessary complexity.

(b) To recognize and establish the following principles to guide the new funding mechanism:

(1) Allocations to special education local plan areas encourage and support an areawide approach to service delivery that incorporates collaborative administration and coordination of special education services within an area, allows for the tailoring of the organizational structures to differing population densities and demographic attributes, and provides local flexibility for the planning and provision of special education services in an efficient and cost-effective manner.

(2) Allocations to special education local plan areas are best based on a neutral factor such as total pupil population in the special education local plan area.

(3) Local education agencies need the flexibility to adopt innovative approaches to the delivery of special education services.

(c) It is also the intent of the Legislature that alternative delivery systems that include effective schoolwide and districtwide screening practices, the development of effective teaching and intervention strategies, and regular and special education program collaboration, including team teaching, consultation, and home-school partnerships, be fully utilized in the identification process so as to prevent pupils from needing special education services.

(d) It is further the intent of the Legislature that the new funding mechanism based on total pupil population, does not create, in any way, a disincentive to identify and serve pupils with exceptional needs or eliminate or reduce the continuum of placement options.

SEC. 3. The Legislature further finds and declares as follows:

(a) It is the intent of the Legislature to equalize special education program funding imbalances among local education agencies in the 1997–98 fiscal year, pursuant to Chapter 7.1 (commencing with Section 56835) of Part 30 of the Education Code, only to the extent that funds are provided for that purpose in the Budget Act of 1997 or in this act. It is further the intent of the Legislature to implement a population-based funding formula in the 1998–99 fiscal year, pursuant to Chapter 7.2 (commencing with Section 56836) of Part 30 of the Education Code, to allocate special education program funds instead of instructional personnel service units to the special education local plan areas, and to equalize per-pupil funding among the special education local plan areas over a multiyear period, only to the extent that funds are appropriated for those purposes in the annual Budget Act.

(b) As part of the new special education funding system, this act proposes to achieve local administrative savings by simplifying the administrative processes of the current funding system that govern the activities of special education local plan areas, school districts, and county offices of education. Specifically, this act eliminates the process-intensive J-50 claim system that drains local resources away from providing services to completing numerous, lengthy reports in order to secure state funding for special education. To ensure program accountability when the resource-based funding system is replaced by the population-based funding system, this act also provides for additional information to be included in each local plan that will provide the public and other units of government specific information on how services shall be provided and funded. The Legislature finds and declares that the administrative savings resulting from this act will more than offset any increased costs from any new administrative workload resulting from this act.

(c) It is further the intent of the Legislature that the funds provided for equalization entitlements pursuant to this act shall fully compensate any mandated costs associated with maintaining pupil caseload for the purpose of any cost claim filed with the Commission on State Mandates.

SEC. 4. Section 44903.7 of the Education Code is amended to read:

44903.7. When a local plan for the education of individuals with exceptional needs is developed or revised pursuant to Chapter 2.5 (commencing with Section 56195) of Part 30, the following provisions shall apply:

(a) Whenever any certificated employee, who is performing service for one employer, is terminated, reassigned, or transferred, or becomes an employee of another employer because of the reorganization of special education programs pursuant to Chapter 797 of the Statutes of 1980, the employee shall be entitled to the following:

(1) The employee shall retain the seniority date of his or her employment with the district or county office from which he or she was terminated, reassigned, or transferred, in accordance with Section 44847. In the case of termination, permanent employees shall retain the rights specified in Section 44956 or, in the case of probationary employees, Sections 44957 and 44958, with the district or county office initiating the termination pursuant to Section 44955.

(2) The reassignment, transfer, or new employment caused by the reorganization of special education programs pursuant to Chapter 797 of the Statutes of 1980, shall not affect the seniority or classification of certificated employees already attained in any school district that undergoes the reorganization. These employees shall have the same status with respect to their seniority or classification, with the new employer, including time served as probationary employees. The total number of years served as a certificated employee with the former district or county office shall be credited, year for year, for placement on the salary schedule of the new district or county office.

(b) All certificated employees providing service to individuals with exceptional needs shall be employed by a county office of education or an individual school district. Special education local plan areas or responsible local agencies resulting from local plans for the education of individuals with exceptional needs formulated in accordance with Part 30 (commencing with Section 56000) shall not be considered employers of certificated personnel for purposes of this section.

(c) Subsequent to the reassignment or transfer of any certificated employee as a result of the reorganization of special education programs, pursuant to Chapter 797 of the Statutes of 1980, that employee shall have priority, except as provided in subdivision (d), in being informed of and in filling certificated positions in special education in the areas in which the employee is certificated within the district or county office by which the certificated employee is then currently employed. This priority shall expire 24 months after the date of reassignment or transfer, and may be waived by the employee during that time period.

(d) A certificated employee who has served as a special education teacher in a district or county office and has been terminated from his or her employment by that district or county office pursuant to Section 44955, shall have first priority in being informed of and in filling vacant certificated positions in special education, for which the employee is certificated and was employed, in any other county office or school district that provides the same type of special education programs and services for the pupils previously served by the terminated employee. For a period of 39 months for permanent employees and 24 months for probationary employees from the date of termination, the employee shall have the first priority right to reappointment as provided in this section, if the employee has not attained the age of 65 years before reappointment.

SEC. 5. Section 48915.5 of the Education Code is amended to read:

48915.5. (a) In a matter involving a pupil with previously identified exceptional needs who is currently enrolled in a special education program, the governing board may order the pupil expelled pursuant to subdivision (b) or (d) of Section 48915 only if all of the following conditions are met:

(1) An individualized education program team meeting is held and conducted pursuant to Article 3 (commencing with Section 56340) of Chapter 2 of Part 30.

(2) The team determines that the misconduct was not caused by, or was not a direct manifestation of, the pupil's identified disability.

(3) The team determines that the pupil had been appropriately placed at the time the misconduct occurred.

The term ''pupil with previously identified exceptional needs,'' as used in this section, means a pupil who meets the requirements of Section 56026 and who, at the time the alleged misconduct occurred, was enrolled in a special education program, including enrollment in nonpublic schools pursuant to Section 56365 and state special schools.

(b) For purposes of this section, all applicable procedural safeguards prescribed by federal and state law and regulations apply to proceedings to expel pupils with previously identified exceptional needs, except that, notwithstanding Section 56321, subdivision (e) of Section 56506, or any other provision of law, parental consent is not required prior to conducting a preexpulsion educational assessment pursuant to subdivision (e), or as a condition of the final decision of the local board to expel.

(c) Each local educational agency, pursuant to the requirements of Section 56195.8, shall develop procedures and timelines governing expulsion procedures for individuals with exceptional needs.

(d) The parent of each pupil with previously identified exceptional needs has the right to participate in the individualized education program team meeting conducted pursuant to subdivision (a) preceding the commencement of expulsion proceedings, following the completion of a preexpulsion assessment pursuant to subdivision (e), through actual participation, representation, or a telephone conference call. The meeting shall be held at a time and place mutually convenient to the parent and local educational agency within the period, if any, of the pupil's preexpulsion suspension. A telephone conference call may be substituted for the meeting. Each parent shall be notified of his or her right to participate in the meeting at least 48 hours prior to the meeting. Unless a parent has requested a postponement, the meeting may be conducted without the parent's participation, if the notice required by this subdivision has been provided. The notice shall specify that the meeting may be held without the parent's participation, unless the parent requests a postponement for up to three additional schooldays pursuant to this subdivision. Each parent may request that the meeting be postponed for up to three additional schooldays. If a postponement has been granted, the local educational agency may extend any suspension of a pupil for the period of postponement if the pupil continues to pose an immediate threat to the safety of himself, herself, or others and the local educational agency notifies the parent that the suspension will be continued during the postponement. However, the suspension shall not be extended beyond 10 consecutive schooldays unless agreed to by the parent, or by a court order. If a parent who has received proper notice of the meeting refuses to consent to an extension beyond 10 consecutive schooldays and chooses not to participate, the meeting may be conducted without the parent's participation.

(e) In determining whether a pupil should be expelled, the individualized education program team shall base its decision on the results of a preexpulsion educational assessment conducted in accordance with the guidelines of Section 104.35 of Title 34 of the Code of Federal Regulations, which shall include a review of the appropriateness of the pupil's placement at the time of the alleged misconduct, and a determination of the relationship, if any, between the pupil's behavior and his or her disability.

In addition to the preexpulsion educational assessment results, the individualized education program team shall also review and consider the pupil's health records and school discipline records. The parent, pursuant to Section 300.504 of Title 34 of the Code of Federal Regulations, is entitled to written notice of the local educational agency's intent to conduct a preexpulsion assessment. The parent shall make the pupil available for the assessment at a site designated by the local educational agency without delay. It is also the intent of the Legislature to relieve special education local plan areas with small or sparse populations from the burdensome dependency upon the annual waiver authority of Sections 56728.6, 56728.8, and 56761 so that individuals with exceptional needs residing in those areas may have equitable access to required programs and services.

(1) For special classes and centers—12, based on the unduplicated pupil count.

(2) For resource specialist programs—24, based on the unduplicated pupil count.

(3) For designated instruction and services—12, based on the unduplicated pupil count, or 39, based on the duplicated pupil count.

(b) A special education local plan area shall be eligible for state funding of instructional personnel service units for services to individuals with exceptional needs younger than three years of age in excess of the number of instructional personnel service units operated and fundable at the second principal apportionment of the prior fiscal year only with the authorization of the superintendent.

(c) The superintendent shall base the authorization of funding for special education local plan areas pursuant to this section, including the reallocation of instructional personnel service units, upon criteria that shall include, but not be limited to, the following:

(1) Changes in the total number of pupils younger than three years of age enrolled in special education programs.

(g) Notwithstanding Sections 56211 and 56212, a special education local plan area may apply for, and the superintendent may grant, a waiver of any of the standards and criteria specified in this section if compliance would prevent the provision of a free, appropriate public education or would create undue hardship. In granting the waivers, the superintendent shall give priority to the following factors:

(1) Applications from special education local plan areas for waivers for a period not to exceed three years to specifically maintain or increase the level of special education services necessary to address the special education service requirements of individuals with exceptional needs residing in sparsely populated districts or attending isolated schools designated in the application.

(A) Sparsely populated districts are school districts that meet one of the following conditions:

(i) A school district or combination of contiguous school districts in which the total enrollment is less than 600 pupils, kindergarten and grades 1 to 12, inclusive, and in which one or more of the school facilities is an isolated school.

(B) Isolated schools are schools with enrollments of less than 600 pupils, kindergarten and grades 1 to 12, inclusive, that meet one or more of the following conditions:

(i) The school is located more than 45 minutes average driving time over commonly used and well-traveled roads from the nearest school, including schools in adjacent special education local plan areas, with an enrollment greater than 600 pupils, kindergarten and grades 1 to 12, inclusive.

(ii) The school is separated, by roads that are impassable for extended periods of time due to inclement weather, from the nearest school, including schools in adjacent special education local plan areas, with an enrollment greater than 600 pupils, kindergarten and grades 1 to 12, inclusive.

(iii) The school is of a size and location that, when its enrollment is combined with the enrollments of the two largest schools within an average driving time of not more than 30 minutes over commonly used and well-traveled roads, including schools in adjacent special education local plan areas, the combined enrollment is less than 600 pupils, kindergarten and grades 1 to 12, inclusive.

(iv) The school is the one of normal attendance for a severely disabled individual, as defined in Section 56030.5, or an individual with a low-incidence disability, as defined in Section 56026.5, who otherwise would be required to be transported more than 75 minutes, average one-way driving time over commonly used and well-traveled roads, to the nearest appropriate program.

(2) The location of licensed children's institutions, foster family homes, residential medical facilities, or similar facilities that serve children younger than three years of age and are within the boundaries of a local plan if 3 percent or more of the local plan's unduplicated pupil count resides in those facilities.

(h) By authorizing units pursuant to this section, the superintendent shall not increase the statewide total number of instructional personnel service units for purposes of state apportionments unless an appropriation specifically for growth in the number of instructional personnel service units is made in the annual Budget Act or other legislation. If that growth appropriation is made, units authorized by the superintendent pursuant to this section are subject to the restrictions that the units shall be funded only by that growth appropriation and no other funds may be apportioned for the units.

(i) The superintendent shall monitor the use of instructional personnel service units retained or authorized by the granting of waivers pursuant to subdivision (h) to ensure that the instructional personnel service units are used in a manner wholly consistent with the basis for the waiver request.

CHAPTER 7.1. EQUALIZATION FOR 1997–98 FISCAL YEAR

56835. It is the intent of the Legislature in enacting this chapter to provide a mechanism for computing a one-time equalization adjustment for local educational agencies providing special education and related services. It is further the intent of the Legislature to make equalization adjustments pursuant to this chapter for the 1997–98 fiscal year only to the extent funds are appropriated for that purpose. This chapter shall not be construed to establish any equalization entitlement in any fiscal year subsequent to the 1997–98 fiscal year.

56835.01. For the purposes of computing equalization adjustments for the 1997–98 fiscal year, the superintendent shall make the following computations to determine the special education services unit rates for services provided to pupils who are severely disabled and pupils who are not severely disabled for each district and each county office as follows:

(a) To determine the special education services unit rate for teachers of special day classes and centers for pupils who are severely disabled for the school district or county office of education, make the following computations:

(1) Add one to the support services quotient for severely disabled pupils for the annual apportionment for the 1995–96 fiscal year computed pursuant to subdivision (c) of Section 56737 and subdivision (c) of Section 56828, if applicable.

(2) Multiply the sum computed in paragraph (1) by the instructional personnel services unit rate for special day classes computed for the annual apportionment for the 1995–96 fiscal year pursuant to the applicable provisions of subdivision (a) of Section 56721, subdivision (a) of Section 56722, Sections 56723 and 56724, and subdivision (c) of Section 56828.

(3) Subtract the amount computed in subdivision (c) from the rate computed in paragraph (2). This is the special education services unit rate for teachers of special day classes and centers for pupils who are severely disabled to be used for the purpose of computing equalization adjustments for the district or county office pursuant to this chapter.

(b) For the purpose of computing, pursuant to subdivision (d), the average special education services unit rate for services to pupils who are not severely disabled, make the following computations for each district and county office:

(1) Determine the special education services unit rate for teachers of special day classes and centers for pupils with exceptional needs who are not severely disabled by making the following computations:

(A) Add one to the support services quotient for pupils with exceptional needs who are not severely disabled for the annual apportionment for the 1995–96 fiscal year computed pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 56737 and subdivision (c) of Section 56828, if applicable.

(C) Multiply the number of instructional personnel services units for teachers of special day classes and centers for pupils who are not severely disabled reported for the district or county office for the annual apportionment for the 1995–96 fiscal year by the rate computed in subparagraph (B).

(2) Determine the special education services unit rate for resource specialists for the district or county office by making the following computations:

(A) Add one to the support services quotient for pupils with exceptional needs who are not severely disabled for the annual apportionment for the 1995–96 fiscal year computed pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 56737 and subdivision (c) of Section 56828, if applicable.

(C) Multiply the number of instructional personnel services units for resource specialists reported for the district or county office for the annual apportionment for the 1995–96 fiscal year by the rate computed in subparagraph (B).

(3) Determine the special education services unit rate for designated instruction and services by making the following computations:

(A) Add one to the support services quotient for pupils with exceptional needs who are not severely disabled computed for the annual apportionment for the 1995–96 fiscal year pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 56737 and subdivision (c) of Section 56828, if applicable.

(B) Multiply the sum computed in subparagraph (A) by the instructional personnel services unit rate for designated instruction and services computed for the annual apportionment for the 1995–96 fiscal year pursuant to the applicable provisions of subdivision (c) of Section 56721, subdivision (f) of Section 56722, Sections 56723 and 56724, and subdivision (c) of Section 56828.

(C) Multiply the number of instructional personnel services units for designated instruction and services reported for the district or county office for the annual apportionment for the 1995–96 fiscal year by the rate computed in subparagraph (B).

(c) For each district and county office, divide the amount computed pursuant to Article 6 (commencing with Section 56750) of Chapter 6 for the district or county office by the total number of instructional personnel services units reported for the types of special education services units specified in subdivision (a) and paragraphs (1), (2), and (3) of subdivision (b) for the annual apportionment for the 1995–96 fiscal year.

(d) For each district and county office, to determine the average special education services unit rate for services to pupils who are not severely disabled, make the following computations:

(1) Add the amounts computed for services to pupils who are not severely disabled pursuant to subparagraph (C) of paragraph (1), subparagraph (C) of paragraph (2), and subparagraph (C) of paragraph (3) of subdivision (b).

(2) Add the total number of instructional personnel services units for teachers of special day classes and centers for pupils who are not severely disabled, resource specialists, and designated instruction and services reported for the district or county office for the annual apportionment for the 1995–96 fiscal year.

(3) Divide the amount computed in paragraph (1) by the number computed in paragraph (2).

(4) Subtract the amount computed in subdivision (c) from the rate computed in paragraph (3). This is the average special education services unit rate for services to pupils who are not severely disabled for the district or county office.

56835.02. For the purposes of computing equalization adjustments for the 1997–98 fiscal year, the superintendent shall make the following computations to determine the special education services unit rates for instructional aides for pupils with exceptional needs for each district and each county office:

(a) To determine the special education services unit rate for instructional aides for pupils who are severely disabled for the district or county office, make the following computations:

(1) Add one to the support services quotient for severely disabled pupils for the annual apportionment for the 1995–96 fiscal year computed pursuant to subdivision (c) of Section 56737 and subdivision (c) of Section 56828, if applicable.

(2) Multiply the sum computed in paragraph (1) by the instructional personnel services unit rate for instructional aides computed for the annual apportionment for the 1995–96 fiscal year pursuant to the applicable provisions of subdivision (d) of Section 56721, Sections 56722, 56723, and 56724, and subdivision (c) of Section 56828.

(b) To determine the unit rate for instructional aides for pupils with exceptional needs who are not severely disabled for the district or county office, make the following computations:

(i) Multiply the special education services unit rate for teachers of special day classes and centers for pupils who are severely disabled computed for each county office pursuant to subdivision (a) of Section 56835.01 by the total number of instructional personnel services units reported for teachers of special day classes and centers for pupils who are severely disabled for the county office for the annual apportionment for the 1995–96 fiscal year.

(ii) Total the products for each county office computed pursuant to clause (i).

(iii) Total the number of instructional personnel services units for teachers of special day classes and centers for pupils who are severely disabled reported for each county office for the annual apportionment for the 1995–96 fiscal year.

(iv) Divide the sum computed pursuant to clause (ii) by the sum computed pursuant to clause (iii).

(B) To determine the statewide average unit rate for special education services to pupils who are not severely disabled:

(i) Multiply the average special education services unit rate for services to pupils who are not severely disabled computed for each county office pursuant to subdivision (d) of Section 56835.01 by the total number of instructional personnel services units reported for pupils who are not severely disabled reported for the county office for the annual apportionment for the 1995–96 fiscal year.

(ii) Total the products for each county office computed pursuant to clause (i).

(iii) Total the number of instructional personnel services units for special education services to pupils who are not severely disabled reported for each county office for the annual apportionment for the 1995–96 fiscal year.

(C) To determine the statewide average unit rate for instructional aides for pupils who are severely disabled:

(i) Multiply the special education services unit rate for instructional aides for pupils who are severely disabled computed for each county office pursuant to subdivision (a) of Section 56835.02 by the total number of instructional personnel services units for instructional aides for pupils who are severely disabled reported for the county office for the annual apportionment for the 1995–96 fiscal year.

(ii) Total the products for each county office computed pursuant to clause (i).

(iii) Total the number of instructional personnel services units for instructional aides for pupils who are severely disabled reported for each county office for the annual apportionment for the 1995–96 fiscal year.

(iv) Divide the sum computed pursuant to clause (ii) by the sum computed pursuant to clause (iii).

(D) To determine the statewide average unit rate for instructional aides for pupils who are not severely disabled:

(i) Multiply the special education services unit rate for instructional aides for pupils who are not severely disabled computed for each county office pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 56835.02 by the total number of instructional personnel services units for instructional aides for pupils who are not severely disabled reported for the county office for the annual apportionment for the 1995–96 fiscal year.

(ii) Total the products for each county office computed pursuant to clause (i).

(iii) Total the number of instructional personnel services units for instructional aides for pupils who are not severely disabled reported for each county office for the annual apportionment for the 1995–96 fiscal year.

(iv) Divide the sum computed pursuant to clause (ii) by the sum computed pursuant to clause (iii).

(b) Make the following computations to determine the difference between the unit rate computed for each type of special education services unit for each district and county office and the statewide average unit rate computed in subdivision (a) for each type of special education services unit for districts and county offices:

(1) For each district, make the following computations:

(A) Subtract the special education services unit rate for teachers of special day classes and centers for pupils who are severely disabled computed for the district pursuant to subdivision (a) of Section 56835.01 from the statewide average unit rate for teachers of special day classes and centers for pupils who are severely disabled computed pursuant to subparagraph (A) of paragraph (1) of subdivision (a).

(B) Subtract the average special education services unit rate for services to pupils who are not severely disabled computed for the district pursuant to subdivision (d) of Section 56835.01 from the statewide average unit rate for services to pupils who are not severely disabled computed pursuant to subparagraph (B) of paragraph (1) of subdivision (a).

(C) Subtract the special education services unit rate for instructional aides for pupils who are severely disabled computed for the district pursuant to subdivision (a) of Section 56835.02 from the statewide average unit rate for instructional aides for pupils who are severely disabled computed pursuant to subparagraph (C) of paragraph (1) of subdivision (a).

(D) Subtract the special education services unit rate for instructional aides for pupils who are not severely disabled computed for the district pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 56835.02 from the statewide average unit rate for instructional aides for pupils who are not severely disabled computed pursuant to subparagraph (D) of paragraph (1) of subdivision (a).

(2) For each county office, make the following computations:

(A) Subtract the special education services unit rate for teachers of special day classes and centers for pupils who are severely disabled computed for the county office pursuant to subdivision (a) of Section 56835.01 from the statewide average unit rate for teachers of special day classes and centers for pupils who are severely disabled computed pursuant to subparagraph (A) of paragraph (2) of subdivision (a).

(B) Subtract the average special education services unit rate for services to pupils who are not severely disabled computed for the county office pursuant to subdivision (d) of Section 56835.01 from the statewide average unit rate for services to pupils who are not severely disabled computed pursuant to subparagraph (B) of paragraph (2) of subdivision (a).

(C) Subtract the special education services unit rate for instructional aides for pupils who are severely disabled computed for the county office pursuant to subdivision (a) of Section 56835.02 from the statewide average unit rate for instructional aides for pupils who are severely disabled computed pursuant to subparagraph (C) of paragraph (2) of subdivision (a).

(D) Subtract the special education services unit rate for instructional aides for pupils who are not severely disabled computed for the county office pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 56835.02 from the statewide average unit rate for instructional aides for pupils who are not severely disabled computed pursuant to subparagraph (D) of paragraph (2) of subdivision (a).

(c) For each district and county office, multiply the difference in the unit rate determined for each type of special education services unit pursuant to subdivision (b) by the total number of units of that type of special education services unit that were reported for the district or county office at the annual apportionment for the 1995–96 fiscal year.

(d) For each district and county office, add the amounts computed pursuant to subdivision (c) for the district or county office that are zero or greater. Each district and county office having an amount that is zero or greater shall receive an equalization adjustment in the amount computed pursuant to subdivision (g).

(e) Total the amounts computed pursuant to subdivision (d) for each district and county office to determine the total statewide amount necessary to fully fund this section in the 1997–98 fiscal year.

(f) Divide the amount that is actually appropriated for the 1997–98 fiscal year for the purpose of equalization pursuant to this chapter by the amount computed pursuant to subdivision (e) to determine the percentage of the amount computed for each district and county office pursuant to subdivision (d) that will be funded pursuant to this section.

(g) For the 1997–98 fiscal year to determine the amount of the equalization adjustment to apportion to each eligible district and county office pursuant to this section, multiply the amount computed pursuant to subdivision (d) by the percentage computed pursuant to subdivision (f). The superintendent shall apportion an equalization adjustment for the 1997–98 fiscal year in the amount equal to that product to the district or county office.

56835.04. (a) The data certified by the State Department of Education to the Controller for the 1995–96 fiscal year with respect to apportionments computed under Chapter 7 (commencing with Section 56700) shall be used for the purposes of making computations based upon the 1995–96 fiscal year pursuant to this chapter.

(b) For purposes of this chapter, information reported ''for the 1995–96 annual apportionment'' means the data meeting the requirements of subdivision (a), as certified in March 1997.

56835.05. (a) The department shall continuously monitor and review all special education programs approved under this chapter to assure that all funds appropriated to districts and county offices under this chapter are expended for the purposes intended.

(b) Funds apportioned to districts and county offices pursuant to this chapter shall be expended exclusively for programs operated under this part.

56835.06. Regardless of when this act becomes effective, it is the intent of the Legislature to make the apportionments for the equalization adjustments computed pursuant to this chapter for the entire 1997–98 fiscal year.

56835.07. This chapter shall become inoperative on July 1, 1998, and, as of January 1, 1999, is repealed, unless a later enacted statute, that becomes operative on or before January 1, 1999, deletes or extends the dates on which it becomes inoperative and is repealed.

SEC. 65. Chapter 7.2 (commencing with Section 56836) is added to Part 30 of the Education Code, to read:

CHAPTER 7.2. SPECIAL EDUCATION FUNDING

Article 1. Administration

56836. Commencing with the 1998–99 fiscal year and for each fiscal year thereafter, apportionments to special education local plan areas for special education programs operated by, and services provided by, districts, county offices, and special education local plan areas shall be computed pursuant to this chapter.

56836.01. Commencing with the 1998–99 fiscal year and each fiscal year thereafter, the administrator of each special education local plan area, in accordance with the local plan approved by the superintendent, shall be responsible for the following:

(a) The fiscal administration of the annual budget allocation plan for special education programs of school districts and county superintendents of schools composing the special education local plan area.

(b) The allocation of state and federal funds allocated to the special education local plan area for the provision of special education and related services by those entities.

(c) The reporting and accounting requirements prescribed by this part.

56836.02. (a) The superintendent shall apportion funds from Section A of the State School Fund to districts and county offices of education in accordance with the allocation plan adopted pursuant to subdivision (f) of Section 56205, unless the local plan approved by the superintendent specified that they be apportioned to the administrative unit of the special education local plan area. If the local plan specifies that the funds be apportioned to the administrative unit of the special education local plan area, the administrator of the special education local plan area shall, upon receipt, distribute the funds in accordance with the allocation plan adopted pursuant to subdivision (f) of Section 56205. Unless the local plan approved by the superintendent specifies an alternative method of distributing state and local funds among the participating local educational agencies, the funds shall be distributed by the special education local plan area as allocated instructional personnel service units and operated as computed in Chapter 7 (commencing with Section 56700) as that chapter existed on December 31, 1998, or Chapter 7.1 (commencing with Section 56835).

56836.03. (a) On or after January 1, 1998, each special education local plan area shall submit a revised local plan. Each special education local plan area shall submit its revised local plan not later than the time it is required to submit its local plan pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 56100 and the revised local plan shall meet the requirements of Chapter 3 (commencing with Section 56200).

(b) Until the superintendent has approved the revised local plan and the special education local plan area begins to operate under the revised local plan, each special education local plan area shall continue to operate under the programmatic, reporting, and accounting requirements prescribed by the State Department of Education for the purposes of Chapter 7 (commencing with Section 56700) as that chapter existed on December 31, 1998. The department shall develop transition guidelines, and, as necessary, transition forms, to facilitate a transition from the reporting and accounting methods required for Chapter 7 (commencing with Section 56700) as that chapter existed on December 31, 1998, and related provisions of this part, to the reporting and accounting methods required for this chapter. Under no circumstances shall the transition guidelines exceed the requirements of the provisions described in paragraphs (1) and (2). The transition guidelines shall, at a minimum, do the following:

(1) Describe the method for accounting for the instructional service personnel units and caseloads, as required by Chapter 7 (commencing with Section 56700) as that chapter existed on December 31, 1998.

(2) Describe the accounting that is required to be made, if any, for the purposes of Sections 56030, 56140, 56156.5, 56361.5, 56362, 56363.3, 56365.5, 56366.2, 56366.3, 56370, 56441.5, 56441.7, and 56447.

(c) Commencing with the 1997–98 fiscal year, through and including the fiscal year in which equalization among special education local plan areas has been achieved, the board shall not approve any proposal to divide a special education local plan area into two or more units, unless the division has no net impact on state costs for special education; provided, however, that the board may approve a proposal that was initially submitted to the department prior to January 1, 1997.

56836.04. (a) The superintendent shall continuously monitor and review all special education programs approved under this part to assure that all funds appropriated to special education local plan areas under this part are expended for the purposes intended.

(b) Funds apportioned to special education local plan areas pursuant to this chapter shall be expended exclusively for programs operated under this part.

56836.05. Apportionments made under this part shall be made by the superintendent as early as practicable in the fiscal year. Upon order of the superintendent, the Controller shall draw warrants upon the money appropriated, in favor of the eligible special education local plan areas.

Article 2. Computation of Apportionments

56836.06. For the purposes of this article, the following terms or phrases shall have the following meanings, unless the context clearly requires otherwise:

(a) ''Average daily attendance reported for the special education local plan area'' means the total of the following:

(1) The total number of units of average daily attendance reported for the second principal apportionment pursuant to Section 41601 for all pupils enrolled in the district or districts that are a part of the special education local plan area.

(2) The total number of units of average daily attendance reported pursuant to Section 41601 for all pupils enrolled in schools operated by the county office or offices that compose the special education local plan area, or for those county offices that are a part of more than one special education local plan area, that portion of the average daily attendance of pupils enrolled in the schools operated by the county office that are under the jurisdiction of the special education local plan area.

(b) ''Special education local plan area'' includes the school district or districts and county office or offices of education composing the special education local plan area.

(c) ''The fiscal year in which equalization among special education local plan areas has been achieved'' means the first fiscal year in which each special education local plan area is funded at or above the statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance, as computed pursuant to Section 56836.11.

56836.08. (a) For the 1998–99 fiscal year, the superintendent shall make the following computations to determine the amount of funding for each special education local plan area:

(1) Add the amount of funding per unit of average daily attendance computed for the special education local plan area pursuant to paragraph (1) of subdivision (a) of Section 56836.10 to the inflation adjustment computed pursuant to subdivision (d) for the 1998–99 fiscal year.

(2) Multiply the amount computed in paragraph (1) by the units of average daily attendance reported for the special education local plan area for the 1997–98 fiscal year.

(3) Add the actual amount of the equalization adjustment, if any, computed for the 1998–99 fiscal year pursuant to Section 56836.14 to the amount computed in paragraph (2).

(4) Add or subtract, as appropriate, the adjustment for growth computed pursuant to Section 56836.15 from the amount computed in paragraph (3).

(5) Add the special disabilities adjustment computed pursuant to Article 2.5 (commencing with Section 56836.155).

(b) For the 1999–2000 fiscal year and each fiscal year thereafter, the superintendent shall make the following computations to determine the amount of funding for each special education local plan area for the fiscal year in which the computation is made:

(1) Add the amount of funding per unit of average daily attendance computed for the special education local plan area for the prior fiscal year pursuant to Section 56836.10 to the inflation adjustment computed pursuant to subdivision (d) for the fiscal year in which the computation is made.

(2) Multiply the amount computed in paragraph (1) by the units of average daily attendance reported for the special education local plan area for the prior fiscal year.

(3) Add the actual amount of the equalization adjustment, if any, computed for the special education local plan area for the fiscal year in which the computation is made pursuant to Section 56836.14 to the amount computed in paragraph (2).

(4) Add or subtract, as appropriate, the adjustment for growth or decline in enrollment, if any, computed for the special education local plan area for the fiscal year in which the computation is made pursuant to Section 56836.15 from the amount computed in paragraph (3).

(5) Add the special disabilities adjustment computed pursuant to Article 2.5 (commencing with Section 56836.155) and increased pursuant to subparagraph (D) if the adjusted funding per unit of average daily attendance of the special education local plan area is below the statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance as determined pursuant to subparagraphs (A) to (C), inclusive, as follows:

(A) Calculate the adjusted amount of funding per unit of average daily attendance for each special education local plan area, measured in dollars and cents, using the methodology contained in subdivision (a) of Section 56836.10, except that the amount used from the computation in Section 56836.09 shall be reduced by the amount computed pursuant to Article 2.5 (commencing with Section 56836.155).

(B) Determine the statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance, measured in dollars and cents and rounded up to the nearest 50 cents ($0.50), as computed pursuant to subdivision (a) of Section 56836.11.

(C) The adjusted funding per unit of average daily attendance is below the statewide target amount if the amount calculated pursuant to subparagraph (A), subtracted from the amount calculated pursuant to subparagraph (B), yields a positive value.

(D) If the computation made pursuant to subparagraph (C) yields a positive value, increase the special disabilities adjustment in the 1999–2000 fiscal year and each year thereafter by the percent increase in growth in average daily attendance reported by the special education local plan area and the inflation factor computed pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 42238.1 for the applicable fiscal year.

(E) Inclusion of the special disabilities adjustment in the total funding of a special education local plan area shall neither change nor be included in the computation of equalization funding pursuant to Section 56836.12 or the computations made after this computation that precede the computation in Section 56836.12.

(c) For the 1998–99 fiscal year and each fiscal year thereafter, the superintendent shall make the following computations to determine the amount of General Fund moneys that the special education local plan area may claim:

(1) Add the total of the amount of property taxes allocated to the special education local plan area pursuant to Section 2572 for the fiscal year in which the computation is made to the amount of federal funds allocated to the special education local plan area pursuant to Part B of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (20 U.S.C. Sec. 1400 et seq.) for the fiscal year in which the computation is made.

(2) Add the amount of funding computed for the special education local plan area pursuant to subdivision (a) for the 1998–99 fiscal year, and commencing with the 1999–2000 fiscal year and each fiscal year thereafter, the amount computed for the fiscal year in which the computations were made pursuant to subdivision (b) to the amount of funding computed for the special education local plan area pursuant to Article 3 (commencing with Section 56836.16).

(3) Subtract the sum computed in paragraph (1) from the sum computed in paragraph (2).

(d) For the 1998–99 fiscal year and each fiscal year thereafter, the superintendent shall make the following computations to determine the inflation adjustment for the fiscal year in which the computation is made:

(1) For the 1998–99 fiscal year, multiply the statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance for special education local plan areas for the 1997–98 fiscal year computed pursuant to paragraph (3) of Section 56836.11 by the inflation factor computed pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 42238.1 for the 1998–99 fiscal year.

(2) For the 1999–2000 fiscal year and each fiscal year thereafter, multiply the statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance for special education local plan areas for the prior fiscal year computed pursuant to Section 56836.11 by the inflation factor computed pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 42238.1 for the fiscal year in which the computation is made.

56836.09. For the purpose of computing the amount to apportion to each special education local plan area for the 1998–99 fiscal year, the superintendent shall compute the total amount of funding received by the special education local plan area for the 1997–98 fiscal year as follows:

(a) Add the following amounts that were received for the 1997–98 fiscal year:

(1) The total amount of federal funds available to the state pursuant to Part B of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (20 U.S.C. Sec. 1400 et seq.) allocated to the special education local plan area for the purposes of special education for individuals with exceptional needs enrolled in kindergarten and grades 1 to 12, inclusive.

(2) The total amount of federal funds available to the state pursuant to Part B of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (20 U.S.C. Sec. 1400 et seq.) allocated to the special education local plan area for the purposes of providing preschool and related services to individuals with exceptional needs who are ages 3 to 5 years, inclusive, pursuant to Chapter 4.45 (commencing with Section 56440).

(3) The total amount of property taxes allocated to the special education local plan area pursuant to Section 2572.

(4) The total amount of General Fund moneys allocated to the special education local plan area pursuant to Chapter 7 (commencing with Section 56700) plus the total amount received for equalization pursuant to Chapter 7.1 (commencing with Section 56835), as those chapters existed on December 31, 1998.

(5) The total amount of General Fund moneys and federal funds available to the state pursuant to Part B of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (20 U.S.C. Sec. 1400 et seq.) allocated to another special education local plan area for any pupils with exceptional needs who are served by the other special education local plan area but who are residents of the special education local plan area for which this computation is being made.

(b) Add the following amounts received in the 1997–98 fiscal year:

(1) The total amount determined for the special education local plan area for the purpose of providing nonpublic, nonsectarian school services to licensed children's institutions, foster family homes, residential medical facilities, and other similar facilities for the 1997–98 fiscal year pursuant to Article 3 (commencing with Section 56836.16).

(2) The total amount of General Fund moneys and federal funds available to the state pursuant to Part B of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (20 U.S.C. (c) Subtract the sum computed in subdivision (b) from the sum computed in subdivision (a).

56836.10. (a) The superintendent shall make the following computations to determine the amount of funding per unit of average daily attendance for each special education local plan area for the 1998–99 fiscal year:

(1) Divide the amount of funding for the special education local plan area computed for the 1997–98 fiscal year pursuant to Section 56836.09 by the number of units of average daily attendance reported for the special education local plan area for the 1997–98 fiscal year.

(2) Add the amount computed in paragraph (1) to the inflation adjustment computed pursuant to subdivision (d) of Section 56836.08 for the 1998–99 fiscal year.

(b) Commencing with the 1999–2000 fiscal year and each fiscal year thereafter, the superintendent shall make the following computations to determine the amount of funding per unit of average daily attendance for each special education local plan area for the fiscal year in which the computation is made:

(1) For the 1999–2000 fiscal year, divide the amount of funding for the special education local plan area computed for the 1998–99 fiscal year pursuant to subdivision (a) of Section 56836.08 by the number of units of average daily attendance reported for the special education local plan area for the 1998–99 fiscal year.

(2) For the 2000–01 fiscal year, and each fiscal year thereafter, divide the amount of funding for the special education local plan area computed for the prior fiscal year pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 56836.08 by the number of units of average daily attendance reported for the special education local plan area for the prior fiscal year.

56836.11. (a) For the purpose of computing the equalization adjustment for special education local plan areas for the 1998–99 fiscal year, the superintendent shall make the following computations to determine the statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance for special education local plan areas:

(1) Total the amount of funding computed for each special education local plan area pursuant to Section 56836.09 for the 1997–98 fiscal year.

(2) Total the number of units of average daily attendance reported for each special education local plan area for the 1997–98 fiscal year.

(3) Divide the sum computed in paragraph (1) by the sum computed in paragraph (2) to determine the statewide target amount for the 1997–98 fiscal year.

(4) Add the amount computed in paragraph (3) to the inflation adjustment computed pursuant to subdivision (d) of Section 56836.08 for the 1998–99 fiscal year to determine the statewide target amount for the 1998–99 fiscal year.

(b) Commencing with the 1999–2000 fiscal year and each fiscal year thereafter, to determine the statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance for special education local plan areas, the superintendent shall multiply the statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance computed for the prior fiscal year pursuant to this section by one plus the inflation factor computed pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 42238.1 for the fiscal year in which the computation is made.

56836.12. (a) For the purpose of computing the equalization adjustment for special education local plan areas for the 1998–99 fiscal year, the superintendent shall make the following computations to determine the amount that each special education local plan area that has an amount per unit of average daily attendance that is below the statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance may request as an equalization adjustment:

(1) Subtract the amount per unit of average daily attendance computed for the special education local plan area pursuant to subdivision (a) of Section 56836.10 from the statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance determined pursuant to subdivision (a) of Section 56836.11.

(2) If the remainder computed in paragraph (1) is greater than zero, multiply that remainder by the number of units of average daily attendance reported for the special education local plan area for the 1997–98 fiscal year.

(b) Commencing with the 1999–2000 fiscal year, through and including the fiscal year in which equalization among the special education local plan areas has been achieved, the superintendent shall make the following computations to determine the amount that each special education local plan area that has an amount per unit of average daily attendance that is below the statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance may request as an equalization adjustment:

(1) Add to the amount per unit of average daily attendance computed for the special education local plan area pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 56836.10 for the fiscal year in which the computation is made the inflation adjustment computed pursuant to subdivision (d) of Section 56836.08 for the fiscal year in which the computation is made.

(2) Subtract the amount computed pursuant to paragraph (1) from the statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance computed pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 56936.11 for the fiscal year in which the computation is made.

(3) If the remainder computed in paragraph (2) is greater than zero, multiply that remainder by the number of units of average daily attendance reported for the special education local plan area for the prior fiscal year.

56836.13. Commencing with the 1998–99 fiscal year, through and including the fiscal year in which equalization among the special education local plan areas has been achieved, the superintendent shall make the following computations to determine the amount available for making equalization adjustments for the fiscal year in which the computation is made:

(a) Determine the amounts of funds equal to the increase in federal funds, if any, appropriated in the annual Budget Act for the purposes of equalizing funding for special education local plan areas pursuant to this chapter. The increase shall be computed by subtracting the amount of federal funds available to the state pursuant to Part B of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (20 U.S.C. Sec. 1400 et seq.) for the fiscal year in which the computation is made from the amount available to the state from those funds for the prior fiscal year.

(b) Subtract the amount computed in subdivision (a) from the amount of funds provided for increased costs to the state in administering the special education program.

(c) Add to the amount in subdivision (b), the amount of additional funds, if any, appropriated in the fiscal year for which the computation is made in the annual Budget Act for the purposes of equalizing funding for special education local plan areas pursuant to this chapter.

56836.14. Commencing with the 1998–99 fiscal year, through and including the fiscal year in which equalization among the special education local plan areas has been achieved, the superintendent shall make the following computations to determine the actual amount of the equalization adjustment for each special education local plan area that has an amount per unit of average daily attendance that is below the statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance:

(a) Add the amount determined for each special education local plan area pursuant to Section 56836.12 for the fiscal year in which the computation is made to determine the total statewide aggregate amount necessary to fund each special education local plan area at the statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance for special education local plan areas.

(b) Divide the amount computed in subdivision (a) by the amount computed pursuant to Section 56836.13 to determine the percentage of the total amount of funds necessary to fund each special education local plan area at the statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance for special education local plan areas that are actually available for that purpose.

(c) To determine the amount to allocate to the special education local plan area for a special education local plan area equalization adjustment, multiply the amount computed for the special education local plan area pursuant to Section 56836.12, if any, by the percentage determined in subdivision (b).

56836.15. (a) In order to mitigate the effects of any declining enrollment, commencing in the 1998–99 fiscal year, and each fiscal year thereafter, the superintendent shall calculate allocations to special education local plan areas based on the average daily attendance reported for the special education local plan area for the fiscal year in which the computation is made or the prior fiscal year, whichever is greater. However, the prior fiscal year average daily attendance reported for the special education local plan area shall be adjusted for any loss or gain of average daily attendance reported for the special education local plan area due to a reorganization or transfer of territory in the special education local plan area.

(b) If in the fiscal year for which the computation is made, the number of units of average daily attendance upon which allocations to the special education local plan area are based is greater than the number of units of average daily attendance upon which allocations to the special education local plan area were based in the prior fiscal year, the special education local plan area shall be allocated a growth adjustment equal to the product determined by multiplying the amounts determined under paragraphs (1) and (2).

(1) The statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance for special education local plan areas determined pursuant to Section 56836.11.

(2) The difference between the number of units of average daily attendance upon which allocations to the special education local plan area are based for the fiscal year in which the computation is made and the number of units of average daily attendance upon which allocations to the special education local plan area were based for the prior fiscal year.

(c) If in the fiscal year for which the computation is made, the number of units of average daily attendance upon which allocations to the special education local plan area are based is less than the number of units of average daily attendance upon which allocations to the special education local plan area were based in the prior fiscal year, the special education local plan area shall receive a funding reduction equal to the product determined by multiplying the amounts determined under paragraphs (1) and (2):

(1) The amount of funding per unit of average daily attendance computed for the special education local plan area for the prior fiscal year.

(2) The difference between the number of units of average daily attendance upon which allocations to the special education local plan area are based for the fiscal year in which the computation is made and the number of units of average daily attendance upon which allocations to the special education local plan area were based for the prior fiscal year.

Article 2.5. Computation of Adjustment

56836.155. (a) For the 1998–99 fiscal year, prior to calculating the apportionment in Article 2 (commencing with Section 56836.06), the superintendent shall perform the following calculation:

(1) Determine for each special education local plan area the number of pupils with exceptional needs with the special disabilities specified in subdivision (b) for pupils residing in the special education local plan area based on the April 1996 pupil count.

(2) Determine for each special education local plan area the total reported incidence of all disabilities for pupils of age 3 to 22 years, inclusive, excluding pupils in placements as described in paragraph (1) of subdivision (b).

(3) Determine the statewide total of reported incidence of special disabilities determined pursuant to paragraph (1).

(4) Determine the statewide total reported incidence of all disabilities determined pursuant to paragraph (2).

(b) For the purposes of paragraph (1) of subdivision (a), the superintendent shall use the count of all pupils with exceptional needs of age 3 to 22 years, inclusive, exclusive of placements in paragraph (1) and inclusive of the disabilities in paragraph (2).

(1) Pupils in state operated programs, nonpublic schools, and out-of-home placements.

(2) Pupils with low-incidence disabilities of autistic, hard of hearing, deaf, visually impaired, deaf, blind, and severe orthopedic impairment, except that, for the purposes of subdivision (a), pupils in the disability category of orthopedic impairment shall be used in the absence of special education local plan area counts of only severe orthopedic impairment. To the count of low-incidence disabilities, also add pupils in the disability category of traumatic brain injury.

(c) Calculate, for each special education local plan area, the reported incidence of special disabilities as a percentage of its total reported incidence of all disabilities by dividing the amount in paragraph (1) of subdivision (a) by the amount in paragraph (2) of subdivision (a). The percentage amount is to be expressed to the accuracy of one hundredth of a percentage point.

(d) Calculate the statewide total of reported incidence of special disabilities as a percent of the statewide total incidence of all disabilities by dividing the amount in paragraph (3) of subdivision (a) by the amount in paragraph (4) of subdivision (a). The percent amount is to be expressed to the accuracy of one hundredth of a percentage point.

(e) For each special education local plan area whose percentage of special disabilities calculated pursuant to subdivision (c) is greater than the statewide percent of special disabilities pursuant to subdivision (d), determine the number of excess pupils in the special education local plan area as follows:

(1) Multiply the statewide percent of special disabilities calculated in subdivision (d) by the count by the special education local plan area of all disabilities determined pursuant to paragraph (2) of subdivision (a).

(2) Subtract the amount calculated in paragraph (1) from the count by the special education local plan area of special disabilities determined pursuant to paragraph (1) of subdivision (a). Round this number to the nearest whole number.

(f) Multiply the number of excess pupils calculated in subdivision (e) by one thousand dollars ($1,000). This is the amount that each special education local plan area having excess pupils is to receive as a special disabilities adjustment in the 1998–99 fiscal year and that is to be included in the total amount of funding received by the special education local plan area pursuant to Section 56836.08.

Article 3. Licensed Children's Institutions

56836.16. (a) For the 1980–81 fiscal year and each fiscal year thereafter, the superintendent shall apportion to each district and county superintendent providing programs pursuant to Article 5 (commencing with Section 56155) of Chapter 2 an amount equal to the difference, if any, between (1) the costs of master contracts with nonpublic, nonsectarian schools and agencies to provide special education instruction, designated instruction and services, or both, to pupils in licensed children's institutions, foster family homes, residential medical facilities, and other similar facilities funded under this chapter, and (2) the state and federal income received by the district or county superintendent for providing these programs. The sum of the excess cost, plus any state or federal income for these programs, shall not exceed the cost of master contracts with nonpublic, nonsectarian schools and agencies to provide special education and designated instruction and services for these pupils, as determined by the superintendent.

(b) The cost of master contracts with nonpublic, nonsectarian schools and agencies that a district or county office of education reports under this section shall not include any of the following costs that a district, county office, or special education local plan area may incur:

(1) Administrative or indirect costs for the local education agency.

(2) Direct support costs for the local education agency.

(3) Transportation costs provided either directly, or through a nonpublic, nonsectarian school or agency master contract or individual services agreement for use of services or equipment owned, leased, or contracted, by a district, special education local plan area, or county office for any pupils enrolled in nonpublic, nonsectarian schools or agencies, unless provided directly or subcontracted by that nonpublic, nonsectarian school or agency pursuant to subdivisions (a) and (b) of Section 56366.

(4) Costs for services routinely provided by the district or county office including the following, unless the board grants a waiver under 56101:

(A) School psychologist services other than those described in Sections 56324 and 56363 and included in a master contract and individual services agreement under subdivision (a) of Section 56366.

(B) School nurse services other than those described in Sections 49423.5, 56324, and 56363 and included in a master contract and individual services agreement under subdivision (a) of Section 56366.

(C) Language, speech, and hearing services other than those included in a master contract and individual services agreement under subdivision (a) of Section 56366.

(D) Modified, specialized, or adapted physical education services other than those included in a master contract and individual services agreement under subdivision (a) of Section 56366.

(E) Other services not specified by a pupil's individualized education program or funded by the state on a caseload basis.

(5) Costs for nonspecial education programs or settings, including those provided for individuals with exceptional needs between the ages of birth and five years, inclusive, pursuant to Sections 56431 and 56441.8.

(6) Costs for nonpublic, nonsectarian school or agency placements outside of the state unless the board has granted a waiver pursuant to subdivisions (e) and (f) of Section 56365.

(7) Costs for related nonpublic, nonsectarian school pupil assessments by a school psychologist or school nurse pursuant to Sections 56320 and 56324.

(8) Costs for services that the nonpublic, nonsectarian school or agency is not certified to provide.

(9) Costs for services provided by personnel who do not meet the requirements specified in subdivision (l) of Section 56366.1.

(10) Costs for services provided by public school employees.

(d) A nonpublic, nonsectarian school or agency shall not claim and is not entitled to receive reimbursement for attendance unless the site where the pupil is receiving special education or designated instruction and services is certified.

56836.17. (a) The superintendent may reimburse each district and county office of education providing programs pursuant to Article 5 (commencing with Section 56155) of Chapter 2 for assessment and identification costs for pupils in licensed children's institutions, foster family homes, residential medical facilities, and other similar facilities who are placed in state-certified nonpublic, nonsectarian schools.

(b) Actual costs under this section shall not include either administrative or indirect costs, or any proration of support costs.

(c) The total amount reimbursed statewide under this section shall not exceed the amount appropriated for these purposes in any fiscal year. If the superintendent determines that this amount is insufficient to reimburse all claims, the superintendent shall prorate the deficiency among all districts or county offices submitting claims.

56836.18. (a) The superintendent shall establish and maintain an emergency fund for the purpose of providing relief to special education local plan areas when a licensed children's institution, foster family home, residential medical facility, or other similar facility serving individuals with exceptional needs opens or expands in a special education local plan area during the course of the school year which impacts the special education local plan area, or when a pupil is placed in a facility for which no public or state-certified nonpublic program exists within the special education local plan area in which the pupil's individualized education program can be implemented during the course of the school year and impacts the educational program.

(b) The special education local plan area in which the impaction occurs shall be responsible for submitting a written request to the superintendent for emergency funding. The written request shall contain, at a minimum, all of the following:

(1) Specific information on the new or expanded licensed children's institution, foster family home, residential medical facility, or other similar facility described in subdivision (a), including information on the new unserved or underserved pupils residing in the facility, or specific information relating to the new unserved or underserved pupils residing in those facilities.

(2) The identification of the steps undertaken demonstrating that no public special education program exists within the special education local plan area capable of programmatically meeting the needs of the identified pupils.

(3) A plan from the special education local plan area describing the services to be provided.

(c) The superintendent shall approve, modify, or disapprove the written request for emergency funding within 30 days of the receipt of the written request and shall notify the special education local plan area administrator, in writing, of the final decision.

(d) It is the intent of the Legislature that appropriations necessary to fund these emergency situations shall be included in the Budget Act for each fiscal year.

Article 4. Nonpublic, Nonsectarian School Contracts

56836.20. (a) The cost of master contracts with nonpublic, nonsectarian schools and agencies that a special education local plan area enters into shall not include any of the following costs that a special education local plan area may incur:

(1) Administrative or indirect costs of the special education local plan area.

(2) Direct support costs for the special education local plan area.

(3) Transportation costs provided either directly, or through a nonpublic, nonsectarian school or agency contract for use of services or equipment owned, leased, or contracted, by a special education local plan area for any pupils enrolled in nonpublic, nonsectarian schools or agencies, unless provided directly or subcontracted by that nonpublic, nonsectarian school or agency pursuant to subdivisions (a) and (b) of Section 56366.

(4) Costs for services routinely provided by the special education local plan area including the following, unless the board grants a waiver under Section 56101:

(A) School psychologist services other than those described in Sections 56324 and 56363 and included in a master contract and individual services agreement under subdivision (a) of Section 56366.

(B) School nurse services other than those described in Sections 49423.5, 56324, and 56363 and included in a master contract and individual services agreement under subdivision (a) of Section 56366.

(C) Language, speech, and hearing services other than those included in a master contract and individual services agreement under subdivision (a) of Section 56366.

(D) Modified, specialized, or adapted physical education services other than those included in a master contract and individual services agreement under subdivision (a) of Section 56366.

(E) Other services not specified by a pupil's individualized education program or funded by the state on a caseload basis.

(5) Costs for nonspecial education programs or settings, including those provided for individuals with exceptional needs between the ages of birth and five years, inclusive, pursuant to Sections 56431 and 56441.8.

(6) Costs for nonpublic, nonsectarian school or agency placements outside of the state unless the board has granted a waiver pursuant to subdivisions (e) and (f) of Section 56365.

(7) Costs for related nonpublic, nonsectarian school pupil assessments by a school psychologist or school nurse pursuant to Sections 56320 and 56324.

(8) Costs for services that the nonpublic, nonsectarian school or agency is not certified to provide.

(9) Costs for services provided by personnel who do not meet the requirements specified in subdivision (l) of Section 56366.1.

(10) Costs for services provided by public school employees.

(b) A nonpublic, nonsectarian school or agency shall not claim and is not entitled to receive reimbursement for attendance unless the site where the pupil is receiving special education or designated instruction and services is certified.

56836.21. (a) The State Department of Education shall administer an extraordinary cost pool to protect special education local plan areas from the extraordinary costs associated with single placements in nonpublic, nonsectarian schools. Funds shall be appropriated for this purpose in the annual Budget Act. Special education local plan areas shall be eligible for reimbursement from this pool in accordance with this section.

(b) The threshold amount for claims under this section shall be the lesser of the following:

(1) One percent of the allocation calculated pursuant to Section 56836.08 for the special education local plan area for the current fiscal year for any special education local plan area that meets the criteria in subdivision (a) of Section 56212.

(2) The State Department of Education shall calculate the average cost of a nonpublic, nonsectarian school placement in the 1997–98 fiscal year. This amount shall be multiplied by 2.5, then by one plus the inflation factor computed pursuant to Section 42238.1, to obtain the alternative threshold amount for claims in the 1998–99 fiscal year. In subsequent fiscal years, the alternative threshold amount shall be the alternative threshold amount for the prior fiscal year multiplied by one plus the inflation factor computed pursuant to Section 42238.1.

(c) Special education local plan areas shall be eligible to submit claims for costs of any nonpublic, nonsectarian school placements exceeding the threshold amount on forms developed by the State Department of Education. All claims for a fiscal year shall be submitted by November 30 following the close of the fiscal year. If the total amount claimed by special education local plan areas exceeds the amount appropriated, the claims shall be prorated.

Article 5. Low Incidence Funding

56836.22. (a) Commencing with the 1985–86 fiscal year, and for each fiscal year thereafter, funds to support specialized books, materials, and equipment as required under the individualized education program for each pupil with low incidence disabilities, as defined in Section 56026.5, shall be determined by dividing the total number of pupils with low incidence disabilities in the state, as reported on December 1 of the prior fiscal year, into the annual appropriation provided for this purpose in the Budget Act.

(b) The per-pupil entitlement determined pursuant to subdivision (a) shall be multiplied by the number of pupils with low incidence disabilities in each special education local plan area to determine the total funds available for each local plan.

(c) The superintendent shall apportion the amount determined pursuant to subdivision (b) to the special education local plan area for purposes of purchasing and coordinating the use of specialized books, materials, and equipment.

(d) As a condition of receiving these funds, the special education local plan area shall ensure that the appropriate books, materials, and equipment are purchased, that the use of the equipment is coordinated as necessary, and that the books, materials, and equipment are reassigned to local educational agencies within the special education local plan area once the agency that originally received the books, materials, and equipment no longer needs them.

(e) It is the intent of the Legislature that special education local plan areas share unused specialized books, materials, and equipment with neighboring special education local plan areas.

Article 6. Program Specialists and Administration of Regionalized Operations and Services

56836.23. Funds for regionalized operations and services and the direct instructional support of program specialists shall be apportioned to the special education local plan areas. As a condition to receiving those funds, the special education local plan area shall assure that all functions listed below are performed in accordance with the description set forth in its local plan adopted pursuant to subdivision (c) of Section 56205:

(a) Coordination of the special education local plan area and the implementation of the local plan.

(b) Coordinated system of identification and assessment.

(c) Coordinated system of procedural safeguards.

(d) Coordinated system of staff development and parent education.

(e) Coordinated system of curriculum development and alignment with the core curriculum.

(f) Coordinated system of internal program review, evaluation of the effectiveness of the local plan, and implementation of a local plan accountability mechanism.

(g) Coordinated system of data collection and management.

(h) Coordination of interagency agreements.

(i) Coordination of services to medical facilities.

(j) Coordination of services to licensed children's institutions and foster family homes.

(k) Preparation and transmission of required special education local plan area reports.

(l) Fiscal and logistical support of the community advisory committee.

(m) Coordination of transportation services for individuals with exceptional needs.

(n) Coordination of career and vocational education and transition services.

(o) Assurance of full educational opportunity.

(p) Fiscal administration and the allocation of state and federal funds pursuant to Section 56836.01.

(q) Direct instructional program support that may be provided by program specialists in accordance with Section 56368.

56836.24. Commencing with the 1998–99 fiscal year and each year thereafter, the superintendent shall make the following computations to determine the amount of funding for the purposes specified in Section 56836.23 to apportion to each special education local plan area for the fiscal year in which the computation is made:

(a) For the 1998–99 fiscal year the superintendent shall make the following computations:

(1) Multiply the total amount of state General Fund money allocated to the special education local plan areas in the 1997–98 fiscal year, for the purposes of Article 9 (commencing with Section 56780) of Chapter 7, as that chapter existed on December 31, 1998, by one plus the inflation factor computed pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 42238.1 for the 1998–99 fiscal year.

(2) Divide the amount calculated in paragraph (1) by the units of average daily attendance reported for the special education local plan area for the 1997–98 fiscal year.

(3) To determine the amount to be allocated to each special education local plan area in the 1998–99 fiscal year, the superintendent shall multiply the amount computed in paragraph (2) by the number of units of average daily attendance reported for the special education local plan area for the 1998–99 fiscal year, except that a special education local plan area designated as a necessary small special education local plan area in accordance with Section 56212 and reporting fewer than 15,000 units of average daily attendance for the 1998–99 fiscal year shall be deemed to have 15,000 units of average daily attendance, and no special education local plan area shall receive less than it received in the 1997–98 fiscal year.

(b) For the 1999–2000 fiscal year and each fiscal year thereafter, the superintendent shall make the following calculations:

(1) Multiply the amount determined in paragraph (2) of subdivision (a) by one plus the inflation factor computed pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 42238.1 for the current fiscal year.

(2) Multiply the amount determined in paragraph (1) by the number of units of average daily attendance reported for the special education local plan area for the current fiscal year, except that a special education local plan area designated as a necessary small special education local plan area in accordance with Section 56212 and reporting fewer than 15,000 units of average daily attendance for the current fiscal year shall be deemed to have 15,000 units of average daily attendance.

56836.25. Funds received pursuant to this article shall be expended for the purposes specified in Section 56836.23.

SEC. 66. (a) The Legislature finds and declares as follows:

(1) The individuals with Disabilities Education Act (20 U.S.C. Sec. 1400 et seq.), as amended by the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act Amendments of 1997 (105 P.L. 17), effective in part upon enactment and in part as further specified in the act, provides as follows:

''Sec. 612. STATE ELIGIBILITY.

(a) In general.--A State is eligible for assistance under this part for a fiscal year if the State demonstrates to the satisfaction of the Secretary that the State has in effect policies and procedures to ensure that it meets each of the following conditions:

[Language Omitted]

(5) LEAST RESTRICTIVE ENVIRONMENT-

(A) IN GENERAL-To the maximum extent appropriate, children with disabilities, including children in public or private institutions or other care facilities, are educated with children who are not disabled, and special classes, separate schooling, or other removal of children with disabilities from the regular educational environment occurs only when the nature or severity of the disability of a child is such that education in regular classes with the use of supplementary aids and services cannot be achieved satisfactorily.

(B) ADDITIONAL REQUIREMENT-

(i) IN GENERAL-If the State uses a funding mechanism by which the State distributes State funds on the basis of the type of setting in which a child is served, the funding mechanism does not result in placements that violate the requirements of subparagraph (A).

(ii) ASSURANCE-If the State does not have policies and procedures to ensure compliance with clause (i), the State shall provide the Secretary an assurance that it will revise the funding mechanism as soon as feasible to ensure that such mechanism does not result in such placements.

[Language Omitted]''

(16) PERFORMANCE GOALS AND INDICATORS—The State—

(A) has established goals for the performance of children with disabilities in the State that—

(i) will promote the purposes of this Act, as stated in section 601(d); and

(ii) are consistent, to the maximum extent appropriate, with other goals and standards for children established by the State;

(B) has established performance indicators the State will use to assess progress toward achieving those goals that, at a minimum, address the performance of children with disabilities on assessments, drop-out rates, and graduation rates;

(C) will, every two years, report to the Secretary and the public on the progress of the State, and of children with disabilities in the State, toward meeting the goals established under subparagraph (A); and

(D) based on its assessment of that progress, will revise its State improvement plan under subpart 1 of part D as may be needed to improve its performance, if the State receives assistance under that subpart.

(17) PARTICIPATION IN ASSESSMENTS—

(A) IN GENERAL-Children with disabilities are included in general State and district-wide assessment programs, with appropriate accommodations, where necessary. As appropriate, the State or local education agency—

(i) develops guidelines for the participation of children with disabilities in alternate assessments for those children who cannot participate in State and district-wide assessment programs; and

(ii) develops and, beginning not later than July 1, 2000, conducts those alternate assessments.

(B) REPORTS-The State educational agency makes available to the public, and reports to the public with the same frequency and in the same detail as it reports on the assessment of nondisabled children, the following:

(i) The number of children with disabilities participating in regular assessments.

(ii) The number of those children participating in alternate assessments.

(iii) (I) The performance of those children on regular assessments (beginning not later than July 1, 1998) and on alternate assessments (not later than July 1, 2000), if doing so would be statistically sound and would not result in the disclosure of performance results identifiable to individual children.

(II) Data relating to the performance of children described under subclause (I) shall be disaggregated—

(aa) for assessments conducted after July 1, 1998; and

(bb) for assessments conducted before July 1, 1998, if the State is required to disaggregate such data prior to July 1, 1998.

[Language Omitted]''

''Sec. 616. WITHHOLDING AND JUDICIAL REVIEW

(a) WITHHOLDING OF PAYMENTS-

(1) IN GENERAL-Whenever the Secretary, after reasonable notice and opportunity for hearing to the State educational agency involved (and to any local educational agency or State agency affected by any failure described in subparagraph (B)), finds—

(A) that there has been a failure by the State to comply substantially with any provision of this part; or

(B) that there is a failure to comply with any condition of a local educational agency's or State agency's eligibility under this part, including the terms of any agreement to achieve compliance with this part within the timelines specified in the agreement; the Secretary shall, after notifying the State educational agency, withhold, in whole or in part, any further payments to the State under this part, or refer the matter for appropriate enforcement action, which may include referral to the Department of Justice.

(2) NATURE OF WITHHOLDING-If the Secretary withholds further payments under paragraph (1), the Secretary may determine that such withholding will be limited to programs or projects, or portions thereof affected by the failure, or that the State educational agency shall not make further payments under this part to specified local educational agencies or State agencies affected by the failure. Until the Secretary is satisfied that there if no longer any failure to comply with the provisions of this part, as specified in subparagraph (A) or (B) of paragraph (1), payments to the State under this part shall be withheld in whole or in part, or payments by the State educational agency under this part shall be limited to local educational agencies and State agencies whose actions did not cause or were not involved in the failure, as the case may be. Any State educational agency, State agency, or local educational agency that has received notice under paragraph (1) shall, by means of a public notice, take such measures as may be necessary to bring the pendency of an action pursuant to this subsection to the attention of the public within the jurisdiction of such agency.''

[Language Omitted]''

(2) State and local education agencies are required to abide by federal laws that are in effect.

(b) This section shall remain in effect only if the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (20 U.S.C. Sec. 1400 et seq.), as amended by the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act Amendments of 1997 (105 P.L. 17), is not further amended or repealed, and this section is repealed upon any further amendment or repeal of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (20 U.S.C. Sec. 1400 et seq.), as amended by the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act Amendments of 1997 (105 P.L. 17).

(c) It is the intent of the Legislature that this section be reenacted to incorporate any changes to the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (20 U.S.C. Sec. 1400 et seq.), as amended by the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act Amendments of 1997 (105 P.L. 17), as soon as possible after the amendment of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (20 U.S.C. Sec. 1400 et seq.), as amended by the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act Amendments of 1997 (105 P.L. 17).

SEC. 67. (a) The Office of the Legislative Analyst, in conjunction with the Department of Finance and the State Department of Education, shall conduct a study to gather, analyze, and report on data that would indicate the extent to which the incidence of disabilities, that are medically defined or severe and significantly above-average in cost, or both, are evenly or unevenly distributed among the population of special education local plan areas. The Office of the Legislative Analyst shall contract for both the development of the request for proposal for the study and for the study itself. The Office of the Legislative Analyst, the Department of Finance, and the State Department of Education, shall submit a report of the contractor's findings and recommendations no later than June 1, 1998, to the Governor and the appropriate policy and fiscal committees of the California State Senate and the California State Assembly. The report shall include, if feasible and appropriate, a method to adjust the funding formula contained in Chapter 7.2 (commencing with Section 56836) of Part 30 of the Education Code in order to recognize the distribution of disabilities that are medically defined or severe and significantly above-average in cost, or both, among the special education local plan areas. The report shall use the definition of severe orthopedic impairment developed by the State Department of Education pursuant to Section 70.

(b) There is hereby appropriated to the State Department of Education for transfer to the Office of the Legislative Analyst for the 1997–98 fiscal year the sum of two hundred thousand dollars ($200,000) from supplemental federal special education grant funds for Part B of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act. The funds are only to be used for the purpose of contracting for the request for proposal and study in subdivisions (a) and (b) and for the purpose of paying any necessary overhead associated with the supervision of the independent contracts. Provision 1 of Item 6110-161-0890 of the 1997–98 Budget Act on funds received over the amount of federal funds budgeted shall only apply to the balance of supplemental federal special education grant funds for Part B of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act remaining after the appropriation made by this subdivision is deducted from that supplemental funding.

(c) Of the amount needed to fully fund the equalization formula in Article 2 (commencing with Section 56836.06) of Chapter 7.2 of Part 30 of the Education Code as it read on January 1, 1998, fifteen million dollars ($15,000,000) shall be available for an adjustment to that formula pursuant to the results of the study required pursuant to Section 67. The amount actually required to fully fund the adjustment enacted by an act of the Legislature subsequent to the results of the study shall be funded in whole in the 1998–99 fiscal year if eighty million dollars ($80,000,000), or more, in federal funds becomes available, or proportionately less if less federal funds are available, during years of equalization carried out pursuant to Article 2 (commencing with Section 56836.06) of Chapter 7.2 of Part 30 of the Education Code. At the time an adjustment is enacted, the formula in Article 2 (commencing with Section 56836.06) of Chapter 7.2 of Part 30 of the Education Code shall also be amended in an act other than the Budget Act to reduce the full funding level by the total cost of the adjustment which may be more or less than fifteen million dollars ($15,000,000) such that the total cost of the formula in Article 2 (commencing with Section 56836.06) of Chapter 7.2 of Part 30 of the Education Code plus the adjustment shall equal the cost of the equalization formula as it existed before enacting the adjustment. The adjustment shall be enacted to amend or replace the formula established in Article 2.5 (commencing with Section 56836.155) of Chapter 7.2 of Part 30 of the Education Code and shall not be enacted in addition to the formula established in that article.

SEC. 68. (a) The Office of the Legislative Analyst, the Department of Finance, and the State Department of Education shall conduct a study, in consultation with the other interested parties, of nonpublic school and nonpublic agency costs as compared to the cost of public school placements, the cause of continuing increases in nonpublic school and agency costs, and recommendations for cost containment. In carrying out this study the Office of the Legislative Analyst shall examine the impact on nonpublic school and nonpublic agency costs of children residing in out-of-home placements, and of mediation and due process hearings. The Office of the Legislative Analyst may contract with an independent party to conduct this study on behalf of the Office of the Legislative Analyst. The Office of the Legislative Analyst shall submit a final report of its findings and recommendations on or before May 1, 1998, to the appropriate policy and fiscal committees of the Senate and the Assembly of the California Legislature.

(b) There is hereby appropriated to the State Department of Education for transfer to the Office of the Legislative Analyst for the 1997–98 fiscal year the sum of one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) from supplemental federal special education grant funds for Part B of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act. The funds are only to be used for the purpose of conducting the study in subdivision (a). Provision 1 of Item 6110-161-0890 of the 1997–98 Budget Act on funds received over the amount of federal funds budgeted shall only apply to the balance of supplemental federal special education grant funds for Part B of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act remaining after the appropriation made by this subdivision is deducted from that supplemental funding.

SEC. 69. (a) The State Department of Education shall convene a working group to develop recommendations for improving the compliance of state and local education agencies with state and federal special education laws and regulations. These recommendations shall define how the State Department of Education and local education agencies will assure and maintain compliance of special education laws and regulations in providing services to individuals with exceptional needs. Final recommendations shall include, but not be limited to, state compliance training and technical assistance, state review and monitoring of local compliance, the state complaint process and timetable, state corrective action and follow up, and local and state agency sanctions for noncompliance.

(b) The working group shall include members representing the State Board of Education, the State Department of Education, county offices of education, school districts, special education local plan areas, the Special Education Advisory Commission, the State Department of Education administrative hearing office, the federal Office of Civil Rights or Office for Special Education Programs, organizations advocating for, or consisting of, individuals with exceptional needs and their families, parents of individuals with exceptional needs, and organizations representing school teachers and other support services staff serving individuals with exceptional needs. It is the intent of the Legislature that the working group convened by the State Department of Education shall include a balance of members representing state and local education agencies and employees, and members representing individuals with exceptional needs and their families.

(c) The State Department of Education shall submit a report of the working group's recommendations no later than September 1, 1998, to the Governor and the appropriate policy and fiscal committees of the Senate and the Assembly of the California Legislature.

SEC. 70. On or before January 1, 1998, the State Department of Education shall develop a definition of severe orthopedic impairment for use in the application and distribution of low-incidence funding in the 1998–99 fiscal year.

SEC. 71. No reimbursement is required by this act pursuant to Section 6 of Article XIII B of the California Constitution because this act provides for offsetting savings to local agencies or school districts that result in no net costs to the local agencies or school districts, within the meaning of Section 17556 of the Government Code.

Notwithstanding Section 17580 of the Government Code, unless otherwise specified, the provisions of this act shall become operative on the same date that the act takes effect pursuant to the California Constitution.

SEC. 72. Funding for this bill, except as provided in Sections 67 and 68 of this bill, shall be contingent upon the enactment of an appropriation in the annual Budget Act.

ASSEMBLY BILL No. 661

Introduced by Assembly Member Torlakson

February 25, 2009

An act to add Sections 56836.16 and 56836.161 to the Education Code, relating to special education, making an appropriation therefor, and declaring the urgency thereof, to take effect immediately.

LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL'S DIGEST

AB 661, as introduced, Torlakson. Special education: behavioral intervention plans: mandate claim: funding.

(1) Existing law requires the Superintendent of Public Instruction, on or before September 1, 1992, to develop, and the State Board of Education to adopt, regulations, as specified, governing the use of behavioral interventions for individuals with exceptional needs receiving special education and related services. Existing law prescribes the calculations to be made to determine the amount of General Fund moneys to allocate to each special education local plan area.

This bill would require the Superintendent to perform various calculations to increase the amount of funding per unit of average daily attendance for each special education local plan area, as specified. The bill would appropriate $65,000,000 from the General Fund to the Superintendent in augmentation of a specified item of the Budget Act of 2009 for purposes of providing that increased funding. The bill also would appropriate $10,000,000 from the General Fund to the Superintendent for allocation on a one-time basis to county offices of education and special education local plan areas, as specified. The bill would direct that $85,000,000 be appropriated from the General Fund on a one-time basis in each of the 2011–12 to 2016–17 fiscal years, inclusive, except as provided, to the Superintendent for allocation to school districts on a per-pupil basis. The Superintendent would be required to use specified calculations to compute the allocation for each school district. The bill would deem the funding described in this paragraph as payments in full satisfaction of, and in lieu of, any reimbursable mandate claims resulting from the statement of decision of the Commission on State Mandates regarding the Behavioral Intervention Plans Mandated Cost Test Claim.

(2) This bill would declare that it is to take effect immediately as an urgency statute.

Vote: ⅔. Appropriation: yes. Fiscal committee: yes. State-mandated local program: no.

The people of the State of California do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. The Legislature finds and declares that it is in the state's interest that this act be enacted immediately to provide funding for positive behavioral intervention plans for special education pupils pursuant to Chapter 959 of the Statutes of 1990 in order to resolve a contested state mandate issue of 14-year standing. The Legislature anticipates that the Governor will request the enactment of this act prior to the enactment of the Budget Act of 2009.

SEC. 2. Section 56836.16 is added to the Education Code, to read:

56836.16. (a) The Superintendent shall determine the statewide total average daily attendance used for the purposes of Section 56836.08 for the 2008–09 fiscal year. For the purposes of this calculation, the 2008–09 second principal average daily attendance for the court, community school, and special education programs served by the Los Angeles County Juvenile Court and Community School/Division of Alternative Education Special Education Local Plan Area shall be used in lieu of the average daily attendance used for that agency for the purposes of Section 56836.08.

(b) The Superintendent shall divide sixty-five million dollars ($65,000,000), by the amount determined pursuant to subdivision (a).

(c) For each special education local plan area, the Superintendent shall permanently increase the amount per unit of average daily attendance determined pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section

56836.08 for the 2009–10 fiscal year by the quotient determined pursuant to subdivision (b). This increase shall be effective beginning in the 2009–10 fiscal year.

(d) Notwithstanding subdivision (c), for the Los Angeles County Juvenile Court and Community School/Division of Alternative Education Special Education Local Plan Area, the Superintendent shall permanently increase the amount per unit of average daily attendance determined pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 56836.08 by the ratio of the amount determined pursuant to subdivision (b) to the statewide target per unit of average daily attendance determined pursuant to Section 56836.11 for the 2008–09 fiscal year. This increase shall be effective beginning in the 2009–10 fiscal year.

(e) The Superintendent shall increase the statewide target per unit of average daily attendance determined pursuant to Section 56836.11 for the 2009–10 fiscal year by the amount determined pursuant to subdivision (b).

(f) The funding provided pursuant to subdivisions (a) to (e), inclusive, and the funding provided pursuant to subdivisions (a) and (b) of Section 56836.161 shall be deemed as payments in full satisfaction of, and in lieu of, any reimbursable mandate claims resulting from the statement of decision of the Commission on State Mandates regarding the Behavioral Intervention Plans Mandated Cost Test Claim (CSM 4464). By providing this funding, the state does not concede the existence of any unfunded reimbursable mandate with regard to Section 56523 and its implementing regulations, including subdivisions (c), (d), (e), (f), and (aa) of Section 3001 and Section 3052 of Title 5 of the California Code of Regulations, as those provisions read on July 1, 2008. These funds shall be used exclusively for programs operated pursuant to this part and, as a first priority, for the programs and services required pursuant to Section 56523 and its implementing regulations. By virtue of these funds, Section 56523 and its implementing regulations shall be deemed to be fully funded within the meaning of subdivision (e) of Section 17556 of the Government Code.

(g) Within the meaning of subdivision (e) of Section 17556 of the Government Code, the funds appropriated for purposes of this section are not specifically intended to fund any state-mandated special education programs and services resulting from amendments enacted after July 1, 2008, to any of the following statutes and regulations:

(1) The federal Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (20 U.S.C. Sec. 1400 et seq.), if the amendments result in circumstances where state law exceeds federal law.

(2) Federal regulations implementing the federal Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (34 C.F.R. Parts 300 and 303), if the amendments result in circumstances where state law exceeds federal law.

(3) This part.

(4) Sections 3000 to 4671, inclusive, of Title 5 of the California Code of Regulations.

(h) State funds appropriated by the annual Budget Act and otherwise allocated to each special education local plan area pursuant to Chapter 7.2 (commencing with Section 56836) shall supplement and not supplant the funds provided pursuant to subdivisions (a) to (e), inclusive. The funds provided pursuant to subdivisions (a) to (e), inclusive, shall be in addition to the level of any cost-of-living adjustment provided for purposes of this chapter in the annual Budget Act.

SEC. 3. Section 56836.161 is added to the Education Code, to read:

56836.161. (a) (1) The amount of eighty-five million dollars ($85,000,000) shall be appropriated from the General Fund on a one-time basis in each of the 2011–12 to 2016–17 fiscal years, inclusive, to the Superintendent for allocation to school districts on a per-pupil basis. The Superintendent shall compute the amount per pupil by dividing eighty-five million dollars ($85,000,000) by the total average daily attendance, excluding attendance for regional occupational centers and programs, adult education, and programs operated by county superintendents of schools, for all pupils in kindergarten and grades 1 to 12, inclusive, in all school districts as used by the Superintendent for the second principal apportionment for the 2007–08 fiscal year. The allocation for each school district shall equal the per-pupil amount times the district's average daily attendance as reported to the Superintendent for the second principal apportionment for the 2007–08 fiscal year. The amount allocated to each school district shall be the same in all subsequent fiscal years as it is in the first fiscal year.

(2) Notwithstanding paragraph (1), the state, in its discretion, may appropriate and allocate amounts in excess of eighty-five million dollars ($85,000,000) annually in any of the 2011–12 to 2016–17 fiscal years, inclusive, for the purpose of discharging the obligation in advance of the period, so long as the total amount appropriated and allocated pursuant to this section during that time period is five hundred ten million dollars ($510,000,000).

(3) In any fiscal year, commencing with the 2012–13 fiscal year, in which the amount of the minimum funding guarantee for the support of school districts and community college districts is determined by paragraph (3) of subdivision (b) of Section 8 of Article XVI of the California Constitution, the annual appropriation described in paragraph (1) shall not be made.

(4) The Director of Finance shall notify, in writing, the fiscal committees of both houses of the Legislature, the Controller, and the Superintendent no later than May 14 of a fiscal year if the appropriation for the following fiscal year is not required pursuant to paragraph (3). If an appropriation is not made pursuant to paragraph (1) for a specific fiscal year or years, it shall instead be made in the fiscal year or years immediately following the final payment pursuant to paragraph (1).

(5) The funds described in this section shall be in addition to the level of any cost-of-living adjustment provided to school districts in the annual Budget Act.

(b) From the funds appropriated for purposes of this section by subdivision (b) of Section 4 of the act that added this section, the Superintendent shall allocate all of the following:

(1) The amount of one million five hundred thousand dollars ($1,500,000) to county offices of education in equal per-pupil amounts. The Superintendent shall determine the per-pupil amount by dividing one million five hundred thousand dollars ($1,500,000) by the total statewide county special education pupil count, as reported by county offices of education as of December 2007. The allocation for each county office of education shall be the per-pupil amount times the county's special education pupil count reported as of December 2007. The Superintendent shall adjust the computations in such a manner as to ensure that the minimum allocation to each county office of education is at least five thousand dollars ($5,000).

(2) The amount of six million dollars ($6,000,000) to special education local plan areas that existed for the 2007–08 fiscal year. The Superintendent shall determine the amount of the allocation for each special education local plan area by dividing six million dollars ($6,000,000) by the statewide special education pupil count reported as of December 2007. The allocation for each special education local plan area shall be the statewide per-pupil amount multiplied by the special education pupil count for the area reported as of December 2007. The Superintendent shall adjust the computations in a manner that ensures that the minimum allocation to each special education local plan area is at least ten thousand dollars ($10,000).

(3) The amount of two million five hundred thousand dollars ($2,500,000) to the San Joaquin County Office of Education.

(c) The funding provided pursuant to subdivisions (a) and (b) and subdivisions (a) to (e), inclusive, of Section 56836.16 shall be deemed as payments in full satisfaction of, and in lieu of, any reimbursable mandate claims resulting from the statement of decision of the Commission on State Mandates regarding the Behavioral Intervention Plans Mandated Cost Test Claim (CSM 4464).

SEC. 4. (a) The amount of sixty-five million dollars ($65,000,000) is hereby appropriated from the General Fund to the Superintendent of Public Instruction in augmentation of Item 6110–161–0001 of the Budget Act of 2009 for purposes of Section 56836.16 of the Education Code. It is the intent of the Legislature that the funding appropriated by this subdivision be included in the annual Budget Act in subsequent fiscal years.

(b) (1) The amount of ten million dollars ($10,000,000) is hereby appropriated from the General Fund to the Superintendent of Public Instruction for allocation on a one-time basis to county offices of education and special education local plan areas pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 56836.161 of the Education Code. These funds shall be in addition to the level of any cost-of-living adjustment provided for county offices of education and special education local plan areas in the annual Budget Act.

(2) For the purposes of making the computations required by Section 8 of Article XVI of the California Constitution, the appropriation made by this subdivision shall be deemed to be General Fund revenues appropriated for school districts, as defined in subdivision (a) of Section 41202 of the Education Code, for the 2007–08 fiscal year, and included within the total allocations to school districts and community college districts from General Fund proceeds of taxes appropriated pursuant to Article XIII B, as defined in subdivision (e) of Section 41202 of the Education Code, for the 2007–08 fiscal year.

SEC. 5. This act is an urgency statute necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health, or safety within the meaning of Article IV of the Constitution and shall go into immediate effect. The facts constituting the necessity are:

In order to alleviate, at the earliest possible time, the fiscal hardship to local educational agencies caused by the persistent shortfalls in federal funding for special education, to increase state funding for the special education program thereby reducing encroachment, to facilitate the settlement of current litigation regarding those programs and the funding thereof, to obviate new litigation, and to resolve related school finance issues, it is necessary that this act take effect immediately.

An act to amend Sections 17518.5, 17521, 17551, 17553, 17558, 17561, 17564, 17581, 17581.5, and 17612 of, to add Sections 17521.5, 17557.1, and 17557.2 to, to add Article 1.5 (commencing with Section 17572) to Chapter 4 of Part 7 of Division 4 of Title 2 of, and to repeal Section 17572 of, the Government Code, relating to state mandates.

[Approved by Governor October 8, 2007. Filed with Secretary of State October 8, 2007.]

LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL'S DIGEST

AB 1222, Laird. State mandates: legislatively determined mandate.

(1) Under the California Constitution, whenever the Legislature or a state agency mandates a new program or higher level of service on any local government, including school districts, the state is required to provide a subvention of funds to reimburse the local government, with specified exceptions. Existing law establishes a procedure for local governmental agencies to file claims for reimbursement of these costs with the Commission on State Mandates. These procedures require that a claim for reimbursement include, among other things, a written narrative that identifies the specific sections of statutes or executive orders alleged to contain a mandate.

This bill would require that a test claim also identify the effective date and register number of regulations alleged to contain a mandate, as well as a legislatively determined mandate on the same statute or executive order. It would also require that the written narrative contain specified declarations with respect to legislatively determined mandates, if applicable.

(2) The procedures established by existing law also require the commission to hear and decide upon each claim for reimbursement and then determine the amount to be subvened for reimbursement and adopt parameters and guidelines for payment of claims. Existing law requires the commission to consult with the Department of Finance, among other state officials, when adopting parameters and guidelines for reimbursement.

This bill would provide that, notwithstanding these provisions, the department and a local agency, school district, or statewide association may jointly request that the Legislature determine if a particular statute or executive order imposes a mandate for which reimbursement is required by the California Constitution. It would require that a joint request submitted to the Legislature identify the statute or executive order, a reasonable reimbursement methodology, a list of eligible claimants, an estimate of statewide costs for the initial claiming period, an annual dollar amount necessary for reimbursement, and documentation of significant support among local agencies or school districts for the methodology. It would provide that, if the Legislature accepts the joint request and determines that the statute or executive order, or portion thereof, imposes a mandate for which reimbursement is required, it shall declare by statute that the requirements of the statute or executive order, or portion thereof, are a legislatively determined mandate, and specify the term and period of reimbursement and methodology for reimbursing eligible local agencies or school districts subject to specified criteria, or, with respect to local government agencies subject to specified provisions of the California Constitution applicable to the reimbursement of mandates, appropriate funds sufficient for reimbursement in the Budget Act or suspend the mandate.

The bill also would provide that, when it accepts reimbursement for a legislatively determined mandate, a local agency or school district agrees that payment as agreed to pursuant to the statute adopted by the Legislature constitutes full reimbursement of its costs for that mandate for the applicable period of reimbursement, that the reasonable reimbursement methodology is appropriate for reimbursement payments on that mandate for 5 fiscal years or as otherwise specified in the statute, and that the local government shall withdraw any test claim pending before the commission regarding this mandate, any unpaid reimbursement claims previously filed by the local agency or school district with the Controller on the same mandate for the same period shall be deemed withdrawn, and a test claim on the same statute or executive order as a legislatively determined mandate will not be filed with the commission except as specified.

The bill also would specify procedures for the commission in connection with a test claim based on the same statute or executive order as a legislatively determined mandate and make other conforming changes.

(3) The procedures established by existing law require the commission to submit adopted parameters and guidelines to the Controller for payment of reimbursement claims.

This bill would authorize the commission to instead adopt and submit to the Controller a reasonable reimbursement methodology proposed by a test claimant and the department and would require the Controller to issue claiming instructions pursuant to that methodology, as specified.

The people of the State of California do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. Section 17518.5 of the Government Code is amended to read:

17518.5. (a) "Reasonable reimbursement methodology" means a formula for reimbursing local agencies and school districts for costs mandated by the state, as defined in Section 17514.

(b) A reasonable reimbursement methodology shall be based on cost information from a representative sample of eligible claimants, information provided by associations of local agencies and school districts, or other projections of local costs.

(c) A reasonable reimbursement methodology shall consider the variation in costs among local agencies and school districts to implement the mandate in a cost-efficient manner.

(d) Whenever possible, a reasonable reimbursement methodology shall be based on general allocation formulas, uniform cost allowances, and other approximations of local costs mandated by the state, rather than detailed documentation of actual local costs. In cases when local agencies and school districts are projected to incur costs to implement a mandate over a period of more than one fiscal year, the determination of a reasonable reimbursement methodology may consider local costs and state reimbursements over a period of greater than one fiscal year, but not exceeding 10 years.

(e) A reasonable reimbursement methodology may be developed by any of the following:

(1) The Department of Finance.

(2) The Controller.

(3) An affected state agency.

(4) A claimant.

(5) An interested party.

SEC. 1.5. Section 17521 of the Government Code is amended to read:

SEC. 3. Section 17551 of the Government Code is amended to read:

17551. (a) The commission, pursuant to the provisions of this chapter, shall hear and decide upon a claim by a local agency or school district that the local agency or school district is entitled to be reimbursed by the state for costs mandated by the state as required by Section 6 of Article XIII B of the California Constitution.

(b) Except as provided in Sections 17573 and 17574, commission review of claims may be had pursuant to subdivision (a) only if the test claim is filed within the time limits specified in this section.

(c) Local agency and school district test claims shall be filed not later than 12 months following the effective date of a statute or executive order, or within 12 months of incurring increased costs as a result of a statute or executive order, whichever is later.

(d) The commission, pursuant to the provisions of this chapter, shall hear and decide upon a claim by a local agency or school district filed on or after January 1, 1985, that the Controller has incorrectly reduced payments to the local agency or school district pursuant to paragraph (2) of subdivision (d) of Section 17561.

SEC. 4. Section 17553 of the Government Code is amended to read:

17553. (a) The commission shall adopt procedures for receiving claims filed pursuant to this article and Section 17574 and for providing a hearing on those claims. The procedures shall do all of the following:

(1) Provide for presentation of evidence by the claimant, the Department of Finance, and any other affected department or agency, and any other interested person.

(2) Ensure that a statewide cost estimate is adopted within 12 months after receipt of a test claim, when a determination is made by the commission that a mandate exists. This deadline may be extended for up to six months upon the request of either the claimant or the commission.

(3) Permit the hearing of a claim to be postponed at the request of the claimant, without prejudice, until the next scheduled hearing.

(b) All test claims shall be filed on a form prescribed by the commission and shall contain at least the following elements and documents:

(1) A written narrative that identifies the specific sections of statutes or executive orders and the effective date and register number of regulations alleged to contain a mandate and shall include all of the following:

(A) A detailed description of the new activities and costs that arise from the mandate.

(B) A detailed description of existing activities and costs that are modified by the mandate.

(C) The actual increased costs incurred by the claimant during the fiscal year for which the claim was filed to implement the alleged mandate.

(D) The actual or estimated annual costs that will be incurred by the claimant to implement the alleged mandate during the fiscal year immediately following the fiscal year for which the claim was filed.

(E) A statewide cost estimate of increased costs that all local agencies or school districts will incur to implement the alleged mandate during the fiscal year immediately following the fiscal year for which the claim was filed.

(F) Identification of all of the following:

(i) Dedicated state funds appropriated for this program.

(ii) Dedicated federal funds appropriated for this program.

(iii) Other nonlocal agency funds dedicated for this program.

(iv) The local agency's general purpose funds for this program.

(v) Fee authority to offset the costs of this program.

(G) Identification of prior mandate determinations made by the Commission on State Mandates or a predecessor agency that may be related to the alleged mandate.

(H) Identification of a legislatively determined mandate pursuant to Section 17573 that is on the same statute or executive order.

(2) The written narrative shall be supported with declarations under penalty of perjury, based on the declarant's personal knowledge, information, or belief, and signed by persons who are authorized and competent to do so, as follows:

(A) Declarations of actual or estimated increased costs that will be incurred by the claimant to implement the alleged mandate.

(B) Declarations identifying all local, state, or federal funds, or fee authority that may be used to offset the increased costs that will be incurred by the claimant to implement the alleged mandate, including direct and indirect costs.

(C) Declarations describing new activities performed to implement specified provisions of the new statute or executive order alleged to impose a reimbursable state-mandated program. Specific references shall be made to chapters, articles, sections, or page numbers alleged to impose a reimbursable state-mandated program.

(D) If applicable, declarations describing the period of reimbursement and payments received for full reimbursement of costs for a legislatively determined mandate pursuant to Section 17573, and the authority to file a test claim pursuant to paragraph (1) of subdivision (c) of Section 17574.

(3) (A) The written narrative shall be supported with copies of all of the following:

(i) The test claim statute that includes the bill number or executive order, alleged to impose or impact a mandate.

(ii) Relevant portions of state constitutional provisions, federal statutes, and executive orders that may impact the alleged mandate.

(iii) Administrative decisions and court decisions cited in the narrative.

(B) State mandate determinations made by the Commission on State Mandates or a predecessor agency and published court decisions on state mandate determinations made by the Commission on State Mandates are exempt from this requirement.

(4) A test claim shall be signed at the end of the document, under penalty of perjury by the claimant or its authorized representative, with the declaration that the test claim is true and complete to the best of the declarant's personal knowledge, information, or belief. The date of signing, the declarant's title, address, telephone number, facsimile machine telephone number, and electronic mail address shall be included.

(c) If a completed test claim is not received by the commission within 30 calendar days from the date that an incomplete test claim was returned by the commission, the original test claim filing date may be disallowed, and a new test claim may be accepted on the same statute or executive order.

(d) In addition, the commission shall determine whether an incorrect reduction claim is complete within 10 days after the date that the incorrect reduction claim is filed. If the commission determines that an incorrect reduction claim is not complete, the commission shall notify the local agency and school district that filed the claim stating the reasons that the claim is not complete. The local agency or school district shall have 30 days to complete the claim. The commission shall serve a copy of the complete incorrect reduction claim on the Controller. The Controller shall have no more than 90 days after the date the claim is delivered or mailed to file any rebuttal to an incorrect reduction claim. The failure of the Controller to file a rebuttal to an incorrect reduction claim shall not serve to delay the consideration of the claim by the commission.

SEC. 5. Section 17557.1 is added to the Government Code, to read:

17557.1. (a) Notwithstanding any other provision of this part, within 30 days of the commission's adoption of a statement of decision on a test claim, the test claimant and the Department of Finance may notify the executive director of the commission in writing of their intent to follow the process described in this section to develop a reasonable reimbursement methodology and statewide estimate of costs for the initial claiming period and budget year for reimbursement of costs mandated by the state in accordance with the statement of decision. The letter of intent shall include the date on which the test claimant and the Department of Finance will submit a plan to ensure that costs from a representative sample of eligible local agency or school district claimants are considered in the development of a reasonable reimbursement methodology.

(b) This plan shall also include all of the following information:

(1) The date on which the test claimant and Department of Finance will provide to the executive director an informational update regarding their progress in developing the reasonable reimbursement methodology.

(2) The date on which the test claimant and Department of Finance will submit to the executive director the draft reasonable reimbursement methodology and proposed statewide estimate of costs for the initial claiming period and budget year. This date shall be no later than 180 days after the date the letter of intent is sent by the test claimant and Department of Finance to the executive director.

(c) At the request of the test claimant and Department of Finance, the executive director may provide for up to four extensions of this 180-day period.

(d) The test claimant or Department of Finance may notify the executive director at any time that the claimant or Department of Finance no longer intends to develop a reasonable reimbursement methodology pursuant to this section. In this case, paragraph (2) of subdivision (a) of Section 17553 and Section 17557 shall apply to the test claim. Upon receipt of this notification, the executive director shall notify the test claimant of the duty to submit proposed parameters and guidelines within 30 days under subdivision (a) of Section 17557.

SEC. 6. Section 17557.2 is added to the Government Code, to read:

17557.2. (a) A reasonable reimbursement methodology developed pursuant to Section 17557.1 or a joint request for early termination of a reasonable reimbursement methodology shall have broad support from a wide range of local agencies or school districts. The test claimant and Department of Finance may demonstrate broad support from a wide range of local agencies or school districts in different ways, including, but not limited to, obtaining endorsement by one or more statewide associations of local agencies or school districts and securing letters of approval from local agencies or school districts.

(b) No later than 60 days before a commission hearing, the test claimant and Department of Finance shall submit to the commission a joint proposal that shall include all of the following:

(1) The draft reasonable reimbursement methodology.

(2) The proposed statewide estimate of costs for the initial claiming period and budget year.

(3) A description of the steps the test claimant and the Department of Finance undertook to determine the level of support by local agencies or school districts for the draft reasonable reimbursement methodology.

(4) An agreement that the reasonable reimbursement methodology developed and approved under this section shall be in effect for a period of five years unless a different term is approved by the commission, or upon submission to the commission of a letter indicating the Department of Finance and test claimant's joint interest in early termination of the reasonable reimbursement methodology.

(5) An agreement that, at the conclusion of the period established in paragraph (4), the Department of Finance and the test claimant will consider jointly whether amendments to the methodology are necessary.

(c) The commission shall approve the draft reasonable reimbursement methodology if review of the information submitted pursuant to Section 17557.1 and subdivision (b) of this section demonstrates that the draft reasonable reimbursement methodology and statewide estimate of costs for the initial claiming period and budget year have been developed in accordance with Section 17557.1 and meet the requirements of subdivision (a). The commission thereafter shall adopt the proposed statewide estimate of costs for the initial claiming period and budget year. Statewide cost estimates adopted under this section shall be included in the report to the Legislature required under Section 17600 and shall be reported by the commission to the appropriate Senate and Assembly policy and fiscal committees, the Legislative Analyst, and the Department of Finance not later than 30 days after adoption.

(d) Unless amendments are proposed pursuant to this subdivision, the reasonable reimbursement methodology approved by the commission pursuant to this section shall expire after either five years, any other term approved by the commission, or upon submission to the commission of a letter indicating the Department of Finance's and test claimant's joint interest in early termination of the reasonable reimbursement methodology.

(e) The commission shall approve a joint request for early termination of a reasonable reimbursement methodology if the request meets the requirements of subdivision (a). If the commission approves a joint request for early termination, the commission shall notify the test claimant of the duty to submit proposed parameters and guidelines to the commission pursuant to subdivision (a) of Section 17557.

(f) At least one year before the expiration of a reasonable reimbursement methodology, the commission shall notify the Department of Finance and the test claimant that they may do one of the following:

(1) Jointly propose amendments to the reasonable reimbursement methodology by submitting the information described in paragraphs (1), (3), and (4) of subdivision (b), and providing an estimate of the mandate's annual cost for the subsequent budget year.

(2) Jointly propose that the reasonable reimbursement methodology remain in effect.

(3) Allow the reasonable reimbursement methodology to expire and notify the commission that the test claimant will submit proposed parameters and guidelines to the commission pursuant to subdivision (a) of Section 17557 to replace the reasonable reimbursement methodology.

(g) The commission shall either approve the continuation of the reasonable reimbursement methodology or approve the jointly proposed amendments to the reasonable reimbursement methodology if the information submitted in accordance with paragraph (1) of subdivision (d) demonstrates that the proposed amendments were developed in accordance with Section 17557.1 and meet the requirements of subdivision (a) of this section.

SEC. 7. Section 17558 of the Government Code is amended to read:

17558. (a) The commission shall submit the adopted parameters and guidelines or a reasonable reimbursement methodology approved pursuant to Section 17557.2 to the Controller. As used in this chapter, a "reasonable reimbursement methodology" approved pursuant to Section 17557.2 includes all amendments to the reasonable reimbursement methodology. When the Legislature declares a legislatively determined mandate in accordance with Section 17573 in which claiming instructions are necessary, the Department of Finance shall notify the Controller.

(b) Not later than 60 days after receiving the adopted parameters and guidelines, a reasonable reimbursement methodology from the commission, or notification from the Department of Finance, the Controller shall issue claiming instructions for each mandate that requires state reimbursement, to assist local agencies and school districts in claiming costs to be reimbursed. In preparing claiming instructions, the Controller shall request assistance from the Department of Finance and may request the assistance of other state agencies. The claiming instructions shall be derived from the test claim decision and the adopted parameters and guidelines, reasonable reimbursement methodology, or statute declaring a legislatively determined mandate.

(c) The Controller shall, within 60 days after receiving amended parameters and guidelines, an amended reasonable reimbursement methodology from the commission or other information necessitating a revision of the claiming instructions, prepare and issue revised claiming instructions for mandates that require state reimbursement that have been established by commission action pursuant to Section 17557, Section 17557.2, or after any decision or order of the commission pursuant to Section 17559, or after any action by the Legislature pursuant to Section 17573. In preparing revised claiming instructions, the Controller may request the assistance of other state agencies.

SEC. 8. Section 17561 of the Government Code, as amended by Chapter 179 of the Statutes of 2007, is amended to read:

17561. (a) The state shall reimburse each local agency and school district for all "costs mandated by the state," as defined in Section 17514 and for legislatively determined mandates in accordance with Section 17573.

(b) (1) For the initial fiscal year during which these costs are incurred, reimbursement funds shall be provided as follows:

(A) Any statute mandating these costs shall provide an appropriation therefor.

(B) Any executive order mandating these costs shall be accompanied by a bill appropriating the funds therefor, or alternatively, an appropriation for these costs shall be included in the Budget Bill for the next succeeding fiscal year. The executive order shall cite that item of appropriation in the Budget Bill or that appropriation in any other bill that is intended to serve as the source from which the Controller may pay the claims of local agencies and school districts.

(2) In subsequent fiscal years appropriations for these costs shall be included in the annual Governor's Budget and in the accompanying Budget Bill. In addition, appropriations to reimburse local agencies and school districts for continuing costs resulting from chaptered bills or executive orders for which claims have been awarded pursuant to subdivision (a) of Section 17551 shall be included in the annual Governor's Budget and in the accompanying Budget Bill.

(c) The amount appropriated to reimburse local agencies and school districts for costs mandated by the state shall be appropriated to the Controller for disbursement.

(d) The Controller shall pay any eligible claim pursuant to this section by August 15 or 45 days after the date the appropriation for the claim is effective, whichever is later. The Controller shall disburse reimbursement funds to local agencies or school districts if the costs of these mandates are not payable to state agencies, or to state agencies that would otherwise collect the costs of these mandates from local agencies or school districts in the form of fees, premiums, or payments. When disbursing reimbursement funds to local agencies or school districts, the Controller shall disburse them as follows:

(1) For initial reimbursement claims, the Controller shall issue claiming instructions to the relevant local agencies and school districts pursuant to Section 17558. Issuance of the claiming instructions shall constitute a notice of the right of the local agencies and school districts to file reimbursement claims, based upon parameters and guidelines adopted by the commission, the reasonable reimbursement methodology approved by the commission pursuant to Section 17557.2, or statutory declaration of a legislatively determined mandate and reimbursement methodology pursuant to Section 17573.

(A) When claiming instructions are issued by the Controller pursuant to Section 17558 for each mandate determined pursuant to Section 17551 or 17573 that requires state reimbursement, each local agency or school district to which the mandate is applicable shall submit claims for initial fiscal year costs to the Controller within 120 days of the issuance date for the claiming instructions.

(B) When the commission is requested to review the claiming instructions pursuant to Section 17571, each local agency or school district to which the mandate is applicable shall submit a claim for reimbursement within 120 days after the commission reviews the claiming instructions for reimbursement issued by the Controller.

(C) If the local agency or school district does not submit a claim for reimbursement within the 120-day period, or submits a claim pursuant to revised claiming instructions, it may submit its claim for reimbursement as specified in Section 17560. The Controller shall pay these claims from the funds appropriated therefor, provided that the Controller (i) may audit the records of any local agency or school district to verify the actual amount of the mandated costs, the application of a reasonable reimbursement methodology, or application of a legislatively enacted reimbursement methodology under Section 17573, and (ii) may reduce any claim that the Controller determines is excessive or unreasonable.

(2) In subsequent fiscal years each local agency or school district shall submit its claims as specified in Section 17560. The Controller shall pay these claims from funds appropriated therefor, provided that the Controller (A) may audit (i) the records of any local agency or school district to verify the actual amount of the mandated costs, (ii) the application of a reasonable reimbursement methodology, or (iii) application of a legislatively enacted reimbursement methodology under Section 17573, (B) may reduce any claim that the Controller determines is excessive or unreasonable, and (C) shall adjust the payment to correct for any underpayments or overpayments that occurred in previous fiscal years.

(3) When paying a timely filed claim for initial reimbursement, the Controller shall withhold 20 percent of the amount of the claim until the claim is audited to verify the actual amount of the mandated costs. All initial reimbursement claims for all fiscal years required to be filed on their initial filing date for a state-mandated local program shall be considered as one claim for the purpose of computing any late claim penalty. Any claim for initial reimbursement filed after the filing deadline shall be reduced by 10 percent of the amount that would have been allowed had the claim been timely filed. The Controller may withhold payment of any late claim for initial reimbursement until the next deadline for funded claims unless sufficient funds are available to pay the claim after all timely filed claims have been paid. In no case may a reimbursement claim be paid if submitted more than one year after the filing deadline specified in the Controller's claiming instructions on funded mandates.

(e) (1) Except as specified in paragraph (2), for the purposes of determining the state's payment obligation under paragraph (1) of subdivision (b) of Section 6 of Article XIII B of the Constitution, a mandate that is "determined in a preceding fiscal year to be payable by the state" means any mandate for which the commission adopted a statewide cost estimate pursuant to this part during a previous fiscal year or that were identified as mandates by a predecessor agency to the commission, or that the Legislature declared by statute to be a legislatively determined mandate, unless the mandate has been repealed or otherwise eliminated.

(2) If the commission adopts a statewide cost estimate for a mandate during the months of April, May, or June, the state's payment obligation under subdivision (b) of Section 6 of Article XIII B shall commence one year after the time specified in paragraph (1).

SEC. 9. Section 17564 of the Government Code is amended to read:

17564. (a) No claim shall be made pursuant to Sections 17551, 17561, or 17573, nor shall any payment be made on claims submitted pursuant to Sections 17551 or 17561, or pursuant to a legislative determination under Section 17573, unless these claims exceed one thousand dollars ($1,000). However, a county superintendent of schools or county may submit a combined claim on behalf of school districts, direct service districts, or special districts within their county if the combined claim exceeds one thousand dollars ($1,000) even if the individual school district's, direct service district's, or special district's claims do not each exceed one thousand dollars ($1,000). The county superintendent of schools or the county shall determine if the submission of the combined claim is economically feasible and shall be responsible for disbursing the funds to each school, direct service, or special district. These combined claims may be filed only when the county superintendent of schools or the county is the fiscal agent for the districts. All subsequent claims based upon the same mandate shall only be filed in the combined form unless a school district, direct service district, or special district provides to the county superintendent of schools or county and to the Controller, at least 180 days prior to the deadline for filing the claim, a written notice of its intent to file a separate claim.

(b) Claims for direct and indirect costs filed pursuant to Section 17561 shall be filed in the manner prescribed in the parameters and guidelines or reasonable reimbursement methodology and claiming instructions.

(c) Claims for direct and indirect costs filed pursuant to a legislatively determined mandate pursuant to Section 17573 shall be filed and paid in the manner prescribed in the Budget Act or other bill, or claiming instructions, if applicable.

SEC. 10. Section 17572 of the Government Code is repealed.

SEC. 11. Article 1.5 (commencing with Section 17572) is added to Chapter 4 of Part 7 of Division 4 of Title 2 of the Government Code, to read:

Article 1.5. Legislatively Determined Mandate Procedure

17572. The Legislature finds and declares all of the following:

(a) Early settlement of mandate claims will allow the commission to focus its efforts on rendering sound quasi-judicial decisions regarding complicated disputes over the existence of state-mandated local programs.

(b) Early settlement of mandate claims will provide timely information to the Legislature regarding local costs of state requirements and timely reimbursement to local agencies or school districts.

(c) It is the intent of the Legislature to provide for an orderly process for settling mandate claims in which the parties are in substantial agreement. Nothing in this article diminishes the right of a local agency or school district that chooses not to accept reimbursement pursuant to this article from filing a test claim with the commission or taking other steps to obtain reimbursement pursuant to Section 6 of Article XIII B of the California Constitution.

17573. (a) Notwithstanding Section 17551, the Department of Finance and a local agency, school district, or statewide association may jointly request of the chairpersons of the committees in each house of the Legislature that consider appropriations, and the chairpersons of the committees and appropriate subcommittees in each house of the Legislature that consider the State Budget, that the Legislature (1) determine that a statute or executive order, or portion thereof, mandates a new program or higher level of service requiring reimbursement of local governments pursuant to Section 6 of Article XIII B of the California Constitution, (2) establish a reimbursement methodology, and (3) appropriate funds for reimbursement of costs. For purposes of this section, "statewide association" includes a statewide association representing local agencies or school districts, as defined in Sections 17518 and 17519.

(b) The statute of limitations specified in Section 17551 shall be tolled from the date a local agency, school district, or statewide association contacts the Department of Finance or responds to a Department of Finance request to initiate a joint request for a legislatively determined mandate pursuant to subdivision (a), to (1) the date that the Budget Act for the subsequent fiscal year is adopted if a joint request is submitted pursuant to subdivision (a), or (2) the date on which the Department of Finance, or a local agency, school district, or statewide association notifies the other party of its decision not to submit a joint request. A local agency, school district, or statewide association, or the Department of Finance shall provide written notification to the commission of each of these dates.

(c) A joint request made under subdivision (a) shall be in writing and include all of the following:

(1) Identification of those provisions of the statute or executive order, or portion thereof, that mandate a new program or higher level of service requiring reimbursement of local agencies or school districts pursuant to Section 6 of Article XIII B of the California Constitution, a proposed reimbursement methodology, and the period of reimbursement.

(2) A list of eligible claimants and a statewide estimate for the initial claiming period and annual dollar amount necessary to reimburse local agencies or school districts to comply with that statute or executive order that mandates a new program or higher level of service.

(3) Documentation of significant support among local agencies or school districts for the proposed reimbursement methodology, including, but not limited to, endorsements by statewide associations and letters of approval from local agencies or school districts.

(d) A joint request authorized by this section may be submitted to the Legislature pursuant to subdivision (a) at any time after enactment of a statute or issuance of an executive order, regardless of whether a test claim on the same statute or executive order is pending with the commission. If a test claim is pending before the commission, the period of reimbursement established by that filing shall apply to a joint request filed pursuant to this section.

(e) (1) If the Legislature accepts the joint request and determines that those provisions of the statute or executive order, or portion thereof, mandate a new program or higher level of service requiring reimbursement of local agencies or school districts pursuant to Section 6 of Article XIII B of the California Constitution, it shall adopt a statute declaring that the statute or executive order, or portion thereof, is a legislatively determined mandate and specify the term and period of reimbursement and methodology for reimbursing eligible local agencies or school districts. If no term is specified in the statute, then the term shall be five years, beginning July 1 of the year in which the statute is enacted.

(2) For the purpose of this subdivision, "term" means the number of years specified in the statute adopted pursuant to this subdivision for reimbursing eligible local agencies or school districts for a legislatively determined mandate.

(f) When the Legislature adopts a statute pursuant to paragraph (1) of subdivision (e) on a mandate subject to subdivision (b) of Section 6 of Article XIII B of the California Constitution, the Legislature shall do either of the following:

(1) Appropriate in the Budget Act the full payable amount for reimbursement to local agencies that has not been previously paid.

(2) Suspend the operation of the mandate pursuant to Section 17581 or repeal the mandate.

(g) The Department of Finance, or a local agency, school district, or statewide association shall notify the commission of actions taken pursuant to this section, as specified below:

(1) Provide the commission with a copy of any communications regarding development of a joint request under this section and a copy of a joint request when it is submitted to the Legislature.

(2) Notify the commission of the date of (A) the Legislature's action on a joint request in the Budget Act, or (B) the Department of Finance's decision not to submit a joint request on a specific statute or executive order.

(h) Upon receipt of notice that a joint request has been submitted to the Legislature on the same statute or executive order as a pending test claim, the commission may stay its proceedings on the pending test claim upon the request of any party.

(i) Upon enactment of a statute declaring a legislatively determined mandate, enactment of a reimbursement methodology, and appropriation for reimbursement of the full payable amount that has not been previously paid in the Budget Act, all of the following shall apply:

(1) The Controller shall prepare claiming instructions pursuant to Section 17558, if applicable.

(2) The commission shall not adopt a statement of decision, parameters and guidelines, or statewide cost estimate on the same statute or executive order unless a local agency or school district that has rejected the amount of reimbursement files a test claim or takes over a withdrawn test claim on the same statute or executive order.

(3) A local agency or school district accepting payment for the statute or executive order, or portion thereof, that mandates a new program or higher level of service pursuant to Section 6 of Article XIII B of the California Constitution shall not be required to submit parameters and guidelines if it is the successful test claimant pursuant to Section 17557.

17574. (a) A local agency or school district agrees to the following terms and conditions when it accepts reimbursement for a legislatively determined mandate pursuant to Section17573:

(1) Any unpaid reimbursement claims the local agency or school district has previously filed with the Controller pursuant to Section 17561 and derived from parameters and guidelines or reasonable reimbursement methodology shall be deemed withdrawn if they are on the same statute or executive order of a legislatively determined mandate and for the same period of reimbursement.

(2) The payment of the amount agreed upon pursuant to Section 17573 constitutes full reimbursement of its costs for that mandate for the applicable period of reimbursement.

(3) The methodology upon which the payment is calculated is an appropriate reimbursement methodology for the term specified in subdivision (e) of Section 17573.

(4) A test claim filed with the commission by a local agency or school district on the same statute or executive order as a legislatively determined mandate shall be withdrawn.

(5) A test claim on the same statute or executive order as a legislatively determined mandate will not be filed with the commission except as provided in subdivision (c).

(b) If a local agency or school district rejects reimbursement for a legislatively determined mandate pursuant to Section 17573, a local agency or school district may take over a withdrawn test claim within six months after the date the test claim is withdrawn, by substitution of parties and compliance with the filing requirements in subdivision (b) of Section 17553, as specified in the commission's notice of withdrawal.

(c) (1) Notwithstanding Section 17551 and subdivision (b) of Section 17573, a local agency or school district may file a test claim on the same statute or executive order as a legislatively determined mandate if one of the following applies:

(A) The Legislature amends the reimbursement methodology and the local agency or school district rejects reimbursement.

(B) The term of the legislatively determined mandate, as defined in subdivision (e) of Section 17573, has expired.

(C) The term of the legislatively determined mandate, as defined in subdivision (e) of Section 17573, is amended and the local agency or school district rejects reimbursement under the new term.

(D) The mandate is subject to subdivision (b) of Section 6 of Article XIII B and the Legislature does both of the following:

(i) Fails to appropriate in the Budget Act funds to reimburse local agencies for the full payable amount that has not been previously paid based on the reimbursement methodology enacted by the Legislature.

(ii) Does not repeal or suspend the mandate pursuant to Section 17581.

(2) A test claim filed pursuant to the authority granted by this subdivision shall be filed within six months of the date an action described in subparagraph (A), (B), (C), or (D) of paragraph (1) occurs.

(d) Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, a local agency or school district shall not file a test claim pursuant to this section if the statute of limitations specified in subdivision (c) of Section 17551 expired before the date a legislatively determined mandate was adopted by the Legislature pursuant to Section 17573.

(e) Notwithstanding the period of reimbursement specified in subdivision (e) of Section 17557, a test claim filed pursuant to this section shall establish eligibility for reimbursement beginning with the fiscal year of an action described in subparagraph (A), (B), (C), or (D) of paragraph (1) of subdivision (c).

17574.5. The determination of a legislatively determined mandate pursuant to Section 17573 shall not be binding on the commission when making its determination pursuant to subdivision (a) of Section 17551.

SEC. 12. Section 17581 of the Government Code is amended to read:

17581. (a) No local agency shall be required to implement or give effect to any statute or executive order, or portion thereof, during any fiscal year and for the period immediately following that fiscal year for which the Budget Act has not been enacted for the subsequent fiscal year if all of the following apply:

(1) The statute or executive order, or portion thereof, has been determined by the Legislature, the commission, or any court to mandate a new program or higher level of service requiring reimbursement of local agencies pursuant to Section 6 of Article XIII B of the California Constitution.

(2) The statute or executive order, or portion thereof, or the commission's test claim number, has been specifically identified by the Legislature in the Budget Act for the fiscal year as being one for which reimbursement is not provided for that fiscal year. For purposes of this paragraph, a mandate shall be considered to have been specifically identified by the Legislature only if it has been included within the schedule of reimbursable mandates shown in the Budget Act and it is specifically identified in the language of a provision of the item providing the appropriation for mandate reimbursements.

(b) Within 30 days after enactment of the Budget Act, the Department of Finance shall notify local agencies of any statute or executive order, or portion thereof, for which operation of the mandate is suspended because reimbursement is not provided for that fiscal year pursuant to this section and Section 6 of Article XIII B of the California Constitution.

(c) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, if a local agency elects to implement or give effect to a statute or executive order described in subdivision (a), the local agency may assess fees to persons or entities which benefit from the statute or executive order. Any fee assessed pursuant to this subdivision shall not exceed the costs reasonably borne by the local agency.

(d) This section shall not apply to any state-mandated local program for the trial courts, as specified in Section 77203.

(e) This section shall not apply to any state-mandated local program for which the reimbursement funding counts toward the minimum General Fund requirements of Section 8 of Article XVI of the Constitution.

SEC. 13. Section 17581.5 of the Government Code, as amended by Chapter 174 of the Statutes of 2007, is amended to read:

17581.5. (a) A school district shall not be required to implement or give effect to the statutes, or a portion of the statutes, identified in subdivision (c) during any fiscal year and for the period immediately following that fiscal year for which the Budget Act has not been enacted for the subsequent fiscal year if all of the following apply:

(1) The statute or a portion of the statute, has been determined by the Legislature, the commission, or any court to mandate a new program or higher level of service requiring reimbursement of school districts pursuant to Section 6 of Article XIII B of the California Constitution.

(2) The statute, or a portion of the statute, or the test claim number utilized by the commission, specifically has been identified by the Legislature in the Budget Act for the fiscal year as being one for which reimbursement is not provided for that fiscal year. For purposes of this paragraph, a mandate shall be considered specifically to have been identified by the Legislature only if it has been included within the schedule of reimbursable mandates shown in the Budget Act and it specifically is identified in the language of a provision of the item providing the appropriation for mandate reimbursements.

(b) Within 30 days after enactment of the Budget Act, the Department of Finance shall notify school districts of any statute or executive order, or portion thereof, for which reimbursement is not provided for the fiscal year pursuant to this section.

(c) This section applies only to the following mandates:

(1) The School Bus Safety I (CSM-4433) and II (97-TC-22) mandates (Chapter 642 of the Statutes of 1992; Chapter 831 of the Statutes of 1994; and Chapter 739 of the Statutes of 1997).

(2) The School Crimes Reporting II mandate (97-TC-03; and Chapter 759 of the Statutes of 1992 and Chapter 410 of the Statutes of 1995).

(3) Investment reports (96-358-02; and Chapter 783 of the Statutes of 1995 and Chapters 156 and 749 of the Statutes of 1996).

(4) County treasury oversight committees (96-365-03; and Chapter 784 of the Statutes of 1995 and Chapter 156 of the Statutes of 1996).

(5) Grand jury proceedings mandate (98-TC-27; and Chapter 1170 of the Statutes of 1996, Chapter 443 of the Statutes of 1997, and Chapter 230 of the Statutes of 1998).

(6) Sexual Harassment Training in the Law Enforcement Workplace (97-TC-07; and Chapter 126 of the Statutes of 1993).

SEC. 14. Section 17612 of the Government Code, as amended by Chapter 179 of the Statutes of 2007, is amended to read:

17612. (a) Upon receipt of the report submitted by the commission pursuant to Section 17600, funding shall be provided in the subsequent Budget Act for costs incurred in prior years. No funding shall be provided for years in which a mandate is suspended.

(b) The Legislature may amend, modify, or supplement the parameters and guidelines, reasonable reimbursement methodology, and adopted statewide estimate of costs for the initial claiming period and budget year for mandates contained in the annual Budget Act. If the Legislature amends, modifies, or supplements the parameters and guidelines, reasonable reimbursement methodology, and adopted statewide estimate of costs for the initial claiming period and budget year, it shall make a declaration in separate legislation specifying the basis for the amendment, modification, or supplement.

(c) If the Legislature deletes from the annual Budget Act funding for a mandate, the local agency or school district may file in the Superior Court of the County of Sacramento an action in declaratory relief to declare the mandate unenforceable and enjoin its enforcement for that fiscal year.

AMENDED IN SENATE AUGUST 22, 2012

AMENDED IN SENATE JUNE 25, 2012

CALIFORNIA LEGISLATURE—2011–12 REGULAR SESSION

ASSEMBLY BILL No. 1476

Introduced by Committee on Budget (Blumenfield (Chair), Alejo, Bonilla, Brownley, Buchanan, Butler, Cedillo, Chesbro, Dickinson, Feuer, Gordon, Huffman, Mitchell, Monning, and Swanson)

January 10, 2012

An act to amend Sections 17193.5, 17199.4, 52055.780, 56520, 56523, 56525, ~~and~~ 69432.7*, and 69999.6* of, and to add Sections 56521.1, 56521.2, and 56522 to, the Education Code, to amend Section 17581.6 of the Government Code, to amend Items 6110-485 and 6110-488 of Section 2.00 of the Budget Act of 2011 (Chapter 33 of the Statutes of 2011), and to add Item 6440–301–6048 to Section 2.00 of the Budget Act of 2012 (Chapter 21 of the Statutes of 2012), relating to education finance, and making an appropriation therefor, to take effect immediately, bill related to the budget.

LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL'S DIGEST

AB 1476, as amended, Committee on Budget. Education finance.

(1) Existing law authorizes a public credit provider, as defined, to require a participating party, with regard to providing credit enhancement for bonds, notes, certificates of participation, or other evidences of indebtedness of a participating party, to agree to specified conditions, including allowing the Controller to allocate specified school district, county office of education, or charter school apportionments to public credit providers if the public credit provider is required to make principal or interest payments, or both, pursuant to the credit enhancement agreement. Existing law imposes those same conditions on securing financing or refinancing for projects or working capital from the California School Finance Authority, in which case the Controller allocates apportionments to an identified trustee when a participating party will not make a payment to the authority at the time the payment is required.

This bill would authorize these payments to a public credit provider or a trustee, as applicable, to be made from specified funds if the Schools and Local Public Safety Protection Act of 2012 (Attorney General reference number 12-0009) is approved by the voters at the November 6, 2012, statewide general election.

(2) The Quality Education Investment Act of 2006 effectuates the intent of the Legislature to implement the terms of the proposed settlement agreement of a specified legal action, to provide for the discharge of the minimum state educational funding requirement, and to improve the quality of academic instruction and the level of pupil achievement in schools whose pupils have high levels of poverty and complex educational needs, among other things. A provision of the act appropriates $218,322,000 from the General Fund for the 2013–14 fiscal year, of which $170,322,000 is for transfer by the Controller to Section A of the State School Fund for allocation by the Superintendent of Public Instruction pursuant to the act.

This bill would instead require, for the 2013–14 fiscal year, that $361,000,000 be appropriated from the General Fund, of which $313,000,000 would be for transfer by the Controller to Section A of the State School Fund for allocation by the Superintendent of Public Instruction pursuant to the act.

(3) Existing regulations of the State Department of Education, among other things, prohibit the authorization, order, consent to, or payment for specified interventions, or interventions similar to the prohibited interventions and require nonpublic schools and agencies to develop policies consistent with regulations related to emergency interventions. Existing department regulations also provide that emergency interventions, among other things, may be used only to control unpredictable, spontaneous behavior which poses a clear and present danger of serious physical harm to the individual or others, require that emergency interventions be employed for no longer than necessary to contain the behavior, and prohibit emergency interventions from including specified interventions. Existing regulations of the United States Department of Education require the individualized education program (IEP) team to consider the use of positive behavioral interventions and supports to address the behavior of a child whose behavior impedes his or her learning and the learning of others. Existing regulations of the United States Department of Education provide the procedures for evaluations related to behavioral needs.

This bill would codify a portion of those federal regulations related to emergency interventions and prohibited interventions consistent with certain requirements. The bill generally would codify the portion of the federal regulations that require the IEP team to consider the use of positive behavioral interventions and supports to address the behavior of an individual whose behavior impedes his or her learning and the learning of others, thereby imposing a state-mandated local program, and require the Superintendent of Public Instruction to issue nonmandatory program guidelines regarding the systematic use of behavioral interventions, and provide related training, as specified.

(4) Existing law requires the Superintendent of Public Instruction to develop and the State Board of Education to adopt regulations governing the use of behavioral interventions with individuals with exceptional needs receiving special education and related services.

This bill would require the state board to repeal those regulations.

(5) Existing law provides a person recognized by the national Behavior Analyst Certification Board as a Board Certified Behavior Analyst qualifies as a behavioral intervention case manager of a school district, special education local plan area, or county office of education and may conduct behavior assessments and provide behavioral intervention services for individuals with exceptional needs. Existing law provides that a school district, special education local plan area, or county office of education is not required to use a Board Certified Behavior Analyst as a behavioral intervention case manager.

This bill would instead provide that a person recognized by the national Behavior Analyst Certification Board as a Board Certified Behavior Analyst may conduct behavior assessments and provide behavioral intervention services for individuals with exceptional needs. The bill would provide that a school district, special education local plan area, or county office of education is not required to use a Board Certified Behavior Analyst to conduct behavior assessments and provide behavioral intervention services for individuals with exceptional needs.

(6) Existing law, the Ortiz-Pacheco-Poochigian-Vasconcellos Cal Grant Program (Cal Grant Program), establishes the Cal Grant A and B Entitlement awards, the California Community College Transfer Entitlement awards, the Competitive Cal Grant A and B awards, the Cal Grant C awards, and the Cal Grant T awards under the administration of the Student Aid Commission (commission), and establishes eligibility requirements for awards under these programs for participating students attending qualifying institutions, as defined.

Existing law requires the commission to certify by October 1 of each year a qualifying institution's latest 3-year cohort default rate as most recently reported by the United States Department of Education. Existing law provides that, for purposes of the 2012–13 academic year, and every academic year thereafter, an otherwise qualifying institution with a 3-year cohort default rate that is equal to or greater than 15.5% is ineligible for initial and renewal Cal Grant awards at the institution. Existing law also requires that an otherwise qualifying institution is ineligible for an initial or renewal Cal Grant award at the institution if the institution has a graduation rate of 30% or less for students taking 150% or less of the expected time to complete degree requirements, as specified, with certain exceptions. Existing law also requires that an otherwise qualifying institution that becomes ineligible under these provisions for initial and renewal Cal Grant awards may regain its eligibility for the academic year following an academic year in which it satisfies the requirements relating to the cohort default rate and the graduation rate.

This bill would instead require that an otherwise qualifying institution that becomes ineligible under these provisions for initial and renewal Cal Grant awards shall regain its eligibility ~~in~~ for the academic year ~~in~~ for which it satisfies these requirements.

(7) Provisions of law that became inoperative on July 1, 2003, and that were repealed on January 1, 2004, established the Governor's Scholarship Programs under the administration of the Scholarshare Investment Board. Existing law expresses the intent of the Legislature to provide explicit authority to the board to continue to administer accounts for, and to make awards to, persons who qualified for awards under the provisions of the Governor's Scholarship Programs as those provisions existed on January 1, 2003, and to provide for the management and disbursement of funds previously set aside for the Governor's Scholarship Programs. Existing law provides that the amount remaining in the Golden State Scholarshare Trust following a specified transfer is available as a reserve for funding claims for awards.

Existing law additionally states the intent of the Legislature to provide a guarantee should additional funds be needed to cover awards authorized and made pursuant to the program. Existing law also requires the board to negotiate with the current manager of the program to execute an amended or new management and funding agreement, which would be required to include specified terms, including, but not limited to, terms that provide for the return to the General Fund of specified moneys appropriated to the Governor's Scholarship Programs.

Of those funds transferred to the General Fund, this bill would appropriate $5,000,000 to the Chancellor of the California State University, without regard to fiscal years, to fund specified purposes relating to open education resources pursuant to legislation enacted in the 2011—12 Regular Session of the Legislature. The bill would prohibit all, or a portion, of that $5,000,000 from being encumbered unless at least 100% of that amount encumbered is matched by private funds, and would require the amount of the $5,000,000 that is not matched by private funds to revert to the Golden State Scholarshare Trust for purposes of the Governor's Scholarship Programs.

(8) Under the California Constitution, whenever the Legislature or a state agency mandates a new program or higher level of service on any local government, including a school district and a community college district, the state is required to provide a subvention of funds to reimburse the local government, with specified exceptions. Existing law, commencing with the 2012–13 fiscal year, requires that certain funds appropriated in the annual Budget Act for reimbursement of the cost of a new program or increased level of service of an existing program mandated by statute or executive order be available as a block grant to school districts, charter schools, and county offices of education to support specified state-mandated local programs and permits those entities to elect to receive that block grant funding in lieu of claiming mandated costs pursuant to the state claims procedure.

This bill would add specified state-mandated local programs to the set of programs for which a school district, charter school, or county office of education may elect to receive a block grant, including, among others, the inter district attendance permits program.

(9) The Budget Act of 2011 made numerous appropriations for the support of public education in this state.

Existing law establishes the Proposition 98 Reversion Account in the General Fund, and requires that the Legislature, from time to time, transfer into this account moneys previously appropriated in satisfaction of the constitutional minimum funding requirements that have not been disbursed or otherwise encumbered for the purposes for which they were appropriated. The Budget Act of 2011 reappropriated $6,824,000 from the Proposition 98 Reversion Account, of which $6,594,000 was for allocation by the Superintendent of Public Instruction for apportionment for special education programs, as specified.

This bill would reappropriate an additional $10,335,000 from the Proposition 98 Reversion Account for allocation by the Superintendent to support special education, as specified.

(10) The Budget Act of 2011, as amended, reappropriated $220,137,000 from the General Fund to the State Department of Education for apportionment for special education programs.

This bill would reduce this reappropriation to the department for those purposes by $10,335,000 to $209,802,000.

(11) Existing law establishes the 2006 University Capital Outlay Bond Fund in the State Treasury for deposit of funds from the proceeds of bonds issued and sold for the purpose of providing funds to aid the University of California, the Hastings College of the Law, and the California State University.

This bill would amend the Budget Act of 2012 by appropriating $4,750,000 from the 2006 University Capital Outlay Bond Fund to the University of California for the purpose of funding preliminary plans and working drawings for the Classroom and Academic Office Building at the Merced campus. The bill would require that contractors and subcontractors of the University of California be required to pay prevailing wages, as specified, as a condition of the availability of these funds. The bill would also authorize the use of the 2006 bond funds remaining at the end of capital outlay projects for specified purposes.

(12) The Budget Act of 2012 appropriated $2,053,750,000 for the support of the University of California.

This bill would require the University of California, as a condition of receipt of those funds, to report to the Legislature by May 1, 2013, on whether it has met an enrollment goal for the 2012–13 academic year.

~~(12)~~

(13) The California Constitution requires the state to reimburse local agencies and school districts for certain costs mandated by the state. Statutory provisions establish procedures for making that reimbursement.

(14) This bill would appropriate $230,000 from federal Individuals with Disabilities Education Act carryover funds to the State Department of Education to, among other things, provide oversight of, and technical assistance and monitoring to, local educational agencies regarding changes to the requirements related to the identification and provision of behavior intervention services made pursuant to this act.

(15) This bill would require the State Board of Education and the Health and Human Services Agency to repeal regulations related to mental health services provided by county mental health agencies that are no longer supported by statute, including specified regulations.

(16) Funds appropriated by this bill would be applied toward the minimum funding requirements for school districts and community college districts imposed by Section 8 of Article XVI of the California Constitution.

~~(15)~~

(17) This bill would declare that it is to take effect immediately as a bill providing for appropriations related to the Budget Bill.

Vote: majority. Appropriation: yes. Fiscal committee: yes. State-mandated local program: yes.

The people of the State of California do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. Section 17193.5 of the Education Code is amended to read:

Notwithstanding any other law, a public credit provider, in connection with providing credit enhancement for bonds, notes, certificates of participation, or other evidences of indebtedness of a participating party, may require the participating party to agree to the following conditions:

(1) If a participating party adopts a resolution by a majority vote of its board to participate under this section, it shall provide notice to the Controller of that election. (2) If, for any reason a public credit provider is required to make principal or interest payments or both pursuant to a credit enhancement agreement, the public credit provider shall immediately notify the Controller of that fact and of the amount paid out by the public credit provider.

(3) Upon receipt of the notice required by paragraph (2), the Controller shall make an apportionment to the public credit provider in the amount of the payments made by the public credit provider for the purpose of reimbursing the public credit provider for its expenditures made pursuant to the credit enhancement agreement. The Controller shall make that apportionment only from moneys designated for apportionments to a participating party, provided that these moneys are within one or ~~both~~ more of the following:

~~(A) Moneys designated for apportionments to a school district pursuant to Section 42238 or to a county office of education pursuant to Section 2558 or to the community college district pursuant to Section 84750, or in the case of a charter school, pursuant to Sections 47633, 47634.1, and 47634.2.~~

~~(B) Moneys, if any, designated for apportionment to a school district, county office of education, or charter school pursuant to subparagraph (B) of paragraph (3) of subdivision (c) of Section 36 of Article XIII of the California Constitution.~~

(D) Any charter school categorical block grant apportionments, without regard to the specific funding source of the apportionment, to a charter school.

(b) The amount apportioned for a participating party pursuant to this section shall be deemed to be an allocation to the participating party ~~for purposes of subdivision (b) or Section 8 of Article XVI of the California Constitution~~, and shall be included in the computation of the allocation, limit, entitlement, or apportionment for the participating party. ~~For purposes of computing revenue limits or revenue levels pursuant to Section 42338 for any school district or pursuant to Section 2558 for any county office of education or pursuant to Section 84750 for any community college district, the revenue limit or revenue level for any fiscal year in which funds are apportioned for the district or for the county office of education pursuant to this section shall include any amounts apportioned by the Controller pursuant to paragraph (3) of subdivision (a). For purposes of computing the general-purpose entitlement of a charter school pursuant to Section 47633, that entitlement shall include any amounts apportioned by the Controller pursuant to paragraph (3) of subdivision (a). For purposes of computing the categorical block grant of a charter school pursuant to Section 47634.1 or 47634.2, that grant shall include any amounts apportioned by the Controller pursuant to paragraph (3) of subdivision (a).~~ The participating party and its creditors do not have a claim to funds apportioned or anticipated to be apportioned to the trustee by the Controller pursuant to paragraph (3) of subdivision (a).

SEC. 2. Section 17199.4 of the Education Code is amended to read:

17199.4. (a) Notwithstanding any other law, any participating party, in connection with securing financing or refinancing of projects, or working capital pursuant to this chapter, may elect to guarantee or provide for payment of the bonds and related obligations in accordance with the following conditions:

(1) If a participating party adopts a resolution by a majority vote of its board to participate under this section, it shall provide notice to the Controller of that election. The notice shall include a schedule for the repayment of principal and interest on the bonds, and any other costs necessary or incidental to financing pursuant to this chapter, and identify a trustee appointed by the participating party or the authority for purposes of this section. If payment of all or a portion of the principal and interest on the bond is secured by a letter of credit or other instrument of direct payment, the notice may provide for reimbursements to the provider of the instrument in lieu of payment of that portion of the principal and interest of the bonds. The notice shall be provided not later than the date of issuance of the bonds or 60 days before the next payment, whichever date is later. The participating party shall update the notice at least annually if there is a change in the required payment for any reason, including, but not limited to, providing for new or increased costs necessary or incidental to the financing.

(2) If, for any reason, the participating party will not make a payment at the time the payment is required, the participating party shall notify the trustee of that fact and of the amount of the deficiency. If the trustee receives this notice from the participating party, or does not receive any payment by the date that payment becomes due, the trustee shall immediately communicate that information to the Controller.

(3) Upon receipt of the notice required by paragraph (2), the Controller shall make an apportionment to the trustee on the date shown in the schedule in the amount of the deficiency for the purpose of making the required payment. The Controller shall make that apportionment only from moneys designated for apportionments to a participating party, provided that those moneys are within one or ~~both~~ more of the following:

~~(A) Moneys designated for apportionment to a school district pursuant to Section 42238 or to the county office of education pursuant to Section 2558, or in the case of a charter school, pursuant to Sections 47633, 47634.1, and 47634.2.~~

~~(B) Moneys, if any, designated for apportionment to a school district, county office of education, or charter school pursuant to subparagraph (B) of paragraph (3) of subdivision (e) of Section 36 of Article XIII of the California Constitution.~~

(A) Any revenue limit apportionments, without regard to the specific funding source of the apportionment, to a school district or county office of education.

(B) Any charter school block grant apportionments, without regard to the specific funding source of the apportionment, to a charter school.

(C) Any charter school categorical block grant apportionments, without regard to the specific funding source of the apportionment, to a charter school.

(4) As an alternative to the procedures set forth in paragraphs (2) and (3), the participating party may provide a transfer schedule in its notice to the Controller of its election to participate under this section. The transfer schedule shall set forth amounts to be transferred to the trustee and the date for the transfers. The Controller, subject to the limitation in paragraph (3), shall make apportionments to the trustee of those amounts on the specified date for the purpose of making those transfers. The authority may require a participating party to proceed under this subdivision.

(b) ~~(1)~~ The amount apportioned for a participating party pursuant to this section shall be deemed to be an allocation to the participating party ~~for purposes of subdivision (b) of Section 8 of Article XVI of the California Constitution~~, and shall be included in the computation of the allocation, limit, entitlement, or apportionment identified for the participating party.

~~(2) For purposes of computing revenue limits pursuant to Section 42238 for any school district or pursuant to Section 2558 for any county office of education, the revenue limit for any fiscal year in which funds are apportioned for the participating party pursuant to this section shall include any amounts apportioned by the Controller pursuant to paragraphs (3) and (4) of subdivision (a).~~

~~(3) For purposes of computing the general-purpose entitlement of a charter school pursuant to Section 47633, that entitlement shall include any amounts apportioned by the Controller pursuant to paragraphs (3) and (4) of subdivision (a). For purposes of computing the categorical block grant of a charter school pursuant to Section 47634.1 or 47634.2, that grant shall include any amounts apportioned by the Controller pursuant to paragraphs (3) and (4) of subdivision (a).~~ The participating party and its creditors do not have a claim to funds apportioned or anticipated to be apportioned to the trustee by the Controller pursuant to paragraph (3) and (4) of subdivision (a), or to the funds apportioned to by the Controller to the trustee under any other provision of this section.

(c) (1) Participating parties that elect to participate under this section shall apply to the authority. The authority shall consider each of the following priorities in making funds available:

(A) First priority shall be given to school districts, charter schools, or county offices of education that apply for funding for instructional classroom space.

(B) Second priority shall be given to school districts, charter schools, or county offices of education that apply for funding of modernization of instructional classroom space.

(C) Third priority shall be given to all other eligible costs, as defined in Section 17173.

(2) The authority shall prioritize applications at appropriate intervals.

(3) A school district electing to participate under this section that has applied for revenue bond moneys for purposes of joint venture school facilities construction projects, pursuant to Article 5 (commencing with Section 17060) of Chapter 12, shall not be subject to the priorities set forth in paragraph (1).

(d) This section shall not be construed to make the State of California liable for any payments within the meaning of Section 1 of Article XVI of the California Constitution or otherwise, except as expressly provided in this section.

(e) A school district that has a qualified or negative certification pursuant to Section 42131, or a county office of education that has a qualified or negative certification pursuant to Section 1240, may not participate under this section.

SEC. 3. Section 52055.780 of the Education Code is amended to read:

52055.780. (a) School districts and chartering authorities shall receive funding at the following rate, on behalf of funded schools:

(1) For kindergarten and grades 1 to 3, inclusive, five hundred dollars ($500) per enrolled pupil in funded schools.

(2) For grades 4 to 8, inclusive, nine hundred dollars ($900) per enrolled pupil in funded schools.

(3) For grades 9 to 12, inclusive, one thousand dollars ($1,000) per enrolled pupil in funded schools.

(b) For purposes of subdivision (a), enrollment of a pupil in a funded school in the prior fiscal year shall be based on data from the CBEDS.

(c) For the 2012–13 fiscal year, three hundred sixty-one million dollars ($361,000,000) is hereby appropriated from the General Fund to be allocated as follows:

(1) Forty-eight million dollars ($48,000,000) for transfer by the Controller to Section B of the State School Fund for allocation by the Chancellor of the California Community Colleges to community colleges as required under subdivision (d).

(2) Three hundred thirteen million dollars ($313,000,000) for transfer by the Controller to Section A of the State School Fund for allocation by the Superintendent pursuant to this article.

(3) Payments made pursuant to this subdivision shall be made only on or after October 8 of the 2012–13 fiscal year.

(d) The sum transferred pursuant to paragraph (1) of subdivision (c) shall be allocated by the Chancellor of the California Community Colleges to the community colleges for the purpose of improving and expanding career technical education in public secondary education and lower division public higher education pursuant to Section 88532, including the hiring of additional faculty to expand the number of career technical education programs and course offerings.

(e) For the 2013–14 fiscal year, three hundred sixty-one million dollars ($361,000,000) is hereby appropriated from the General Fund to be allocated as follows:

(2) Three hundred thirteen million dollars ($313,000,000) for transfer by the Controller to Section A of the State School Fund for allocation by the Superintendent pursuant to this article.

(f) From funds appropriated under subdivision (c), the Superintendent shall provide not more than two million dollars ($2,000,000) to county superintendents of schools to carry out the requirements of this article, allocated in a manner similar to that created to carry out the new duties of those superintendents under the settlement agreement in the case of Williams v. California (Super. Ct. San Francisco, No. CGC–00–312236).

(g) For purposes of making the computations required by Section 8 of Article XVI of the California Constitution, including computation of the state's minimum funding obligation to school districts and community college districts in subsequent fiscal years, the appropriations made pursuant to subdivisions (c) and (e) shall be deemed to be "General Fund revenues appropriated for school districts," as defined in subdivision (c) of Section 41202 and "General Fund revenues appropriated for community college districts," as defined in subdivision (d) of Section 41202, for the 2012–13 and 2013–14 fiscal ~~year~~ years and included within the "total allocations to school districts and community college districts from General Fund proceeds of taxes appropriated pursuant to Article XIII B," as defined in subdivision (e) of Section 41202, for ~~that~~ those fiscal ~~year~~ years.

SEC. 4. Section 56520 of the Education Code is amended to read:

56520. (a) The Legislature finds and declares all of the following:

(1) That the state has continually sought to provide an appropriate and meaningful educational program in a safe and healthy environment for all children regardless of possible physical, mental, or emotionally disabling conditions. That many schoolage individuals with exceptional needs have significant behavioral challenges that have an adverse impact on their learning or the learning of other pupils, or both. That such individuals with exceptional needs often end up in highly segregated educational placements or are expelled or kept out of school because they exhibit serious behavior problems that, in addition to impeding learning, put the safety of the individual with exceptional needs, or the safety of others, at risk. That the adverse impact of the serious behavior on the quality of life of the impacted individual with exceptional needs is extremely high.

(2) That the federal Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (20 U.S.C. Sec. 1400 et seq.) emphasizes a proactive approach to behaviors that interfere with learning by requiring, pursuant to Section 1414(d)(3)(B)(i) of Title 20 of the United States Code, for individuals with exceptional needs whose behavior impedes their learning or the learning of other pupils, the IEP team to consider the use of positive behavioral interventions and supports, and other strategies, to address that behavior.

(3) That procedures for the elimination of maladaptive behaviors shall not include those deemed unacceptable under Section 49001 or those that cause pain or trauma.

(4) That significant health and safety risks to pupils and school personnel may result from individuals with exceptional needs exhibiting assaultive and injurious, including self-injurious, behaviors. These health and safety risks are minimized by the use of positive behavioral intervention services that are developed in a manner consistent with the federal Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (20 U.S.C. Sec. 1400 et seq.) and its implementing regulations and with recognized professional practices and principles based on peer-reviewed research as identified by the Office of Special Education Programs of the United States Department of Education.

(5) That this chapter shall not exceed the requirements of federal law, create new or separate state requirements, or result in a level of state service beyond that needed to comply with federal law and regulations.

(b) It is the intent of the Legislature:

(1) That children who need functional behavioral assessments and positive behavioral intervention plans, or other positive behavior interventions, supports, and other strategies, to succeed in school in the least restrictive environment, receive them in a timely manner.

(2) That functional behavioral assessments and positive behavioral interventions, supports, and other strategies be provided in accordance with the federal Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (20 U.S.C. 1400 et seq.) and its implementing regulations.

(3) That functional behavioral assessments and positive behavioral interventions and supports be developed and implemented in a manner consistent with the practices and guidance provided by the United States Department of Education and technical assistance centers sponsored by the Office of Special Education Programs of the United States Department of Education.

(4) That behavioral emergency procedures not be used as a substitute for functional behavioral assessments and positive behavioral interventions, supports, and other strategies, that address the underlying cause of the behavior and teach the individual positive replacement behavior.

(5) That functional behavioral assessments reflect valid and reliable practices.

(6) That, whenever practicable, positive behavioral intervention plans be based on peer-reviewed research.

(7) That procedures in this chapter be used to minimize the risks, injuries, costs, and liabilities associated with the implementation of corporal techniques and other inappropriate, stigmatizing, and counterproductive responses to maladaptive behavior.

(8) That when behavioral interventions are used, they be used in consideration of the pupil's physical freedom and social interaction, be administered in a manner that respects human dignity and personal privacy, and that ensure a pupil's right to placement in the least restrictive educational environment.

(9) That behavioral intervention plans be developed and used, to the extent possible, in a consistent manner across all settings, including when the pupil is also the responsibility of another agency for residential care or related services.

(10) That training programs be developed and implemented in institutions of higher education that train teachers and that in-service training programs be made available as necessary in school districts and county offices of education to ensure that adequately trained staff are available to work effectively with the behavioral intervention needs of individuals with exceptional needs.

SEC. 5. Section 56521.1 is added to the Education Code, to read:

56521.1. (a) Emergency interventions may only be used to control unpredictable, spontaneous behavior that poses a clear and present danger of serious physical harm to the individual with exceptional needs, or others, and that cannot be immediately prevented by a response less restrictive than the temporary application of a technique used to contain the behavior.

(b) Emergency interventions shall not be used as a substitute for the systematic behavioral intervention plan that is designed to change, replace, modify, or eliminate a targeted behavior.

(c) No emergency intervention shall be employed for longer than is necessary to contain the behavior. A situation that requires prolonged use of an emergency intervention shall require staff to seek assistance of the schoolsite administrator or law enforcement agency, as applicable to the situation.

(d) Emergency interventions shall not include:

(1) Locked seclusion, unless it is in a facility otherwise licensed or permitted by state law to use a locked room.

(2) Employment of a device, material, or objects that simultaneously immobilize all four extremities, except that techniques such as prone containment may be used as an emergency intervention by staff trained in such procedures.

(3) An amount of force that exceeds that which is reasonable and necessary under the circumstances.

(e) To prevent emergency interventions from being used in lieu of planned, systematic behavioral interventions, the parent, guardian, and residential care provider, if appropriate, shall be notified within one schoolday if an emergency intervention is used or serious property damage occurs. A behavioral emergency report shall immediately be completed and maintained in the file of the individual with exceptional needs. The behavioral emergency report shall include all of the following:

(1) The name and age of the individual with exceptional needs.

(2) The setting and location of the incident.

(3) The name of the staff or other persons involved.

(4) A description of the incident and the emergency intervention used, and whether the individual with exceptional needs is currently engaged in any systematic behavioral intervention plan.

(5) Details of any injuries sustained by the individual with exceptional needs, or others, including staff, as a result of the incident.

(f) All behavioral emergency reports shall immediately be forwarded to, and reviewed by, a designated responsible administrator.

(g) If a behavioral emergency report is written regarding an individual with exceptional needs who does not have a behavioral intervention plan, the designated responsible administrator shall, within two days, schedule an individualized education program (IEP) team meeting to review the behavioral emergency report, to determine the necessity for a functional behavioral assessment, and to determine the necessity for an interim plan. The IEP team shall document the reasons for not conducting the functional behavioral assessment, not developing an interim plan, or both.

(h) If a behavioral emergency report is written regarding an individual with exceptional needs who has a positive behavioral intervention plan, an incident involving a previously unseen serious behavior problem, or where a previously designed intervention is ineffective, shall be referred to the IEP team to review and determine if the incident constitutes a need to modify the positive behavioral intervention plan.

SEC. 6. Section 56521.2 is added to the Education Code, to read:

56521.2. (a) A local educational agency or nonpublic, nonsectarian school or agency serving individuals with exceptional needs pursuant to Sections 56365 and 56366 shall not authorize, order, consent to, or pay for the following interventions, or other interventions similar to or like the following:

(1) An intervention that is designed to, or likely to, cause physical pain, including, but not limited to, electric shock.

(2) Releasing noxious, toxic, or otherwise unpleasant sprays, mists, or substances in proximity to the face of the individual.

(3) An intervention that denies adequate sleep, food, water, shelter, bedding, physical comfort, or access to bathroom facilities.

(4) An intervention that is designed to subject, used to subject, or likely to subject, the individual to verbal abuse, ridicule, or humiliation, or that can be expected to cause excessive emotional trauma.

(5) Restrictive interventions that employ a device, material, or objects that simultaneously immobilize all four extremities, including the procedure known as prone containment, except that prone containment or similar techniques may be used by trained personnel as a limited emergency intervention.

(6) Locked seclusion, unless it is in a facility otherwise licensed or permitted by state law to use a locked room.

(7) An intervention that precludes adequate supervision of the individual.

(8) An intervention that deprives the individual of one or more of his or her senses.

(b) Whenever an individualized education program (IEP) is developed, reviewed, and revised, the IEP team shall, in the case of an individual whose behavior impedes his or her learning or that of others, consider the use of positive behavioral interventions and supports, and other strategies, to address the behavior in accordance with Section 1414(d)(3)(B) of Title 20 of the United States Code and Sections 300.324(a)(2) and 300.324(b)(2) of Title 34 of the Code of Federal Regulations.

SEC. 7. Section 56522 is added to the Education Code, to read:

56522. (a) The Superintendent shall issue nonmandatory program guidelines, as described in Section 33308.5, regarding the systematic use of behavioral interventions and emergency interventions, and shall provide related training.

(b) At a minimum, the nonmandatory program guidelines and training shall address all of the following:

(1) The recommended qualifications and training of personnel who participate in the implementation of the behavioral intervention plans, including training in positive behavioral interventions.

(2) Special training recommended for the use of emergency behavioral interventions and the types of interventions for which that training would be applicable.

(3) Recommended behavioral emergency procedures.

SEC. 8. Section 56523 of the Education Code is amended to read:

56523. (a) The board shall repeal those regulations governing the use of behavioral interventions with individuals with exceptional needs receiving special education and related services that are no longer supported by statute, including Section 3052, and ~~applicable provisions~~ subdivisions (d), (e), (f), (g), and (ab) of Section 3001, of Title 5 of the California Code of Regulations*, as those provisions exist on August 31, 2012*.

(b) This chapter is declaratory of federal law and deemed necessary to implement the federal Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (20 U.S.C. Sec. 1400 et seq.) and associated federal regulations. This chapter is intended to provide the clarity, definition, and specificity necessary for local educational agencies to comply with the federal Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (20 U.S.C. Sec. 1400 et seq.) and shall be implemented by local educational agencies without the development by the Superintendent and adoption by the state board of any additional regulations.

(c) As a condition of receiving funding from the federal Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (20 U.S.C. Sec. 1400 et seq.), a local educational agency shall agree to adhere to this chapter and implementing federal regulations set forth in this chapter.

(e) Commencing with the 2010–11 fiscal year, if any activities authorized pursuant to this section and implementing regulations are found be a state reimbursable mandate pursuant to Section 6 of Article XIII B of the California Constitution, state funding provided for purposes of special education pursuant to Item 6110-161-0001 of Section 2.00 of the annual Budget Act shall first be used to directly offset any mandated costs.

A regionally accredited institution that was deemed qualified by the commission to participate in the Cal Grant Program for the 2000–01 academic year shall retain its eligibility as long as it maintains its existing accreditation status.

(C) A California public postsecondary educational institution.

(2) (A) The institution shall provide information on where to access California license examination passage rates for the most recent available year from graduates of its undergraduate programs leading to employment for which passage of a California licensing examination is required, if that data is electronically available through the Internet Web site of a California licensing or regulatory agency. For purposes of this paragraph, "provide" may exclusively include placement of an Internet Web site address labeled as an access point for the data on the passage rates of recent program graduates on the Internet Web site where enrollment information is also located, on an Internet Web site that provides centralized admissions information for postsecondary educational systems with multiple campuses, or on applications for enrollment or other program information distributed to prospective students.

(B) The institution shall be responsible for certifying to the commission compliance with the requirements of subparagraph (A).

(3) (A) The commission shall certify by October 1 of each year the institution's latest three-year cohort default rate and graduation rate as most recently reported by the United States Department of Education.

(C) For purposes of the 2012–13 academic year, and every academic year thereafter, an otherwise qualifying institution with a three-year cohort default rate that is equal to or greater than 15.5 percent, as certified by the commission on October 1, 2011, and every year thereafter, shall be ineligible for initial and renewal Cal Grant awards at the institution, except as provided in subparagraph (F).

(ii) If the United States Department of Education corrects or revises an institution's three-year cohort default rate or graduation rate that originally failed to satisfy the requirements established in subparagraph (B), (C), or (G), as applicable, and the correction or revision results in the institution's three-year cohort default rate or graduation rate satisfying those requirements, that institution shall immediately regain its eligibility for the academic year to which the corrected or revised three-year cohort default rate or graduation rate would have been applied.

(E) An otherwise qualifying institution for which no three-year cohort default rate or graduation rate has been reported by the United States Department of Education shall be provisionally eligible to participate in the Cal Grant Program until a three-year cohort default rate or graduation rate has been reported for the institution by the United States Department of Education.

(F) (i) An institution that is ineligible for initial and renewal Cal Grant awards at the institution under subparagraph (B), (C), or (G) shall be eligible for renewal Cal Grant awards for recipients who were enrolled in the ineligible institution during the academic year before the academic year for which the institution is ineligible and who choose to renew their Cal Grant awards to attend the ineligible institution. Cal Grant awards subject to this subparagraph shall be reduced as follows:

(ii) This subparagraph shall become inoperative on July 1, 2013.

(G) For purposes of the 2012–13 academic year, and every academic year thereafter, an otherwise qualifying institution with a graduation rate of 30 percent or less for students taking 150 percent or less of the expected time to complete degree requirements, as reported by the United States Department of Education and as certified by the commission pursuant to subparagraph (A), shall be ineligible for initial and renewal Cal Grant awards at the institution, except as provided for in subparagraphs (F) and (I).

(H) Notwithstanding any other law, the requirements of this paragraph shall not apply to institutions with 40 percent or less of undergraduate students borrowing federal student loans, using information reported to the United States Department of Education for the academic year two years before the year in which the commission is certifying the three-year cohort default rate or graduation rate pursuant to subparagraph (A).

(I) Notwithstanding subparagraph (G), an otherwise qualifying institution with a three-year cohort default rate that is less than 10 percent and a graduation rate above 20 percent for students taking 150 percent or less of the expected time to complete degree requirements, as certified by the commission pursuant to subparagraph (A), shall remain eligible for initial and renewal Cal Grant awards at the institution through the 2016–17 academic year.

(J) The commission shall do all of the following:

(i) Notify initial Cal Grant recipients seeking to attend, or attending, an institution that is ineligible for initial and renewal Cal Grant awards under subparagraph (C) or (G) that the institution is ineligible for initial Cal Grant awards for the academic year for which the student received an initial Cal Grant award.

(ii) Notify renewal Cal Grant recipients attending an institution that is ineligible for initial and renewal Cal Grant awards at the institution under subparagraph (C) or (G) that the student's Cal Grant award will be reduced by 20 percent, or eliminated, as appropriate, if the student attends the ineligible institution in an academic year in which the institution is ineligible.

(iii) Provide initial and renewal Cal Grant recipients seeking to attend, or attending, an institution that is ineligible for initial and renewal Cal Grant awards at the institution under subparagraph (C) or (G) with a complete list of all California postsecondary educational institutions at which the student would be eligible to receive an unreduced Cal Grant award.

(K) By January 1, 2013, the Legislative Analyst shall submit to the Legislature a report on the implementation of this paragraph. The report shall be prepared in consultation with the commission, and shall include policy recommendations for appropriate measures of default risk and other direct or indirect measures of quality or effectiveness in educational institutions participating in the Cal Grant Program, and appropriate scores for those measures. It is the intent of the Legislature that appropriate policy and fiscal committees review the requirements of this paragraph and consider changes thereto.

(m) "Satisfactory academic progress" means those criteria required by applicable federal standards published in Title 34 of the Code of Federal Regulations. The commission may adopt regulations defining "satisfactory academic progress" in a manner that is consistent with those federal standards.

(3) Terms that extend to the final date upon which the board may withdraw funds for a person who earned an award under the Governor's Scholarship Programs.

(e) (1) If funds retained in the Golden State Scholarshare Trust after January 1, 2013, are insufficient to cover the remaining withdrawal requests, it is the intent of the Legislature to appropriate the necessary funds to the Golden State Scholarshare Trust for the purpose of funding individual beneficiary accounts.

(2) The board shall notify the Department of Finance and the Legislature no later than 10 working days after determining that a shortfall in available funding described in paragraph (1) will occur.

(f) (1) Of the funds transferred to the General Fund pursuant to paragraph (1) of subdivision (d), five million dollars ($5,000,000) is hereby appropriated to the Chancellor of the California State University, without regard to fiscal years, to fund the establishment and administration of the California Open Education Resources Council and the California Digital Open Source Library, and the development or acquisition of open education resources, or any combination thereof, pursuant to legislation enacted in the 2011–12 Regular Session of the Legislature, provided that the chancellor may provide reimbursement to the California Community Colleges and the University of California for costs those segments, or their representatives, incur in association with the activities described in this paragraph.

Moneys appropriated pursuant to paragraph (1) that are not matched by private funds shall revert to the Golden State Scholarshare Trust for purposes of the Governor's Scholarship Programs.

(g) The board may adopt rules and regulations for the implementation of this article.

[Approved by Governor October 19, 2010. Filed with Secretary of State October 19, 2010.]

I am signing AB 1610 with the following objections.

I am deleting specific appropriations for the California community colleges contained in subdivisions (d) and (e) of Section 31 of this bill.

I am deleting the appropriation in subdivision (d) of Section 31 of this bill, which provides $25,000,000 Proposition 98 General Fund for the community college Economic Development and Workforce Development Program. While I support economic development activities, this reduction is necessary to limit program expansion, to bring ongoing expenditures in line with existing resources, and to help maintain a prudent reserve. With this reduction, the Budget Act of 2010 still provides the Economic Development categorical program with $22.9 million for workforce training and development efforts.

I am deleting the appropriation in subdivision (e) of Section 31 of this bill, which provides $35,000,000 Proposition 98 General Fund for various community college categorical programs. This appropriation is intended to backfill various categorical programs that received one-time State Fiscal Stabilization Funds in 2009-10. This federal funding was intended to soften the transition to reduced funding levels that are necessary to bring ongoing expenditures in line with existing resources. Restoring this funding would be counterproductive to the tremendous effort that has been invested to align ongoing expenditures with expected revenues.

Sincerely,

ARNOLD SCHWARZENEGGER, Governor

LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL'S DIGEST

AB 1610, Committee on Budget. Education finance.

(1) Existing law establishes the English Language Acquisition Program, which is designed for pupils enrolled in grades 4 to 8, inclusive, and requires local educational agencies, as defined, participating in the program to conduct assessments, to provide an instructional program, to provide supplemental instructional support, and to coordinate available services and funding. Existing law requires the Superintendent of Public Instruction to allocate annually to each participating local educational agency $100 for each pupil participating in the program and a one-time $100 allocation for pupils in kindergarten or grades 1 to 12, inclusive, who are reclassified to English-fluent status.

This bill would repeal the program and would require the Superintendent to increase the amount of economic impact aid received by a school district by the amount the district received from the English Language Acquisition Program for the 2009–10 fiscal year. The bill would continue in existence the English Language Development Professional Institutes and would authorize a local educational agency to use economic impact aid funds for those purposes.

(2) Existing law requires a revenue limit to be calculated for each county superintendent of schools, adjusted for various factors, and reduced, as specified. Existing law reduces the revenue limit for each county superintendent of schools for the 2009–10 fiscal year by a deficit factor of 18.250%.

This bill would maintain the deficit factor for each county superintendent of schools for the 2010–11 fiscal year at 18.621%.

(3) The Child Care and Development Services Act, administered by the State Department of Education, provides that children up to 13 years of age are eligible, with certain requirements, for child care and development services. Existing law provides for child care alternative payment programs, the purpose of which is to provide for parental choice in child care. Existing law requires reimbursement for alternative payment programs to include the cost of child care, plus administrative and support services. Under existing law, the total cost for administrative and support services is not permitted to exceed 19% of the total contract amount.

This bill would instead provide that the administrative and support services costs would not be permitted to exceed 17.5% of the total contract amount.

(4) Existing law requires the Superintendent of Public Instruction to administer child care and development programs that offer a full range of services for eligible children from infancy to 13 years of age. Existing law, until January 1, 2011, authorizes the City and County of San Francisco, as a pilot project, to develop and implement an individualized county child care subsidy plan, and provides for the repeal of those provisions on January 1, 2013.

This bill would authorize the City and County of San Francisco to implement an individualized county child care subsidy plan until July 1, 2013, and would require the city and county to phase out the plan and implement the state's requirements for child care subsidies as of July 1, 2015. The bill would require the city and county, on or before June 30, 2013, to submit a final report to the Legislature and other specified entities that summarizes the impact of the plan. The bill would make those provisions inoperative on July 1, 2015, and would repeal those provisions on January 1, 2016.

(5) Existing law requires the cost of state-funded child care services to be governed by regional market rates and requires a regional market rate ceiling to be established at the 85th percentile of the 2005 regional market rate survey for that region.

This bill would set the reimbursement rate for license-exempt providers at 80% of the regional market rate ceiling.

(6) Existing law encourages all child development contractors to develop and maintain a reserve within the child development fund, derived from earned but unexpended funds. Existing law allows child development contractors to retain all earned funds, as defined. Existing law requires that earned but unexpended funds remain in the contractor's reserve account within the child development fund and be expended only by direct service child development programs that are funded under contract with the State Department of Education.

This bill, commencing July 1, 2011, would allow a child development contractor operating a direct service child development program to retain a reserve fund balance equal to 5% of the sum of the maximum reimbursable amounts of all contracts to which the contractor is a party, or $2,000, whichever is greater.

(7) Existing law requires the Controller to draw warrants on the State Treasury in each month of each year in specified amounts for purposes of funding school districts, county superintendents of schools, and community college districts. Existing law defers the drawing of those warrants, as specified.

This bill would defer additional specified amounts of the warrants for school districts and county superintendents of schools for April and May to July.

The bill would allow up to $100,000 of the amount of the warrants for the principal apportionments for June that are deferred until July to be drawn instead in June for a charter school or school district that will be unable to meet its financial obligation for June if specified criteria are met. The bill would authorize additional payments for school districts and county superintendents of schools of up to $300,000,000 if sufficient cash is available.

The bill also would authorize the Controller to issue warrants for a community college district that include the full amount of deferred apportionments if the president of the district certifies to the Chancellor of the California Community Colleges and the Director of Finance that the deferral of warrants will result in the district being unable to meet its expenditure obligations, as specified.

(8) Existing law limits the amount of specified revenue limit apportionments that counts towards the minimum funding obligation for the following fiscal year to $1,101,655,000.

This bill would increase that amount by $500,000,000.

(9) Existing law requires the governing board of a school district maintaining any of grades 2 to 9, inclusive, to offer programs of direct, systematic, and intensive supplemental instruction to pupils enrolled in grades 2 to 9, inclusive, who have been recommended for retention or who have been retained at their grade for the next year.

This bill would make this requirement inoperative from the date this bill is enacted until July 1, 2013, during which time school districts would be relieved from performing any activities under this provision that are deemed to be reimbursable state mandates.

(10) Existing law requires, for the 1990–91 fiscal year and each fiscal year thereafter, that moneys to be applied by the state for the support of school districts, community college districts, and direct elementary and secondary level instructional services provided by the state be distributed in accordance with certain calculations governing the proration of those moneys among the 3 segments of public education. Existing law makes that provision inapplicable to the fiscal years between 1992–93 and 2009–10, inclusive.

This bill would make that provision inapplicable to the 2010–11 fiscal year.

(11) Section 8 of Article XVI of the California Constitution imposes on the state annual minimum funding requirements for school districts and community college districts.

The bill would appropriate $210,100,000 from the General Fund to the Controller for allocation to school districts and community college districts for the purpose of offsetting the 2009–10 outstanding balance of the state minimum funding obligation. The bill would require this appropriation to be distributed to school districts in a manner that reflects the proportion of regular average daily attendance in school districts and to community college districts based on enrolled full-time equivalent students.

The bill would apply the appropriation to the outstanding balance of the minimum funding obligation to school districts and community college districts for the 2009–10 fiscal year, and deem the appropriations to be made and allocated in that fiscal year in which the deficiencies resulting in the outstanding balance were incurred.

The bill would require funding received by school districts and community college districts pursuant to this appropriation to first be deemed to be paid in satisfaction of any outstanding claims for reimbursement of state-mandated local costs for any fiscal year and would authorize funds received in excess of amounts offsetting mandate claims to be used for any other one-time purpose, as determined by the governing board of the school district or community college district.

(12) Existing law requires the county superintendent of schools to determine a revenue limit for each school district in the county and requires the amount of the revenue limit to be adjusted for various factors. Existing law reduces the revenue limit for each school district for the 2009–10 fiscal year by a deficit factor of 18.355%.

This bill would maintain the deficit factor for each school district for the 2010–11 fiscal year at 17.963%.

(13) Existing law specifies the courses a pupil is required to complete in order to receive a diploma of graduation from high school.

This bill would require that costs related to the salaries and benefits of teachers incurred by a school district or county office of education to provide those courses be offset by specified state funding and would require the proportion of the school district's current expense of education that is required to be expended for payment of the salaries of classroom teachers to first be allocated to fund the teacher salary costs incurred to provide the courses required by the state.

(14) Existing law authorizes a local educational agency, including a direct-funded charter school, to apply for any state categorical program funding included in the annual Budget Act on behalf of a school that begins operation in the 2008–09 to the 2012–13 fiscal years, inclusive.

This bill would require the Superintendent to allocate a supplemental categorical block grant for the 2010–11 fiscal year to a charter school that begins operation in the 2008–09, 2009–10, or 2010–11 fiscal year and would authorize the charter school to use the block grant funds to be used for any educational purpose.

(15) Existing law makes a teacher who attains certification from the National Board for Professional Teaching Standards and meets other specified criteria eligible for an award. Existing law requires a school district that receives an application for an award to certify the applicant's employment and that the applicant meets the criteria and to submit the application to the State Department of Education for its review and approval.

This bill would eliminate the school district's obligations under this program.

(16) Existing law establishes the Charter School Facility Grant Program to provide assistance with facilities rent and lease costs for pupils in charter schools and requires the Superintendent of Public Instruction to allocate annually the facilities grants to eligible charter schools no later than October 1 of each fiscal year. Existing law requires funding appropriated for this program in the 2009–10 fiscal year be used first to reimburse eligible charter schools for rent or lease costs for the 2008–09 fiscal year.

This bill would require the grants to be allocated, instead, for the current school year rent and lease costs, but would require the department to first use the funding appropriated for the program to reimburse eligible charter schools for unreimbursed rent or lease costs for the prior school year.

(17) Existing law requires a school district to notify a pupil's parent or guardian, by first-class mail or other reasonable means, when the pupil is initially classified as a truant.

This bill would require the notification instead to be made using the most cost-effective method possible and would specify that this may include electronic mail or a telephone call.

(18) Existing law deems a pupil to be an habitual truant if the pupil is reported as a truant 3 or more times per school year unless an appropriate district officer or employee has made a conscientious effort to hold at least one conference with a parent or guardian of the pupil and the pupil himself, after the filing of specified required reports.

This bill would define "conscientious effort" for purposes of this provision.

(19) Existing law appropriates specified amounts for various fiscal years for allocation by the Superintendent of Public Instruction and the Chancellor of the California Community Colleges for purposes of improving and expanding career technical education in public secondary education and lower division public higher education.

This bill, in addition, would appropriate specified amounts for the 2009–10 and 2010–11 fiscal years for allocation by the Superintendent and the chancellor for those purposes.

(20) Existing law provides for the administration and operation of public schools in juvenile halls, juvenile homes, day centers, juvenile ranches, juvenile camps, regional youth educational facilities, or Orange County youth correctional centers, as specified. Existing law requires the Superintendent of Public Instruction to compute an inflation-adjusted revenue limit for juvenile court school programs operated by a county superintendent of schools.

This bill would make a county juvenile court school eligible to receive economic impact aid funding commencing with the 2010–11 fiscal year.

(21) Existing law requires the Superintendent of Public Instruction to develop, and the State Board of Education to adopt, regulations governing the use of behavioral interventions with individuals with exceptional needs receiving special education and related services.

This bill would specify that this provision and its implementing regulations are declaratory of federal law and are intended to provide the clarity, definition, and specificity necessary for local educational agencies to comply with the federal Individuals with Disabilities Education Act. The bill would provide that this provision and the implementing state regulations shall not exceed the requirements of federal law, create new or separate state requirements, or result in a level of state service beyond that needed to comply with federal law and regulations. The bill would require local educational agencies to agree to adhere to implementing federal and state regulations as a condition of choosing to receive funding from the federal Individuals with Disabilities Education Act. The bill would authorize the Superintendent to monitor the compliance of local educational agencies and take appropriate action, including fiscal repercussions, if a local educational agency fails to comply or fails to implement the decision of a due process hearing officer based on noncompliance, as specified.

(22) Existing law, known as the Donahoe Higher Education Act, provides for a public postsecondary education system in this state. The University of California, which is administered by the Regents of the University of California, and the California State University, which is administered by the Trustees of the California State University, are 2 of the segments of the public postsecondary education system in this state. The provisions of the Donahoe Higher Education Act apply to the University of California only to the extent that the Regents of the University of California act by resolution to make them applicable.

Existing law authorizes the Trustees of the California State University to require that fees, among other charges, be paid by students at that institution. Existing provisions of the California Constitution require the Regents of the University of California to have all powers necessary or convenient for the effective administration of the university.

This bill would prohibit the Trustees of the California State University from allocating, and would request the Regents of the University of California to not allocate, any fees that are proposed by a student body organization, as defined, and imposed pursuant to a vote of the students registered at a campus, branch, or location of the respective institution, for purposes of supporting intercollegiate athletics programs for any purpose or in any amount not approved by the vote of the students. The bill would require the trustees, and request the regents, at the end of an academic year, to refund to each feepaying student a pro rata share of any portion of the fee that is not allocated for the authorized purposes during that academic year.

(23) Existing law, for the 2009–10 to 2012–13 fiscal years, inclusive, authorizes a community college district to use funds apportioned to the district for specified categorical programs, including career technical education, for purposes of a prescribed list of programs.

This bill would exclude funds apportioned for career technical education from the funds a community college district is authorized to use for other purposes.

(24) Existing law requires the Board of Governors of the California Community Colleges to adopt regulations for the payment of apportionments to community college districts. Existing law, notwithstanding the board of governors' authority in this respect, makes various adjustments to the payment of these apportionments.

This bill, commencing January 1, 2011, would revise the manner in which these apportionments are made according to specified criteria. The bill would appropriate $832,000,000 from the General Fund to the Board of Governors of the California Community Colleges for apportionments to community college districts, to be expended in accordance with a specified schedule.

The bill would appropriate $25,000,000 from the General Fund to the Chancellor of the California Community Colleges for the economic development program and would defer $25,000,000 of that amount to July 2011. The bill would appropriate $35,000,000 from the General Fund to the Chancellor of the California Community Colleges for specified categorical programs and would defer that amount to July 2011.

(25) Existing law expresses the intent of the Legislature that no new General Fund augmentation be made available for contributions to the University of California Retirement Plan.

This bill would repeal this provision.

(26) Under the California Constitution, whenever the Legislature or a state agency mandates a new program or higher level of service on any local government, the state is required to provide a subvention of funds to reimburse the local government, with specified exceptions.

Existing law provides that no local agency or school district is required to implement or give effect to any statute or Executive order, or portion thereof, that imposes a mandate during any fiscal year and for the period immediately following that fiscal year for which the Budget Act has not been enacted for the subsequent fiscal year if specified conditions are met, including that the statute or Executive order, or portion thereof, has been specifically identified by the Legislature in the Budget Act for the fiscal year as being one for which reimbursement is not provided for that fiscal year. Existing law provides that only certain specified mandates are subject to that provision.

This bill would specify additional mandates relating to school districts and community college districts to those that are subject to the provision. The bill additionally would request the Department of Finance to file a request with the Commission on State Mandates, on or before December 31, 2010, for the purposes of seeking the adoption of a new test claim to supersede the collective bargaining mandate.

The bill would require the Controller to take specified actions regarding the school accountability report card mandate.

The bill would require the Legislative Analyst's Office to convene a working group, as specified, to consider the future of school district and community college district mandates and would require the working group to develop recommendations by March 15, 2011, including whether to preserve, modify, or eliminate particular mandates.

(27) Existing law appropriates $570,000,000 for class size reduction in kindergarten and grades 1 to 3, inclusive, to be expended consistent with the specified requirements.

This bill would reduce that appropriation to $230,044,000 and would identify funds that the State Department of Education would be required to use if the funds appropriated for this program are insufficient.

The bill would require the Superintendent of Public Instruction to certify to the Controller the amounts needed for the 2010–11 fiscal year to fund the class size reduction program and set forth a schedule for the transfer of that funding. The bill would require the Controller to transfer that funding from the General Fund to the State School Fund, thereby making an appropriation. The bill would require the Superintendent, before making each certification, to notify the Department of Finance, the Legislative Analyst, and the appropriate policy and fiscal committees of the Legislature regarding the amounts the Superintendent intends to certify and would require the notification to include the data used in determining the amounts to be certified.

(28) Existing law appropriates $903,845,000 from the Federal Trust Fund, pursuant to a specified schedule, to the State Department of Education, the Board of Governors of the California Community Colleges, the University of California, and the California State University for the 2010–11 fiscal year.

This bill would increase that appropriation to $906,845,000.

(29) This bill would revert to the General Fund specified amounts from specified office reference items in the Controller's office that would have been applied toward the minimum funding requirements for school districts and community college districts imposed by Section 8 of Article XVI of the California Constitution for the 2009–10 fiscal year and was unallocated, unexpended, or not liquidated as of June 30, 2010, and appropriate $339,956,000 from the General Fund to the Superintendent of Public Instruction for allocation for the 2010–11 fiscal year for special education to satisfy obligations incurred during the 2009–10 fiscal year. This appropriation would be applied toward the minimum funding requirements for school districts and community college districts imposed by Section 8 of Article XVI of the California Constitution for the 2010–11 fiscal year.

The bill would reduce 3 prior reversions to the General Fund from specified office reference items in the Controller's office that would have been applied toward the minimum funding requirements and were unallocated, unexpended, or not liquidated as of June 30, 2009.

(30) This bill would appropriate $905,700,000 from the General Fund to the State Department of Education for 10 specified programs according to a specified schedule, and would require the department to encumber these funds by July 31, 2011. The bill would provide that, for purposes of satisfying the minimum annual funding obligation for school districts required by the California Constitution, the appropriated funds are General Fund revenues appropriated for school districts and community college districts for the 2011–12 fiscal year.

(31) This bill would set the cost-of-living adjustment for specified items in the Budget Act of 2010 at 0% for the 2010–11 fiscal year notwithstanding the cost-of-living adjustment specified in existing statutes.

(32) This bill would require funds appropriated pursuant to specified items in the Budget Act of 2009 to be encumbered by July 31, 2011.

(33) The funds appropriated by this bill would be applied toward the minimum funding requirements for school districts and community college districts imposed by Section 8 of Article XVI of the California Constitution.

(34) This bill would declare that it is to take effect immediately as an urgency statute.

Appropriation: yes.

The people of the State of California do enact as follows:

SEC. 3. Section 8223 of the Education Code is amended to read:

8223. The reimbursement for alternative payment programs shall include the cost of child care paid to child care providers plus the administrative and support services costs of the alternative payment program. The administrative costs shall not exceed the costs allowable for administration under federal requirements.

SEC. 4. Section 8335.4 of the Education Code is amended to read:

8335.4. (a) Upon approval of the plan by the Child Development Division of the department, the City and County of San Francisco shall annually prepare and submit to the Legislature, the State Department of Social Services, and the department a report that summarizes the success of the pilot project and the city and county's ability to maximize the use of funds and to improve and stabilize child care in the city and county.

(b) The City and County of San Francisco shall submit an interim report to the Legislature, the State Department of Social Services, and the department on or before December 31, 2010, and shall submit a final report to those entities on or before June 30, 2013, summarizing the impact of the plan on the child care needs of working families in the city and county.

SEC. 5. Section 8335.5 of the Education Code is amended to read:

A child enrolling for the first time for subsidized child care in the city and county after July 1, 2013, shall not be enrolled in the pilot program established pursuant to this article and is subject to existing state laws and regulations regarding child care eligibility and priority.

SEC. 6. Section 8335.7 of the Education Code is amended to read:

8335.7. This article shall become inoperative on July 1, 2015, and as of January 1, 2016, is repealed, unless a later enacted statute, that is enacted before January 1, 2016, deletes or extends the dates on which it becomes inoperative and is repealed.

SEC. 7. Section 8357 of the Education Code is amended to read:

8357. (a) The cost of child care services provided under this article shall be governed by regional market rates. Recipients of child care services provided pursuant to this article shall be allowed to choose the child care services of licensed child care providers or child care providers who are, by law, not required to be licensed, and the cost of that child care shall be reimbursed by counties or agencies that contract with the State Department of Education if the cost is within the regional market rate. For purposes of this section, "regional market rate" means care costing no more than 1.5 market standard deviations above the mean cost of care for that region. The regional market rate ceilings shall be established at the 85th percentile of the 2005 regional market rate survey for that region.

(b) Reimbursement to license-exempt child care providers shall not exceed 80 percent of the family child care home rate established pursuant to subdivision (a).

(c) Reimbursement to child care providers shall not exceed the fee charged to private clients for the same service.

(d) Reimbursement shall not be made for child care services when care is provided by parents, legal guardians, or members of the assistance unit.

(e) A child care provider located on an Indian reservation or rancheria and exempted from state licensing requirements shall meet applicable tribal standards.

(f) For purposes of this section, "reimbursement" means a direct payment to the provider of child care services, including license-exempt providers. If care is provided in the home of the recipient, payment may be made to the parent as the employer, and the parent shall be informed of his or her concomitant legal and financial reporting requirements. To allow time for the development of the administrative systems necessary to issue direct payments to providers, for a period not to exceed six months from the effective date of this article, a county or an alternative payment agency contracting with the State Department of Education may reimburse the cost of child care services through a direct payment to a recipient of aid rather than to the child care provider.

(g) Counties and alternative payment programs shall not be bound by the rate limits described in subdivision (a) when there are, in the region, no more than two child care providers of the type needed by the recipient of child care services provided under this article.

(h) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, reimbursements to child care providers based upon a daily rate may only be authorized under either of the following circumstances:

(1) A family has an unscheduled but documented need of six hours or more per occurrence, such as the parent's need to work on a regularly scheduled day off, that exceeds the certified need for child care.

(2) A family has a documented need of six hours or more per day that exceeds no more than 14 days per month. In no event shall reimbursements to a provider based on the daily rate over one month's time exceed the provider's equivalent full-time monthly rate or applicable monthly ceiling.

(3) This subdivision shall not limit providers from being reimbursed for services using a weekly or monthly rate, pursuant to subdivision (c) of Section 8222.

SEC. 8. Section 8450 of the Education Code is amended to read:

8450. (a) All child development contractors are encouraged to develop and maintain a reserve within the child development fund, derived from earned but unexpended funds. Child development contractors may retain all earned funds. For the purpose of this section, "earned funds" are those for which the required number of eligible service units have been provided.

(b) (1) Earned funds shall not be expended for any activities proscribed by Section 8406.7. Earned but unexpended funds shall remain in the contractor's reserve account within the child development fund and shall be expended only by direct service child development programs that are funded under contract with the department.

(2) Commencing July 1, 2011, a contractor may retain a reserve fund balance, separate from the reserve fund retained pursuant to subdivision (c) or (d), equal to 5 percent of the sum of the maximum reimbursable amounts of all contracts to which the contractor is a party, or two thousand dollars

($2,000), whichever is greater. This paragraph applies to direct service child development programs that are funded under contract with the department.

(c) Notwithstanding subdivisions (a) and (b), a contractor may retain a reserve fund balance for a resource and referral program, separate from the balance retained pursuant to subdivision (b) or (d), not to exceed 3 percent of the contract amount. Funds from this reserve account may be expended only by resource and referral programs that are funded under contract with the department.

(d) Notwithstanding subdivisions (a) and (b), a contractor may retain a reserve fund balance for alternative payment model and certificate child care contracts, separate from the reserve fund retained pursuant to subdivisions (b) and (c). Funds from this reserve account may be expended only by alternative payment model and certificate child care programs that are funded under contract with the department. The reserve amount allowed by this section may not exceed either of the following, whichever is greater:

(1) Two percent of the sum of the parts of each contract to which that contractor is a party that is allowed for administration pursuant to Section 8276.7 and that is allowed for supportive services pursuant to the provisions of the contract.

(2) One thousand dollars ($1,000).

(e) Each contractor's audit shall identify any funds earned by the contractor for each contract through the provision of contracted services in excess of funds expended.

(f) Any interest earned on reserve funds shall be included in the fund balance of the reserve. This reserve fund shall be maintained in an interest-bearing account.

(g) Moneys in a contractor's reserve fund may be used only for expenses that are reasonable and necessary costs as defined in subdivision (n) of Section 8208.

(h) Any reserve fund balance in excess of the amount authorized pursuant to subdivisions (b), (c), and (d) shall be returned to the department pursuant to procedures established by the department.

(i) Upon termination of all child development contracts between a contractor and the department, all moneys in a contractor's reserve fund shall be returned to the department pursuant to procedures established by the department.

(j) Expenditures from, additions to, and balances in, the reserve fund shall be included in the agency's annual financial statements and audit.

SEC. 9. Section 14041.5 of the Education Code is amended to read:

14041.5. (a) Notwithstanding subdivision (a) of Section 14041, commencing with the 2002–03 fiscal year, warrants for the principal apportionments for the month of June instead shall be drawn in July of the same calendar year pursuant to the certification made pursuant to Section 41335.

(b) Except as provided in subdivisions (c) and (d), for purposes of making the computations required by Section 8 of Article XVI of the California Constitution, the warrants drawn pursuant to subdivision (a) shall be deemed to be "General Fund revenues appropriated to school districts," as defined in subdivision (c) of Section 41202 for the fiscal year in which the warrants are drawn and included within the "total allocations to school districts and community college districts from General Fund proceeds of taxes appropriated pursuant to Article XIII B" as defined in subdivision (e) of Section 41202, for the fiscal year in which the warrants are drawn.

(c) For the 2003–04 school year, the amount of apportionments for revenue limits computed pursuant to Section 42238 from any of the apportionments made pursuant to Section 14041 that are deemed "General Fund revenues appropriated for school districts," as defined in subdivision (c) of Section 41202 for the following fiscal year and included within the "total allocations to school districts and community college districts from General Fund proceeds of taxes appropriated pursuant to Article XIII B" as defined in subdivision (e) of Section 41202, for the 2004–05 fiscal year shall be seven hundred twenty-six million two hundred seventy thousand dollars ($726,270,000). Any amount in excess of seven hundred twenty-six million two hundred seventy thousand dollars ($726,270,000) that is apportioned in July of 2004 is deemed "General Fund revenues appropriated for school districts," as defined in subdivision (c) of Section 41202 for the 2003–04 fiscal year and included within the "total allocations to school districts and community college districts from General Fund proceeds of taxes appropriated pursuant to Article XIII B" as defined in subdivision (e) of Section 41202, for the 2003–04 fiscal year.

(d) For the 2004–05 school year to the 2007–08 school year, inclusive, the amount of apportionments for revenue limits computed pursuant to Section 42238 from any of the apportionments made pursuant to Section 14041 that are deemed "General Fund revenues appropriated for school districts," as defined in subdivision (c) of Section 41202 for the following fiscal year and included within the "total allocations to school districts and community college districts from General Fund proceeds of taxes appropriated pursuant to Article XIII B" as defined in subdivision (e) of Section 41202, for the following fiscal year shall be seven hundred fifteen million one hundred eighteen thousand dollars ($715,118,000). Any amount in excess of seven hundred fifteen million one hundred eighteen thousand dollars ($715,118,000) that is apportioned in July of any year is deemed "General Fund revenues appropriated for school districts," as defined in subdivision (c) of Section 41202 for the prior fiscal year and included within the "total allocations to school districts and community college districts from General Fund proceeds of taxes appropriated pursuant to Article XIII B" as defined in subdivision (e) of Section 41202, for the prior fiscal year.

14041.7. (a) Commencing with the 2010–11 fiscal year, up to one hundred million dollars ($100,000,000) of the amount of the warrants for the principal apportionments for the month of June, that are instead to be drawn in July pursuant to Section 14041.5, may be drawn in June, subject to the approval of the Director of Finance, for a charter school or school district as follows:

(1) In order for a charter school to receive a payment in June pursuant to this section, the chartering authority, in consultation with the county superintendent of schools, shall certify to the Superintendent and the Director of Finance on or before April 1 that the deferral of warrants pursuant to Sections 14041.5 and 14041.6 will result in the charter school being unable to meet its financial obligations for June and shall provide the Superintendent an estimate of the amount of additional funds necessary for the charter school to meet its financial obligations for the month of June.

(2) In order for a school district to receive a payment in June pursuant to this section, the county superintendent of schools shall certify to the Superintendent and to the Director of Finance on or before April 1 that the deferral of warrants pursuant to Sections 14041.5 and 14041.6 will result in the school district being unable to meet its financial obligations for June and shall provide the Superintendent an estimate of the amount of additional funds necessary for the school district to meet its financial obligations for the month of June.

(3) The criteria, as applicable, set forth in statute and regulations to qualify a school district for an emergency apportionment shall be used to make the certification specified in paragraph (2).

No later than May 1, the Controller, Treasurer, and Director of Finance shall determine whether sufficient cash is available to make payments in excess of one hundred million dollars ($100,000,000). In making the determination that cash is sufficient to make additional payments, in whole or in part, the Controller, Treasurer, and Director of Finance shall consider costs for state government, the scope of any identified cash shortage, timing, achievability, legislative direction, and the impact and hardship imposed on potentially affected programs, entities, and related public services. The Department of Finance shall notify the Joint Legislative Budget Committee within 10 days of this determination and identify the total amount of requests that will be paid.

(c) If the total amount of cash made available pursuant to subdivision (b) is less than the amount requested pursuant to paragraph (3) of subdivision (a), payments to charter schools and school districts shall be prioritized according to the date on which notification was provided to the Superintendent and the Department of Finance.

37252.2. (a) The governing board of each school district maintaining any or all of grades 2 to 9, inclusive, shall offer, and a charter school may offer, programs of direct, systematic, and intensive supplemental instruction to pupils enrolled in grades 2 to 9, inclusive, who have been recommended for retention or who have been retained pursuant to Section 48070.5. A school district or charter school may require a pupil who has been retained to participate in supplemental instructional programs. Notwithstanding the requirements of this section, the school district or charter school shall provide a mechanism for a parent or guardian to decline to enroll his or her child in the program. Attendance in supplemental instructional programs shall not be compulsory within the meaning of Section 48200.

(b) Supplemental educational services pursuant to subdivision (a) may be offered during the summer, before school, after school, on Saturdays, or during intersession, or in a combination of summer school, before school, after school, Saturday, or intersession instruction. Services shall not be provided during the pupil's regular instructional day. Any minor pupil whose parent or guardian informs the school district that the pupil is unable to attend a Saturday school program for religious reasons, or any pupil 18 years of age or older who states that he or she is unable to attend a Saturday school program for religious reasons, shall be given priority for enrollment in supplemental instruction offered at a time other than Saturday, over a pupil who is not unable to attend a Saturday school program for religious reasons.

(c) For purposes of this section, a pupil shall be considered to be enrolled in a grade immediately upon completion of the preceding grade. Summer school instruction may also be offered to pupils who were enrolled in grade 6 during the prior school year. For ninth grade pupils identified in subdivision (a), summer school instruction may also be offered to pupils who were enrolled in grade 9 during the prior school year.

(d) Each school district or charter school shall use results from tests administered under the Standardized Testing and Reporting Program, established pursuant to Article 4 (commencing with Section 60640) of Chapter 5 of Part 33 or other evaluative criteria to identify eligible pupils pursuant to subdivision (b).

(e) An intensive remedial program in reading or written expression offered pursuant to this section shall, as needed, include instruction in phoneme awareness, systematic explicit phonics and decoding, word attack skills, spelling and vocabulary, explicit instruction of reading comprehension, writing, and study skills.

(f) Each school district or charter school shall seek the active involvement of parents and classroom teachers in the development and implementation of supplemental instructional programs provided pursuant to this section.

(g) It is the intent of the Legislature that pupils who are at risk of failing to meet state adopted standards, or who are at risk of retention, be identified as early in the school year and as early in their school careers as possible, and be provided the opportunity for supplemental instruction sufficient to assist them in attaining expected levels of academic achievement.

(h) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, neither the State Board of Education nor the Superintendent of Public Instruction may waive any provision of this section.

(i) School districts are relieved from the obligation to perform any activities under this section that are deemed to be reimbursable state mandates pursuant to Section 6 of Article XIII B of the California Constitution from the date that the act amending this subdivision in 2010 is enacted until July 1, 2013.

SEC. 13. Section 41203.1 of the Education Code is amended to read:

41203.1. (a) For the 1990–91 fiscal year and each fiscal year thereafter, allocations calculated pursuant to Section 41203 shall be distributed in accordance with calculations provided in this section. Notwithstanding Section 41203, and for the purposes of this section, school districts, community college districts, and direct elementary and secondary level instructional services provided by the State of California shall be regarded as separate segments of public education, and each of these three segments of public education shall be entitled to receive respective shares of the amount calculated pursuant to Section 41203 as though the calculation made pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 8 of Article XVI of the California Constitution were to be applied separately to each segment and the base year for the purposes of this calculation under paragraph (1) of subdivision (b) of Section 8 of Article XVI of the California Constitution were based on the 1989–90 fiscal year. Calculations made pursuant to this subdivision shall be made so that each segment of public education is entitled to the greater of the amounts calculated for that segment pursuant to paragraph (1) or (2) of subdivision (b) of Section 8 of Article XVI of the California Constitution.

(b) If the single calculation made pursuant to Section 41203 yields a guaranteed amount of funding that is less than the sum of the amounts calculated pursuant to subdivision (a), the amount calculated pursuant to Section 41203 shall be prorated for the three segments of public education.

(c) Notwithstanding any other law, this section does not apply to the 1992–93 to 2010–11 fiscal years, inclusive.

SEC. 14. Section 41207.4 is added to the Education Code, to read:

41207.4. (a) The sum of two hundred ten million one hundred thousand dollars ($210,100,000) is hereby appropriated in the 2010–11 fiscal year from the General Fund to the Controller for allocation to school districts and community college districts for the purpose of offsetting the 2009–10 outstanding balance of the minimum funding obligation to school districts and community college districts pursuant to Section 8 of Article XVI of the California Constitution.

(1) The amount appropriated pursuant to this subdivision shall be allocated to school districts and community college districts as defined in subdivision (a) of Section 41203.1.

(3) The amount annually allocated to community college districts pursuant to this subdivision shall be distributed based on enrolled full-time equivalent students, as those numbers are reported at the time of the second principal apportionment for the fiscal year prior to the fiscal year in which funds are to be received.

(4) For purposes of this subdivision a school district includes a county office of education and a charter school.

(b) For purposes of Section 8 of Article XVI of the California Constitution, the amounts appropriated and allocated pursuant to this section shall be applied to the outstanding balance of the minimum funding obligation to school districts and community college districts pursuant to Section 8 of Article XVI of the California Constitution for the 2009–10 fiscal year, and shall be deemed to be appropriations made and allocated in that fiscal year in which the deficiencies resulting in the outstanding balance were incurred.

(c) Funding received by school districts and community college districts pursuant to this section shall first be deemed to be paid in satisfaction of any outstanding claims pursuant to Section 6 of Article XIII B of the California Constitution for reimbursement of state-mandated local costs for any fiscal year. Notwithstanding any amounts that are deemed, pursuant to this subdivision, to be paid in satisfaction of outstanding claims for reimbursement of state-mandated local costs, the Controller may audit any claim as allowed by law and may reduce any amount owed by school districts and community college districts pursuant to an audit by reducing amounts owed for any other mandate claims. The Controller shall apply amounts received by each school district or community college district against any balances of unpaid claims for reimbursement of state-mandated local costs and interest in chronological order beginning with the earliest claim. The Controller shall report to each school district and community college district the amounts of any claims and interest that are offset from funds provided pursuant to this section and shall report a summary of the amounts offset for each mandate for each fiscal year to the Department of Finance and the fiscal committees of the Legislature. The governing board of a school district or community college district may expend funds received pursuant to this section in excess of amounts offsetting mandate claims for any other one-time purposes, as determined by the governing board.

(g) The Superintendent annually shall report to the state board regarding the use of funds that have been made available during the fiscal year to each charter school pursuant to the grant program.

(h) It is the intent of the Legislature that not less than eighteen million dollars ($18,000,000) annually be appropriated for purposes of the grant program on the same basis as other elementary and secondary education categorical programs.

(i) The Superintendent shall annually allocate the facilities grants to eligible charter schools no later than October 1 of each fiscal year or 90 days after enactment of the annual Budget Act, whichever is later, for the current school year rent and lease costs. In order to provide maximum access, the institutes shall be offered at sites widely distributed throughout the state, which shall include programs offered through instructor-led, interactive online courses, in accordance with existing state law. In order to maximize access to teachers and administrators who may be precluded from participating in an onsite institute due to geographical, physical, or time constraints, each institute shall accommodate at least 5 percent of the participants through existing state-approved online instructor-led courses, programs, or both. The California subject matter projects, an intersegmental, discipline-based professional development network administered by the University of California, is requested to be the organizing entity for the institutes and followup programs.

(b) (1) The institutes shall provide instruction for school teams from each school participating in the program established pursuant to this section. The institutes may provide instruction for school teams serving English language learners in kindergarten and grades 1 to 12, inclusive. A school team shall include teachers who do not hold crosscultural or bilingual-crosscultural certificates or their equivalents, teachers who hold those certificates or their equivalents, and a schoolsite administrator. The majority of the team shall be teachers who do not hold those crosscultural certificates or their equivalents. If the participating school team employs instructional assistants who provide instructional services to English language learners, the team may include these instructional assistants.

(2) Commencing in July 2000, the English Language Development Institutes shall provide instruction to an additional 10,000 participants. These participants shall be in addition to the 5,000 participants authorized as of January 1, 2000. Commencing July 2001, and each fiscal year thereafter, the number of participants receiving instruction through the English Language Development Institutes shall be specified in the annual Budget Act.

(3) Criteria and priority for selection of participating school teams shall include, but not necessarily be limited to, all of the following:

(A) Schools whose pupils' reading scores are at or below the 40th percentile on the English language arts portion of the achievement test authorized by Section 60640.

(B) Schools in which a high percentage of pupils score below grade level on the English language development assessment authorized by Section 60810, when it is developed.

(C) Schools with a high number of new, underprepared, and noncredentialed teachers. Underprepared teachers shall be defined as teachers who do not possess a crosscultural or bilingual-crosscultural certificate, or their equivalents.

(D) Schools in which the enrollment of English language learners exceeds 25 percent of the total school enrollment.

(E) Schools with a full complement of team members as described in paragraph (1).

(4) In any fiscal year, if funding is inadequate to accommodate the participation of all eligible school teams, first priority shall be given to schools meeting the criteria set forth in subparagraph (C) of paragraph (3).

(c) Each team member who satisfactorily completes an institute authorized by this section shall receive a stipend, commensurate with the duration of the institute, of not less than one thousand dollars ($1,000) nor more than two thousand dollars ($2,000), as determined by the University of California.

(d) Instruction provided by the institutes shall be consistent with state-adopted academic content standards and with the English language development standards adopted pursuant to Section 60811.

(e) (1) Instruction at the institutes shall consist of an intensive, sustained training period of no less than 40 hours nor more than 80 hours during the summer or during an intersession break or an equivalent instructor-led, online course and shall be supplemented during the following school year with no fewer than 80 hours nor more than 120 hours of instruction and schoolsite meetings, held on at least a monthly basis, to focus on the academic progress of English language learners at that school.

(2) Instruction at the institutes shall be of sufficient scope, depth, and duration to fully equip instructional personnel to offer a comprehensive and rigorous instructional program for English language learners and to assess pupil progress so these pupils can meet the academic content and performance standards adopted by the state board. The instruction shall be designed to increase the capacity of teachers and other school personnel to provide and assess standards-based instruction for English language learners.

(3) The instruction shall be multidisciplinary and focus on instruction in disciplines for which the state board has adopted academic content standards. The instruction shall also be research-based and provide effective models of professional development in order to ensure that instructional personnel increase their skills, at a minimum, in all of the following:

(A) Literacy instruction and assessment for diverse pupil populations, including instruction in the teaching of reading that is research-based and consistent with the balanced, comprehensive strategies required under Section 44757.

(B) English language development and second language acquisition strategies.

(C) Specially designed instruction and assessment in English.

(D) Application of appropriate assessment instruments to assess language proficiency and utilization of benchmarks for reclassification of pupils from English language learners to fully English proficient.

(E) Examination of pupil work as a basis for the alignment of standards, instruction, and assessment.

(F) Use of appropriate instructional materials to assist English language learners to attain academic content standards.

(G) Instructional technology and its integration into the school curriculum for English language learners.

(H) Parent involvement and effective practices for building partnerships with parents.

(f) A local educational agency may use its economic impact aid funds for purposes of this section.

(g) It is the intent of the Legislature that a local educational agency or postsecondary institution that offers an accredited program of professional preparation consider providing partial and proportional credit toward satisfaction of the course requirements to an enrolled candidate who satisfactorily completes a California English Language Development Institute program if the program has been certified by the Commission on Teacher Credentialing as meeting preparation standards.

(h) This section does not prohibit a team member from attending an institute authorized by this section in more than one academic year.

(i) This section shall not apply to the University of California unless and until the Regents of the University of California act, by resolution, to make it applicable.

Local educational agencies shall receive funding, on behalf of funded schools, at the rates established pursuant to subdivisions (a) and (i) of Section 52055.770 of the Education Code. the reductions made pursuant to subdivision (a) of this section. Amounts received pursuant to this paragraph may be used to satisfy obligations incurred during the 2008–09 fiscal year.

(A) The payments made pursuant to this paragraph shall be considered as payments for the programs identified in subdivision (e), not including the High Priority School Grant Program pursuant to Article 3.5 (commencing with Section 52055.600) of Chapter 6.1 of Part 28 of Division 4 of Title 2 of the Education Code, that are deferred from the 2008–09 fiscal year to the 2009–10 fiscal year.

(B) The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall transfer the amounts identified in paragraphs (1) and (51) of subdivision (a) to the appropriate state agency for distribution.

(C) Any of the amounts identified in paragraphs (1) to (51), inclusive, of subdivision (a) that were transferred to Section A of the State School Fund in the 2008–09 fiscal year shall be distributed through Section A of the State School Fund.

(3) For the purposes of making the computations required by Section 8 of Article XVI of the California Constitution, the appropriation made by this subdivision shall be included in the "[t]otal allocations to school districts and community college districts from General Fund proceeds of taxes appropriated pursuant to Article XIII B," as defined in Section 41202 of the Education Code, for the 2009–10 fiscal year.

(g) The amounts reverted pursuant to subdivision (a) shall not affect the determination of base year amounts for categorical funding set forth in Section 42605 of the Education Code.

[Approved by Governor September 29, 2004. Filed with Secretary of State September 29, 2004.]

LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL'S DIGEST

AB 2856, Laird. State mandates: Commission on State Mandates.

Under the California Constitution, whenever the Legislature or a state agency mandates a new program or higher level of service on any local government, including school districts, the state is required to provide a subvention of funds to reimburse the local government, with specified exceptions. Existing law establishes a procedure for local governmental agencies to file claims for reimbursement of these costs with the Commission on State Mandates. The procedure requires the commission to hear and decide upon each claim for reimbursement and provides that the commission may not find costs to be mandated by the state if, after a hearing, the commission makes specified findings, including, among others, that the statute or executive order imposing the mandate provides for offsetting savings to local agencies or school districts or includes additional revenue specifically intended to sufficiently fund the costs of the state mandate. The procedure provides for payment of claims from the State Mandates Claim Fund and pursuant to a local government claims bill.

This bill would revise the procedures for receiving claims and for hearings on claims, as specified. The bill would revise the definitions of terms related to the procedure and hearings and define additional terms. The bill would abolish the State Mandates Claim Fund and delete the option of paying claims from this fund. The bill would make other technical changes and delete obsolete references.

The people of the State of California do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. Section 44763 of the Education Code is amended to read:

44763. (a) Notwithstanding Title 1.8 (commencing with Section 1798) of Part 4 of Division 3 of the Civil Code or any other provision of law, each state and local government agency shall provide to the Commission on Teacher Credentialing personal information regarding teachers and other certificated personnel as requested by the commission for the purposes of Section 44762.

(b) In accordance with the purpose of safeguarding the privacy rights of individuals, it is the intent of the Legislature that personal information be collected, maintained, and disseminated under this chapter only to the extent required to accomplish the purposes of Section 44762. The Commission on Teacher Credentialing shall establish and maintain specific and appropriate policies and practices that protect the privacy rights of individuals as to whom personal information has been received by the commission, and to otherwise implement the legislative intent set forth in this subdivision.

SEC. 2. Section 17500 of the Government Code is amended to read:

17500. The Legislature finds and declares that the existing system for reimbursing local agencies and school districts for the costs of state-mandated local programs has not provided for the effective determination of the state's responsibilities under Section 6 of Article XIII B of the California Constitution. The Legislature finds and declares that the failure of the existing process to adequately and consistently resolve the complex legal questions involved in the determination of state-mandated costs has led to an increasing reliance by local agencies and school districts on the judiciary and, therefore, in order to relieve unnecessary congestion of the judicial system, it is necessary to create a mechanism which is capable of rendering sound quasi-judicial decisions and providing an effective means of resolving disputes over the existence of state-mandated local programs.

It is the intent of the Legislature in enacting this part to provide for the implementation of Section 6 of Article XIII B of the California Constitution. Further, the Legislature intends that the Commission on State Mandates, as a quasi-judicial body, will act in a deliberative manner in accordance with the requirements of Section 6 of Article XIII B of the California Constitution.

17513. ''Costs mandated by the federal government'' means any increased costs incurred by a local agency or school district after January 1, 1973, in order to comply with the requirements of a federal statute or regulation. ''Costs mandated by the federal government'' includes costs resulting from enactment of a state law or regulation where failure to enact that law or regulation to meet specific federal program or service requirements imposed upon the state would result in substantial monetary penalties or loss of funds to public or private persons in the state whether the federal law was enacted before or after the enactment of the state law, regulation, or executive order. ''Costs mandated by the federal government'' does not include costs which are specifically reimbursed or funded by the federal or state government or programs or services which may be implemented at the option of the state, local agency, or school district.

SEC. 4. Section 17517 of the Government Code is repealed.

SEC. 5. Section 17517.5 is added to the Government Code, to read:

17517.5. ''Cost savings authorized by the state'' means any decreased costs that a local agency or school district realizes as a result of any statute enacted or any executive order adopted that permits or requires the discontinuance of or a reduction in the level of service of an existing program that was mandated before January 1, 1975.

SEC. 6. Section 17518.5 is added to the Government Code, to read:

17518.5. (a) ''Reasonable reimbursement methodology'' means a formula for reimbursing local agency and school district costs mandated by the state that meets the following conditions:

(1) The total amount to be reimbursed statewide is equivalent to total estimated local agency and school district costs to implement the mandate in a cost-efficient manner.

(2) For 50 percent or more of eligible local agency and school district claimants, the amount reimbursed is estimated to fully offset their projected costs to implement the mandate in a cost-efficient manner.

(b) Whenever possible, a reasonable reimbursement methodology shall be based on general allocation formulas, uniform cost allowances, and other approximations of local costs mandated by the state, rather than detailed documentation of actual local costs. In cases when local agencies and school districts are projected to incur costs to implement a mandate over a period of more than one fiscal year, the determination of a reasonable reimbursement methodology may consider local costs and state reimbursements over a period of greater than one fiscal year, but not exceeding 10 years.

(c) A reasonable reimbursement methodology may be developed by any of the following:

(1) The Department of Finance.

(2) The Controller.

(3) An affected state agency.

(4) A claimant.

(5) An interested party.

SEC. 7. Section 17520 of the Government Code is amended to read:

17520. ''Special district'' means any agency of the state that performs governmental or proprietary functions within limited boundaries. ''Special district'' includes a county service area, a maintenance district or area, an improvement district or improvement zone, or any other zone or area. ''Special district'' does not include a city, a county, a school district, or a community college district.

County free libraries established pursuant to Chapter 2 (commencing with Section 27151) of Division 20 of the Education Code, areas receiving county fire protection services pursuant to Section 25643 of the Government Code, and county road districts established pursuant to Chapter 7 (commencing with Section 1550) of Division 2 of the Streets and Highways Code shall be considered ''special districts'' for all purposes of this part.

SEC. 8. Section 17521 of the Government Code is amended to read:

17521. ''Test claim'' means the first claim filed with the commission alleging that a particular statute or executive order imposes costs mandated by the state.

SEC. 9. Section 17522 of the Government Code is amended to read:

17522. (a) ''Initial reimbursement claim'' means a claim filed with the Controller by a local agency or school district for costs to be reimbursed for the fiscal years specified in the first claiming instructions issued by the Controller pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 17558.

(b) ''Annual reimbursement claim'' means a claim for actual costs incurred in a prior fiscal year filed with the Controller by a local agency or school district for which appropriations are made to the Controller for this purpose.

(c) ''Estimated reimbursement claim'' means a claim filed with the Controller by a local agency or school district in conjunction with an initial reimbursement claim, annual reimbursement claim, or at other times, for estimated costs to be reimbursed during the current or future fiscal years, for which appropriations are made to the Controller for this purpose.

(d) ''Entitlement claim'' means a claim filed by a local agency or school district with the Controller for the purpose of establishing or adjusting a base year entitlement. All entitlement claims are subject to Section 17616.

SEC. 10. Section 17526 of the Government Code is amended to read:

17526. (a) All meetings of the commission shall be open to the public, except that the commission may meet in executive session to consider the appointment or dismissal of officers or employees of the commission or to hear complaints or charges brought against a member, officer, or employee of the commission.

(b) The commission shall meet at least once every two months.

(c) The time and place of meetings may be set by resolution of the commission, by written petition of a majority of the members, or by written call of the chairperson. The chairperson may, for good cause, change the starting time or place, reschedule, or cancel any meeting.

SEC. 11. Section 17551 of the Government Code is amended to read:

17551. (a) The commission, pursuant to the provisions of this chapter, shall hear and decide upon a claim by a local agency or school district that the local agency or school district is entitled to be reimbursed by the state for costs mandated by the state as required by Section 6 of Article XIII B of the California Constitution.

(b) Commission review of claims may be had pursuant to subdivision (a) only if the test claim is filed within the time limits specified in this section.

(c) Local agency and school district test claims shall be filed not later than 12 months following the effective date of a statute or executive order, or within 12 months of incurring increased costs as a result of a statute or executive order, whichever is later.

(d) The commission, pursuant to the provisions of this chapter, shall hear and decide upon a claim by a local agency or school district filed on or after January 1, 1985, that the Controller has incorrectly reduced payments to the local agency or school district pursuant to paragraph (2) of subdivision (d) of Section 17561.

SEC. 12. Section 17553 of the Government Code is amended to read:

17553. (a) The commission shall adopt procedures for receiving claims pursuant to this article and for providing a hearing on those claims. The procedures shall do all of the following:

(1) Provide for presentation of evidence by the claimant, the Department of Finance and any other affected department or agency, and any other interested person.

(2) Ensure that a statewide cost estimate is adopted within 12 months after receipt of a test claim, when a determination is made by the commission that a mandate exists. This deadline may be extended for up to six months upon the request of either the claimant or the commission.

(3) Permit the hearing of a claim to be postponed at the request of the claimant, without prejudice, until the next scheduled hearing.

(b) All test claims shall be filed on a form prescribed by the commission and shall contain at least the following elements and documents:

(A) A detailed description of the new activities and costs that arise from the mandate.

(B) A detailed description of existing activities and costs that are modified by the mandate.

(C) The actual increased costs incurred by the claimant during the fiscal year for which the claim was filed to implement the alleged mandate.

(D) The actual or estimated annual costs that will be incurred by the claimant to implement the alleged mandate during the fiscal year immediately following the fiscal year for which the claim was filed.

(E) A statewide cost estimate of increased costs that all local agencies or school districts will incur to implement the alleged mandate during the fiscal year immediately following the fiscal year for which the claim was filed.

(F) Identification of all of the following:

(i) Dedicated state funds appropriated for this program.

(ii) Dedicated federal funds appropriated for this program.

(iii) Other nonlocal agency funds dedicated for this program.

(iv) The local agency's general purpose funds for this program.

(v) Fee authority to offset the costs of this program.

(G) Identification of prior mandate determinations made by the Board of Control or the Commission on State Mandates that may be related to the alleged mandate.

(2) The written narrative shall be supported with declarations under penalty of perjury, based on the declarant's personal knowledge, information or belief, and signed by persons who are authorized and competent to do so, as follows:

(A) Declarations of actual or estimated increased costs that will be incurred by the claimant to implement the alleged mandate.

(B) Declarations identifying all local, state, or federal funds, or fee authority that may be used to offset the increased costs that will be incurred by the claimant to implement the alleged mandate, including direct and indirect costs.

(C) Declarations describing new activities performed to implement specified provisions of the new statute or executive order alleged to impose a reimbursable state-mandated program. Specific references shall be made to chapters, articles, sections, or page numbers alleged to impose a reimbursable state-mandated program.

(3) (A) The written narrative shall be supported with copies of all of the following:

(i) The test claim statute that includes the bill number or executive order, alleged to impose or impact a mandate.

(ii) Relevant portions of state constitutional provisions, federal statutes, and executive orders that may impact the alleged mandate.

(iii) Administrative decisions and court decisions cited in the narrative.

(B) State mandate determinations made by the Board of Control and the Commission on State Mandates and published court decisions on state mandate determinations made by the Commission on State Mandates are exempt from this requirement.

(4) A test claim shall be signed at the end of the document, under penalty of perjury by the claimant or its authorized representative, with the declaration that the test claim is true and complete to the best of the declarant's personal knowledge or information or belief. The date of signing, the declarant's title, address, telephone number, facsimile machine telephone number, and electronic mail address shall be included.

(c) If a completed test claim is not received by the commission within 30 calendar days from the date that an incomplete test claim was returned by the commission, the original test claim filing date may be disallowed, and a new test claim may be accepted on the same statute or executive order.

(d) In addition, the commission shall determine whether an incorrect reduction claim is complete within 10 days after the date that the incorrect reduction claim is filed. If the commission determines that an incorrect reduction claim is not complete, the commission shall notify the local agency and school district that filed the claim stating the reasons that the claim is not complete. The local agency or school district shall have 30 days to complete the claim. The commission shall serve a copy of the complete incorrect reduction claim on the Controller. The Controller shall have no more than 90 days after the date the claim is delivered or mailed to file any rebuttal to an incorrect reduction claim. The failure of the Controller to file a rebuttal to an incorrect reduction claim shall not serve to delay the consideration of the claim by the commission.

SEC. 13. Section 17554 of the Government Code is amended to read:

17554. With the agreement of all parties to the claim, the commission may waive the application of any procedural requirement imposed by this chapter or pursuant to Section 17553. The authority granted by this section includes the consolidation of claims and the shortening of time periods.

SEC. 14. Section 17555 of the Government Code is repealed.

SEC. 15. Section 17555 is added to the Government Code, to read:

17555. (a) No later than 30 days after hearing and deciding upon a test claim pursuant to subdivision (a) of Section 17551, the commission shall notify the appropriate Senate and Assembly policy and fiscal committees, the Legislative Analyst, the Department of Finance, and the Controller of that decision.

(b) For purposes of this section, the ''appropriate policy committee'' means the policy committee that has jurisdiction over the subject matter of the statute, regulation, or executive order, and bills relating to that subject matter would have been heard.

SEC. 16. Section 17557 of the Government Code is amended to read:

17557. (a) If the commission determines there are costs mandated by the state pursuant to Section 17551, it shall determine the amount to be subvened to local agencies and school districts for reimbursement. In so doing it shall adopt parameters and guidelines for reimbursement of any claims relating to the statute or executive order. The successful test claimants shall submit proposed parameters and guidelines within 30 days of adoption of a statement of decision on a test claim. At the request of a successful test claimant, the commission may provide for one or more extensions of this 30-day period at any time prior to its adoption of the parameters and guidelines. If proposed parameters and guidelines are not submitted within the 30-day period and the commission has not granted an extension, then the commission shall notify the test claimant that the amount of reimbursement the test claimant is entitled to for the first 12 months of incurred costs will be reduced by 20 percent, unless the test claimant can demonstrate to the commission why an extension of the 30-day period is justified.

(b) In adopting parameters and guidelines, the commission may adopt a reasonable reimbursement methodology.

(c) The parameters and guidelines adopted by the commission shall specify the fiscal years for which local agencies and school districts shall be reimbursed for costs incurred. However, the commission may not specify in the parameters and guidelines any fiscal year for which payment could be provided in the annual Budget Act.

(d) A local agency, school district, or the state may file a written request with the commission to amend, modify, or supplement the parameters or guidelines. The commission may, after public notice and hearing, amend, modify, or supplement the parameters and guidelines. A parameters and guidelines amendment submitted within 90 days of the claiming deadline for initial claims, as specified in the claiming instructions pursuant to Section 17561, shall apply to all years eligible for reimbursement as defined in the original parameters and guidelines.

A parameters and guidelines amendment filed more than 90 days after the claiming deadline for initial claims, as specified in the claiming instructions pursuant to Section 17561, and on or before January 15 following a fiscal year, shall establish reimbursement eligibility for that fiscal year.

(e) A test claim shall be submitted on or before June 30 following a fiscal year in order to establish eligibility for reimbursement for that fiscal year. The claimant may thereafter amend the test claim at any time, but before the test claim is set for a hearing, without affecting the original filing date as long as the amendment substantially relates to the original test claim.

(f) In adopting parameters and guidelines, the commission shall consult with the Department of Finance, the affected state agency, the Controller, the fiscal and policy committees of the Assembly and Senate, the Legislative Analyst, and the claimants to consider a reasonable reimbursement methodology that balances accuracy with simplicity.

SEC. 17. Section 17558 of the Government Code is amended to read:

17558. (a) The commission shall submit the adopted parameters and guidelines to the Controller. All claims relating to a statute or executive order that are filed after the adoption or amendment of parameters and guidelines pursuant to Section 17557 shall be transferred to the Controller who shall pay and audit the claims from funds made available for that purpose.

(b) Not later than 60 days after receiving the adopted parameters and guidelines from the commission, the Controller shall issue claiming instructions for each mandate that requires state reimbursement, to assist local agencies and school districts in claiming costs to be reimbursed. In preparing claiming instructions, the Controller shall request assistance from the Department of Finance and may request the assistance of other state agencies. The claiming instructions shall be derived from the test claim decision and the parameters and guidelines adopted by the commission.

(c) The Controller shall, within 60 days after receiving revised adopted parameters and guidelines from the commission or other information necessitating a revision of the claiming instructions, prepare and issue revised claiming instructions for mandates that require state reimbursement that have been established by commission action pursuant to Section 17557 or after any decision or order of the commission pursuant to Section 17551. In preparing revised claiming instructions, the Controller may request the assistance of other state agencies.

SEC. 18. Section 17558.5 of the Government Code is amended to read:

17558.5. (a) A reimbursement claim for actual costs filed by a local agency or school district pursuant to this chapter is subject to the initiation of an audit by the Controller no later than three years after the date that the actual reimbursement claim is filed or last amended, whichever is later. However, if no funds are appropriated or no payment is made to a claimant for the program for the fiscal year for which the claim is filed, the time for the Controller to initiate an audit shall commence to run from the date of initial payment of the claim. In any case, an audit shall be completed not later than two years after the date that the audit is commenced.

(b) The Controller may conduct a field review of any claim after the claim has been submitted, prior to the reimbursement of the claim.

(c) The Controller shall notify the claimant in writing within 30 days after issuance of a remittance advice of any adjustment to a claim for reimbursement that results from an audit or review. The notification shall specify the claim components adjusted, the amounts adjusted, interest charges on claims adjusted to reduce the overall reimbursement to the local agency or school district, and the reason for the adjustment. Remittance advices and other notices of payment action shall not constitute notice of adjustment from an audit or review.

(d) The interest rate charged by the Controller on reduced claims shall be set at the Pooled Money Investment Account rate and shall be imposed on the dollar amount of the overpaid claim from the time the claim was paid until overpayment is satisfied.

(e) Nothing in this section shall be construed to limit the adjustment of payments when inaccuracies are determined to be the result of the intent to defraud, or when a delay in the completion of an audit is the result of willful acts by the claimant or inability to reach agreement on terms of final settlement.

SEC. 19. Section 17561 of the Government Code is amended to read:

17561. (a) The state shall reimburse each local agency and school district for all ‘‘costs mandated by the state,’’ as defined in Section 17514.

(b) (1) For the initial fiscal year during which these costs are incurred, reimbursement funds shall be provided as follows:

(A) Any statute mandating these costs shall provide an appropriation therefor.

(B) Any executive order mandating these costs shall be accompanied by a bill appropriating the funds therefor, or alternatively, an appropriation for these costs shall be included in the Budget Bill for the next succeeding fiscal year. The executive order shall cite that item of appropriation in the Budget Bill or that appropriation in any other bill which is intended to serve as the source from which the Controller may pay the claims of local agencies and school districts.

(2) In subsequent fiscal years appropriations for these costs shall be included in the annual Governor's Budget and in the accompanying Budget Bill. In addition, appropriations to reimburse local agencies and school districts for continuing costs resulting from chaptered bills or executive orders for which claims have been awarded pursuant to subdivision (a) of Section 17551 shall be included in the annual Governor's Budget and in the accompanying Budget Bill subsequent to the enactment of the local government claims bill pursuant to Section 17600 that includes the amounts awarded relating to these chaptered bills or executive orders.

(c) The amount appropriated to reimburse local agencies and school districts for costs mandated by the state shall be appropriated to the Controller for disbursement.

(d) The Controller shall pay any eligible claim pursuant to this section within 60 days after the filing deadline for claims for reimbursement or 15 days after the date the appropriation for the claim is effective, whichever is later. The Controller shall disburse reimbursement funds to local agencies or school districts if the costs of these mandates are not payable to state agencies, or to state agencies that would otherwise collect the costs of these mandates from local agencies or school districts in the form of fees, premiums, or payments. When disbursing reimbursement funds to local agencies or school districts, the Controller shall disburse them as follows:

(1) For initial reimbursement claims, the Controller shall issue claiming instructions to the relevant local agencies and school districts pursuant to Section 17558. Issuance of the claiming instructions shall constitute a notice of the right of the local agencies and school districts to file reimbursement claims, based upon parameters and guidelines adopted by the commission.

(A) When claiming instructions are issued by the Controller pursuant to Section 17558 for each mandate determined pursuant to Section 17551 that requires state reimbursement, each local agency or school district to which the mandate is applicable shall submit claims for initial fiscal year costs to the Controller within 120 days of the issuance date for the claiming instructions.

(B) When the commission is requested to review the claiming instructions pursuant to Section 17571, each local agency or school district to which the mandate is applicable shall submit a claim for reimbursement within 120 days after the commission reviews the claiming instructions for reimbursement issued by the Controller.

(C) If the local agency or school district does not submit a claim for reimbursement within the 120-day period, or submits a claim pursuant to revised claiming instructions, it may submit its claim for reimbursement as specified in Section 17560. The Controller shall pay these claims from the funds appropriated therefor, provided that the Controller (i) may audit the records of any local agency or school district to verify the actual amount of the mandated costs, and (ii) may reduce any claim that the Controller determines is excessive or unreasonable.

(2) In subsequent fiscal years each local agency or school district shall submit its claims as specified in Section 17560. The Controller shall pay these claims from funds appropriated therefor, provided that the Controller (A) may audit the records of any local agency or school district to verify the actual amount of the mandated costs, (B) may reduce any claim that the Controller determines is excessive or unreasonable, and (C) shall adjust the payment to correct for any underpayments or overpayments which occurred in previous fiscal years.

(3) When paying a timely filed claim for initial reimbursement, the Controller shall withhold 20 percent of the amount of the claim until the claim is audited to verify the actual amount of the mandated costs. All initial reimbursement claims for all fiscal years required to be filed on their initial filing date for a state-mandated local program shall be considered as one claim for the purpose of computing any late claim penalty. Any claim for initial reimbursement filed after the filing deadline shall be reduced by 10 percent of the amount that would have been allowed had the claim been timely filed. The Controller may withhold payment of any late claim for initial reimbursement until the next deadline for funded claims unless sufficient funds are available to pay the claim after all timely filed claims have been paid. In no case may a reimbursement claim be paid if submitted more than one year after the filing deadline specified in the Controller's claiming instructions on funded mandates contained in a claims bill.

SEC. 20. Section 17561.5 of the Government Code is amended to read:

17561.5. The payment of an initial reimbursement claim by the Controller shall include accrued interest at the Pooled Money Investment Account rate, if the payment is being made more than 365 days after adoption of the statewide cost estimate for an initial claim or, in the case of payment of a subsequent claim relating to that same statute or executive order, if payment is being made more than 60 days after the filing deadline for, or the actual date of receipt of, the subsequent claim, whichever is later. In those instances, interest shall begin to accrue as of the 366th day after adoption of the statewide cost estimate for an initial claim and as of the 61st day after the filing deadline for, or actual date of receipt of, the subsequent claim, whichever is later.

SEC. 21. Section 17561.6 of the Government Code is amended to read:

17561.6. A budget act item or appropriation pursuant to this part for reimbursement of claims shall include an amount necessary to reimburse any interest due pursuant to Section 17561.5.

SEC. 22. Section 17562 of the Government Code is amended to read:

17562. (a) The Legislature hereby finds and declares that the increasing revenue constraints on state and local government and the increasing costs of financing state-mandated local programs make evaluation of state-mandated local programs imperative. Accordingly, it is the intent of the Legislature to increase information regarding state mandates and establish a method for regularly reviewing the costs and benefits of state-mandated local programs.

(b) The Controller shall submit a report to the Joint Legislative Budget Committee and fiscal committees by January 1 of each year. This report shall summarize, by state mandate, the total amount of claims paid per fiscal year and the amount, if any, of mandate deficiencies or surpluses. This report shall be made available in an electronic spreadsheet format. The report shall compare the annual cost of each mandate to the statewide cost estimate adopted by the commission.

(c) After the commission submits its second semiannual report to the Legislature pursuant to Section 17600, the Legislative Analyst shall submit a report to the Joint Legislative Budget Committee and legislative fiscal committees on the mandates included in the commission's reports. The report shall make recommendations as to whether the mandate should be repealed, funded, suspended, or modified.

(d) In its annual analysis of the Budget Bill and based on information provided pursuant to subdivision (b), the Legislative Analyst shall identify mandates that significantly exceed the statewide cost estimate adopted by the commission. The Legislative Analyst shall make recommendations on whether the mandate should be repealed, funded, suspended, or modified.

(e) (1) A statewide association of local agencies or school districts or a Member of the Legislature may submit a proposal to the Legislature recommending the elimination or modification of a state-mandated local program. To make such a proposal, the association or member shall submit a letter to the Chairs of the Assembly Committee on Education or the Assembly Committee on Local Government, as the case may be, and the Senate Committee on Education or the Senate Committee on Local Government, as the case may be, specifying the mandate and the concerns and recommendations regarding the mandate. The association or member shall include in the proposal all information relevant to the conclusions. If the chairs of the committees desire additional analysis of the submitted proposal, the chairs may refer the proposal to the Legislative Analyst for review and comment. The chairs of the committees may refer up to a total of 10 of these proposals to the Legislative Analyst for review in any year. Referrals shall be submitted to the Legislative Analyst by December 1 of each year.

(2) The Legislative Analyst shall review and report to the Legislature with regard to each proposal that is referred to the office pursuant to paragraph (1). The Legislative Analyst shall recommend that the Legislature adopt, reject, or modify the proposal. The report and recommendations shall be submitted annually to the Legislature by March 1 of the year subsequent to the year in which referrals are submitted to the Legislative Analyst.

(3) The Department of Finance shall review all statutes enacted each year that contain provisions making inoperative Section 17561 or Section 17565 that have resulted in costs or revenue losses mandated by the state that were not identified when the statute was enacted. The review shall identify the costs or revenue losses involved in complying with the statutes. The Department of Finance shall also review all statutes enacted each year that may result in cost savings authorized by the state. The Department of Finance shall submit an annual report of the review required by this subdivision, together with the recommendations as it may deem appropriate, by December 1 of each year.

(f) It is the intent of the Legislature that the Assembly Committee on Local Government and the Senate Committee on Local Government hold a joint hearing each year regarding the following:

(1) The reports and recommendations submitted pursuant to subdivision (e).

(2) The reports submitted pursuant to Sections 17570, 17600, and 17601.

(3) Legislation to continue, eliminate, or modify any provision of law reviewed pursuant to this subdivision. The legislation may be by subject area or by year or years of enactment.

SEC. 23. Section 17564 of the Government Code is amended to read:

17564. (a) No claim shall be made pursuant to Sections 17551 and 17561, nor shall any payment be made on claims submitted pursuant to Sections 17551 and 17561, unless these claims exceed one thousand dollars ($1,000), provided that a county superintendent of schools or county may submit a combined claim on behalf of school districts, direct service districts, or special districts within their county if the combined claim exceeds one thousand dollars ($1,000) even if the individual school district's, direct service district's, or special district's claims do not each exceed one thousand dollars ($1,000). The county superintendent of schools or the county shall determine if the submission of the combined claim is economically feasible and shall be responsible for disbursing the funds to each school, direct service, or special district. These combined claims may be filed only when the county superintendent of schools or the county is the fiscal agent for the districts. All subsequent claims based upon the same mandate shall only be filed in the combined form unless a school district, direct service district, or special district provides to the county superintendent of schools or county and to the Controller, at least 180 days prior to the deadline for filing the claim, a written notice of its intent to file a separate claim.

(b) Claims for direct and indirect costs filed pursuant to Section 17561 shall be filed in the manner prescribed in the parameters and guidelines and claiming instructions.

SEC. 24. Section 17579 of the Government Code is amended to read:

17579. Any bill introduced or amended for which the Legislative Counsel has determined the bill will mandate a new program or higher level of service pursuant to Section 6 of Article XIII B of the California Constitution shall contain a section specifying that reimbursement shall be made pursuant to this chapter or that the mandate is being disclaimed and the reason therefor.

SEC. 25. Section 17610 of the Government Code is repealed.

SEC. 26. Section 17612 of the Government Code is amended to read:

17612. (a) Immediately upon receipt of the report submitted by the commission pursuant to Section 17600, a local government claims bill shall be introduced in the Legislature. The local government claims bill, at the time of its introduction, shall provide for an appropriation sufficient to pay the estimated costs of these mandates.

(b) The Legislature may amend, modify, or supplement the parameters and guidelines for mandates contained in the local government claims bill. If the Legislature amends, modifies, or supplements the parameters and guidelines, it shall make a declaration in the local government claims bill specifying the basis for the amendment, modification, or supplement.

(c) If the Legislature deletes from a local government claims bill funding for a mandate, the local agency or school district may file in the Superior Court of the County of Sacramento an action in declaratory relief to declare the mandate unenforceable and enjoin its enforcement.

SEC. 27. Section 17614 of the Government Code is repealed.

SEC. 28. Section 17615.1 of the Government Code is amended to read:

17615.1. The commission shall establish a procedure for reviewing, upon request, mandated cost programs for which appropriations have been made by the Legislature for the 1982–83, 1983–84, and 1984–85 fiscal years, or any three consecutive fiscal years thereafter. At the request of the Department of Finance, the Controller, or any local agency or school district receiving reimbursement for the mandated program, the commission shall review the mandated cost program to determine whether the program should be included in the State Mandates Apportionment System. If the commission determines that the State Mandates Apportionment System would accurately reflect the costs of the state-mandated program, the commission shall direct the Controller to include the program in the State Mandates Apportionment System.

SEC. 29. Section 17615.4 of the Government Code is amended to read:

17615.4. (a) When a new mandate imposes costs that are funded either by legislation or in local government claims bills, local agencies and school districts may file reimbursement claims as required by Section 17561, for a minimum of three years after the initial funding of the new mandate.

(b) After actual cost claims are submitted for three fiscal years against such a new mandate, the commission shall determine, upon request of the Controller or a local entity or school district receiving reimbursement for the program, whether the amount of the base year entitlement adjusted by changes in the deflator and workload accurately reflects the costs incurred by the local agency or school district. If the commission determines that the base year entitlement, as adjusted, does accurately reflect the costs of the program, the commission shall direct the Controller to include the program in the State Mandates Apportionment System.

(c) The Controller shall make recommendations to the commission and the commission shall consider the Controller's recommendations for each new mandate submitted for inclusion in the State Mandates Apportionment System. All claims included in the State Mandates Apportionment System pursuant to this section are also subject to the audit provisions of Section 17616.

SEC. 30. Section 17616 of the Government Code is amended to read:

17616. The Controller shall have the authority to do either or both of the following:

(a) Audit the fiscal years comprising the base year entitlement no later than three years after the year in which the base year entitlement is established. The results of such audits shall be used to adjust the base year entitlements and any subsequent apportionments based on that entitlement, in addition to adjusting actual cost payments made for the base years audited.

(b) Verify that any local agency or school district receiving funds pursuant to this article is providing the reimbursed activities.

SEC. 31. Section 17630 of the Government Code is amended to read:

17630. Except for Article 5, the provisions of this part shall be applicable to claims for state reimbursement of costs mandated by the state on and after January 1, 1985. All claims for state reimbursement filed under Article 1 (commencing with Section 2201), Article 2 (commencing with Section 2227), and Article 3 (commencing with Section 2240) of Chapter 3 of Part 4 of Division 1 of the Revenue and Taxation Code that have not been included in a local government claims bill pursuant to Section 2255 of the Revenue and Taxation Code enacted before January 1, 1985, shall be transferred to and considered by the commission pursuant to the provisions of this part.

LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL'S DIGEST

SB 856, Committee on Budget and Fiscal Review. State government.

(1) Existing law provides for the regulation of various professions and vocations by regulatory boards within the Department of Consumer Affairs. Existing law creates in the department a Division of Investigation and authorizes the Director of Consumer Affairs to employ investigators, inspectors, and deputies as are necessary to investigate and prosecute all violations of any law, the enforcement of which is charged to the department or to any board in the department. Inspectors used by the boards are not required to be employees of the Division of Investigation, but may be employees of, or under contract to, the boards. Investigators of the Division of Investigation and of the Medical Board of California and the Dental Board of California have the authority of peace officers and are in the division and appointed by the director.

This bill would authorize specified healing arts boards to employ individuals to serve as experts and would authorize those boards and the Division of Investigation to employ individuals who are not peace officers to provide investigative services. The bill would also provide that investigators of the Medical Board of California and the Dental Board of California who have the authority of peace officers are not required to be in the division.

(2) According to the strategic plan of the Department of Consumer Affairs, the BreEZe system is an integrated, enterprisewide enforcement and licensing system. Under existing law, the office of the State Chief Information Officer is responsible for, among other things, the approval and oversight of specified information technology projects.

This bill would authorize the department to enter into a contract with a vendor for the BreEZe system no sooner than 30 days after written notification to certain committees of the Legislature. The bill would require the amount of contract funds for the system to be consistent with costs approved by the office of the State Chief Information Officer, based on information provided by the department in a specified manner. The bill would provide that this cost provision is applicable to all Budget Act items for the department with an appropriation for the BreEZe system. If the department enters into a contract for the system, the bill would also require the department, by December 1, 2014, to submit to the Legislature and specified committees a report analyzing the workload of certain licensing personnel employed by boards participating in the BreEZe system.

(3) The Alcoholic Beverage Control Act authorizes the issuance of an event permit that allows specified licenses to sell beer, wine, and distilled spirits and requires an annual fee of $100 for an event permit and a fee of not more than $10 for each event authorization.

This bill would increase the fee for each event authorization to not more than $25.

(4) Under existing law, the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act establishes various types of licenses and various annual fees for different categories of licensees. Existing law establishing a fee for an original on-sale general license or an original off-sale general license as $12,000.

This bill would increase that fee to $13,800 and would permit adjustment of the fee, as specified.

(5) Existing law provides that the period for commencement of action upon any bonds or coupons issued by the State of California is 10 years.

This bill would delete that provision and instead provide that the period for commencement of an action upon any bonds or coupons issued by the State of California shall have no limitation.

(6) Existing law establishes the California Private Postsecondary Education Act of 2009, which, among other things, provides for student protections and regulatory oversight of private postsecondary schools in the state. Existing law establishes the Bureau for Private Postsecondary Education to regulate private postsecondary institutions through the powers granted, and the duties imposed, by the act.

This bill would prohibit the bureau, for the period July 1, 2010, to July 1, 2011, inclusive, from enforcing the act against institutions that offer flight instruction or institutions that offer Federal Aviation Administration certified educational programs in aircraft maintenance. The bill would also require those institutions to notify the bureau if they operate during that period.

(7) Existing law also requires the Bureau for Private Postsecondary Education (bureau) to contract with the Bureau of State Audits to conduct a performance audit to evaluate the effectiveness and efficiency of the bureau's operation, on or before August 1, 2013, consistent with the requirements of the act. The act requires the Bureau of State Audits to report the results of the performance audit to the Legislature and the Governor.

This bill would additionally require the performance audit to include an evaluation of whether the bureau's staffing level and expertise are sufficient to fulfill their statutory responsibilities.

(8) The California Prompt Payment Act provides that a state agency that fails to make a payment for goods and services to certain entities pursuant to a contract is subject to an interest penalty fee, according to specified criteria. Existing law provides that in order to avoid late payment penalties, state agencies shall pay promptly submitted, undisputed invoices within 45 days, and specifies procedures and exclusions relating to that requirement. Existing law provides that penalties for late payments to certain small and nonprofit businesses accrue at 0.25% of the amount due, per calendar day.

Existing law provides that, subject to specified exceptions, a state agency that fails to pay a person an undisputed payment or refund due to that person within 31 days after the agency provides notice to that person that the payment is due is liable for interest on the undisputed amount.

This bill would revise and recast these provisions by requiring state agencies to pay refunds or other undisputed payments due to individuals within 45 days after receipt of a notice of refund or undisputed payment due, and would specify procedures and exclusions related to that requirement. The bill would also provide that penalties for late payments to certain small and nonprofit businesses accrue at a rate of 10% above the United States Prime Rate on June 30 of the prior fiscal year.

This bill would also delete obsolete provisions, cross-references, and references to the Year 2000 Problem.

(9) Existing law prescribes the duties and responsibilities of the Department of Housing and Community Development in connection with the establishment of various economic development areas, including enterprise zones, manufacturing enhancement areas, targeted tax areas, and local agency military base recovery areas. Existing law authorizes the department to assess each of these economic development areas a fee of not more than $10 for each application it accepts for the issuance of a specified tax certificate issued by a local government.

This bill would revise these provisions to require the department to collect a fee of $15 for each application it accepts for the issuance of the specified tax certificate. The bill would require the fees to be deposited in the Enterprise Zone Fund, which the bill would create. These funds would be available to the department, upon appropriation by the Legislature, for the costs of administering the programs relating to each economic development area.

(10) Existing law appropriated $15,000,000 to the Trade and Commerce Agency for a loan for allocation over 3 years in 3 equal amounts to that nonprofit organization currently named the San Diego National Sports Training Foundation for purposes of developing and constructing a California Olympic Training Center. Existing law provides that these loan allocations be repaid in full no later than 20 years from the date of receipt, as specified. Existing law creates the California Olympic Training Account in the General Fund for the receipt of moneys from fees paid for commemorative olympic license plates, which are to be used for repayment of the loan described above.

This bill would cancel any of the outstanding balance and any accrued interest on the loan for the California Olympic Training Center described above. The bill would require the Controller to annually transfer the moneys from fees paid for commemorative olympic license plates to the General Fund.

(11) Existing law creates the Technology Services Revolving Fund, administered by the State Chief Information Officer, for the purpose of receiving revenue from the sale of technology or technology services, and for payment, upon appropriation by the Legislature, of specified costs. The Governor's Reorganization Plan No. 1 of 2009 renamed and transferred the Department of Technology Services in the State and Consumer Services Agency to the Office of the Department of Technology Services within the office of the State Chief Information Officer, and renamed the Department of Technology Services Revolving Fund the Technology Services Revolving Fund, and made conforming changes. The plan also transferred duties relating to the state's procurement of information technology from the Department of Finance, the Department of General Services, and the Department of Information Technology to the office of the State Chief Information Officer.

This bill would make certain statutory codification changes made necessary by the Governor's Reorganization Plan No. 1 of 2009 in connection with the Technology Services Revolving Fund. This bill would also authorize the fund to receive revenues for other services rendered by the office of the State Chief Information Officer and to pay for other specified costs. The bill would authorize the office of the State Chief Information Officer to collect payments from public agencies for services requested from, rather than contracted for, the office of the State Chief Information Officer, as specified. The bill would also revise the conditions used to determine whether a balance remains in the Technology Services Revolving Fund at the end of a fiscal year to limit the amount that is used to determine a reduction in billing rates. The bill would provide that these provisions apply to all revenue earned on or after July 1, 2010.

(12) Existing law imposes a duty on the office of the State Chief Information Officer to be responsible for the approval and oversight of information technology projects, including, but not limited to, consulting with agencies during initial project planning to ensure that identified needs and benefits are consistent with statewide strategies, policies, and procedures.

This bill would, notwithstanding any other law, require the office to review, approve, and oversee any service contract proposed to be entered into by an agency that contains an information technology component, as specified.

(13) Existing law establishes the Manufacturing Technology Program within the Business, Transportation and Housing Agency, requires the agency to adopt regulations to implement the program, and requires the program to award grants, as specified, and to provide technical assistance to California nonprofit organizations and public agencies for the performance of specified functions relating to the improvement of the competitiveness and viability of specified manufacturing industries.

This bill would repeal these laws thereby eliminating the Manufacturing Technology Program.

(14) Existing law establishes the Local Agency Investment Fund, in trust in the custody of the Treasurer, to which specified local governmental individuals and entities, with the required consent, may remit money in its treasury that is not required for immediate needs for the purpose of investment. Existing law requires, immediately at the conclusion of each calendar quarter, that all interest earned and other increment derived from investments be distributed by the Controller to the contributing governmental units or trustees or fiscal agents, nonprofit corporations, and quasi-governmental agencies in amounts directly proportionate to the respective amounts deposited in the fund and the length of time the amounts remained therein. Existing law requires, however, that an amount equal to the reasonable costs incurred in carrying out duties related to the administration of the fund, not to exceed ½ of 1% of the earnings of the fund, be deducted from the earnings prior to distribution, and that this amount be credited as reimbursements to the state agencies having incurred costs in carrying out duties related to the administration of the fund.

This bill would increase the amount authorized to be deducted from earnings prior to distribution to be an amount equal to the reasonable costs incurred in carrying out these provisions, not to exceed a maximum of 5% of the earnings of the fund and not to exceed the amount appropriated in the annual Budget Act for this function.

(15) Under the California Constitution, whenever the Legislature or a state agency mandates a new program or higher level of service on any local government, including school districts, the state is required to provide a subvention of funds to reimburse the local government, with specified exceptions. Existing law establishes a test claim procedure for local governmental agencies to file claims for reimbursement of these costs with the Commission on State Mandates.

This bill would authorize specified entities to request that the commission adopt a new test claim decision to supersede a previously adopted test claim. This bill would authorize the commission to adopt a new test claim decision only upon a showing that the state's liability for the previously adopted test claim decision has been modified based upon a subsequent change in law, as defined.

This bill would require that the commission adopt procedures for receiving these requests and for providing notice and a hearing on those requests, as prescribed, including a requirement that the submitted request be signed under penalty of perjury. Because this bill would expand the scope of an existing crime, this bill would impose a state-mandated local program.

(16) Existing law prohibits the commission from determining that certain costs in a test claim are mandated by the state if the costs meet specified conditions, including, among others, where the challenged costs result from a statute or executive order that imposes requirements mandated by federal law or regulation. Existing law provides that this prohibition applies regardless of whether the federal mandate was enacted before or after the statute or executive order.

This bill would provide that the exceptions for the other specified conditions likewise remain applicable regardless of whether the conditions occurred before or after the enactment of the statute or the adoption of the executive order that is the subject of the test claim.

(17) Existing law requires that the commission adopt parameters and guidelines for the reimbursement of approved test claims. Existing law authorizes a local agency, school district, or the state to file a written request with the commission to amend, modify, or supplement the parameters and guidelines, as specified.

This bill would authorize these entities to file a written request with the commission to amend the parameters and guidelines, and prescribe the types of changes for which the request may be filed, including, among others, deleting a reimbursable activity that has been repealed by statute or executive order.

(18) Existing law requires the California Tax Credit Allocation Committee to allocate specified tax credits for purposes of low-income housing projects. Existing law requires the committee to establish and charge fees it determines are reasonably sufficient to cover the costs in carrying out the responsibilities related to the low-income housing credit program and to deposit these fees in the Tax Credit Allocation Fee Account and the Occupancy Compliance Monitoring Account for specified purposes.

Existing law also authorizes the Governor, in certain circumstances, to direct the Controller to make transfers of money from any special funds and other accounts to the General Cash Revolving Fund.

This bill would authorize the Controller to use the fees deposited in the Tax Credit Allocation Fee Account and the Occupancy Compliance Monitoring Account for daily cash flow loans to the General Fund or the General Cash Revolving Fund in accordance with specified provisions of existing law.

(19) Existing law establishes a workers' compensation system, administered by the Administrative Director of the Division of Workers' Compensation, to compensate an injured employee for injuries sustained in the course of his or her employment. Existing law requires that the Director of Industrial Relations levy and collect assessments from employers in an amount determined by the director to be sufficient to fund specified workers' compensation programs implemented in the state. In that connection, existing law requires the director to include in the total assessment amount the Department of Industrial Relations' costs for administering the assessment, including the collections process and the cost of reimbursing the Franchise Tax Board for its cost of collection activities.

This bill would also require the director to include in the total assessment amount the department's costs for administering the assessment, including the collections process and the cost of reimbursing another agency or department other than the Franchise Tax Board.

(20) Existing law authorizes the Director of Industrial Relations, with the approval of the Director of Finance, to determine and assess a fee on any awarding body using funds derived from any bond issued by the state to fund public works projects, and requires the fees collected to be deposited in the State Public Works Enforcement Fund, a continuously appropriated fund.

This bill would require the fee to be payable by the board, commission, department, agency, or official responsible for the allocation of bond proceeds from the bond funds awarded to each project, at the time the funds are released to the project or any other time agreed upon by the department and the allocating entity.

(21) Existing law requires an awarding body that chooses to use funds from the Kindergarten-University Public Education Facilities Bond Act of 2002 or the Kindergarten-University Public Education Facilities Bond Act of 2004 for a public works project to pay a fee to the Department of Industrial Relations sufficient to support the department's costs in ensuring compliance with and enforcing prevailing wage requirements on the project and labor compliance, and requires the fees collected to be deposited in the State Public Works Enforcement Fund. Existing law requires the department to notify the State Allocation Board of awarding bodies that have paid the fee.

This bill would instead require the State Allocation Board to notify the department of awarding bodies that are awarded funds subject to the fee. This bill would also require the State Allocation Board to pay the fee to the department at the time bond funds are released to the awarding body.

(22) Existing law authorizes the awarding body for a public works project to not require the payment of the general prevailing rate of per diem wages on public works projects of specified sizes and types of work if the awarding body elects to meet certain requirements with regard to any public works project under its authority, including payment of a fee to the Department of Industrial Relations for the enforcement of prevailing wage obligations, in lieu of authorizing the awarding body to initiate and enforce a labor compliance program, for contracts awarded after the effective date of regulations and fees adopted by the department, as specified.

This bill would make technical, conforming changes to those provisions.

(23) Existing law requires that every apprentice employed upon public works, as defined, be paid the prevailing rate of per diem wages for apprentices in the trade to which he or she is registered, and requires that the apprentice be employed only at the work of the craft or trade to which he or she is registered. Existing law requires a contractor to whom a contract is awarded, who, in performing any of the work under the contract, employs journeymen or apprentices in any apprenticeable craft or trade, to contribute to the California Apprenticeship Council the same amount that the Director of Industrial Relations determines is the prevailing amount of apprenticeship training contributions in the area of the public works site. Existing law requires that all training contributions received pursuant to those provisions be deposited in the Apprenticeship Training Contribution Fund, and continuously appropriates that fund for purposes related to apprenticeship training and to pay the expenses of the Division of Apprenticeship Standards.

This bill would eliminate this continuous appropriation and instead specify that, upon appropriation by the Legislature, all moneys in the fund be used for apprenticeship training and to pay the expenses of the Division of Apprenticeship Standards.

(24) Existing law requires the Department of Justice to maintain a master record of information pertaining to the identification and criminal history of persons, as specified. Existing law authorizes the department to provide that information to various entities for law enforcement and other purposes, as specified, including providing that information through the California Law Enforcement Telecommunications System.

This bill would authorize nonprofit organizations that are funded by certain federal grants or contracts for identifying, targeting, or removing criminal and terrorist conspiracies and activities to access local, state, or federal criminal justice system information that is available to law enforcement agencies, including access to the California Law Enforcement Telecommunications System, provided that the nonprofit organization meet state and federal requirements for access to that information or system.

(25) Existing law prohibits a county, city, city and county, or special district from hiring a person for employment or a volunteer to perform services, at a county, city, city and county, or special district operated park, playground, recreational center, or beach used for recreational purposes, in a position having supervisory or disciplinary authority over a minor, if that person has been convicted of specified offenses. Existing law requires a county, city, city and county, or special district to require each of those prospective employees and volunteers to complete an application that inquires as to whether that person has been convicted of one of those offenses, and imposes a screening requirement on the county, city, city and county, or special district with respect to those prospective employees and volunteers.

This bill would authorize a county, city, city and county, or special district to charge those prospective employees and volunteers a fee to cover all of the county, city, city and county, or special district's costs attributable to those requirements.

(26) The Vehicle License Fee (VLF) Law establishes, in lieu of any ad valorem property tax upon vehicles, an annual license fee for any vehicle subject to registration in this state in the amount of 2% of the market value of that vehicle, as specified. Existing law requires the Controller, in consultation with the Department of Motor Vehicles and the Department of Finance, to calculate certain allocation amounts with respect to the vehicle license fees paid by commercial vehicle operators, and to transfer moneys in those amounts from the General Fund.

This bill would eliminate the requirement that the Controller transfer one of the allocation amounts from the General Fund, as provided.

(27) Existing law prohibits the Franchise Tax Board and specified individuals who have access to certain documents filed with the board from disclosing information set forth in the documents, except as provided. Existing law authorizes the board to provide the Public Employees' Retirement System with identification and location information from income tax returns or other records solely for the purposes of disbursing unclaimed benefits and distributing member statements on an annual basis. Under existing law, unauthorized disclosure is a misdemeanor. Existing federal law establishes the Early Retiree Reinsurance Program, which provides federal reimbursement to participating employment-based group health benefits plans, as provided.

This bill would, until June 30, 2016, authorize the board to provide the Public Employees' Retirement System with identification and location information from income tax returns or other records for the purpose of filing required data pursuant to the federal Early Retiree Reinsurance Program and related regulations and departmental directives. By expanding the definition of a crime, the bill would impose a state-mandated local program.

(28) Existing law requires each employer to file with the Director of the Employment Development Department, within a specified time period for the payment of employer contributions, a report of contributions and a report of wages paid to his or her workers in the form and containing any information as the director prescribes. Existing law also requires every employer who pays wages to an employee for services performed in this state to withhold from those wages, except as provided, specified income taxes, to file specified reports with the director, and to pay the withheld taxes.

This bill would, instead, require each employer, beginning with the first calendar quarter of 2011, to file with the director a quarterly return, including certain information regarding the total amount of wages, employer contributions, worker contributions required to be withheld by the employer, taxes withheld, and any other information prescribed by the director, as specified.

Existing law also requires each employer, in addition to the aforementioned reports, to file with the director an annual reconciliation return showing specified information pertaining to amounts required to be withheld for employer contributions, as determined by wages and other specified criteria, and taxes withheld as prescribed.

This bill also would eliminate the requirement that an employer file an annual reconciliation form with the director beginning in the 2012 calendar year, and would make related changes.

(29) Existing law provides for unemployment compensation benefits for eligible individuals in the state who are unemployed through no fault of their own. Existing law, for new claims filed on or after a specified date, but no later than April 3, 2011, for which a valid claim or benefit year cannot be established under the currently defined base periods, establish alternative base periods, as provided. Existing law also requires a claimant to submit specified information regarding wages to the Employment Development Department via an affidavit, under specified conditions, and requires the department to implement the technical changes necessary to establish claims under the alternative base period, as specified, as soon as possible, but no later than April 3, 2011.

This bill would extend to September 3, 2011, the time period within which the department is required to implement those changes related to the establishment of unemployment compensation benefit claims under the alternative base period program.

Existing law requires the department, until April 3, 2013, to report to the Joint Legislative Budget Committee, no less than quarterly, on the progress and effectiveness of implementation of the alternative base period program, as specified.

This bill would extend to September 3, 2013, the period during which those reports are required to be provided to the Joint Legislative Budget Committee.

This bill would authorize the Department of Industrial Relations to enter into an agreement that transfers all or part of the responsibility from the Department of Industrial Relations, or any office or division within the department, to the Employment Development Department for the collection of items including, but not limited to, delinquent fees, wages, penalties, judgments, assessments, costs, citations, debts, and any interest thereon, arising out of the enforcement of any law within the jurisdiction of the department, in accordance with specified requirements.

(30) Existing law creates in the State Treasury the Indian Gaming Special Distribution Fund for the receipt and deposit of moneys received by the state from certain Indian tribes pursuant to the terms of gaming compacts entered into with the state. Existing law authorizes moneys in that fund to be used for specified purposes, including for grants for the support of state and local government agencies impacted by tribal government gaming.

Existing law, until January 1, 2021, creates a County Tribal Casino Account in the treasury of each county that contains a tribal casino. Existing law requires the Controller to divide the County Tribal Casino Account for each county that has gaming devices that are subject to an obligation to make contributions to the Indian Gaming Special Distribution Fund into a separate account, known as an Individual Tribal Casino Account, for each tribe that operates a casino within the county. Each Individual Tribal Casino Account is required to be funded in proportion to the amount that each individual tribe paid in the prior fiscal year to the Indian Gaming Special Distribution Fund, and used for grants to local agencies impacted by tribal casinos, as specified.

This bill would appropriate $30,000,000 from the Indian Gaming Special Distribution Fund to restore funding deleted from the Budget Act of 2007 for the purpose of providing grants to local government agencies impacted by tribal government gaming under the provisions described above.

(31) The Budget Act of 2009 (Chapter 1 of the 2009–10 3rd Extraordinary Session) and revisions to the Budget Act of 2009 (Chapter 1 of the 2009–10 4th Extraordinary Session) made appropriations for the support of state government during the 2009–10 fiscal year.

This bill would make an additional appropriation of moneys from the DNA Identification Fund to the Department of Justice for its support.

(32) Existing law gives the Citizens Redistricting Commission the responsibility for redrawing district boundaries for state Senate, Assembly, and Board of Equalization districts after each national decennial census. Existing law further directs the State Auditor to oversee the selection of members of the commission, and directs the Secretary of State to assist the commission in carrying out its redistricting responsibilities. Existing law requires the Legislature to include in the Budget Act, in each year ending in 9, an appropriation to meet the expenses of the commission, the State Auditor, and the Secretary of State in implementing the redistricting process. The appropriation is required to be a minimum of $3,000,000 and is required to be available for a 3-year period. The Legislature is permitted to make additional appropriations in any year in which it determines that the commission requires additional funding. The Budget Act of 2009 appropriated $3,000,000 for allocation by the Director of Finance among the Citizens Redistricting Commission, the Secretary of State, and the Bureau of State Audits to meet the expenses of those entities in implementing the redistricting process in connection with the 2010 national census.

This bill would provide that funds appropriated in the Budget Act of 2009 for expenses of the commission, the Secretary of State, and the Bureau of State Audits in connection with implementing the redistricting process shall be available until June 30, 2012, and would further provide that funds allocated pursuant to the Budget Act of 2010 for those purposes shall be available until June 30, 2013. The bill would prohibit those funds from being allocated by the Director of Finance until the State Auditor has selected the first 8 members of the commission and the Department of Finance has submitted to the Joint Legislative Budget Committee a 30-days' notice of intent to allocate those funds. The bill would require, in order for the Bureau of State Audits to receive an allocation of funds, that the bureau submit a request with a detailed cost estimate to the Chairperson of the Joint Legislative Budget Committee and the Director of Finance, and that the chairperson of the joint committee provide a written notification to the director that the requested allocation, or a lesser amount, is needed to carry out expenses of the bureau as set forth in the detailed cost estimate.

(33) Existing law creates the California Infrastructure and Economic Development Bank for the purpose of, among other things, providing financial assistance for public development facilities located in California. Existing law establishes the California Infrastructure Guarantee Trust Fund within which there is a guarantee reserve account to fund secure commitments under contracts to guarantee all or part of the bonds in the bank. Existing law permits the Legislature to establish for the guarantee reserve account a reserve account requirement. Existing law requires the bank to take all reasonable steps to maintain the reserve account requirement, and if the bank determines that the amount in the reserve account is below the reserve account requirement, the executive director of the bank is to certify to various parties in the Legislature the sum required to restore the reserve fund to the requirement, and upon making the certification, request an appropriation. Existing law provides that the obligation of the bank and the state to pay any guarantee is a limited obligation of the bank payable solely from amounts deposited in the guarantee trust fund that are made available under the respective contracts of guarantee, and prohibits the guarantee of loans or bonds from directly, indirectly, or contingently obligating the state to levy or to pledge any form of taxation or to make any appropriation for their payment. In 2003, the California Infrastructure and Economic Development Bank and the Imperial Irrigation District entered into a preliminary loan guarantee agreement.

This bill would require that funds in the California Infrastructure Guarantee Trust Fund, as of January 1, 2010, held for the benefit of the Imperial Irrigation District, be deposited in a guarantee reserve account in the fund, which the bill would establish, and would provide that this amount is the reserve account requirement, as specified, for the purpose of meeting the obligations of the Imperial Irrigation District up to $150,000,000 in connection with certain water agreements. The bill would require that the California Infrastructure and Economic Development Bank guarantee certain bonds relating to the Imperial Irrigation District projects, and that the reserve account be paid for the benefit of bondholders in the event of a shortfall, as specified. The bill would specify the characteristics of these bonds, and would establish the limits of the liability of the Imperial Irrigation District, the California Infrastructure and Economic Development Bank, and the state in connection to them.

(34) The California Constitution requires the state to reimburse local agencies and school districts for certain costs mandated by the state. Statutory provisions establish procedures for making that reimbursement.

This bill would provide that no reimbursement is required by this act for a specified reason.

(35) This bill would declare that it is to take effect immediately as an urgency statute.

Appropriation: yes.

The people of the State of California do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. Section 154.2 is added to the Business and Professions Code, to read:

154.2. (a) The healing arts boards within Division 2 (commencing with Section 500) may employ individuals, other than peace officers, to perform investigative services.

(2) The amount of BreEZe system vendor contract funds, authorized pursuant to this section, shall be consistent with the project costs approved by the office of the State Chief Information Officer based on its review and approval of the most recent BreEZe Special Project Report to be submitted by the department prior to contract award at the conclusion of procurement activities.

(3) Paragraph (2) shall apply to all Budget Act items for the department that have an appropriation for the BreEZe system.

SEC. 5. Section 23399 of the Business and Professions Code is amended to read:

23399. (a) An on-sale general license authorizes the sale of beer, wine, and distilled spirits for consumption on the premises where sold. Any licensee under an on-sale general license, an on-sale beer and wine license, a club license, or a veterans' club license may apply to the department for a caterer's permit. A caterer's permit under an on-sale general license shall authorize the sale of beer, wine, and distilled spirits for consumption at conventions, sporting events, trade exhibits, picnics, social gatherings, or similar events held any place in the state approved by the department. A caterer's permit under a club license or a veterans' club license shall authorize sales at these events only upon the licensed club premises.

(b) Any licensee under an on-sale general license or an on-sale beer and wine license may apply to the department for an event permit. An event permit under an on-sale general license or an on-sale beer and wine license shall authorize, at events held no more frequently than four days in any single calendar year, the sale of beer, wine, and distilled spirits only under an on-sale general license or beer and wine only under an on-sale beer and wine license for consumption on property adjacent to the licensed premises and owned or under the control of the licensee. This property shall be secured and controlled by the licensee and not visible to the general public.

(c) This section shall in no way limit the power of the department to issue special licenses under the provisions of Section 24045 or to issue daily on-sale general licenses under the provisions of Section 24045.1. Consent for sales at each event shall be first obtained from the department in the form of a catering or event authorization issued pursuant to rules prescribed by it. Any event authorization shall be subject to approval by the appropriate local law enforcement agency. The fee for each catering or event authorization shall be issued at a fee not to exceed twenty-five dollars ($25) and this fee shall be deposited in the Alcohol Beverage Control Fund as provided in Section 25761.

(d) At all approved events, the licensee may exercise only those privileges authorized by the licensee's license and shall comply with all provisions of the act pertaining to the conduct of on-sale premises and violation of those provisions may be grounds for suspension or revocation of the licensee's license or permit, or both, as though the violation occurred on the licensed premises.

(e) The fee for a caterer's permit for a licensee under an on-sale general license, a caterer's permit for a licensee under an on-sale beer and wine license, or an event permit for a licensee under an on-sale general license or an on-sale beer and wine license shall be one hundred four dollars ($104) for permits issued during the 2002 calendar year, one hundred seven dollars ($107) for permits issued during the 2003 calendar year, one hundred ten dollars ($110) for permits issued during the 2004 calendar year, and for permits issued during the years thereafter, the annual fee shall be calculated pursuant to subdivisions (b) and (c) of Section 23320, and the fee for a caterer's permit for a licensee under a club license or a veterans' club license shall be as specified in Section 23320, and the permit may be renewable annually at the same time as the licensee's license. A caterer's or event permit shall be transferable as a part of the license.

SEC. 6. Section 23954.5 of the Business and Professions Code is amended to read:

23954.5. (a) An applicant for an original on-sale general license shall, at the time of filing the application for the license, accompany the application with a fee as determined by the department pursuant to subdivision (b) of this section. An applicant for an original on-sale beer and wine license shall accompany the application with a fee of three hundred dollars ($300). An applicant for an original on-sale beer license shall accompany the application with a fee of two hundred dollars ($200). An applicant for an original off-sale beer and wine license or an original license not specified in this section, shall accompany the application with a fee of one hundred dollars ($100).

"Original on-sale general license," "original on-sale general license for seasonal business," "original on-sale beer and wine license," "original on-sale beer license," "original off-sale general license," and "original off-sale beer and wine license," as used in this division, do not include a license issued upon renewal or transfer of a license.

(b) The fee for an original on-sale general license or an original off-sale general license shall be thirteen thousand eight hundred dollars ($13,800).

Beginning January 1, 2011, and each January thereafter, the department may adjust this fee as provided in subdivisions (c) and (d) of Section 23320.

(c) All money collected from the fees provided for in this section shall be in the Alcohol Beverage Control Fund as provided in Section 25761.

SEC. 7. Section 337.5 of the Code of Civil Procedure is amended to read:

If the Controller fails to make payment within 15 calendar days of receipt of the claim schedule from a state agency, and payment is not issued within 45 calendar days following the agency's receipt of a notice of refund or undisputed payment due, the Controller shall pay applicable penalties to the claimant. This subdivision applies regardless of whether the authority to levy charges, fees, or assessments was enacted or adopted prior to or after the date on which the statute or executive order was enacted or issued.

(e) The statute, executive order, or an appropriation in a Budget Act or other bill provides for offsetting savings to local agencies or school districts that result in no net costs to the local agencies or school districts, or includes additional revenue that was specifically intended to fund the costs of the state mandate in an amount sufficient to fund the cost of the state mandate. This subdivision applies regardless of whether a statute, executive order, or appropriation in the Budget Act or other bill that either provides for offsetting savings that result in no net costs or provides for additional revenue specifically intended to fund the costs of the state mandate in an amount sufficient to fund the cost of the state mandate was enacted or adopted prior to or after the date on which the statute or executive order was enacted or issued.

(f) The statute or executive order imposes duties that are necessary to implement, or are expressly included in, a ballot measure approved by the voters in a statewide or local election. This subdivision applies regardless of whether the statute or executive order was enacted or adopted before or after the date on which the ballot measure was approved by the voters.

(g) The statute created a new crime or infraction, eliminated a crime or infraction, or changed the penalty for a crime or infraction, but only for that portion of the statute relating directly to the enforcement of the crime or infraction.

SEC. 32. Section 17557 of the Government Code is amended to read:

17557. (a) If the commission determines there are costs mandated by the state pursuant to Section 17551, it shall determine the amount to be subvened to local agencies and school districts for reimbursement. In so doing it shall adopt parameters and guidelines for reimbursement of any claims relating to the statute or executive order. The successful test claimants shall submit proposed parameters and guidelines within 30 days of adoption of a statement of decision on a test claim. The proposed parameters and guidelines may include proposed reimbursable activities that are reasonably necessary for the performance of the state-mandated program. At the request of a successful test claimant, the commission may provide for one or more extensions of this 30-day period at any time prior to its adoption of the parameters and guidelines. If proposed parameters and guidelines are not submitted within the 30-day period and the commission has not granted an extension, then the commission shall notify the test claimant that the amount of reimbursement the test claimant is entitled to for the first 12 months of incurred costs will be reduced by 20 percent, unless the test claimant can demonstrate to the commission why an extension of the 30-day period is justified.

(b) In adopting parameters and guidelines, the commission may adopt a reasonable reimbursement methodology.

(c) The parameters and guidelines adopted by the commission shall specify the fiscal years for which local agencies and school districts shall be reimbursed for costs incurred. However, the commission may not specify in the parameters and guidelines any fiscal year for which payment could be provided in the annual Budget Act.

(d) (1) A local agency, school district, or the state may file a written request with the commission to amend the parameters or guidelines. The commission may, after public notice and hearing, amend the parameters and guidelines. A parameters and guidelines amendment submitted within 90 days of the claiming deadline for initial claims, as specified in the claiming instructions pursuant to Section 17561, shall apply to all years eligible for reimbursement as defined in the original parameters and guidelines. A parameters and guidelines amendment filed more than 90 days after the claiming deadline for initial claims, as specified in the claiming instructions pursuant to Section 17561, and on or before the claiming deadline following a fiscal year, shall establish reimbursement eligibility for that fiscal year.

(2) For purposes of this subdivision, the request to amend parameters and guidelines may be filed to make any of the following changes to parameters and guidelines, consistent with the statement of decision:

(A) Delete any reimbursable activity that has been repealed by statute or executive order after the adoption of the original or last amended parameters and guidelines.

(B) Update offsetting revenues and offsetting savings that apply to the mandated program and do not require a new legal finding that there are no costs mandated by the state pursuant to subdivision (e) of Section 17556.

(C) Include a reasonable reimbursement methodology for all or some of the reimbursable activities.

(D) Clarify what constitutes reimbursable activities.

(E) Add new reimbursable activities that are reasonably necessary for the performance of the state-mandated program.

(F) Define what activities are not reimbursable.

(G) Consolidate the parameters and guidelines for two or more programs.

(H) Amend the boilerplate language. For purposes of this section, "boilerplate language" means the language in the parameters and guidelines that is not unique to the state-mandated program that is the subject of the parameters and guidelines.

(e) A test claim shall be submitted on or before June 30 following a fiscal year in order to establish eligibility for reimbursement for that fiscal year. The claimant may thereafter amend the test claim at any time, but before the test claim is set for a hearing, without affecting the original filing date as long as the amendment substantially relates to the original test claim.

(f) In adopting parameters and guidelines, the commission shall consult with the Department of Finance, the affected state agency, the Controller, the fiscal and policy committees of the Assembly and Senate, the Legislative Analyst, and the claimants to consider a reasonable reimbursement methodology that balances accuracy with simplicity.

SEC. 33. Section 17570 is added to the Government Code, to read:

17570. (a) For purposes of this section the following definitions shall apply:

(1) "Mandates law" means published court decisions arising from state mandate determinations by the State Board of Control or the Commission on State Mandates, or that address this part or Section 6 of Article XIII B of the California Constitution. "Mandates law" also includes statutory amendments to this part and amendments to Section 6 of Article XIII B of the California Constitution.

(2) "Subsequent change in law" is a change in law that requires a finding that an incurred cost is a cost mandated by the state, as defined by Section 17514, or is not a cost mandated by the state pursuant to Section 17556, or a change in mandates law, except that a "subsequent change in law" does not include the amendments to Section 6 of Article XIII B of the California Constitution that were approved by the voters on November 2, 2004. A "subsequent change in law" also does not include a change in the statutes or executive orders that impose new state-mandated activities and require a finding pursuant to subdivision (a) of Section 17551.

(3) "Test claim decision" means a decision of the Commission on State Mandates on a test claim filed pursuant to Section 17551 or a decision of the State Board of Control on a claim for state reimbursement filed pursuant to Article 1 (commencing with Section 2201), Article 2 (commencing with Section 2227), and Article 3 (commencing with Section 2240) of Chapter 3 of Part 4 of Division 1 of the Revenue and Taxation Code prior to January 1, 1985.

(b) The commission may adopt a new test claim decision to supersede a previously adopted test claim decision only upon a showing that the state's liability for that test claim decision pursuant to subdivision (a) of Section 6 of Article XIII B of the California Constitution has been modified based on a subsequent change in law.

(c) A local agency or school district, statewide association of local agencies or school districts, or the Department of Finance, the Controller, or other affected state agency may file a request with the commission to adopt a new test claim decision pursuant to this section.

(d) The commission shall adopt procedures for receiving requests to adopt a new test claim decision pursuant to this section and for providing notice and a hearing on those requests. The procedures shall do all of the following:

(1) Specify that all requests for adoption of a new test claim decision shall be filed on a form prescribed by the commission that shall contain at least the following elements and documents:

(A) The name, case number, and adoption date of the prior test claim decision.

(B) A detailed analysis of how and why the state's liability for mandate reimbursement has been modified pursuant to subdivision (a) of Section 6 of Article XIII B of the California Constitution based on a subsequent change in law.

(C) The actual or estimated amount of the annual statewide change in the state's liability for mandate reimbursement pursuant to subdivision (a) of Section 6 of Article XIII B of the California Constitution based on a subsequent change in law.

(D) Identification of all of the following, if relevant:

(i) Dedicated state funds appropriated for the program.
(ii) Dedicated federal funds appropriated for the program.
(iii) Fee authority to offset the costs of the program.
(iv) Federal law.
(v) Court decisions.
(vi) State or local ballot measures and the corresponding date of the election.

(E) All assertions of fact shall be supported with declarations made under penalty of perjury, based on the declarant's personal knowledge, information, or belief, and be signed by persons who are authorized and competent to do so, including, but not limited to, the following:

(i) Declarations of actual or estimated annual statewide costs that will or will not be incurred to implement the alleged mandate.

(ii) Declarations identifying all local, state, or federal funds, or fee authority that may or may not be used to offset the increased costs that will or will not be incurred by claimants to implement the alleged mandate or result in a finding of no costs mandated by the state pursuant to Section 17556.

(iii) Declarations describing new activities performed to implement specific provisions of the test claim statute or executive order alleged to impose a reimbursable state-mandated program.

(F) Specific references shall be made to chapters, articles, sections, or page numbers that are alleged to impose or not impose a reimbursable state-mandated program.

(2) Require that a request for the adoption of a new test claim decision be signed at the end of the document, under penalty of perjury, by the requester or its authorized representative, along with a declaration that the request is true and complete to the best of the declarant's personal knowledge, information, or belief. The procedures shall also require that the date of signing, the declarant's title, address, telephone number, facsimile machine telephone number, and electronic mail address be included.

(3) Provide that the commission shall return a submitted request that is incomplete to the requester and allow the requester to remedy the deficiencies. The procedures shall also provide that the commission may disallow the original filing if a complete request is not received by the commission within 30 calendar days from the date that the incomplete request was returned to the requester.

(4) Establish a two-step hearing process to consider requests for adoption of a new test claim decision pursuant to this section. As the first step, the commission shall conduct a hearing to determine if the requester has made a showing that the state's liability pursuant to subdivision (a) of Section 6 of Article XIII B of the California Constitution has been modified based on a subsequent change in law. If the commission determines that the requester has made this showing, then pursuant to the commission's authority in subdivision (b) of this section, the commission shall notice the request for a hearing to determine if a new test claim decision shall be adopted to supersede the previously adopted test claim decision.

(5) Provide for presentation of evidence and legal argument at the hearings by the requester, interested parties, the Department of Finance, the Controller, any other affected state agency, and interested persons.

(6) Permit a hearing to be postponed at the request of any party, without prejudice, until the next scheduled hearing.

(e) To implement the procedures described in subdivision (d), the commission shall initially adopt regulations as emergency regulations and, for purposes of Section 11349.6, the adoption of the regulations shall be considered by the Office of Administrative Law to be necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety, and general welfare. Notwithstanding subdivision (e) of Section 11346.1, the regulations shall be repealed within 180 days after their effective date, unless the commission complies with Chapter 3.5 (commencing with Section 11340) of Part 1 as provided in subdivision (e) of Section 11346.1.

(f) A request for adoption of a new test claim decision shall be filed on or before June 30 following a fiscal year in order to establish eligibility for reimbursement or loss of reimbursement for that fiscal year.

(g) The commission shall notify interested parties, the Controller, the Department of Finance, affected state agencies, and the Legislative Analyst of any complete request for the adoption of a new test claim decision that the commission receives.

(h) If the commission determines that the requester has made a showing that the state's liability pursuant to subdivision (a) of Section 6 of Article XIII B of the California Constitution has been modified based on a subsequent change in law, and the commission notices the request for a hearing to determine whether a new test claim decision shall be adopted that supersedes a prior test claim decision, the Controller shall notify eligible claimants that the request has been filed with the commission and that the original test claim decision may be superseded by a new decision adopted by the commission. The notification may be included in the next set of claiming instructions issued to eligible claimants.

(i) If the commission adopts a new test claim decision that supersedes the previously adopted test claim decision, the commission shall adopt new parameters and guidelines or amend existing parameters and guidelines or reasonable reimbursement methodology pursuant to Sections 17557, 17557.1, and 17557.2.

(j) Any new parameters and guidelines adopted or amendments made to existing parameters and guidelines or a reasonable reimbursement methodology shall conform to the new test claim decision adopted by the commission.

(k) The Controller shall follow the procedures in Sections 17558, 17558.5, 17560, 17561, and 17561.5, as applicable, for a new test claim decision adopted by the commission pursuant to this section.

(l) If the commission adopts a new test claim decision that will result in reimbursement pursuant to Section 6 of Article XIII B of the California Constitution because a cost is a cost mandated by the state, as defined in Section 17514, the commission shall determine the amount to be subvened to local agencies and school districts by adopting a new statewide cost estimate pursuant to Section 17557.

(m) In addition to the reports required pursuant to Sections 17600 and 17601, the commission shall notify the Legislature within 30 days of adopting a new test claim decision that supersedes a prior test claim decision and determining the amount to be subvened to local agencies and school districts for reimbursement pursuant to this section.

SEC. 34. Section 17570.1 is added to the Government Code, to read:

17570.1. As part of its review and consideration pursuant to Sections 17581 and 17581.5, the Legislature may, by statute, request that the Department of Finance consider exercising its authority pursuant to subdivision (c) of Section 17570.

SEC. 45. Section 50199.9 of the Health and Safety Code is amended to read:

50199.9. (a) The committee shall establish and charge fees which it determines are reasonably sufficient to cover all of the costs of the committee in carrying out its responsibilities under this chapter. The Tax Credit Allocation Fee Account is hereby established in the State Treasury. The fees shall be deposited by the committee in the Tax Credit Allocation Fee Account and shall be available, upon appropriation by the Legislature, to the committee for the purpose of covering all of those costs, except that fees may be shared, in an amount determined by the committee, with any state or local agency that assists the committee in performing its duties.

(b) Funds deposited in the Tax Credit Allocation Fee Account are continuously appropriated without regard to fiscal year for purposes of sharing with state and local agencies pursuant to subdivision (a).

(c) Until the time that sufficient fee revenue is received by the committee, the committee may borrow any money as may be required for the purpose of meeting necessary expenses of the operation of the committee, not to exceed the amount appropriated. Any loan made to the committee pursuant to this subdivision shall be repayable solely from moneys appropriated to the committee from the Tax Credit Allocation Fee Account and shall not constitute a general obligation for which the faith and credit of the state are pledged.

(d) There shall be established a subaccount within the Tax Credit Allocation Fee Account named the Occupancy Compliance Monitoring Account.

(e) Fees collected for the purpose of paying the costs of monitoring projects with allocations of tax credits for compliance with federal and state law, as required by Section 42(m) of the federal Internal Revenue Code, and Section 50199.15, shall be deposited in the Occupancy Compliance Monitoring Account to be used solely for this purpose. Any performance deposits forfeited to the committee shall be deposited in the Occupancy Compliance Monitoring Account.

(f) Notwithstanding any other law, the Controller may use the fees deposited in the accounts established by this section for daily cash flow loans to the General Fund or the General Cash Revolving Fund, as provided in Sections 16310 and 16381 of the Government Code.

SEC. 46. Section 62.9 of the Labor Code is amended to read:

62.9. (a) (1) The director shall levy and collect assessments from employers in accordance with this section. The total amount of the assessment collected shall be the amount determined by the director to be necessary to produce the revenue sufficient to fund the programs specified by Section 62.7, except that the amount assessed in any year for those purposes shall not exceed 50 percent of the amounts appropriated from the General Fund for the support of the occupational safety and health program for the 1993–94 fiscal year, adjusted for inflation. The director also shall include in the total assessment amount the department's costs for administering the assessment, including the collections process and the cost of reimbursing the Franchise Tax Board or another agency or department for its cost of collection activities pursuant to subdivision (c).

(2) The insured employers and private sector self-insured employers that, pursuant to subdivision (b), are subject to assessment shall be assessed, respectively, on the basis of their annual payroll subject to premium charges or their annual payroll that would be subject to premium charges if the employer were insured, as follows:

(A) An employer with a payroll of less than two hundred fifty thousand dollars ($250,000) shall be assessed one hundred dollars ($100).

(H) An employer with a payroll of more than two million five hundred thousand dollars ($2,500,000), but not more than three million five hundred thousand dollars ($3,500,000), shall be assessed two thousand dollars ($2,000).

(I) An employer with a payroll of more than three million five hundred thousand dollars ($3,500,000), but not more than four million five hundred

(M) An employer with a payroll of more than twenty million dollars ($20,000,000) shall be assessed ten thousand dollars ($10,000).

(b) (1) In the manner as specified by this section, the director shall identify those insured employers having a workers' compensation experience modification rating of 1.25 or more, and private sector self-insured employers having an equivalent experience modification rating of 1.25 or more as determined pursuant to subdivision (e).

(2) The assessment required by this section shall be levied annually, on a calendar year basis, on those insured employers and private sector self-insured employers, as identified pursuant to paragraph (1), having the highest workers' compensation experience modification ratings or equivalent experience modification ratings, that the director determines to be required numerically to produce the total amount of the assessment to be collected pursuant to subdivision (a).

(c) The director shall collect the assessment from insured employers as follows:

(1) Upon the request of the director, the Department of Insurance shall direct the licensed rating organization designated as the department's statistical agent to provide to the director, for purposes of subdivision (b), a list of all insured employers having a workers' compensation experience rating modification of 1.25 or more, according to the organization's records at the time the list is requested, for policies commencing the year preceding the year in which the assessment is to be collected.

(2) The director shall determine the annual payroll of each insured employer subject to assessment from the payroll that was reported to the licensed rating organization identified in paragraph (1) for the most recent period for which one full year of payroll information is available for all insured employers.

(3) On or before September 1 of each year, the director shall determine each of the current insured employers subject to assessment, and the amount of the total assessment for which each insured employer is liable. The director immediately shall notify each insured employer, in a format chosen by the insurer, of the insured's obligation to submit payment of the assessment to the director within 30 days after the date the billing was mailed, and warn the insured of the penalties for failure to make timely and full payment as provided by this subdivision.

(4) The director shall identify any insured employers that, within 30 days after the mailing of the billing notice, fail to pay, or object to, their assessments. The director shall mail to each of these employers a notice of delinquency and a notice of the intention to assess penalties, advising that, if the assessment is not paid in full within 15 days after the mailing of the notices, the director will levy against the employer a penalty equal to 25 percent of the employer's assessment, and will refer the assessment and penalty to the Franchise Tax Board or another agency or department for collection. The notices required by this paragraph shall be sent by United States first-class mail.

(5) If an assessment is not paid by an insured employer within 15 days after the mailing of the notices required by paragraph (4), the director shall refer the delinquent assessment and the penalty to the Franchise Tax Board, or another agency or department, as deemed appropriate by the director, for collection pursuant to Section 19290.1 of the Revenue and Taxation Code, or Section 1900 of the Unemployment Insurance Code.

(d) The director shall collect the assessment directly from private sector self-insured employers. The failure of any private sector self-insured employer to pay the assessment as billed constitutes grounds for the suspension or termination of the employer's certificate to self-insure.

(e) The director shall adopt regulations implementing this section that include provision for a method of determining experience modification ratings for private sector self-insured employers that is generally equivalent to the modification ratings that apply to insured employers and is weighted by both severity and frequency.

(f) The director shall determine whether the amount collected pursuant to any assessment exceeds expenditures, as described in subdivision (a), for the current year and shall credit the amount of any excess to any deficiency in the prior year's assessment or, if there is no deficiency, against the assessment for the subsequent year.

SEC. 47. Section 1771.3 of the Labor Code is amended to read:

1771.3. (a) (1) The State Public Works Enforcement Fund is hereby created as a special fund in the State Treasury. Notwithstanding Section 13340 of the Government Code, moneys in the fund shall be continuously appropriated for the purposes the Department of Industrial Relations' enforcement of prevailing wage requirements applicable to public works pursuant to this chapter, and labor compliance enforcement as set forth in subdivision (b) of Section 1771.55, and shall not be used or borrowed for any other purpose.

(2) The Director of Industrial Relations, with the approval of the Director of Finance, shall determine and assess a fee on any awarding body using funds derived from any bond issued by the state to fund public works projects, in an amount not to exceed one-fourth of 1 percent of the bond proceeds. The fee shall be set to cover the expenses of the Department of Industrial Relations for administering the prevailing wage requirements on public works projects using those bond funds. The fee shall be payable by the board, commission, department, agency, or official responsible for the allocation of bond proceeds from the bond funds awarded to each project at the time the funds are released to the project or other such time the Department of Industrial Relations and the entity responsible for allocation of the bond proceeds may agree. All fees collected pursuant to this section shall be deposited in the State Public Works Enforcement Fund, and shall be used only for enforcement of prevailing wage requirements on projects using bond funds and other projects for which awarding bodies pay into the fund. The administration and enforcement of prevailing wage requirements is an administrative expense associated with public works construction.

(b) The fee imposed by this section shall not apply to any contract awarded prior to the effective date of regulations adopted by the department pursuant to paragraph (2) of subdivision (b) of Section 1771.55.

(c) The department shall report to the Legislature, not later than March 1, 2011, on its administration of the State Public Works Enforcement Fund, and the prevailing wage enforcement activities undertaken by the department utilizing that funding.

SEC. 48. Section 1771.5 of the Labor Code is amended to read:

1771.5. (a) Notwithstanding Section 1771, an awarding body may not require the payment of the general prevailing rate of per diem wages or the general prevailing rate of per diem wages for holiday and overtime work for any public works project of twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000) or less when the project is for construction work, or for any public works project of fifteen thousand dollars ($15,000) or less when the project is for alteration, demolition, repair, or maintenance work, if the awarding body elects to initiate and enforce a labor compliance program pursuant to subdivision (b) for every public works project under the authority of the awarding body.

(b) For purposes of this section, a labor compliance program shall include, but not be limited to, the following requirements:

(1) All bid invitations and public works contracts shall contain appropriate language concerning the requirements of this chapter.

(2) A prejob conference shall be conducted with the contractor and subcontractors to discuss federal and state labor law requirements applicable to the contract.

(3) Project contractors and subcontractors shall maintain and furnish, at a designated time, a certified copy of each weekly payroll containing a statement of compliance signed under penalty of perjury.

(4) The awarding body shall review, and, if appropriate, audit payroll records to verify compliance with this chapter.

(5) The awarding body shall withhold contract payments when payroll records are delinquent or inadequate.

(6) The awarding body shall withhold contract payments equal to the amount of underpayment and applicable penalties when, after investigation, it is established that underpayment has occurred.

(c) For purposes of this chapter, "labor compliance program" means a labor compliance program that is approved, as specified in state regulations, by the Director of the Department of Industrial Relations.

(d) For purposes of this chapter, the Director of the Department of Industrial Relations may revoke the approval of a labor compliance program in the manner specified in state regulations.

1771.7. (a) (1) An awarding body that chooses to use funds derived from either the Kindergarten-University Public Education Facilities Bond Act of 2002 or the Kindergarten-University Public Education Facilities Bond Act of 2004 for a public works project, shall initiate and enforce, or contract with a third party to initiate and enforce, a labor compliance program, as described in subdivision (b) of Section 1771.5, with respect to that public works project.

(2) If an awarding body described in paragraph (1) chooses to contract with a third party to initiate and enforce a labor compliance program for a project described in paragraph (1), that third party shall not review the payroll records of its own employees or the employees of its subcontractors, and the awarding body or an independent third party shall review these payroll records for purposes of the labor compliance program.

(b) This section applies to public works that commence on or after April 1, 2003. For purposes of this subdivision, work performed during the design and preconstruction phases of construction, including, but not limited to, inspection and land surveying work, does not constitute the commencement of a public work.

(c) (1) For purposes of this section, if any campus of the California State University chooses to use the funds described in subdivision (a), then the "awarding body" is the Chancellor of the California State University. For purposes of this subdivision, if the chancellor is required by subdivision (a) to initiate and enforce, or to contract with a third party to initiate and enforce, the labor compliance program described in that subdivision, then in addition to the requirements imposed upon an awarding body by subdivision (b) of Section 1771.5, the Chancellor of the California State University shall review the payroll records described in paragraphs (3) and (4) of subdivision (b) of Section 1771.5 on at least a monthly basis to ensure the awarding body's compliance with the labor compliance program.

(2) For purposes of this subdivision, if an awarding body described in subdivision (a) is the University of California or any campus of that university, and that awarding body is required by subdivision (a) to initiate and enforce, or to contract with a third party to initiate and enforce, the labor compliance program described in that subdivision, then in addition to the requirements imposed upon an awarding body by subdivision (b) of Section 1771.5, the payroll records described in paragraphs (3) and (4) of subdivision (b) of Section 1771.5 shall be reviewed on at least a monthly basis to ensure the awarding body's compliance with the labor compliance program.

(d) (1) An awarding body described in subdivision (a) shall make a written finding that the awarding body has initiated and enforced, or has contracted with a third party to initiate and enforce, the labor compliance program described in subdivision (a).

(2) (A) If an awarding body described in subdivision (a) is a school district, the governing body of that district shall transmit to the State Allocation Board, in the manner determined by that board, a copy of the finding described in paragraph (1).

(B) The State Allocation Board shall not release the funds described in subdivision (a) to an awarding body that is a school district until the State Allocation Board has received the written finding described in paragraph (1).

(C) If the State Allocation Board conducts a postaward audit procedure with respect to an award of the funds described in subdivision (a) to an awarding body that is a school district, the State Allocation Board shall verify, in the manner determined by that board, that the school district has complied with the requirements of this subdivision.

(3) If an awarding body described in subdivision (a) is a community college district, the Chancellor of the California State University, or the office of the President of the University of California or any campus of the University of California, that awarding body shall transmit, in the manner determined by the Director of the Department of Industrial Relations, a copy of the finding described in paragraph (1) to the director of that department, or the director of any successor agency that is responsible for the oversight of employee wage and employee work hours laws.

(e) Notwithstanding Section 17070.63 of the Education Code, for purposes of this act, the State Allocation Board shall increase the grant amounts as described in Chapter 12.5 (commencing with Section 17070.10) of Part 10 of Division 1 of Title 1 of the Education Code to accommodate the state's share of the increased costs of a new construction or modernization project due to the initiation and enforcement of the labor compliance program.

(f) This section shall not apply to a contract awarded on or after the latter of the effective date of regulations adopted by the Department of Industrial Relations pursuant to paragraph (2) of subdivision (b) of Section 1771.55 or the effective date of the fees adopted by the department pursuant to Section 1771.75.

SEC. 50. Section 1771.75 of the Labor Code is amended to read:

1771.75. (a) An awarding body that chooses to use funds derived from either the Kindergarten-University Public Education Facilities Bond Act of 2002 or the Kindergarten-University Public Education Facilities Bond Act of 2004 for a public works project, shall pay a fee to the Department of Industrial Relations, in an amount that the department shall establish, and as it may from time to time amend, in an amount not to exceed one-fourth of 1 percent of the bond proceeds, sufficient to support the department's costs in ensuring compliance with and enforcing prevailing wage requirements on the project, and labor compliance enforcement as set forth in subdivision (b) of Section 1771.55. All fees collected pursuant to this subdivision shall be deposited in the State Public Works Enforcement Fund created by Section 1771.3, and shall be used only for enforcement of prevailing wage requirements on those projects. The department may waive the fee set forth in this section for an awarding body that has previously been granted approval by the director to initiate and operate a labor compliance program on the awarding body's projects, and requests to continue to operate that labor compliance program on its projects in lieu of labor compliance by the department pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 1771.55. This fee shall not be waived for an awarding body that contracts with a third party to initiate and enforce labor compliance programs on the awarding body's projects.

(b) This section applies to public works that commence on or after April 1, 2003. For purposes of this subdivision, work performed during the design and preconstruction phases of construction, including, but not limited to, inspection and land surveying work, does not constitute the commencement of a public work.

(c) (1) For purposes of this section, if any campus of the California State University chooses to use the funds described in subdivision (a), then the awarding body is the Chancellor of the California State University and the chancellor is required by subdivision (a) to pay a fee to the Department of Industrial Relations.

(2) For purposes of this subdivision, if an awarding body described in subdivision (a) is the University of California or any campus of that university, and that awarding body is required by subdivision (a) to pay a fee to the Department of Industrial Relations, then the university shall review the payroll records on at least a monthly basis to ensure the university's compliance with prevailing wage obligations.

(d) The State Allocation Board shall notify the Department of Industrial Relations of awarding bodies that are awarded funds subject to the fee required by subdivision (a).

(e) Notwithstanding Section 17070.63 of the Education Code, for purposes of this section, the State Allocation Board shall increase the grant amounts as described in Chapter 12.5 (commencing with Section 17070.10) of Part 10 of Division 1 of Title 1 of the Education Code to accommodate the state's share of the increased costs of a new construction or modernization project due to the fee required to be paid to the Department of Industrial Relations to ensure compliance with and enforcement of prevailing wage laws on the project. The State Allocation Board shall pay the fee to the Department of Industrial Relations at the time bond funds are released to the awarding body. All fees collected pursuant to this subdivision shall be deposited in the State Public Works Enforcement Fund created by Section 1771.3.

(f) This section shall only apply to a contract awarded on or after both the effective date of the department's adoption of the fee set forth in subdivision (a) and of regulations pursuant to paragraph (2) of subdivision (b) of Section 1771.55.

SEC. 51. Section 1771.8 of the Labor Code is amended to read:

1771.8. (a) The body awarding any contract for a public works project financed in any part with funds made available by the Water Security, Clean Drinking Water, Coastal and Beach Protection Act of 2002 (Division 26.5 (commencing with Section 79500) of the Water Code) shall adopt and enforce, or contract with a third party to adopt and enforce, a labor compliance program pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 1771.5 for application to that public works project.

(b) This section shall become operative only if the Water Security, Clean Drinking Water, Coastal and Beach Protection Act of 2002 (Division 26.5 (commencing with Section 79500) of the Water Code) is approved by the voters at the November 5, 2002, statewide general election.

(c) This section shall not apply to a contract awarded on or after the latter of the effective date of the regulations adopted by the Department of Industrial Relations pursuant to paragraph (2) of subdivision (b) of Section 1771.55 or the effective date of the fees adopted by the department pursuant to Section 1771.85.

SEC. 52. Section 1777.5 of the Labor Code is amended to read:

1777.5. (a) Nothing in this chapter shall prevent the employment of properly registered apprentices upon public works.

(b) Every apprentice employed upon public works shall be paid the prevailing rate of per diem wages for apprentices in the trade to which he or she is registered and shall be employed only at the work of the craft or trade to which he or she is registered.

(c) Only apprentices, as defined in Section 3077, who are in training under apprenticeship standards that have been approved by the Chief of the Division of Apprenticeship Standards and who are parties to written apprentice agreements under Chapter 4 (commencing with Section 3070) of Division 3 are eligible to be employed at the apprentice wage rate on public works. The employment and training of each apprentice shall be in accordance with either of the following:

(1) The apprenticeship standards and apprentice agreements under which he or she is training.

(2) The rules and regulations of the California Apprenticeship Council.

(d) When the contractor to whom the contract is awarded by the state or any political subdivision, in performing any of the work under the contract, employs workers in any apprenticeable craft or trade, the contractor shall employ apprentices in at least the ratio set forth in this section and may apply to any apprenticeship program in the craft or trade that can provide apprentices to the site of the public work for a certificate approving the contractor under the apprenticeship standards for the employment and training of apprentices in the area or industry affected. However, the decision of the apprenticeship program to approve or deny a certificate shall be subject to review by the Administrator of Apprenticeship. The apprenticeship program or programs, upon approving the contractor, shall arrange for the dispatch of apprentices to the contractor. A contractor covered by an apprenticeship program's standards shall not be required to submit any additional application in order to include additional public works contracts under that program. "Apprenticeable craft or trade," as used in this section, means a craft or trade determined as an apprenticeable occupation in accordance with rules and regulations prescribed by the California Apprenticeship Council. As used in this section, "contractor" includes any subcontractor under a contractor who performs any public works not excluded by subdivision (o).

(e) Prior to commencing work on a contract for public works, every contractor shall submit contract award information to an applicable apprenticeship program that can supply apprentices to the site of the public work. The information submitted shall include an estimate of journeyman hours to be performed under the contract, the number of apprentices proposed to be employed, and the approximate dates the apprentices would be employed. A copy of this information shall also be submitted to the awarding body if requested by the awarding body. Within 60 days after concluding work on the contract, each contractor and subcontractor shall submit to the awarding body, if requested, and to the apprenticeship program a verified statement of the journeyman and apprentice hours performed on the contract. The information under this subdivision shall be public. The apprenticeship programs shall retain this information for 12 months.

(f) The apprenticeship program that can supply apprentices to the area of the site of the public work shall ensure equal employment and affirmative action in apprenticeship for women and minorities.

(g) The ratio of work performed by apprentices to journeymen employed in a particular craft or trade on the public work may be no higher than the ratio stipulated in the apprenticeship standards under which the apprenticeship program operates where the contractor agrees to be bound by those standards, but, except as otherwise provided in this section, in no case shall the ratio be less than one hour of apprentice work for every five hours of journeyman work.

(h) This ratio of apprentice work to journeyman work shall apply during any day or portion of a day when any journeyman is employed at the jobsite and shall be computed on the basis of the hours worked during the day by journeymen so employed. Any work performed by a journeyman in excess of eight hours per day or 40 hours per week shall not be used to calculate the ratio. The contractor shall employ apprentices for the number of hours computed as above before the end of the contract or, in the case of a subcontractor, before the end of the subcontract. However, the contractor shall endeavor, to the greatest extent possible, to employ apprentices during the same time period that the journeymen in the same craft or trade are employed at the jobsite. Where an hourly apprenticeship ratio is not feasible for a particular craft or trade, the Chief of the Division of Apprenticeship Standards, upon application of an apprenticeship program, may order a minimum ratio of not less than one apprentice for each five journeymen in a craft or trade classification.

(i) A contractor covered by this section that has agreed to be covered by an apprenticeship program's standards upon the issuance of the approval certificate, or that has been previously approved for an apprenticeship program in the craft or trade, shall employ the number of apprentices or the ratio of apprentices to journeymen stipulated in the applicable apprenticeship standards, but in no event less than the 1-to-5 ratio required by subdivision (g).

(j) Upon proper showing by a contractor that he or she employs apprentices in a particular craft or trade in the state on all of his or her contracts on an annual average of not less than one hour of apprentice work for every five hours of labor performed by journeymen, the Chief of the Division of Apprenticeship Standards may grant a certificate exempting the contractor from the 1-to-5 hourly ratio, as set forth in this section for that craft or trade.

(k) An apprenticeship program has the discretion to grant to a participating contractor or contractor association a certificate, which shall be subject to the approval of the Administrator of Apprenticeship, exempting the contractor from the 1-to-5 ratio set forth in this section when it finds that any one of the following conditions is met:

(1) Unemployment for the previous three-month period in the area exceeds an average of 15 percent.

(2) The number of apprentices in training in the area exceeds a ratio of 1 to 5.

(3) There is a showing that the apprenticeable craft or trade is replacing at least one-thirtieth of its journeymen annually through apprenticeship training, either on a statewide basis or on a local basis.

(4) Assignment of an apprentice to any work performed under a public works contract would create a condition that would jeopardize his or her life or the life, safety, or property of fellow employees or the public at large, or the specific task to which the apprentice is to be assigned is of a nature that training cannot be provided by a journeyman.

(l) When an exemption is granted pursuant to subdivision (k) to an organization that represents contractors in a specific trade from the 1-to-5 ratio on a local or statewide basis, the member contractors shall not be required to submit individual applications for approval to local joint apprenticeship committees, if they are already covered by the local apprenticeship standards.

(m) (1) A contractor to whom a contract is awarded, who, in performing any of the work under the contract, employs journeymen or apprentices in any apprenticeable craft or trade shall contribute to the California Apprenticeship Council the same amount that the director determines is the prevailing amount of apprenticeship training contributions in the area of the public works site. A contractor may take as a credit for payments to the council any amounts paid by the contractor to an approved apprenticeship program that can supply apprentices to the site of the public works project. The contractor may add the amount of the contributions in computing his or her bid for the contract.

(2) At the conclusion of the 2002–03 fiscal year and each fiscal year thereafter, the California Apprenticeship Council shall distribute training contributions received by the council under this subdivision, less the expenses of the Division of Apprenticeship Standards for administering this subdivision, by making grants to approved apprenticeship programs for the purpose of training apprentices. The funds shall be distributed as follows:

(A) If there is an approved multiemployer apprenticeship program serving the same craft or trade and geographic area for which the training contributions were made to the council, a grant to that program shall be made.

(B) If there are two or more approved multiemployer apprenticeship programs serving the same craft or trade and geographic area for which the training contributions were made to the council, the grant shall be divided among those programs based on the number of apprentices registered in each program.

(C) All training contributions not distributed under subparagraphs (A) and (B) shall be used to defray the future expenses of the Division of Apprenticeship Standards.

(3) All training contributions received pursuant to this subdivision shall be deposited in the Apprenticeship Training Contribution Fund, which is hereby created in the State Treasury. Upon appropriation by the Legislature, all money in the Apprenticeship Training Contribution Fund shall be used for the purpose of carrying out this subdivision and to pay the expenses of the Division of Apprenticeship Standards.

(n) The body awarding the contract shall cause to be inserted in the contract stipulations to effectuate this section. The stipulations shall fix the responsibility of compliance with this section for all apprenticeable occupations with the prime contractor.

(o) This section does not apply to contracts of general contractors or to contracts of specialty contractors not bidding for work through a general or prime contractor when the contracts of general contractors or those specialty contractors involve less than thirty thousand dollars ($30,000).

(p) All decisions of an apprenticeship program under this section are subject to Section 3081.

(b) (1) To give effect to this section, a county, city, city and county, or special district shall require each such prospective employee or volunteer to complete an application that inquires as to whether or not that individual has been convicted of an offense specified in subdivision (a). The county, city, city and county, or special district shall screen, pursuant to Section 11105.3 of the Penal Code, any such prospective employee or volunteer, having supervisory or disciplinary authority over a minor, for that person's criminal background.

(2) A local agency request for Department of Justice records pursuant to this subdivision shall include the prospective employee's or volunteer's fingerprints, which may be taken by the local agency, and any other data specified by the Department of Justice. The request shall be made on a form approved by the Department of Justice. A fee shall not be charged to the local agency for requesting the records of a prospective volunteer pursuant to this subdivision.

(3) A county, city, city and county, or special district may charge a prospective employee or volunteer described in subdivision (a) a fee to cover all of the county, city, city and county, or special district's costs attributable to the requirements imposed by this section.

(c) The department shall implement the technical changes necessary to establish claims under the alternate base period specified in subdivision (b) as soon as possible, but no later than September 3, 2011.

The agreement shall specify the terms under which those items and interest shall become subject to collection by the department.

(2) The agreement shall also prescribe a procedure for the Department of Industrial Relations to reimburse the department for the costs of collection, and provide that the amount of any reimbursement shall not exceed the actual costs of collection, including court costs and reasonable attorney's fees. (d) (1) Notwithstanding subdivisions (a) and (c), for calendar years beginning prior to January 1, 1995, if in the 12-month period ending June 30 of the prior year the cumulative average payment made pursuant to this division or Section 1110, for eight-month periods, as defined under Section 6302 of the Internal Revenue Code and regulations thereunder, was fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) or more, the employer shall remit the total amount of income tax withheld within three banking days following the close of each eight-month period, as defined by Section 6302 of the Internal Revenue Code and regulations thereunder. For purposes of this subdivision, payment shall be made by electronic funds transfer in accordance with Section 13021.5, for one calendar year beginning on January 1. Payment is deemed complete on the date the electronic funds transfer is initiated if settlement to the state's demand account occurs on or before the banking day following the date the transfer is initiated. If settlement to the state's demand account does not occur on or before the banking day following the date the transfer is initiated, payment is deemed complete on the date settlement occurs. The department shall, on or before October 31 of the prior year, notify all employers required to make payment by electronic funds transfer of these requirements.

(2) Notwithstanding subdivisions (a) and (c), for calendar years beginning on or after January 1, 1995, if in the 12-month period ending June 30 of the prior year, the cumulative average payment made pursuant to this division or Section 1110 for any deposit periods, as defined under Section 6302 of the Internal Revenue Code and regulations thereunder, was twenty thousand dollars ($20,000) or more, the employer shall remit the total amount of income tax withheld within the number of banking days as specified for federal income taxes by Section 6302 of the Internal Revenue Code and regulations thereunder. For purposes of this subdivision, payment shall be made by electronic funds transfer in accordance with Section 13021.5, for one calendar year beginning on January 1. Payment is deemed complete on the date the electronic funds transfer is initiated if settlement to the state's demand account occurs on or before the banking day following the date the transfer is initiated. If settlement to the state's demand account does not occur on or before the banking day following the date the transfer is initiated, payment is deemed complete on the date settlement occurs. The department shall, on or before October 31 of the prior year, notify all employers required by this paragraph to make payments by electronic funds transfer of these requirements.

(3) Notwithstanding paragraph (2), effective January 1, 1995, electronic funds transfer payments that are subject to the one-day deposit rule, as defined by Section 6302 of the Internal Revenue Code and regulations thereunder, shall be deemed timely if the payment settles to the state's demand account within three banking days after the date the employer meets the threshold for the one-day deposit rule.

(4) Any taxpayer required to remit payments pursuant to paragraphs (1) and (2) may request from the department a waiver of those requirements. The department may grant a waiver only if it determines that the particular amounts paid in excess of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) or twenty thousand dollars ($20,000), as stated in paragraphs (1) and (2), respectively, were the result of an unprecedented occurrence for that employer, and were not representative of the employer's cumulative average payment in prior years.

(5) Any state agency required to remit payments pursuant to paragraphs (1) and (2) may request a waiver of those requirements from the department. The department may grant a waiver if it determines that there will not be a negative impact on the interest earnings of the General Fund. If there is a negative impact to the General Fund, the department may grant a waiver if the requesting state agency follows procedures designated by the department to mitigate the impact to the General Fund.

(e) Any employer not required to make payment pursuant to subdivision (d) of this section may elect to make payment by electronic funds transfer in accordance with Section 13021.5 under the following conditions:

(1) The election shall be made in a form, and shall contain information, as prescribed by the director, and shall be subject to approval by the department.

(2) If approved, the election shall be effective on the date specified in the notification to the employer of approval.

(3) The election shall be operative from the date specified in the notification of approval, and shall continue in effect until terminated by the employer or the department.

(4) Funds remitted by electronic funds transfer pursuant to this subdivision shall be deemed complete in accordance with subdivision (d) or as deemed appropriate by the director to encourage use of this payment method.

(f) Notwithstanding Section 1112, no interest or penalties shall be assessed against any employer who remits at least 95 percent of the amount required by subdivision (c) or (d) if the failure to remit the full amount is not willful and any remaining amount due is paid with the next payment. The director may allow any employer to submit the amounts due from multiple locations upon a showing that those submissions are necessary to comply with subdivision (c) or (d).

(g) The department may, if it believes that action is necessary, require any employer to make the report or return required by this section and pay to it the tax deducted and withheld at any time, or from time to time but no less frequently than provided for in subdivision (a).

(h) Any employer required to withhold any tax and who is not required to make payment under subdivision (c) shall remit the total amount of income tax withheld during each month of each calendar quarter, on or before the 15th day of the subsequent month if the income tax withheld for any of the three months or, cumulatively for two or more months, is three hundred fifty dollars ($350) or more.

(i) For purposes of subdivisions (a), (c), and (h), payment is deemed complete when it is placed in a properly addressed envelope, bearing the correct postage, and it is deposited in the United States mail.

(j) (1) In addition to the withholding report, quarterly return, and report of wages described in subdivision (a), each employer shall file with the director an annual reconciliation return showing the amount required to be withheld under Section 13020, and any other information the director shall prescribe. This annual reconciliation return shall be due on the first day of January following the close of the prior calendar year and shall become delinquent if not filed on or before the last day of that month.

(2) The requirement to file the annual reconciliation return for the prior calendar year under this subdivision shall not apply to the 2012 calendar year and thereafter.

(k) The requirement in subdivision (a) to file a quarterly return shall begin with the first calendar quarter of the 2011 calendar year.

Senate Bill No. 982

CHAPTER 203

An act to add Sections 56836.156 and 56836.157 to the Education Code, relating to special education, making an appropriation therefor, and declaring the urgency thereof, to take effect immediately.

[Approved by Governor August 12, 2001. Filed with Secretary of State August 13, 2001.]

LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL'S DIGEST

SB 982, O'Connell. Special education.

Existing law requires, if the Commission on State Mandates determines that an act contains costs mandated by the state, that reimbursement to local agencies and school districts for those costs be made, as specified.

Under existing law, every individual with exceptional needs, who is eligible to receive educational instruction, related services, or both, is required to receive educational instruction, services, or both, at no cost to his or her parents or, as appropriate, to him or her.

This bill would require the Superintendent of Public Instruction to perform specified computations with respect to special education local planning areas and affected pupils and to permanently increase the amount per unit of average daily attendance for those areas. The bill would also state that, commencing with the 2001–02 fiscal year, to the 2010–11 fiscal year, $25,000,000 shall be appropriated, on a one-time basis each fiscal year, for allocation to school districts pursuant to a prescribed calculation.

The bill would appropriate $100,000,000 in augmentation of Item 6110-161-0001 of Section 2.00 of the Budget Act of 2001 for the purposes of the actions taken by the superintendent, as stated above. The bill would appropriate $270,000,000 to the Superintendent of Public Instruction for allocation on a one-time basis to school districts, county offices of education, and special education local plan areas. The bill would also appropriate $25,000,000 in augmentation of Item 6110-161-0001 of Section 2.00 of the Budget Act of 2001 for purposes of making the first one-time allocation in each fiscal year for the 2001–02 fiscal year to school districts, as provided for above. The bill would state that the allocation of certain of those funds is in full satisfaction and in lieu of any reimbursable mandate claims relating to special education programs and services, as specified.

Section 8 of Article XVI of the California Constitution (Proposition 98) sets forth a formula for computing the minimum amount of General Fund revenues that the state is required to appropriate for the support of school districts, as defined, and community college districts for each fiscal year. That formula is adjusted in certain fiscal years for changes in pupil enrollment, as specified. Certain funds appropriated by this bill would be applied toward the minimum funding requirements for school districts and community college districts imposed by Section 8 of Article XVI of the California Constitution.

The bill would declare that it is to take effect immediately as an urgency statute.

Appropriation: yes.

The people of the State of California do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. The Legislature finds and declares that it is in the state's interest that legislation be enacted immediately to provide funding for special education and resolve a contested state mandate issue of 20-year standing. The Legislature anticipates that the Governor will request the enactment of the legislation prior to the enactment of the 2001–02 Budget Act.

SEC. 2. Section 56836.156 is added to the Education Code, to read:

56836.156. (a) The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall determine the statewide total average daily attendance used for the purposes of Section 56836.08 for the 2001–02 fiscal year. For the purposes of this calculation, the 2000–01 second principal average daily attendance for the court, community school, and special education programs served by the Los Angeles County Juvenile Court and Community School/Division of Alternative Education Special Education Local Plan Area shall be used in lieu of the average daily attendance used for that agency for the purposes of Section 56836.08.

(b) The superintendent shall divide one hundred million dollars ($100,000,000) by the amount determined pursuant to subdivision (a).

(c) For each special education local plan area, the superintendent shall permanently increase the amount per unit of average daily attendance determined pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 56836.08 for the 2001–02 fiscal year by the quotient determined pursuant to subdivision (b). This increase shall be effective beginning in the 2001–02 fiscal year.

(d) Notwithstanding subdivision (c), for the Los Angeles County Juvenile Court and Community School/Division of Alternative Education Special Education Local Plan Area, the superintendent shall permanently increase the amount per unit of average daily attendance determined pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 56836.08 by the ratio of the amount determined pursuant to subdivision (b) to the statewide target per unit of average daily attendance determined pursuant to Section 56836.11 for the 2000–01 fiscal year. This increase shall be effective beginning in the 2001–02 fiscal year.

(e) The superintendent shall increase the statewide target per unit of average daily attendance determined pursuant to Section 56836.11 for the 2001–02 fiscal year by the amount determined pursuant to subdivision (b).

(f) The funds provided in subdivisions (a) to (e), inclusive, shall be used for the costs of any state-mandated special education programs and services established pursuant to Sections 56000 to 56885, inclusive, and Sections 3000 to 4671, inclusive, of Title 5 of the California Code of Regulations, as those sections read on or before July 1, 2000. These funds shall be considered in full satisfaction of, and are in lieu of, any reimbursable mandate claims relating to special education programs and services, with the exception of the programs and services delineated in subdivision (g). By providing this funding, the state in no way concedes the existence of any unfunded special education reimbursable mandate. These funds shall be used exclusively for programs operated under this part and, as a first priority, for the following programs, which shall be deemed to be fully funded within the meaning of subdivision (e) of Section 17556 of the Government Code:

(1) Community advisory committees established pursuant to Sections 56190 to 56192, inclusive, and Section 56194, as these sections read on July 1, 2000.

(2) Governance structure established pursuant to subdivision (a) of Section 56195.3, as this section read on July 1, 2000.

(3) Enrollment caseloads established pursuant to subdivision (c) of Section 56362, and Section 56363.3, as these sections read on July 1, 2000.

(4) Extended school year established pursuant to subdivision (d) of Section 3043 of Title 5 of the California Code of Regulations, as this section read on July 1, 2000.

(5) Resource specialist program established pursuant to subdivisions (d), (e), and (f) of Section 56362, as this section read on July 1, 2000.

(6) Maximum age limit established pursuant to paragraph (4) of subdivision (c) of Section 56026, as this section read on July 1, 2000.

(7) Interim placements established pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 56325, as this section read on July 1, 2000, and Section 3067 of Title 5 of the California Code of Regulations, as this section read on December 31, 1994.

(8) Written consent established pursuant to Sections 56321 and 56346, as these sections read on July 1, 2000.

(9) Preschool transportation programs for ages 3 to 5, inclusive, not requiring intensive services (Not-RIS) established pursuant to Section 56441.14, as this section read on July 1, 2000.

(10) Special education for pupils ages 3 to 5, inclusive, and 18 to 21, inclusive, established pursuant to Section 56026, as this section read on July 1, 2000.

(11) With the exception of the programs delineated in subdivision (g), any other state-mandated special education programs and services established by Sections 56000 to 56885, inclusive, and Sections 3000 to 4671, inclusive, of Title 5 of the California Code of Regulations, as those sections read on or before July 1, 2000, whether or not such a mandate has been found by the Commission on State Mandates. Pursuant to subdivision (e) of Section 17556 of the Government Code, these funds shall be deemed to be additional revenue specifically intended to fund the costs of any such state-mandated special education programs and services.

(g) Notwithstanding subdivision (f), the following existing mandate test claim remains subject to the normal mandate procedure, including judicial review, if any: behavioral interventions established pursuant to Section 56523 and Sections 3001 and 3052 of Title 5 of the California Code of Regulations, as those sections read on July 1, 2000 (CSM-4464 filed by the San Diego Unified School District, the San Joaquin County Office of Education, and the Butte County Office of Education). The exclusion of this claim from subdivision (f) in no way constitutes a concession by the state that any unfunded special education mandate exists.

(h) Within the meaning of subdivision (e) of Section 17556 of the Government Code, the funds appropriated for purposes of this section are not specifically intended to fund any state-mandated special education programs and services resulting from amendments enacted after July 1, 2000, to any of the following statutes and regulations:

(1) The Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (20 U.S.C. Sec. 1400 et seq.), if the amendments result in circumstances where state law exceeds federal law.

(2) Federal regulations implementing the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (34 C.F.R. 300 and 303), if the amendments result in circumstances where state law exceeds federal law.

(3) Part 30 (commencing with Section 56000).

(4) Sections 3000 to 4671, inclusive, of Title 5 of the California Code of Regulations.

(i) State funds otherwise allocated to each special education local plan area pursuant to Chapter 7.2 (commencing with Section 56836) of Part 30 and appropriated through the annual Budget Act shall supplement and not supplant these funds.

SEC. 3. Section 56836.157 is added to the Education Code, to read:

56836.157. (a) Commencing with the 2001–02 fiscal year to the 2010–11 fiscal year, inclusive, the amount of twenty-five million dollars ($25,000,000) shall be appropriated, on a one-time basis each fiscal year, from the General Fund for allocation to school districts on a per pupil basis. The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall compute the amount per pupil by dividing twenty-five million dollars ($25,000,000) by the total average daily attendance, excluding attendance for regional occupational centers and programs, adult education, and programs operated by the county superintendents of schools, for all pupils in kindergarten through grade 12 in all school districts as used by the Superintendent of Public Instruction for the second principal apportionment for the 1999–2000 fiscal year. Each school district's allocation shall equal the per pupil amount times the district's average daily attendance as reported to the Superintendent of Public Instruction for the second principal apportionment for the 1999–2000 fiscal year. The amount allocated to each school district shall be the same in all subsequent fiscal years as it is in the first fiscal year.

(1) In any fiscal year in which the provisions of paragraph (3) of subdivision (b) of Section 8 of Article XVI of the California Constitution are operative, the annual appropriation shall not be required to be made.

(2) The Director of Finance shall notify, in writing, the fiscal committees of both houses of the Legislature, the Controller, and the Superintendent of Public Instruction no later than May 14 that the appropriation for the following fiscal year is not required, pursuant to paragraph (1). If an appropriation is not made for a specific fiscal year, or years, it shall instead be made in the fiscal year, or years, immediately succeeding the final payment pursuant to subdivision (a).

(b) (1) From the funds appropriated for purposes of this section in subdivision (b) of Section 4 of the act adding this section, the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall allocate the following:

(A) From the appropriation provided by subdivision (b) of Section 4 of the act adding this section, the amount of ten million eight hundred thousand dollars ($10,800,000) shall be allocated by the superintendent to county offices of education on an equal per pupil amount. The superintendent shall determine the per pupil amount by dividing ten million eight hundred thousand dollars ($10,800,000) by the total statewide county special education pupil count only, reported by county offices of education as of December 1999. The allotment for each county office of education shall be the per pupil amount times the county's special education pupil count reported as of December 1999.

(B) From the appropriation provided by subdivision (b) of Section 4 of the act adding this section, the amount of two million seven hundred thousand dollars ($2,700,000) shall be allocated by the superintendent to SELPAs that existed for the 1999–2000 fiscal year. The superintendent shall determine the amount of each agency's allotment by dividing the two million seven hundred thousand dollars ($2,700,000) by the total statewide special education pupil count as of December 1999. The allotment for each agency shall be the statewide per pupil amount times the SELPA's special education pupil count reported as of December 1999. The superintendent shall adjust the computations in such a manner as to ensure that the minimum allotment to each SELPA is at least ten thousand dollars ($10,000).

(C) From the appropriation provided by subdivision (b) of Section 4 of the act adding this section, the amount of six million dollars ($6,000,000) shall be allocated by the superintendent to the Riverside County Office of Education.

(2) The superintendent shall compute a per pupil amount from the balance of the appropriation provided by subdivision (b) of Section 4 of the act adding this section, after the appropriation has been reduced by the amounts in paragraph (1), by dividing the remaining portion of the appropriation by the total average daily attendance, excluding attendance for regional occupational centers and programs, adult education, and programs operated by the county superintendents of schools, for all pupils in kindergarten through grade 12 in all school districts as used by the Superintendent of Public Instruction for the second principal apportionment for the 1999–2000 fiscal year.

The superintendent shall apportion to each school district an amount equal to the per pupil amount times the district's reported average daily attendance for the second principal apportionment for the 1999–2000 fiscal year, excluding attendance for regional occupational centers and programs, adult education, and programs operated by the county superintendent of schools.

(c) The amounts appropriated by subdivisions (a) and (b) of Section 4 of the act adding this section are in full satisfaction and in lieu of mandate claims resulting from the Commission on State Mandates cases identified as (1) Riverside County Superintendent of Schools, et al., CSM-3986 on remand from the Superior Court of Sacramento County, No. 352795, and (2) Long Beach Unified School District, CSM-3986A (consolidated with the Santa Barbara County Superintendent of Schools, SB 90-3453).

SEC. 4. (a) The amount of one hundred million dollars ($100,000,000) is hereby appropriated from the General Fund in augmentation of Item 6110-161-0001 of Section 2.00 of the Budget Act of 2001 to the Superintendent of Public Instruction for the purposes of Section 56836.156 of the Education Code.

(b) (1) The amount of two hundred seventy million dollars ($270,000,000) is hereby appropriated from the General Fund to the Superintendent of Public Instruction for allocation on a one-time basis to school districts, county offices of education, and special education local plan areas (SELPAs), as specified in subdivision (b) of Section 56836.157 of the Education Code.

(2) For the purposes of making the computation required by Section 8 of Article XVI of the California Constitution, this appropriation shall be deemed to be ''General Fund revenues appropriated for school districts,'' as defined in subdivision (a) of Section 41202 of the Education Code, for the 1999–2000 fiscal year, and included with the ''total allocations to school districts and community college districts from General Fund proceeds of taxes appropriated pursuant to Article XIII B,'' as defined in subdivision (e) of Section 41202 of the Education Code, for the 1999–2000 fiscal year.

(c) The amount of twenty-five million dollars ($25,000,000) is hereby appropriated from the General Fund in augmentation of Item 6110-161-0001 of Section 2.00 of the Budget Act of 2001 for purposes of making the first one-time allocation in each fiscal year for the 2001–02 fiscal year, as required by subdivision (a) of Section 56836.157 of the Education Code.

SEC. 5. This act is an urgency statute necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health, or safety within the meaning of Article IV of the Constitution and shall go into immediate effect. The facts constituting the necessity are:

In order to alleviate the fiscal hardship to local educational agencies caused by persistent shortfalls in federal funding for special education; to increase state funding for the special education program, thereby reducing encroachment; to facilitate the settlement of current litigation regarding those programs and the funding thereof; to obviate new litigation; and to resolve related school finance issues, it is necessary for this act to take effect immediately.

NOTES OF DECISIONS

1. Construction

This chapter is a remedial statute and should be broadly applied and liberally construed in favor of providing appropriate education to handicapped students. Espino v. Besteiro, S.D.Tex.1981, 520 F.Supp. 905. Schools 148(2.1)

2. Rules and regulations

Regulation promulgated by Secretary of Education excluding from definition of medical services, which schools are not required to provide under this chapter except for purposes of diagnosis or evaluation, the services of a school nurse otherwise qualifying as a related service was reasonable interpretation of congressional intent. Irving Independent School Dist. v. Tatro, U.S.Tex.1984, 104 S.Ct. 3371, 468 U.S. 883, 82 L.Ed.2d 664, on remand 741 F.2d 82. Schools 148(4)

Department of Education regulations excluding mapping of cochlear implants from "audiology services" within list of related services were not contrary to the plain language of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA); "audiology services" as used in "related services" provision of IDEA was ambiguous as to whether it encompassed the full panoply of services that might be described as audiology services in other contexts, and agency's mapping regulations embodied a permissible statutory construction which was rationally related to the purposes of the IDEA. Petit v. U.S. Dept. of Educ., C.A.D.C.2012, 675 F.3d 769. Schools 148(4)

School districts did not fail to comply with Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) in failing to provide handicapped student with coordinated plan of transition or vocational services that were required under regulations not in existence at time student was receiving transition services. A new Massachusetts regulation barring the use of certain aversive interventions on students with disabilities did not render moot an appeal challenging a New York regulation prohibiting all aversive interventions on disabled New York students who attended a Massachusetts residential facility, as violative of the IDEA, the Rehabilitation Act, due process, and equal protection; New York's prohibition on aversive interventions remained in effect and applicable to students. Bryant v. New York State Educ. Dept., C.A.2 (N.Y.) 2012, 2012 WL 3553361. Federal Courts 724

In determining whether student's Ehlers-Danlos Syndrome (EDS) adversely affected his educational performance, in school district's IDEA action challenging determination of Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that student was still in need of special education services, ALJ applied the wrong legal standard by concluding that the EDS adversely affected the student's educational performance because it caused him to experience pain and fatigue which could affect his educational performance; the correct formulation of the test was not whether something in the abstract could adversely affect the student's educational performance, but whether in reality it did. Allegations that student who was diagnosed with chronic fatigue syndrome and fibromyalgia had disabling physical ailments that limited her strength, vitality, and alertness and made it impossible for her to attend school, and as a result of her inability to attend classes, she required special education in the form of home instruction, was sufficient to support claim that student was a “disabled child” within the meaning of the IDEA. Weixel v. Board of Educ. of City of New York, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 2002, 287 F.3d 138. Schools 148(2.1)

Child suffered from a “serious emotional disturbance” within the meaning of the relevant state and federal regulations, so as to be entitled to free appropriate education under IDEA, and not from mere conduct disorder, where record clearly established that child displayed an inability to learn that was not explained solely by intellectual, sensory, or health factors, and also exhibited both a generally pervasive mood of unhappiness or depression and inappropriate types of behavior or feelings under normal circumstances, both for a long period of time and to a marked degree. Child with orthopedic impairment caused by her cerebral palsy had disability within the meaning of IDEA which adversely affected her educational performance and, thus, school was required to develop individualized education program (IEP) for child which included transition services; child's unique needs included slowness and fatigue when writing and stiffness and lack of dexterity in her right hand and to meet these needs teachers shortened or modified length and nature of her writing assignments, provided her with copies of their notes, and taught her how to type using only her left hand and first finger of her right hand. High school student who suffered from Asperger's Syndrome, attention deficit hyperactivity disorder, and anxiety disorder was "child with a disability" as defined by Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA). Student's psychological disorders and learning disabilities, including attention deficit hyperactivity disorder (ADHD) and Asperger's syndrome, did not adversely affect her academic performance, and thus student did not qualify for special education services under Individuals With Disabilities Education Act (IDEA); student was high performing student throughout her public school years, and in seventh grade, before her parents enrolled her in private school, she continued to excel, as evidenced by her 90.5 grade average, and neuro-psychologist retained by parents to evaluate her at onset of seventh grade determined that her academic skills were strong, with reading comprehension and written expression at eighth grade level and math at twelfth grade level. Determination whether student's disability adversely affects his or her "educational performance," as required for student to be eligible for special education benefits under IDEA, is to be assessed by reference to student's academic performance as the principal, if not only, guiding factor, rather than by reference to emotional or behavioral troubles caused by disability. Administrative law judge's determination that student's health issues, which included Ehlers-Danlos Syndrome, had adverse effect on educational performance, as required for services under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) and Wisconsin law, was supported by preponderance of evidence and was not clearly erroneous, although there was evidence that student was performing within average range and had made improvement; tests showed student's body coordination, strength, and agility were below average to low average, and that student would need physical therapy and modifications to physical activities, student's physicians stated that joint instability and resulting pain and fatigue would affect student's ability to perform certain activities fully and safely, and recommended restricting or modifying student's activities at school, and judge included string citations from administrative record that supported decision, including citations to private physical therapist's testimony and psychologist's testimony. Marshall Joint School Dist. No. 2 v. C.D. ex rel. Brian D., W.D.Wis.2009, 592 F.Supp.2d 1059, reversed and remanded 616 F.3d 632, rehearing and rehearing en banc denied. Schools 155.5(4)

Student with diabetes mellitus, adjustment disorder, and social anxiety disorder was not a "child with a disability" under federal or state law, as would qualify her for special education and related benefits under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA); although student was being treated for diabetes and had been treated at times for emotional problems, those conditions did not affect her educational performance to extent that she required special services and programs, and until student stopped attending classes and making up her work, she was achieving well and did not need specialized instruction. Fact that college applicant was diagnosed and classified as having a "perceptual impairment," pursuant to state law and the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), and that, as a result, received special education services under an individualized education program (IEP) for many years, did not establish as a matter of law that he was disabled within the meaning of Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) and Rehabilitation Act. Child's Asperger's Syndrome adversely affected her educational performance, as required for special education services under IDEA, even though she excelled academically and her behavior for most part was nondisruptive, inasmuch as she experienced problems that were considered under Maine regulations to be related to "educational performance," in that she was withdrawn from peers, had communication deficits, was inflexible, and mutilated herself during school time, demonstrating failure to understand relationship between healthy behaviors and injury prevention. Junior high school student diagnosed with attention deficit disorder (ADD) who was enrolled in magnet program for gifted children but who skipped class, failed to do homework, smoked dope, and neglected to take his ADD medication did not need special education, and thus, was not a "child with a disability" within meaning of Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), even if he was "other health impaired and emotionally disturbed" as also set forth in the definition; rather, what he needed was to commit to doing homework and regularly attending classes. Minor who had been sexually abused by relative during his freshman year of high school and experienced slight decline in academic performance during his sophomore year concomitant with increasing drug use was not a "child with a disability" under IDEA and federal regulations or a "student with a disability" under New York regulations because he did not meet requirements for having an "emotional disturbance"; it was not clear he suffered from inability to learn over long period of time or to marked degree despite highly traumatic experience he suffered, he did not have difficulty building or maintaining satisfactory interpersonal relationships with peers and teachers, though his heightened aggression and worsening substance abuse problem did not represent behavior that could be considered appropriate under normal circumstances they were not enough, without more, to qualify him for classification as emotionally disturbed, and record did not persuasively demonstrate he exhibited generally pervasive mood of unhappiness or depression for long period of time and to marked degree. Individualized education plan (IEP) providing for oral hearing impaired child's school day to be divided between mainstream instruction in public school and total communication program at school for deaf, with cued speech interpreter provided at each facility, was "free appropriate education" within meaning of IDEA; placement in full-time oral program for hearing impaired at school for deaf was not required. Brougham by Brougham v. Town of Yarmouth, D.Me.1993, 823 F.Supp. 9. Schools 154(4)

Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) requires school districts to supplement their resources in order to meet special needs of children with disabilities, but does not require every conceivable supplementary aid or service to assist child; school districts must provide services of physical, occupational and speech therapists and must assign supplementary teacher's aide to regular classroom, on full-time or part-time basis, if necessary to accommodate children's special needs. Oberti by Oberti v. Board of Educ. of Borough of Clementon School Dist., D.N.J.1992, 789 F.Supp. 1322. Schools 148(2.1)

Free appropriate education, as contemplated by Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), requires personalized instruction with sufficient support services to permit child to benefit educationally from that instruction. Straube v. Florida Union Free School Dist., S.D.N.Y.1991, 778 F.Supp. 774. Schools 148(2.1)

11. Individual education plan

School district acted in good faith when it relied on current staff members to carry out individualized education programs (IEP) for disabled student during his third-grade year without giving those staff members additional training; earlier IEPs that had correlated with significant progress were carried out by staff with about the same level of training. Alex R., ex rel. Beth R. v. Forrestville Valley Community Unit School Dist. No. 221, C.A.7 (Ill.) 2004, 375 F.3d 603, certiorari denied 125 S.Ct. 628, 543 U.S. 1009, 160 L.Ed.2d 474. Schools 148(2.1)

More stringent individual education plan (IEP) standard of Massachusetts law was applicable in federal court on appeal from state hearing officer's decision, as IDEA incorporated by reference state IEP standards insofar as they were not inconsistent with federal rights. 12. Related services

Continuous nursing services required by quadriplegic, ventilator-dependent student were "related services" that had to be provided by school district during school hours, under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), because such services were supportive services but did not constitute medical services. Cedar Rapids Community School Dist. v. Garret F. ex rel. Charlene F., U.S.Iowa 1999, 119 S.Ct. 992, 526 U.S. 66, 161 A.L.R. Fed. 683, 143 L.Ed.2d 154. Schools 148(4)

School district's refusal to transport elementary school student, who suffered from epileptic seizures, to day care center outside her designated "cluster site" boundary after school did not violate the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), where parent's request for such transportation was made for personal reasons unrelated to student's educational needs. Fick ex rel. Fick v. Sioux Falls School Dist. 49-5, C.A.8 (S.D.) 2003, 337 F.3d 968, rehearing and rehearing en banc denied. Schools 159.5(4)

Hospital charges incurred by parents of disabled student when they were forced to commit student to a psychiatric hospital for several months, which occurred while Indiana Department of Education (IDOE) was processing individualized education plan (IEP) prepared by local school under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) which recommended that student be placed in a residential facility, were not for "education or related services," within meaning of IDEA, and thus were not reimbursable under agreed order settling class action, in which plaintiffs had alleged that delays in placements by IDOE violated IDEA. Butler v. Evans, C.A.7 (Ind.) 2000, 225 F.3d 887. Schools 154(3)

Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) requires transportation of disabled child as service related to child's special education if that service is necessary for child to benefit from special education, even if that child has no ambulatory impairment that directly causes unique need for some form of specialized transport; only education, not related services, had to correlate to "unique needs" associated with child's specific disability. Donald B. By and Through Christine B. v. Board of School Com'rs of Mobile County, Ala., C.A.11 (Ala.) 1997, 117 F.3d 1371. Schools 159.5(4)

Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) would require school district to provide psychological counseling services to disabled student, in event student were found in administrative proceeding to have suffered psychological damage from teacher's allegedly misconceived educational strategy; counseling services were among those required by IDEA to be provided if necessary to assist child with disability to benefit from special education, and student's request for monetary damages unavailable under IDEA would not remove proceeding from process mandated by IDEA. Charlie F. by Neil F. v. Board of Educ. of Skokie School Dist. 68, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1996, 98 F.3d 989. Schools 148(3)

Department of Education regulation excluding cochlear implant mapping as service covered under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) did not contravene IDEA, since mapping was not "related service" designed to meet disabled students' unique needs and prepare them for further education, employment, and independent living; regulation was necessary for agency's compliance with IDEA and did not substantively alter protections embodied in prior regulations, and agency properly determined that fitting of hearing devices did not include technical adjustments. Petit v. U.S. Dept. of Educ., D.D.C.2010, 756 F.Supp.2d 11, affirmed 675 F.3d 769. Schools 148(4)

School committee's individualized education programs (IEP) for high school student who suffered from Asperger's Syndrome, attention deficit hyperactivity disorder, and anxiety disorder were not reasonably calculated to confer meaningful benefit in critical area of independent living skills, thus depriving student of free and appropriate education (FAPE) under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) and Massachusetts law; although IEPs offered social skills class and direct services delivered by special education teacher to address student's organizational deficits, and student received meaningful academic benefit from that support, services were not reasonably calculated to supporting independent living out of high school, such as maintaining self-hygiene and learning transportation skills. Dracut School Committee v. Bureau of Special Educ. Appeals of the Massachusetts Dept. of Elementary and Secondary Educ., D.Mass.2010, 737 F.Supp.2d 35. Schools 148(3)

Although illegal drug use may impede student's ability to take advantage of educational opportunities, drug prevention or intervention by school are not type of "supportive services" required by IDEA in order to provide disabled student with free appropriate public education. Armstrong ex rel. Steffensen v. Alicante School, E.D.Cal.1999, 44 F.Supp.2d 1087. Schools 148(2.1)

The suctioning of a tracheostomy tube is a common, standard maintenance procedure that need not be performed by a physician and therefore is not a "medical service" excluded from school district's obligation to provide related services to disabled child, under the IDEA, even if a nurse is required to perform the procedure, and even if suctioning was to be considered a "medical" service based on Illinois regulations allegedly requiring that a licensed nurse provide the evaluative judgment during child's bus rides regarding whether suctioning was necessary, district was obligated to provide medical services that are "evaluative." Student whose speech impairment made him "child with a disability" under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) was entitled to weekly speech therapy. Mary P. v. Illinois State Bd. of Educ., N.D.Ill.1996, 919 F.Supp. 1173, amended 934 F.Supp. 989. Schools 148(2.1)

Under IDEA, handicapped school student was entitled to transportation, as related service to her individualized education program, from sidewalk of parochial school to her special education classes at public school; school district representatives had agreed that transportation was necessary due to student's lack of mobility, visual impairment and school location. Felter v. Cape Girardeau School Dist., E.D.Mo.1993, 810 F.Supp. 1062, on reconsideration. Schools 8; Schools 159.5(4)

13. Medical services

The phrase "medical services," as excepted from Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) definition of related services that must be provided to disabled child by school district, does not embrace all forms of care that might loosely be described as medical in other contexts, such as a claim for an income tax deduction, but refers to those services that must be performed by a physician. Cedar Rapids Community School Dist. v. Garret F. ex rel. Charlene F., U.S.Iowa 1999, 119 S.Ct. 992, 526 U.S. 66, 161 A.L.R. Fed. 683, 143 L.Ed.2d 154. Schools 148(4)

14. Transition services

Although handicapped student's individualized education plan (IEP) lacked explicit statement of transition services since it did not designate a specific outcome for child when he reached the age of 21 or contain specific set of activities for meeting that outcome, this procedural defect did not deny child free appropriate education under Individuals With Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) where child was not denied transitional services and benefitted from program with which he was provided and IEP completely complied with other requirements of IDEA. 16. Local education agency

Parochial school attended by student who suffered from hearing impairment and learning disability was not a "local education agency" (LEA) within meaning of IDEA, and thus was not subject to liability under IDEA in suit brought by student's parents. Ullmo ex rel. Ullmo v. Gilmour Academy, C.A.6 (Ohio) 2001, 273 F.3d 671. Schools 8

Department of Army was not state or local education agency subject to Individuals with Disabilities Act (IDEA), and thus Department of Defense was not required under IDEA to admit children into Domestic Dependent Elementary and Secondary Schools (DDESS) who lacked fundamental eligibility to attend those schools. 17. Charter schools

For-profit charter schools were ineligible for federal funding under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) and Elementary and Secondary Education Act (ESEA), which defined eligible schools as "nonprofit institutional day or residential school, including a public elementary charter school that provides elementary education, as determined under State law"; natural reading of statute established that only nonprofit schools were eligible for funding, to read statute as including for-profit charter schools would not be rational interpretation, and legislative history conveyed Congress's clear intent to exclude for-profit schools from funding. For-profit charter schools were not eligible to receive federal funds under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act (ESEA) and the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA); provisions of the statutes making nonprofit schools, "including charter schools," eligible for federal funding plainly required charter schools to be nonprofit to receive such funding. Title 20. Education
Chapter 33. Education of Individuals with Disabilities (Refs & Annos)
Subchapter II. Assistance for Education of All Children with Disabilities
§ 1411. Authorization; allotment; use of funds; authorization of appropriations

(a) Grants to States

(1) Purpose of grants

The Secretary shall make grants to States, outlying areas, and freely associated States, and provide funds to the Secretary of the Interior, to assist them to provide special education and related services to children with disabilities in accordance with this subchapter.

(2) Maximum amount

The maximum amount of the grant a State may receive under this section--

(A) for fiscal years 2005 and 2006 is--

(i) the number of children with disabilities in the State who are receiving special education and related services--

(I) aged 3 through 5 if the State is eligible for a grant under section 1419 of this title; and

(II) aged 6 through 21; multiplied by

(ii) 40 percent of the average per-pupil expenditure in public elementary schools and secondary schools in the United States; and

(B) for fiscal year 2007 and subsequent fiscal years is--

(i) the number of children with disabilities in the 2004-2005 school year in the State who received special education and related services--

(I) aged 3 through 5 if the State is eligible for a grant under section 1419 of this title; and

(II) aged 6 through 21; multiplied by

(ii) 40 percent of the average per-pupil expenditure in public elementary schools and secondary schools in the United States; adjusted by

(iii) the rate of annual change in the sum of--

(I) 85 percent of such State's population described in subsection (d)(3)(A)(i)(II); and

(II) 15 percent of such State's population described in subsection (d)(3)(A)(i)(III).

(b) Outlying areas and freely associated States; Secretary of the Interior

(1) Outlying areas and freely associated States

(A) Funds reserved

From the amount appropriated for any fiscal year under subsection (i), the Secretary shall reserve not more than 1 percent, which shall be used--

(i) to provide assistance to the outlying areas in accordance with their respective populations of individuals aged 3 through 21; and

(ii) to provide each freely associated State a grant in the amount that such freely associated State received for fiscal year 2003 under this subchapter, but only if the freely associated State meets the applicable requirements of this subchapter, as well as the requirements of section 1411(b)(2)(C) of this title as such section was in effect on the day before December 3, 2004.

(B) Special rule

The provisions of Public Law 95-134, permitting the consolidation of grants by the outlying areas, shall not apply to funds provided to the outlying areas or the freely associated States under this section.

(C) Definition

In this paragraph, the term “freely associated States” means the Republic of the Marshall Islands, the Federated States of Micronesia, and the Republic of Palau.

(2) Secretary of the Interior

From the amount appropriated for any fiscal year under subsection (i), the Secretary shall reserve 1.226 percent to provide assistance to the Secretary of the Interior in accordance with subsection (h).

(c) Technical assistance

(1) In general

The Secretary may reserve not more than 1/2 of 1 percent of the amounts appropriated under this subchapter for each fiscal year to provide technical assistance activities authorized under section 1416(i) of this title.

(2) Maximum amount

The maximum amount the Secretary may reserve under paragraph (1) for any fiscal year is $25,000,000, cumulatively adjusted by the rate of inflation as measured by the percentage increase, if any, from the preceding fiscal year in the Consumer Price Index For All Urban Consumers, published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the Department of Labor.

(d) Allocations to States

(1) In general

After reserving funds for technical assistance, and for payments to the outlying areas, the freely associated States, and the Secretary of the Interior under subsections (b) and (c) for a fiscal year, the Secretary shall allocate the remaining amount among the States in accordance with this subsection.

(2) Special rule for use of fiscal year 1999 amount

If a State received any funds under this section for fiscal year 1999 on the basis of children aged 3 through 5, but does not make a free appropriate public education available to all children with disabilities aged 3 through 5 in the State in any subsequent fiscal year, the Secretary shall compute the State's amount for fiscal year 1999, solely for the purpose of calculating the State's allocation in that subsequent year under paragraph (3) or (4), by subtracting the amount allocated to the State for fiscal year 1999 on the basis of those children.

(3) Increase in funds

If the amount available for allocations to States under paragraph (1) for a fiscal year is equal to or greater than the amount allocated to the States under this paragraph for the preceding fiscal year, those allocations shall be calculated as follows:

(A) Allocation of increase

(i) In general

Except as provided in subparagraph (B), the Secretary shall allocate for the fiscal year--

(I) to each State the amount the State received under this section for fiscal year 1999;

(II) 85 percent of any remaining funds to States on the basis of the States' relative populations of children aged 3 through 21 who are of the same age as children with disabilities for whom the State ensures the availability of a free appropriate public education under this subchapter; and

(III) 15 percent of those remaining funds to States on the basis of the States' relative populations of children described in subclause (II) who are living in poverty.

(ii) Data

For the purpose of making grants under this paragraph, the Secretary shall use the most recent population data, including data on children living in poverty, that are available and satisfactory to the Secretary.

(B) Limitations

Notwithstanding subparagraph (A), allocations under this paragraph shall be subject to the following:

(i) Preceding year allocation

No State's allocation shall be less than its allocation under this section for the preceding fiscal year.

(ii) Minimum

No State's allocation shall be less than the greatest of--

(I) the sum of--

(aa) the amount the State received under this section for fiscal year 1999; and

(bb) 1/3 of 1 percent of the amount by which the amount appropriated under subsection (i) for the fiscal year exceeds the amount appropriated for this section for fiscal year 1999;

(II) the sum of--

(aa) the amount the State received under this section for the preceding fiscal year; and

(bb) that amount multiplied by the percentage by which the increase in the funds appropriated for this section from the preceding fiscal year exceeds 1.5 percent; or

(III) the sum of--

(aa) the amount the State received under this section for the preceding fiscal year; and

(bb) that amount multiplied by 90 percent of the percentage increase in the amount appropriated for this section from the preceding fiscal year.

(iii) Maximum

Notwithstanding clause (ii), no State's allocation under this paragraph shall exceed the sum of--

(I) the amount the State received under this section for the preceding fiscal year; and

(II) that amount multiplied by the sum of 1.5 percent and the percentage increase in the amount appropriated under this section from the preceding fiscal year.

(C) Ratable reduction

If the amount available for allocations under this paragraph is insufficient to pay those allocations in full, those allocations shall be ratably reduced, subject to subparagraph (B)(i).

(4) Decrease in funds

If the amount available for allocations to States under paragraph (1) for a fiscal year is less than the amount allocated to the States under this section for the preceding fiscal year, those allocations shall be calculated as follows:

(A) Amounts greater than fiscal year 1999 allocations

If the amount available for allocations is greater than the amount allocated to the States for fiscal year 1999, each State shall be allocated the sum of--

(i) the amount the State received under this section for fiscal year 1999; and

(ii) an amount that bears the same relation to any remaining funds as the increase the State received under this section for the preceding fiscal year over fiscal year 1999 bears to the total of all such increases for all States.

(B) Amounts equal to or less than fiscal year 1999 allocations

(i) In general

If the amount available for allocations under this paragraph is equal to or less than the amount allocated to the States for fiscal year 1999, each State shall be allocated the amount the State received for fiscal year 1999.

(ii) Ratable reduction

If the amount available for allocations under this paragraph is insufficient to make the allocations described in clause (i), those allocations shall be ratably reduced.

(e) State-level activities

(1) State administration

(A) In general

For the purpose of administering this subchapter, including paragraph (3), section 1419 of this title, and the coordination of activities under this subchapter with, and providing technical assistance to, other programs that provide services to children with disabilities--

(i) each State may reserve for each fiscal year not more than the maximum amount the State was eligible to reserve for State administration under this section for fiscal year 2004 or $800,000 (adjusted in accordance with subparagraph (B)), whichever is greater; and

(ii) each outlying area may reserve for each fiscal year not more than 5 percent of the amount the outlying area receives under subsection (b)(1) for the fiscal year or $35,000, whichever is greater.

(B) Cumulative annual adjustments

For each fiscal year beginning with fiscal year 2005, the Secretary shall cumulatively adjust--

(i) the maximum amount the State was eligible to reserve for State administration under this subchapter for fiscal year 2004; and by the rate of inflation as measured by the percentage increase, if any, from the preceding fiscal year in the Consumer Price Index For All Urban Consumers, published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the Department of Labor.

(ii) $800,000,

(C) Certification

Prior to expenditure of funds under this paragraph, the State shall certify to the Secretary that the arrangements to establish responsibility for services pursuant to section 1412(a)(12)(A) of this title are current.

(D) Subchapter III

Funds reserved under subparagraph (A) may be used for the administration of subchapter III, if the State educational agency is the lead agency for the State under such subchapter.

(2) Other State-level activities

(A) State-level activities

(i) In general

Except as provided in clause (iii), for the purpose of carrying out State-level activities, each State may reserve for each of the fiscal years 2005 and 2006 not more than 10 percent from the amount of the State's allocation under subsection (d) for each of the fiscal years 2005 and 2006, respectively. For fiscal year 2007 and each subsequent fiscal year, the State may reserve the maximum amount the State was eligible to reserve under the preceding sentence for fiscal year 2006 (cumulatively adjusted by the rate of inflation as measured by the percentage increase, if any, from the preceding fiscal year in the Consumer Price Index For All Urban Consumers, published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the Department of Labor).

(ii) Small State adjustment

Notwithstanding clause (i) and except as provided in clause (iii), in the case of a State for which the maximum amount reserved for State administration is not greater than $850,000, the State may reserve for the purpose of carrying out State-level activities for each of the fiscal years 2005 and 2006, not more than 10.5 percent from the amount of the State's allocation under subsection (d) for each of the fiscal years 2005 and 2006, respectively. For fiscal year 2007 and each subsequent fiscal year, such State may reserve the maximum amount the State was eligible to reserve under the preceding sentence for fiscal year 2006 (cumulatively adjusted by the rate of inflation as measured by the percentage increase, if any, from the preceding fiscal year in the Consumer Price Index For All Urban Consumers, published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the Department of Labor).

(iii) Exception

If a State does not reserve funds under paragraph (3) for a fiscal year, then--

(I) in the case of a State that is not described in clause (ii), for fiscal year 2005 or 2006, clause (i) shall be applied by substituting “9.0 percent” for “10 percent”; and

(II) in the case of a State that is described in clause (ii), for fiscal year 2005 or 2006, clause (ii) shall be applied by substituting “9.5 percent” for “10.5 percent”.

(B) Required activities

Funds reserved under subparagraph (A) shall be used to carry out the following activities:

(i) For monitoring, enforcement, and complaint investigation.

(ii) To establish and implement the mediation process required by section 1415(e) of this title, including providing for the cost of mediators and support personnel.

(C) Authorized activities

Funds reserved under subparagraph (A) may be used to carry out the following activities:

(i) For support and direct services, including technical assistance, personnel preparation, and professional development and training.

(ii) To support paperwork reduction activities, including expanding the use of technology in the IEP process.

(iii) To assist local educational agencies in providing positive behavioral interventions and supports and appropriate mental health services for children with disabilities.

(iv) To improve the use of technology in the classroom by children with disabilities to enhance learning.

(v) To support the use of technology, including technology with universal design principles and assistive technology devices, to maximize accessibility to the general education curriculum for children with disabilities.

(vi) Development and implementation of transition programs, including coordination of services with agencies involved in supporting the transition of children with disabilities to postsecondary activities.

(vii) To assist local educational agencies in meeting personnel shortages.

(viii) To support capacity building activities and improve the delivery of services by local educational agencies to improve results for children with disabilities.

(ix) Alternative programming for children with disabilities who have been expelled from school, and services for children with disabilities in correctional facilities, children enrolled in State-operated or State-supported schools, and children with disabilities in charter schools.

(x) To support the development and provision of appropriate accommodations for children with disabilities, or the development and provision of alternate assessments that are valid and reliable for assessing the performance of children with disabilities, in accordance with sections 6311(b) and 7301 of this title.

(xi) To provide technical assistance to schools and local educational agencies, and direct services, including supplemental educational services as defined in 6316(e) of this title to children with disabilities, in schools or local educational agencies identified for improvement under section 6316 of this title on the sole basis of the assessment results of the disaggregated subgroup of children with disabilities, including providing professional development to special and regular education teachers, who teach children with disabilities, based on scientifically based research to improve educational instruction, in order to improve academic achievement to meet or exceed the objectives established by the State under section 6311(b)(2)(G) of this title.

(3) Local educational agency risk pool

(A) In general

(i) Reservation of funds

For the purpose of assisting local educational agencies (including a charter school that is a local educational agency or a consortium of local educational agencies) in addressing the needs of high need children with disabilities, each State shall have the option to reserve for each fiscal year 10 percent of the amount of funds the State reserves for State-level activities under paragraph (2)(A)--

(I) to establish and make disbursements from the high cost fund to local educational agencies in accordance with this paragraph during the first and succeeding fiscal years of the high cost fund; and

(II) to support innovative and effective ways of cost sharing by the State, by a local educational agency, or among a consortium of local educational agencies, as determined by the State in coordination with representatives from local educational agencies, subject to subparagraph (B)(ii).

(ii) Definition of local educational agency

In this paragraph the term "local educational agency" includes a charter school that is a local educational agency, or a consortium of local educational agencies.

(B) Limitation on uses of funds

(i) Establishment of high cost fund

A State shall not use any of the funds the State reserves pursuant to subparagraph (A)(i), but may use the funds the State reserves under paragraph (1), to establish and support the high cost fund.

(ii) Innovative and effective cost sharing

A State shall not use more than 5 percent of the funds the State reserves pursuant to subparagraph (A)(i) for each fiscal year to support innovative and effective ways of cost sharing among consortia of local educational agencies.

(C) State plan for high cost fund

(i) Definition

The State educational agency shall establish the State's definition of a high need child with a disability, which definition shall be developed in consultation with local educational agencies.

(ii) State plan

The State educational agency shall develop, not later than 90 days after the State reserves funds under this paragraph, annually review, and amend as necessary, a State plan for the high cost fund. Such State plan shall--

(I) establish, in coordination with representatives from local educational agencies, a definition of a high need child with a disability that, at a minimum--

(aa) addresses the financial impact a high need child with a disability has on the budget of the child's local educational agency; and

(bb) ensures that the cost of the high need child with a disability is greater than 3 times the average per pupil expenditure (as defined in section 7801 of this title) in that State;

(II) establish eligibility criteria for the participation of a local educational agency that, at a minimum, takes into account the number and percentage of high need children with disabilities served by a local educational agency;

(III) develop a funding mechanism that provides distributions each fiscal year to local educational agencies that meet the criteria developed by the State under subclause (II); and

(IV) establish an annual schedule by which the State educational agency shall make its distributions from the high cost fund each fiscal year.

(iii) Public availability

The State shall make its final State plan publicly available not less than 30 days before the beginning of the school year, including dissemination of such information on the State website.

(D) Disbursements from the high cost fund

(i) In general

Each State educational agency shall make all annual disbursements from the high cost fund established under subparagraph (A)(i) in accordance with the State plan published pursuant to subparagraph (C).

(ii) Use of disbursements

Each State educational agency shall make annual disbursements to eligible local educational agencies in accordance with its State plan under subparagraph (C)(ii).

(iii) Appropriate costs

The costs associated with educating a high need child with a disability under subparagraph (C)(i) are only those costs associated with providing direct special education and related services to such child that are identified in such child's IEP.

(E) Legal fees

The disbursements under subparagraph (D) shall not support legal fees, court costs, or other costs associated with a cause of action brought on behalf of a child with a disability to ensure a free appropriate public education for such child.

(F) Assurance of a free appropriate public education

Nothing in this paragraph shall be construed--

(i) to limit or condition the right of a child with a disability who is assisted under this subchapter to receive a free appropriate public education pursuant to section 1412(a)(1) of this title in the least restrictive environment pursuant to section 1412(a)(5) of this title; or

(ii) to authorize a State educational agency or local educational agency to establish a limit on what may be spent on the education of a child with a disability.

(G) Special rule for risk pool and high need assistance programs in effect as of January 1, 2004

Notwithstanding the provisions of subparagraphs (A) through (F), a State may use funds reserved pursuant to this paragraph for implementing a placement neutral cost sharing and reimbursement program of high need, low incidence, catastrophic, or extraordinary aid to local educational agencies that provides services to high need students based on eligibility criteria for such programs that were created not later than January 1, 2004, and are currently in operation, if such program serves children that meet the requirement of the definition of a high need child with a disability as described in subparagraph (C)(ii)(I).

(H) Medicaid services not affected

Disbursements provided under this paragraph shall not be used to pay costs that otherwise would be reimbursed as medical assistance for a child with a disability under the State medicaid program under title XIX of the Social Security Act [42 U.S.C.A. § 1396 et seq.].

(I) Remaining funds

Funds reserved under subparagraph (A) in any fiscal year but not expended in that fiscal year pursuant to subparagraph (D) shall be allocated to local educational agencies for the succeeding fiscal year in the same manner as funds are allocated to local educational agencies under subsection (f) for the succeeding fiscal year.

(4) Inapplicability of certain prohibitions

A State may use funds the State reserves under paragraphs (1) and (2) without regard to--

(A) the prohibition on commingling of funds in section 1412(a)(17)(B) of this title; and

(B) the prohibition on supplanting other funds in section 1412(a)(17)(C) of this title.

(5) Report on use of funds

As part of the information required to be submitted to the Secretary under section 1412 of this title, each State shall annually describe how amounts under this section--

(A) will be used to meet the requirements of this chapter; and

(B) will be allocated among the activities described in this section to meet State priorities based on input from local educational agencies.

(6) Special rule for increased funds

A State may use funds the State reserves under paragraph (1)(A) as a result of inflationary increases under paragraph (1)(B) to carry out activities authorized under clause (i), (iii), (vii), or (viii) of paragraph (2)(C).

(7) Flexibility in using funds for subchapter III

Any State eligible to receive a grant under section 1419 of this title may use funds made available under paragraph (1)(A), subsection (f)(3), or section 1419(f)(5) of this title to develop and implement a State policy jointly with the lead agency under subchapter III and the State educational agency to provide early intervention services (which shall include an educational component that promotes school readiness and incorporates preliteracy, language, and numeracy skills) in accordance with subchapter III to children with disabilities who are eligible for services under section 1419 of this title and who previously received services under subchapter III until such children enter, or are eligible under State law to enter, kindergarten, or elementary school as appropriate.

(f) Subgrants to local educational agencies

(1) Subgrants required

Each State that receives a grant under this section for any fiscal year shall distribute any funds the State does not reserve under subsection (e) to local educational agencies (including public charter schools that operate as local educational agencies) in the State that have established their eligibility under section 1413 of this title for use in accordance with this subchapter.

(2) Procedure for allocations to local educational agencies

For each fiscal year for which funds are allocated to States under subsection (d), each State shall allocate funds under paragraph (1) as follows:

(A) Base payments

The State shall first award each local educational agency described in paragraph (1) the amount the local educational agency would have received under this section for fiscal year 1999, if the State had distributed 75 percent of its grant for that year under section 1411(d) of this title as section 1411(d) was then in effect.

(B) Allocation of remaining funds

After making allocations under subparagraph (A), the State shall--

(i) allocate 85 percent of any remaining funds to those local educational agencies on the basis of the relative numbers of children enrolled in public and private elementary schools and secondary schools within the local educational agency's jurisdiction; and

(ii) allocate 15 percent of those remaining funds to those local educational agencies in accordance with their relative numbers of children living in poverty, as determined by the State educational agency.

(3) Reallocation of funds

If a State educational agency determines that a local educational agency is adequately providing a free appropriate public education to all children with disabilities residing in the area served by that local educational agency with State and local funds, the State educational agency may reallocate any portion of the funds under this subchapter that are not needed by that local educational agency to provide a free appropriate public education to other local educational agencies in the State that are not adequately providing special education and related services to all children with disabilities residing in the areas served by those other local educational agencies.

(g) Definitions

In this section:

(1) Average per-pupil expenditure in public elementary schools and secondary schools in the United States

The term “average per-pupil expenditure in public elementary schools and secondary schools in the United States” means--

(A) without regard to the source of funds--

(i) the aggregate current expenditures, during the second fiscal year preceding the fiscal year for which the determination is made (or, if satisfactory data for that year are not available, during the most recent preceding fiscal year for which satisfactory data are available) of all local educational agencies in the 50 States and the District of Columbia; plus

(ii) any direct expenditures by the State for the operation of those agencies; divided by

(B) the aggregate number of children in average daily attendance to whom those agencies provided free public education during that preceding year.

(2) State

The term “State” means each of the 50 States, the District of Columbia, and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico.

(h) Use of amounts by Secretary of the Interior

(1) Provision of amounts for assistance

(A) In general

The Secretary of Education shall provide amounts to the Secretary of the Interior to meet the need for assistance for the education of children with disabilities on reservations aged 5 to 21, inclusive, enrolled in elementary schools and secondary schools for Indian children operated or funded by the Secretary of the Interior. The amount of such payment for any fiscal year shall be equal to 80 percent of the amount allotted under subsection (b)(2) for that fiscal year. Of the amount described in the preceding sentence--

(i) 80 percent shall be allocated to such schools by July 1 of that fiscal year; and

(ii) 20 percent shall be allocated to such schools by September 30 of that fiscal year.

(B) Calculation of number of children

In the case of Indian students aged 3 to 5, inclusive, who are enrolled in programs affiliated with the Bureau of Indian Affairs (referred to in this subsection as the “BIA”) schools and that are required by the States in which such schools are located to attain or maintain State accreditation, and which schools have such accreditation prior to October 7, 1991, the school shall be allowed to count those children for the purpose of distribution of the funds provided under this paragraph to the Secretary of the Interior. The Secretary of the Interior shall be responsible for meeting all of the requirements of this subchapter for those children, in accordance with paragraph (2).

(C) Additional requirement

With respect to all other children aged 3 to 21, inclusive, on reservations, the State educational agency shall be responsible for ensuring that all of the requirements of this subchapter are implemented.

(2) Submission of information

The Secretary of Education may provide the Secretary of the Interior amounts under paragraph (1) for a fiscal year only if the Secretary of the Interior submits to the Secretary of Education information that--

(A) demonstrates that the Department of the Interior meets the appropriate requirements, as determined by the Secretary of Education, of sections 1412 of this title (including monitoring and evaluation activities) and 1413 of this title;

(B) includes a description of how the Secretary of the Interior will coordinate the provision of services under this subchapter with local educational agencies, tribes and tribal organizations, and other private and Federal service providers;

(C) includes an assurance that there are public hearings, adequate notice of such hearings, and an opportunity for comment afforded to members of tribes, tribal governing bodies, and affected local school boards before the adoption of the policies, programs, and procedures related to the requirements described in subparagraph (A);

(D) includes an assurance that the Secretary of the Interior will provide such information as the Secretary of Education may require to comply with section 1418 of this title;

(E) includes an assurance that the Secretary of the Interior and the Secretary of Health and Human Services have entered into a memorandum of agreement, to be provided to the Secretary of Education, for the coordination of services, resources, and personnel between their respective Federal, State, and local offices and with State and local educational agencies and other entities to facilitate the provision of services to Indian children with disabilities residing on or near reservations (such agreement shall provide for the apportionment of responsibilities and costs, including child find, evaluation, diagnosis, remediation or therapeutic measures, and (where appropriate) equipment and medical or personal supplies as needed for a child to remain in school or a program); and

(F) includes an assurance that the Department of the Interior will cooperate with the Department of Education in its exercise of monitoring and oversight of this application, and any agreements entered into between the Secretary of the Interior and other entities under this subchapter, and will fulfill its duties under this subchapter.

(3) Applicability

The Secretary shall withhold payments under this subsection with respect to the information described in paragraph (2) in the same manner as the Secretary withholds payments under section 1416(e)(6) of this title.

(4) Payments for education and services for Indian children with disabilities aged 3 through 5

(A) In general

With funds appropriated under subsection (i), the Secretary of Education shall make payments to the Secretary of the Interior to be distributed to tribes or tribal organizations (as defined under section 450b of Title 25) or consortia of tribes or tribal organizations to provide for the coordination of assistance for special education and related services for children with disabilities aged 3 through 5 on reservations served by elementary schools and secondary schools for Indian children operated or funded by the Department of the Interior. The amount of such payments under subparagraph (B) for any fiscal year shall be equal to 20 percent of the amount allotted under subsection (b)(2).

(B) Distribution of funds

The Secretary of the Interior shall distribute the total amount of the payment under subparagraph (A) by allocating to each tribe, tribal organization, or consortium an amount based on the number of children with disabilities aged 3 through 5 residing on reservations as reported annually, divided by the total of those children served by all tribes or tribal organizations.

(C) Submission of information

To receive a payment under this paragraph, the tribe or tribal organization shall submit such figures to the Secretary of the Interior as required to determine the amounts to be allocated under subparagraph (B). This information shall be compiled and submitted to the Secretary of Education.

(D) Use of funds

The funds received by a tribe or tribal organization shall be used to assist in child find, screening, and other procedures for the early identification of children aged 3 through 5, parent training, and the provision of direct services. These activities may be carried out directly or through contracts or cooperative agreements with the BIA, local educational agencies, and other public or private nonprofit organizations. The tribe or tribal organization is encouraged to involve Indian parents in the development and implementation of these activities. The tribe or tribal organization shall, as appropriate, make referrals to local, State, or Federal entities for the provision of services or further diagnosis.

(E) Biennial report

To be eligible to receive a grant pursuant to subparagraph (A), the tribe or tribal organization shall provide to the Secretary of the Interior a biennial report of activities undertaken under this paragraph, including the number of contracts and cooperative agreements entered into, the number of children contacted and receiving services for each year, and the estimated number of children needing services during the 2 years following the year in which the report is made. The Secretary of the Interior shall include a summary of this information on a biennial basis in the report to the Secretary of Education required under this subsection. The Secretary of Education may require any additional information from the Secretary of the Interior.

(F) Prohibitions

None of the funds allocated under this paragraph may be used by the Secretary of the Interior for administrative purposes, including child count and the provision of technical assistance.

(5) Plan for coordination of services

The Secretary of the Interior shall develop and implement a plan for the coordination of services for all Indian children with disabilities residing on reservations covered under this chapter. Such plan shall provide for the coordination of services benefiting those children from whatever source, including tribes, the Indian Health Service, other BIA divisions, and other Federal agencies. In developing the plan, the Secretary of the Interior shall consult with all interested and involved parties. The plan shall be based on the needs of the children and the system best suited for meeting those needs, and may involve the establishment of cooperative agreements between the BIA, other Federal agencies, and other entities. The plan shall also be distributed upon request to States, State educational agencies and local educational agencies, and other agencies providing services to infants, toddlers, and children with disabilities, to tribes, and to other interested parties.

(6) Establishment of advisory board

To meet the requirements of section 1412(a)(21) of this title, the Secretary of the Interior shall establish, under the BIA, an advisory board composed of individuals involved in or concerned with the education and provision of services to Indian infants, toddlers, children, and youth with disabilities, including Indians with disabilities, Indian parents or guardians of such children, teachers, service providers, State and local educational officials, representatives of tribes or tribal organizations, representatives from State Interagency Coordinating Councils under section 1441 of this title in States having reservations, and other members representing the various divisions and entities of the BIA. The chairperson shall be selected by the Secretary of the Interior. The advisory board shall--

(D) provide assistance and disseminate information on best practices, effective program coordination strategies, and recommendations for improved early intervention services or educational programming for

Indian infants, toddlers, and children with disabilities; and

(E) provide assistance in the preparation of information required under paragraph (2)(D).

(A) In general

The advisory board established under paragraph (6) shall prepare and submit to the Secretary of the Interior and to Congress an annual report containing a description of the activities of the advisory board for the preceding year.

(B) Availability

The Secretary of the Interior shall make available to the Secretary of Education the report described in subparagraph (A).

NOTES OF DECISIONS

1. Distribution by States to local districts

The IDEA does not entitle a local school district to reimbursement from the state for some or all of the expense when district must reimburse parents for a disabled child's private education; a local educational agency that has received its share of the federal appropriation must provide for services out of that share, and it cannot collect more from the state by way of contribution, and section of IDEA providing that a state is liable to the same extent as any other public entity does not authorize contribution. Board of Educ. of Oak Park and River Forest High School Dist. No. 200 v. Kelly E., C.A.7 (Ill.) 2000, 207 F.3d 931, certiorari denied 121 S.Ct. 70, 531 U.S.

In light of federal regulations which required state of Missouri to distribute only 75% of discretionary funds to local districts and fact that there was no persuasive evidence that state's handling of such funds resulted in local districts refusing to consider the needs of handicapped children for summer school, District Court would not order state defendants to provide 85% of its discretionary funds to local districts for summer programming for handicapped students. Yaris v. Special School Dist. of St. Louis County, E.D.Mo.1984, 599 F.Supp. 926, amended 604 F.Supp. 914, affirmed 780 F.2d 724, certiorari denied 106 S.Ct. 2896, 476 U.S. 1172, 90 L.Ed.2d 982. 2. State regulations

Emergency regulations adopted by New York State Board of Regents (NYSBR), upon recommendation of New York State Education Department (NYSED), that limited the use of "aversives," including contingent food programs, the use of helmets on some children, mechanical restraints, and the application of electric skin shocks through a graduated electronic decelerator (GED), on students with severe behavioral problems, did not facially violate IDEA; regulations' limitation and gradual phasing out of aversives was consistent with IDEA's focus on positive behavioral modification methods, there existed a split of authority in the professional community as to the benefits of aversives versus positive behavior, United States Department of Education reviewed the finalized regulations and indicated belief that they could be implemented consistent with IDEA, emergency regulations were promulgated after consideration of numerous articles on behavioral interventions, unsolicited public commentary, and consultations with educational experts, emergency passage was warranted based on suit against state authorities alleging aversive abuse at a special education school, and finalized regulations were adopted after three public hearings and a public comment period, during which there was a substantial outcry for the complete prohibition of aversives. Title 20. Education
Subchapter II. Assistance for Education of All Children with Disabilities
§ 1412. State eligibility

(a) In general

A State is eligible for assistance under this subchapter for a fiscal year if the State submits a plan that provides assurances to the Secretary that the State has in effect policies and procedures to ensure that the State meets each of the following conditions:

(1) Free appropriate public education

(A) In general

A free appropriate public education is available to all children with disabilities residing in the State between the ages of 3 and 21, inclusive, including children with disabilities who have been suspended or expelled from school.

(B) Limitation

The obligation to make a free appropriate public education available to all children with disabilities does not apply with respect to children--

(i) aged 3 through 5 and 18 through 21 in a State to the extent that its application to those children would be inconsistent with State law or practice, or the order of any court, respecting the provision of public education to children in those age ranges; and

(ii) aged 18 through 21 to the extent that State law does not require that special education and related services under this subchapter be provided to children with disabilities who, in the educational placement prior to their incarceration in an adult correctional facility--

(I) were not actually identified as being a child with a disability under section 1401 of this title; or

(II) did not have an individualized education program under this subchapter.

(C) State flexibility

A State that provides early intervention services in accordance with subchapter III to a child who is eligible for services under section 1419 of this title, is not required to provide such child with a free appropriate public education.

(2) Full educational opportunity goal

The State has established a goal of providing full educational opportunity to all children with disabilities and a detailed timetable for accomplishing that goal.

(3) Child find

(A) In general

All children with disabilities residing in the State, including children with disabilities who are homeless children or are wards of the State and children with disabilities attending private schools, regardless of the severity of their disabilities, and who are in need of special education and related services, are identified, located, and evaluated and a practical method is developed and implemented to determine which children with disabilities are currently receiving needed special education and related services.

(B) Construction

Nothing in this chapter requires that children be classified by their disability so long as each child who has a disability listed in section 1401 of this title and who, by reason of that disability, needs special education and related services is regarded as a child with a disability under this subchapter.

(4) Individualized education program

An individualized education program, or an individualized family service plan that meets the requirements of section 1436(d) of this title, is developed, reviewed, and revised for each child with a disability in accordance with section 1414(d) of this title.

(5) Least restrictive environment

(A) In general

To the maximum extent appropriate, children with disabilities, including children in public or private institutions or other care facilities, are educated with children who are not disabled, and special classes, separate schooling, or other removal of children with disabilities from the regular educational environment occurs only when the nature or severity of the disability of a child is such that education in regular classes with the use of supplementary aids and services cannot be achieved satisfactorily.

(B) Additional requirement

(i) In general

A State funding mechanism shall not result in placements that violate the requirements of subparagraph (A), and a State shall not use a funding mechanism by which the State distributes funds on the basis of the type of setting in which a child is served that will result in the failure to provide a child with a disability a free appropriate public education according to the unique needs of the child as described in the child's IEP.

(ii) Assurance

If the State does not have policies and procedures to ensure compliance with clause (i), the State shall provide the Secretary an assurance that the State will revise the funding mechanism as soon as feasible to ensure that such mechanism does not result in such placements.

(6) Procedural safeguards

(A) In general

Children with disabilities and their parents are afforded the procedural safeguards required by section 1415 of this title.

(B) Additional procedural safeguards

Procedures to ensure that testing and evaluation materials and procedures utilized for the purposes of evaluation and placement of children with disabilities for services under this chapter will be selected and administered so as not to be racially or culturally discriminatory. Such materials or procedures shall be provided and administered in the child's native language or mode of communication, unless it clearly is not feasible to do so, and no single procedure shall be the sole criterion for determining an appropriate educational program for a child.

(7) Evaluation

Children with disabilities are evaluated in accordance with subsections (a) through (c) of section 1414 of this title.

(8) Confidentiality

Agencies in the State comply with section 1417(c) of this title (relating to the confidentiality of records and information).

(9) Transition from subchapter III to preschool programs

Children participating in early intervention programs assisted under subchapter III, and who will participate in preschool programs assisted under this subchapter, experience a smooth and effective transition to those preschool programs in a manner consistent with section 1437(a)(9) of this title. By the third birthday of such a child, an individualized education program or, if consistent with sections 1414(d)(2)(B) and 1436(d) of this title, an individualized family service plan, has been developed and is being implemented for the child. The local educational agency will participate in transition planning conferences arranged by the designated lead agency under section 1435(a)(10) of this title.

(10) Children in private schools

(A) Children enrolled in private schools by their parents

(i) In general

To the extent consistent with the number and location of children with disabilities in the State who are enrolled by their parents in private elementary schools and secondary schools in the school district served by a local educational agency, provision is made for the participation of those children in the program assisted or carried out under this subchapter by providing for such children special education and related services in accordance with the following requirements, unless the Secretary has arranged for services to those children under subsection (f):

(I) Amounts to be expended for the provision of those services (including direct services to parentally placed private school children) by the local educational agency shall be equal to a proportionate amount of Federal funds made available under this subchapter.

(II) In calculating the proportionate amount of Federal funds, the local educational agency, after timely and meaningful consultation with representatives of private schools as described in clause (iii), shall conduct a thorough and complete child find process to determine the number of parentally placed children with disabilities attending private schools located in the local educational agency.

(III) Such services to parentally placed private school children with disabilities may be provided to the children on the premises of private, including religious, schools, to the extent consistent with law.

(IV) State and local funds may supplement and in no case shall supplant the proportionate amount of Federal funds required to be expended under this subparagraph.

(V) Each local educational agency shall maintain in its records and provide to the State educational agency the number of children evaluated under this subparagraph, the number of children determined to be children with disabilities under this paragraph, and the number of children served under this paragraph.

(ii) Child find requirement

(I) In general

The requirements of paragraph (3) (relating to child find) shall apply with respect to children with disabilities in the State who are enrolled in private, including religious, elementary schools and secondary schools.

(II) Equitable participation

The child find process shall be designed to ensure the equitable participation of parentally placed private school children with disabilities and an accurate count of such children.

(III) Activities

In carrying out this clause, the local educational agency, or where applicable, the State educational agency, shall undertake activities similar to those activities undertaken for the agency's public school children.

(IV) Cost

The cost of carrying out this clause, including individual evaluations, may not be considered in determining whether a local educational agency has met its obligations under clause (i).

(V) Completion period

Such child find process shall be completed in a time period comparable to that for other students attending public schools in the local educational agency.

(iii) Consultation

To ensure timely and meaningful consultation, a local educational agency, or where appropriate, a State educational agency, shall consult with private school representatives and representatives of parents of parentally placed private school children with disabilities during the design and development of special education and related services for the children, including regarding--

(I) the child find process and how parentally placed private school children suspected of having a disability can participate equitably, including how parents, teachers, and private school officials will be informed of the process;

(II) the determination of the proportionate amount of Federal funds available to serve parentally placed private school children with disabilities under this subparagraph, including the determination of how the amount was calculated;

(III) the consultation process among the local educational agency, private school officials, and representatives of parents of parentally placed private school children with disabilities, including how such process will operate throughout the school year to ensure that parentally placed private school children with disabilities identified through the child find process can meaningfully participate in special education and related services;

(IV) how, where, and by whom special education and related services will be provided for parentally placed private school children with disabilities, including a discussion of types of services, including direct services and alternate service delivery mechanisms, how such services will be apportioned if funds are insufficient to serve all children, and how and when these decisions will be made; and

(V) how, if the local educational agency disagrees with the views of the private school officials on the provision of services or the types of services, whether provided directly or through a contract, the local educational agency shall provide to the private school officials a written explanation of the reasons why the local educational agency chose not to provide services directly or through a contract.

(iv) Written affirmation

When timely and meaningful consultation as required by clause (iii) has occurred, the local educational agency shall obtain a written affirmation signed by the representatives of participating private schools, and if such representatives do not provide such affirmation within a reasonable period of time, the local educational agency shall forward the documentation of the consultation process to the State educational agency.

(v) Compliance

(I) In general

A private school official shall have the right to submit a complaint to the State educational agency that the local educational agency did not engage in consultation that was meaningful and timely, or did not give due consideration to the views of the private school official.

(II) Procedure

If the private school official wishes to submit a complaint, the official shall provide the basis of the noncompliance with this subparagraph by the local educational agency to the State educational agency, and the local educational agency shall forward the appropriate documentation to the State educational agency. If the private school official is dissatisfied with the decision of the State educational agency, such official may submit a complaint to the Secretary by providing the basis of the noncompliance with this subparagraph by the local educational agency to the Secretary, and the State educational agency shall forward the appropriate documentation to the Secretary.

(vi) Provision of equitable services

(I) Directly or through contracts

The provision of services pursuant to this subparagraph shall be provided--

(aa) by employees of a public agency; or

(bb) through contract by the public agency with an individual, association, agency, organization, or other entity.

(II) Secular, neutral, nonideological

Special education and related services provided to parentally placed private school children with disabilities, including materials and equipment, shall be secular, neutral, and nonideological.

(vii) Public control of funds

The control of funds used to provide special education and related services under this subparagraph, and title to materials, equipment, and property purchased with those funds, shall be in a public agency for the uses and purposes provided in this chapter, and a public agency shall administer the funds and property.

(B) Children placed in, or referred to, private schools by public agencies

(i) In general

Children with disabilities in private schools and facilities are provided special education and related services, in accordance with an individualized education program, at no cost to their parents, if such children are placed in, or referred to, such schools or facilities by the State or appropriate local educational agency as the means of carrying out the requirements of this subchapter or any other applicable law requiring the provision of special education and related services to all children with disabilities within such State.

(ii) Standards

In all cases described in clause (i), the State educational agency shall determine whether such schools and facilities meet standards that apply to State educational agencies and local educational agencies and that children so served have all the rights the children would have if served by such agencies.

(C) Payment for education of children enrolled in private schools without consent of or referral by the public agency

(i) In general

Subject to subparagraph (A), this subchapter does not require a local educational agency to pay for the cost of education, including special education and related services, of a child with a disability at a private school or facility if that agency made a free appropriate public education available to the child and the parents elected to place the child in such private school or facility.

(ii) Reimbursement for private school placement

If the parents of a child with a disability, who previously received special education and related services under the authority of a public agency, enroll the child in a private elementary school or secondary school without the consent of or referral by the public agency, a court or a hearing officer may require the agency to reimburse the parents for the cost of that enrollment if the court or hearing officer finds that the agency had not made a free appropriate public education available to the child in a timely manner prior to that enrollment.

(iii) Limitation on reimbursement

The cost of reimbursement described in clause (ii) may be reduced or denied--

(I) if--

(aa) at the most recent IEP meeting that the parents attended prior to removal of the child from the public school, the parents did not inform the IEP Team that they were rejecting the placement proposed by the public agency to provide a free appropriate public education to their child, including stating their concerns and their intent to enroll their child in a private school at public expense; or

(bb) 10 business days (including any holidays that occur on a business day) prior to the removal of the child from the public school, the parents did not give written notice to the public agency of the information described in item (aa);

(II) if, prior to the parents' removal of the child from the public school, the public agency informed the parents, through the notice requirements described in section 1415(b)(3) of this title, of its intent to evaluate the child (including a statement of the purpose of the evaluation that was appropriate and reasonable), but the parents did not make the child available for such evaluation; or

(III) upon a judicial finding of unreasonableness with respect to actions taken by the parents.

(iv) Exception

Notwithstanding the notice requirement in clause (iii)(I), the cost of reimbursement--

(I) shall not be reduced or denied for failure to provide such notice if--

(aa) the school prevented the parent from providing such notice;

(bb) the parents had not received notice, pursuant to section 1415 of this title, of the notice requirement in clause (iii)(I); or

(cc) compliance with clause (iii)(I) would likely result in physical harm to the child; and

(II) may, in the discretion of a court or a hearing officer, not be reduced or denied for failure to provide such notice if--

(aa) the parent is illiterate or cannot write in English; or

(bb) compliance with clause (iii)(I) would likely result in serious emotional harm to the child.

(11) State educational agency responsible for general supervision

(A) In general

The State educational agency is responsible for ensuring that--

(i) the requirements of this subchapter are met;

(ii) all educational programs for children with disabilities in the State, including all such programs administered by any other State agency or local agency--

(I) are under the general supervision of individuals in the State who are responsible for educational programs for children with disabilities; and

(II) meet the educational standards of the State educational agency; and

(iii) in carrying out this subchapter with respect to homeless children, the requirements of subtitle B of title VII of the McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 11431 et seq.) are met.

(B) Limitation

Subparagraph (A) shall not limit the responsibility of agencies in the State other than the State educational agency to provide, or pay for some or all of the costs of, a free appropriate public education for any child with a disability in the State.

(C) Exception

Notwithstanding subparagraphs (A) and (B), the Governor (or another individual pursuant to State law), consistent with State law, may assign to any public agency in the State the responsibility of ensuring that the requirements of this subchapter are met with respect to children with disabilities who are convicted as adults under State law and incarcerated in adult prisons.

(12) Obligations related to and methods of ensuring services

(A) Establishing responsibility for services

The Chief Executive Officer of a State or designee of the officer shall ensure that an interagency agreement or other mechanism for interagency coordination is in effect between each public agency described in subparagraph (B) and the State educational agency, in order to ensure that all services described in subparagraph (B)(i) that are needed to ensure a free appropriate public education are provided, including the provision of such services during the pendency of any dispute under clause (iii). Such agreement or mechanism shall include the following:

(i) Agency financial responsibility

An identification of, or a method for defining, the financial responsibility of each agency for providing services described in subparagraph (B)(i) to ensure a free appropriate public education to children with disabilities, provided that the financial responsibility of each public agency described in subparagraph (B), including the State medicaid agency and other public insurers of children with disabilities, shall precede the financial responsibility of the local educational agency (or the State agency responsible for developing the child's IEP).

(ii) Conditions and terms of reimbursement

The conditions, terms, and procedures under which a local educational agency shall be reimbursed by other agencies.

(iii) Interagency disputes

Procedures for resolving interagency disputes (including procedures under which local educational agencies may initiate proceedings) under the agreement or other mechanism to secure reimbursement from other agencies or otherwise implement the provisions of the agreement or mechanism.

(iv) Coordination of services procedures

Policies and procedures for agencies to determine and identify the interagency coordination responsibilities of each agency to promote the coordination and timely and appropriate delivery of services described in subparagraph (B)(i).

(B) Obligation of public agency

(i) In general

If any public agency other than an educational agency is otherwise obligated under Federal or State law, or assigned responsibility under State policy pursuant to subparagraph (A), to provide or pay for any services that are also considered special education or related services (such as, but not limited to, services described in section 1401(1) relating to assistive technology devices, 1401(2) relating to assistive technology services, 1401(26) relating to related services, 1401(33) relating to supplementary aids and services, and 1401(34) relating to transition services) that are necessary for ensuring a free appropriate public education to children with disabilities within the State, such public agency shall fulfill that obligation or responsibility, either directly or through contract or other arrangement pursuant to subparagraph (A) or an agreement pursuant to subparagraph (C).

(ii) Reimbursement for services by public agency

If a public agency other than an educational agency fails to provide or pay for the special education and related services described in clause (i), the local educational agency (or State agency responsible for developing the child's IEP) shall provide or pay for such services to the child. Such local educational agency or State agency is authorized to claim reimbursement for the services from the public agency that failed to provide or pay for such services and such public agency shall reimburse the local educational agency or State agency pursuant to the terms of the interagency agreement or other mechanism described in subparagraph (A)(i) according to the procedures established in such agreement pursuant to subparagraph (A)(ii).

(C) Special rule

The requirements of subparagraph (A) may be met through--

(i) State statute or regulation;

(ii) signed agreements between respective agency officials that clearly identify the responsibilities of each agency relating to the provision of services; or

(iii) other appropriate written methods as determined by the Chief Executive Officer of the State or designee of the officer and approved by the Secretary.

(13) Procedural requirements relating to local educational agency eligibility

The State educational agency will not make a final determination that a local educational agency is not eligible for assistance under this subchapter without first affording that agency reasonable notice and an opportunity for a hearing.

(14) Personnel qualifications

(A) In general

The State educational agency has established and maintains qualifications to ensure that personnel necessary to carry out this subchapter are appropriately and adequately prepared and trained, including that those personnel have the content knowledge and skills to serve children with disabilities.

(B) Related services personnel and paraprofessionals

The qualifications under subparagraph (A) include qualifications for related services personnel and paraprofessionals that--

(i) are consistent with any State-approved or State-recognized certification, licensing, registration, or other comparable requirements that apply to the professional discipline in which those personnel are providing special education or related services;

(ii) ensure that related services personnel who deliver services in their discipline or profession meet the requirements of clause (i) and have not had certification or licensure requirements waived on an emergency, temporary, or provisional basis; and

(iii) allow paraprofessionals and assistants who are appropriately trained and supervised, in accordance with State law, regulation, or written policy, in meeting the requirements of this subchapter to be used to assist in the provision of special education and related services under this subchapter to children with disabilities.

(C) Qualifications for special education teachers

The qualifications described in subparagraph (A) shall ensure that each person employed as a special education teacher in the State who teaches elementary school, middle school, or secondary school is highly qualified by the deadline established in section 6319(a)(2) of this title.

(D) Policy

In implementing this section, a State shall adopt a policy that includes a requirement that local educational agencies in the State take measurable steps to recruit, hire, train, and retain highly qualified personnel to provide special education and related services under this subchapter to children with disabilities.

(E) Rule of construction

Notwithstanding any other individual right of action that a parent or student may maintain under this subchapter, nothing in this paragraph shall be construed to create a right of action on behalf of an individual student for the failure of a particular State educational agency or local educational agency staff person to be highly qualified, or to prevent a parent from filing a complaint about staff qualifications with the State educational agency as provided for under this subchapter.

(15) Performance goals and indicators

The State--

(A) has established goals for the performance of children with disabilities in the State that--

(i) promote the purposes of this chapter, as stated in section 1400(d) of this title;

(ii) are the same as the State's definition of adequate yearly progress, including the State's objectives for progress by children with disabilities, under section 6311(b)(2)(C) of this title;

(iii) address graduation rates and dropout rates, as well as such other factors as the State may determine; and

(iv) are consistent, to the extent appropriate, with any other goals and standards for children established by the State;

(B) has established performance indicators the State will use to assess progress toward achieving the goals described in subparagraph (A), including measurable annual objectives for progress by children with disabilities under section 6311(b)(2)(C)(v)(II)(cc) of this title; and

(C) will annually report to the Secretary and the public on the progress of the State, and of children with disabilities in the State, toward meeting the goals established under subparagraph (A), which may include elements of the reports required under section 6311(h) of this title.

(16) Participation in assessments

(A) In general

All children with disabilities are included in all general State and districtwide assessment programs, including assessments described under section 6311 of this title, with appropriate accommodations and alternate assessments where necessary and as indicated in their respective individualized education programs.

(B) Accommodation guidelines

The State (or, in the case of a districtwide assessment, the local educational agency) has developed guidelines for the provision of appropriate accommodations.

(C) Alternate assessments

(i) In general

The State (or, in the case of a districtwide assessment, the local educational agency) has developed and implemented guidelines for the participation of children with disabilities in alternate assessments for those children who cannot participate in regular assessments under subparagraph (A) with accommodations as indicated in their respective individualized education programs.

(ii) Requirements for alternate assessments

The guidelines under clause (i) shall provide for alternate assessments that--

(I) are aligned with the State's challenging academic content standards and challenging student academic achievement standards; and

(II) if the State has adopted alternate academic achievement standards permitted under the regulations promulgated to carry out section 6311(b)(1) of this title, measure the achievement of children with disabilities against those standards.

(iii) Conduct of alternate assessments

The State conducts the alternate assessments described in this subparagraph.

(D) Reports

The State educational agency (or, in the case of a districtwide assessment, the local educational agency) makes available to the public, and reports to the public with the same frequency and in the same detail as it reports on the assessment of nondisabled children, the following:

(i) The number of children with disabilities participating in regular assessments, and the number of those children who were provided accommodations in order to participate in those assessments.

(ii) The number of children with disabilities participating in alternate assessments described in subparagraph (C)(ii)(I).

(iii) The number of children with disabilities participating in alternate assessments described in subparagraph (C)(ii)(II).

(iv) The performance of children with disabilities on regular assessments and on alternate assessments (if the number of children with disabilities participating in those assessments is sufficient to yield statistically reliable information and reporting that information will not reveal personally identifiable information about an individual student), compared with the achievement of all children, including children with disabilities, on those assessments.

(E) Universal design

The State educational agency (or, in the case of a districtwide assessment, the local educational agency) shall, to the extent feasible, use universal design principles in developing and administering any assessments under this paragraph.

(17) Supplementation of State, local, and other Federal funds

(A) Expenditures

Funds paid to a State under this subchapter will be expended in accordance with all the provisions of this subchapter.

(B) Prohibition against commingling

Funds paid to a State under this subchapter will not be commingled with State funds.

(C) Prohibition against supplantation and conditions for waiver by Secretary

Except as provided in section 1413 of this title, funds paid to a State under this subchapter will be used to supplement the level of Federal, State, and local funds (including funds that are not under the direct control of State or local educational agencies) expended for special education and related services provided to children with disabilities under this subchapter and in no case to supplant such Federal, State, and local funds, except that, where the State provides clear and convincing evidence that all children with disabilities have available to them a free appropriate public education, the Secretary may waive, in whole or in part, the requirements of this subparagraph if the Secretary concurs with the evidence provided by the State.

(18) Maintenance of State financial support

(A) In general

The State does not reduce the amount of State financial support for special education and related services for children with disabilities, or otherwise made available because of the excess costs of educating those children, below the amount of that support for the preceding fiscal year.

(B) Reduction of funds for failure to maintain support

The Secretary shall reduce the allocation of funds under section 1411 of this title for any fiscal year following the fiscal year in which the State fails to comply with the requirement of subparagraph (A) by the same amount by which the State fails to meet the requirement.

(C) Waivers for exceptional or uncontrollable circumstances

The Secretary may waive the requirement of subparagraph (A) for a State, for 1 fiscal year at a time, if the Secretary determines that--

(i) granting a waiver would be equitable due to exceptional or uncontrollable circumstances such as a natural disaster or a precipitous and unforeseen decline in the financial resources of the State; or

(ii) the State meets the standard in paragraph (17)(C) for a waiver of the requirement to supplement, and not to supplant, funds received under this subchapter.

(D) Subsequent years

If, for any year, a State fails to meet the requirement of subparagraph (A), including any year for which the State is granted a waiver under subparagraph (C), the financial support required of the State in future years under subparagraph (A) shall be the amount that would have been required in the absence of that failure and not the reduced level of the State's support.

(19) Public participation

Prior to the adoption of any policies and procedures needed to comply with this section (including any amendments to such policies and procedures), the State ensures that there are public hearings, adequate notice of the hearings, and an opportunity for comment available to the general public, including individuals with disabilities and parents of children with disabilities.

(20) Rule of construction

In complying with paragraphs (17) and (18), a State may not use funds paid to it under this subchapter to satisfy State-law mandated funding obligations to local educational agencies, including funding based on student attendance or enrollment, or inflation.

(21) State advisory panel

(A) In general

The State has established and maintains an advisory panel for the purpose of providing policy guidance with respect to special education and related services for children with disabilities in the State.

(B) Membership

Such advisory panel shall consist of members appointed by the Governor, or any other official authorized under State law to make such appointments, be representative of the State population, and be composed of individuals involved in, or concerned with, the education of children with disabilities, including--

(i) parents of children with disabilities (ages birth through 26);

(ii) individuals with disabilities;

(iii) teachers;

(iv) representatives of institutions of higher education that prepare special education and related services personnel;

(v) State and local education officials, including officials who carry out activities under subtitle B of title VII of the McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 11431 et seq.);

(vi) administrators of programs for children with disabilities;

(vii) representatives of other State agencies involved in the financing or delivery of related services to children with disabilities;

(viii) representatives of private schools and public charter schools;

(ix) not less than 1 representative of a vocational, community, or business organization concerned with the provision of transition services to children with disabilities;

(x) a representative from the State child welfare agency responsible for foster care; and

(xi) representatives from the State juvenile and adult corrections agencies.

(C) Special rule

A majority of the members of the panel shall be individuals with disabilities or parents of children with disabilities (ages birth through 26).

(D) Duties

The advisory panel shall--

(i) advise the State educational agency of unmet needs within the State in the education of children with disabilities;

(ii) comment publicly on any rules or regulations proposed by the State regarding the education of children with disabilities;

(iii) advise the State educational agency in developing evaluations and reporting on data to the Secretary under section 1418 of this title;

(v) advise the State educational agency in developing and implementing policies relating to the coordination of services for children with disabilities.

(22) Suspension and expulsion rates

(A) In general

The State educational agency examines data, including data disaggregated by race and ethnicity, to determine if significant discrepancies are occurring in the rate of long-term suspensions and expulsions of children with disabilities--

(i) among local educational agencies in the State; or

(ii) compared to such rates for nondisabled children within such agencies.

(B) Review and revision of policies

If such discrepancies are occurring, the State educational agency reviews and, if appropriate, revises (or requires the affected State or local educational agency to revise) its policies, procedures, and practices relating to the development and implementation of IEPs, the use of positive behavioral interventions and supports, and procedural safeguards, to ensure that such policies, procedures, and practices comply with this chapter.

(23) Access to instructional materials

(A) In general

The State adopts the National Instructional Materials Accessibility Standard for the purposes of providing instructional materials to blind persons or other persons with print disabilities, in a timely manner after the publication of the National Instructional Materials Accessibility Standard in the Federal Register.

(B) Rights of State educational agency

Nothing in this paragraph shall be construed to require any State educational agency to coordinate with the National Instructional Materials Access Center. If a State educational agency chooses not to coordinate with the National Instructional Materials Access Center, such agency shall provide an assurance to the Secretary that the agency will provide instructional materials to blind persons or other persons with print disabilities in a timely manner.

(C) Preparation and delivery of files

If a State educational agency chooses to coordinate with the National Instructional Materials Access Center, not later than 2 years after December 3, 2004, the agency, as part of any print instructional materials adoption process, procurement contract, or other practice or instrument used for purchase of print instructional materials, shall enter into a written contract with the publisher of the print instructional materials to--

(i) require the publisher to prepare and, on or before delivery of the print instructional materials, provide to the National Instructional Materials Access Center electronic files containing the contents of the print instructional materials using the National Instructional Materials Accessibility Standard; or

(ii) purchase instructional materials from the publisher that are produced in, or may be rendered in, specialized formats.

(D) Assistive technology

In carrying out this paragraph, the State educational agency, to the maximum extent possible, shall work collaboratively with the State agency responsible for assistive technology programs.

(E) Definitions

In this paragraph:

(i) National Instructional Materials Access Center

The term "National Instructional Materials Access Center" means the center established pursuant to section 1474(e) of this title.

(ii) National Instructional Materials Accessibility Standard

The term "National Instructional Materials Accessibility Standard" has the meaning given the term in section 1474(e)(3)(A) of this title.

(iii) Specialized formats

The term "specialized formats" has the meaning given the term in section 1474(e)(3)(D) of this title.

(24) Overidentification and disproportionality

The State has in effect, consistent with the purposes of this chapter and with section 1418(d) of this title, policies and procedures designed to prevent the inappropriate overidentification or disproportionate representation by race and ethnicity of children as children with disabilities, including children with disabilities with a particular impairment described in section 1401 of this title.

(25) Prohibition on mandatory medication

(A) In general

The State educational agency shall prohibit State and local educational agency personnel from requiring a child to obtain a prescription for a substance covered by the Controlled Substances Act (21 U.S.C. 801 et seq.) as a condition of attending school, receiving an evaluation under subsection (a) or (c) of section 1414 of this title, or receiving services under this chapter.

(B) Rule of construction

Nothing in subparagraph (A) shall be construed to create a Federal prohibition against teachers and other school personnel consulting or sharing classroom-based observations with parents or guardians regarding a student's academic and functional performance, or behavior in the classroom or school, or regarding the need for evaluation for special education or related services under paragraph (3).

(b) State educational agency as provider of free appropriate public education or direct services

If the State educational agency provides free appropriate public education to children with disabilities, or provides direct services to such children, such agency--

(1) shall comply with any additional requirements of section 1413(a) of this title, as if such agency were a local educational agency; and

(2) may use amounts that are otherwise available to such agency under this subchapter to serve those children without regard to section 1413(a)(2)(A)(i) of this title (relating to excess costs).

(c) Exception for prior State plans

(1) In general

If a State has on file with the Secretary policies and procedures that demonstrate that such State meets any requirement of subsection (a), including any policies and procedures filed under this subchapter as in effect before the effective date of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Improvement Act of 2004, the Secretary shall consider such State to have met such requirement for purposes of receiving a grant under this subchapter.

(2) Modifications made by State

Subject to paragraph (3), an application submitted by a State in accordance with this section shall remain in effect until the State submits to the Secretary such modifications as the State determines necessary. This section shall apply to a modification to an application to the same extent and in the same manner as this section applies to the original plan.

(3) Modifications required by the Secretary

If, after the effective date of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Improvement Act of 2004, the provisions of this chapter are amended (or the regulations developed to carry out this chapter are amended), there is a new interpretation of this chapter by a Federal court or a State's highest court, or there is an official finding of noncompliance with Federal law or regulations, then the Secretary may require a State to modify its application only to the extent necessary to ensure the State's compliance with this subchapter.

(d) Approval by the Secretary

(1) In general

If the Secretary determines that a State is eligible to receive a grant under this subchapter, the Secretary shall notify the State of that determination.

(2) Notice and hearing

The Secretary shall not make a final determination that a State is not eligible to receive a grant under this subchapter until after providing the State--

(A) with reasonable notice; and

(B) with an opportunity for a hearing.

(e) Assistance under other Federal programs

Nothing in this chapter permits a State to reduce medical and other assistance available, or to alter eligibility, under titles V and XIX of the Social Security Act [42 U.S.C.A. §§ 701 et seq.,1396 et seq.] with respect to the provision of a free appropriate public education for children with disabilities in the State.

(f) By-pass for children in private schools

(1) In general

If, on December 2, 1983, a State educational agency was prohibited by law from providing for the equitable participation in special programs of children with disabilities enrolled in private elementary schools and secondary schools as required by subsection (a)(10)(A), or if the Secretary determines that a State educational agency, local educational agency, or other entity has substantially failed or is unwilling to provide for such equitable participation, then the Secretary shall, notwithstanding such provision of law, arrange for the provision of services to such children through arrangements that shall be subject to the requirements of such subsection.

(2) Payments

(A) Determination of amounts

If the Secretary arranges for services pursuant to this subsection, the Secretary, after consultation with the appropriate public and private school officials, shall pay to the provider of such services for a fiscal year an amount per child that does not exceed the amount determined by dividing--

(i) the total amount received by the State under this subchapter for such fiscal year; by

(ii) the number of children with disabilities served in the prior year, as reported to the Secretary by the State under section 1418 of this title.

(B) Withholding of certain amounts

Pending final resolution of any investigation or complaint that may result in a determination under this subsection, the Secretary may withhold from the allocation of the affected State educational agency the amount the Secretary estimates will be necessary to pay the cost of services described in subparagraph (A).

(C) Period of payments

The period under which payments are made under subparagraph (A) shall continue until the Secretary determines that there will no longer be any failure or inability on the part of the State educational agency to meet the requirements of subsection (a)(10)(A).

(3) Notice and hearing

(A) In general

The Secretary shall not take any final action under this subsection until the State educational agency affected by such action has had an opportunity, for not less than 45 days after receiving written notice thereof, to submit written objections and to appear before the Secretary or the Secretary's designee to show cause why such action should not be taken.

(B) Review of action

If a State educational agency is dissatisfied with the Secretary's final action after a proceeding under subparagraph (A), such agency may, not later than 60 days after notice of such action, file with the United States court of appeals for the circuit in which such State is located a petition for review of that action. A copy of the petition shall be forthwith transmitted by the clerk of the court to the Secretary. The Secretary thereupon shall file in the court the record of the proceedings on which the Secretary based the Secretary's action, as provided in section 2112 of Title 28.

(C) Review of findings of fact

The findings of fact by the Secretary, if supported by substantial evidence, shall be conclusive, but the court, for good cause shown, may remand the case to the Secretary to take further evidence, and the Secretary may thereupon make new or modified findings of fact and may modify the Secretary's previous action, and shall file in the court the record of the further proceedings. Such new or modified findings of fact shall likewise be conclusive if supported by substantial evidence.

(D) Jurisdiction of court of appeals; review by United States Supreme Court

Upon the filing of a petition under subparagraph (B), the United States court of appeals shall have jurisdiction to affirm the action of the Secretary or to set it aside, in whole or in part. The judgment of the court shall be subject to review by the Supreme Court of the United States upon certiorari or certification as provided in section 1254 of Title 28.

NOTES OF DECISIONS

I. GENERALLY

<Subdivision Index>

1. Law governing

The Education of the Handicapped Act (EHA) creates only federal minimum which must be complied with by states regarding provision of services to handicapped children, although states may structure educational programs which exceed the federal level. In re Conklin, C.A.4 (Md.) 1991, 946 F.2d 306. Schools 148(2.1)

Placement of children at private facility by Oregon agency for medical reasons was related to goal of providing children with free appropriate public education in accordance with Education for All Handicapped Children Act, even though children were referred from variety of sources including parents; Mental Health Division of Oregon Department of Human Resources determined which children were admitted and which children remained at facility. Kerr Center Parents Ass'n v. Charles, C.A.9 (Or.) 1990, 897 F.2d 1463, on remand. Schools 154(4)

Massachusetts standard requiring its Department of Education to administer special education programs to assure maximum possible development of child with special needs required a level of substantive benefits superior to that under the Education of the Handicapped Act, §§ 602-620, as amended, 20 U.S.C.A. §§ 1401-1420, and thus, Massachusetts standard would be incorporated into the federal Act to require that individualized implementation plan for adolescent child with Down's Syndrome address child's special educational needs so as to assure his maximum possible development in least restrictive environment consistent with such goal. David D. v. Dartmouth School Committee, C.A.1 (Mass.) 1985, 775 F.2d 411, certiorari denied 106 S.Ct. 1790, 475 U.S. 1140, 90 L.Ed.2d 336. Schools 148(3)

Education of Handicapped Act (EHA) establishes minimum requirements, or floor, that states must meet, but states may exceed that federal minimum; EHA incorporates by reference state standards that exceed federal floor. Norton School Committee v. Massachusetts Dept. of Educ., D.Mass.1991, 768 F.Supp. 900. Schools 148(2.1)

When handicapped student seeks review under Education of the Handicapped Act of state agency's decision regarding appropriate education, state standard for educating the handicapped may be enforced when it exceeds federal standard. Pink by Crider v. Mt. Diablo Unified School Dist., N.D.Cal.1990, 738 F.Supp. 345. Federal Courts 433

When state's special education statute mandates that state and subordinate governmental units provide higher level of educational opportunity for handicapped students, content of term "free appropriate education," as found in portion of Education of the Handicapped Act which incorporates state standards, necessarily changes. Barwacz v. Michigan Dept. of Educ., W.D.Mich.1987, 674 F.Supp. 1296. Schools 148(2.1)

State regulations enacted pursuant to this chapter do not confer greater rights to therapeutic services than those mandated directly by this chapter. Max M. v. Thompson, N.D.Ill.1984, 592 F.Supp. 1437, on reconsideration 629 F.Supp. 1504. Schools 148(2.1)

2. Construction with other laws

Parent of disabled student failed to state claim for relief under § 1983 based on IDEA violations; parent did not allege facts from which court could infer that District of Columbia Public Schools (DCPS) had custom or practice that was moving force behind alleged IDEA violation, that exceptional circumstances existed, or that normal remedies offered under IDEA were inadequate to compensate student for harm he allegedly suffered. Jackson v. District of Columbia, D.D.C.2011, 826 F.Supp.2d 109. Schools 155.5(2.1)

Student's parents alleged only that school district deemed student eligible for accommodation under Rehabilitation Act, but did not assert that district acted in bad faith or with gross misjudgment or that district denied student access to Free Appropriate Public Education (FAPE) because of his disability, thus precluding parents' claim under Act. P.C. v. Oceanside Union Free School Dist., E.D.N.Y.2011, 818 F.Supp.2d 516. Schools 148(2.1)

Garden-variety IDEA violations did not reasonably suggest existence of bad faith or gross misconduct, and thus did not give rise to viable discrimination claim under Rehabilitation Act. Alston v. District of Columbia, D.D.C.2011, 770 F.Supp.2d 289. Schools 148(2.1)

A school's failure to notify parents of its Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) duties could violate the Rehabilitation Act. Taylor v. Altoona Area School Dist., W.D.Pa.2010, 737 F.Supp.2d 474. Schools 148(2.1)

Requirement of Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) to provide learning-disabled child with "free appropriate education" does not displace compensation for "special education" authorized under National Childhood Vaccine Injury Act; statutes seek accomplishment of different objectives and, thus, what may suffice as acceptable special education plan under IDEA is not to be taken as measure of compensation awardable under Vaccine Act. Thomas v. Secretary of Department of Health and Human Services, Fed.Cl.1992, 27 Fed.Cl. 384. Health 389

Need of student for behavioral modification for basic education skills was encompassed by IDEA, and so residential placement necessary for those skills was primary responsibility of the state under IDEA, not the Vaccine Act. Taylor By and Through Taylor v. Secretary of Dept. of Health and Human Services, Cl.Ct.1991, 24 Cl.Ct. 433. Health 389

3. Retroactive effect

Court of Appeals would not, in interpreting provisions of prior version of Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) governing provision of educational services in parochial school setting, give retroactive effect to amendments thereto, or to rationale behind those amendments. Peter v. Wedl, C.A.8 (Minn.) 1998, 155 F.3d 992, rehearing and suggestion for rehearing en banc denied , on remand 35 F.Supp.2d 1134. Schools 154(4)

IDEA amendments which related to use of federal funds for benefit of children voluntarily enrolled in private schools did not apply retroactively, absent clear indication that Congress intended amendments merely to clarify IDEA, rather than change IDEA. Fowler v. Unified School Dist. No. 259, Sedgwick County, Kan., C.A.10 (Kan.) 1997, 128 F.3d 1431. Schools 8; Schools 148(2.1)

Statute, which requires schools to provide free, appropriate public education for handicapped children, did not become effective until October 1, 1977 and, therefore, conferred no rights upon handicapped student who had been enrolled before effective date. Gallagher v. Pontiac School Dist., C.A.6 (Mich.) 1986, 807 F.2d 75. Schools 10

4. State regulation or control

The public school district's failure to conduct a functional behavioral assessment (FBA), in accordance with New York State regulation, in developing the individualized education program (IEP) for a student diagnosed with autism and other behavioral disabilities was not a procedural violation of the Individuals with Disabilities in Education Act (IDEA) that deprived the student of a free appropriate public education (FAPE); the IEP provided for strategies to address student's behavioral problems, by requiring a personal aide to prompt student to focus during class, and by providing for psychiatric and psychological assessments and services, and the special education teacher did not believe that an FBA was warranted. A.C. ex rel. M.C. v. Board of Educ. of The Chappaqua Central School Dist., C.A.2 (N.Y.) 2009, 553 F.3d 165. Schools 148(3)

Graduation of disabled student violated the IDEA where, at the time of her graduation, student was 18 and had not completed Arkansas's secondary education program, nor had her parent been given prior written notice of the graduation decision or an opportunity challenge it, and where the graduation took place in 1995, before IDEA was amended to provide for the transfer of parental rights to the disabled child at age 18 if child is not adjudicated incompetent. Birmingham v. Omaha School Dist., C.A.8 (Ark.) 2000, 220 F.3d 850, rehearing and rehearing en banc denied. Schools 148(2.1)

New Hampshire administrative regulation requiring public school district to either present acceptable individualized education program or seek administrative enforcement for disabled student was authorized by both Individuals with Disabilities Education Act and state implementing statute. Murphy v. Timberlane Regional School Dist., C.A.1 (N.H.) 1994, 22 F.3d 1186, certiorari denied 115 S.Ct. 484, 513 U.S. 987, 130 L.Ed.2d 396. Schools 155.5(1)

California's statutory scheme mandating that handicapped three to five-year-old students may, when appropriate, be placed in program that only provides designed instruction and services (DIS) without simultaneous special education was not inconsistent with Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) and therefore, Court of Appeals would enforce California's statutory scheme. Union School Dist. v. Smith, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1994, 15 F.3d 1519, certiorari denied 115 S.Ct. 428, 513 U.S. 965, 130 L.Ed.2d 341. Schools 148(2.1); States 18.25

Appropriate educational goals for disabled student under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) and method of best achieving those goals are matters which are to be established in first instance by states; courts must be careful to avoid imposing their view of preferable educational methods upon states, and primary responsibility for formulating education to be accorded disabled child, and for choosing educational method most suitable to child's needs, was left by Congress to state and local educational agencies in cooperation with child's parents or guardian. D.B. v. Ocean Tp. Bd. of Educ., D.N.J.1997, 985 F.Supp. 457, affirmed 159 F.3d 1350. Schools 155.5(2.1)

Florida statute governing education of handicapped children did not provide learning disabled high school student with independent state law right to remain in particular school during pendency of proceeding under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) challenging his transfer to another school; statute's use of term "educational assignment" in its "stay put" provision, rather than term "educational placement" employed in IDEA, did not create any substantive rights beyond those enforceable under IDEA. Hill By and Through Hill v. School Bd. for Pinellas County, M.D.Fla.1997, 954 F.Supp. 251, affirmed 137 F.3d 1355. Schools 154(2.1)

Ohio statute permitting county to charge home for tuition for two disabled resident children, although it did not directly permit charging children's nonresident parents, contravened IDEA, which did not permit state which received federal funding to charge parents or guardians of resident disabled children, since home was demanding that parents reimburse it for tuition expense. Wise v. Ohio Dept. of Educ., N.D.Ohio 1994, 863 F.Supp. 570, reversed 80 F.3d 177, rehearing and suggestion for rehearing en banc denied. Schools 148(2.1); States 18.25

New Jersey imposes higher standard of special education than the basic floor required by Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) and as a result, local school boards in New Jersey are required to provide educational services according to how the student can best achieve success in learning. D.R. by M.R. v. East Brunswick Bd. of Educ., D.N.J.1993, 838 F.Supp. 184, on remand 94 N.J.A.R.2d (EDS) 145, 1994 WL 514779. Schools 148(2.1)

While this chapter intrudes somewhat into a state's traditional decision-making role in educating the handicapped, it was not intended to totally supplant a state's prerogative in allocating limited financial resources and, hence, competing interests must be balanced to reach a reasonable accommodation, with consideration given fact that excessive expenditures to meet the demands of one handicapped child ultimately reduce the amount that can be spent to meet the needs of the other handicapped children. Pinkerton v. Moye, W.D.Va.1981, 509 F.Supp. 107. Schools 148(2.1)

5. Rules and regulations

Term "placement" in IDEA implementing regulation does not mean a particular school, but rather a setting, such as regular classes, special education classes, special schools, home instruction, or hospital or institution-based instruction. White ex rel. White v. Ascension Parish School Bd., C.A.5 (La.) 2003, 343 F.3d 373. Schools 154(2.1)

Regulation adopted pursuant to Education of the Handicapped Act requiring school district to choose location that is "as close as possible" to child's home did not mandate that school district place handicapped child at elementary school nearest to her home, where individualized education program team would not have chosen that school as location of her placement, given inadequate physical access for handicapped children in that school. Schuldt v. Mankato Independent School, Dist. No. 77, C.A.8 (Minn.) 1991, 937 F.2d 1357, rehearing denied, certiorari denied 112 S.Ct. 937, 502 U.S. 1059, 117 L.Ed.2d 108. Schools 154(2.1)

Regulation requiring that handicapped children be given equal opportunity for participation in extracurricular activities conflicts with the Education for All Handicapped Children Act, which only requires that child's individualized educational plan, in its entirety, be reasonably calculated to enable child to receive educational benefits. Rettig v. Kent City School Dist., C.A.6 (Ohio) 1986, 788 F.2d 328, certiorari denied 106 S.Ct. 3297, 478 U.S. 1005, 92 L.Ed.2d 711. Schools 148(2.1)

Regulations giving local school boards the right to initiate due process appeals in IDEA disputes with parents were valid; absent standing for board, decisionmaking authority could be transferred from school board to parents, contravening IDEA, and board's fulfillment of statutory obligations would be impaired, although parents complained that board's right would inconvenience parents who wish to make unilateral placement of student. Yates v. Charles County Bd. of Educ., D.Md.2002, 212 F.Supp.2d 470. Schools 155.5(1)

Approval by United States Department of Education's Office of Special Education Programs (OSEP) of state Board of Education's plan for compliance with least restrictive environment (LRE) requirements of Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) did not preclude judicial review of plan for IDEA compliance; IDEA expressly provided for independent judicial review, and both IDEA and other statutes provided private right of action for parents and guardians of disabled students. Corey H. v. Board of Educ. of City of Chicago, N.D.Ill.1998, 995 F.Supp. 900. Schools 155.5(2.1)

Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) imposes dual requirements on states and their school districts; they must provide personalized instruction with sufficient support services to permit child to benefit educationally from that instruction, and construct program in least restrictive educational environment appropriate to needs of child. D.B. v. Ocean Tp. Bd. of Educ., D.N.J.1997, 985 F.Supp. 457, affirmed 159 F.3d 1350. Schools 148(2.1)

Although regulations implementing this chapter direct that placement be as close as possible to child's home and that unless an individualized education program require some other arrangement placement must be at the school the child would attend if not handicapped, county did not violate by placing learning disabled child in a suitable "self-contained" program at a school in a neighboring county as there were limited number of students needing such program, no program existed at school child would normally attend and school to which child would be sent was centrally located although six miles farther from child's home. Pinkerton v. Moye, W.D.Va.1981, 509 F.Supp. 107. Schools 154(2.1)

6. Competing interests

Both strong preference for mainstreaming disabled students and requirement that schools provide individualized programs tailored to specific needs of each disabled child are clearly and strongly reflected in Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) as written, and public school officials must devise means to reconcile these conflicting but compelling interests. D.B. v. Ocean Tp. Bd. of Educ., D.N.J.1997, 985 F.Supp. 457, affirmed 159 F.3d 1350. Schools 148(2.1)

7. Right to education

Education of the Handicapped Act confers upon handicapped child an enforceable substantive right to a free appropriate public education that includes special education and related services designed to meet child's unique needs. Andrews v. Ledbetter, C.A.11 (Ga.) 1989, 880 F.2d 1287. Schools 148(2.1)

Handicapped adolescent's right to education stemmed from provisions of Education of Handicapped Children Act guaranteeing appropriate education to all children between ages of 5 and 18 and Mississippi Constitution and statutes providing for maintenance and establishment of free public schools for all children between 6 and 21 years of age. Jackson v. Franklin County School Bd., C.A.5 (Miss.) 1986, 806 F.2d 623. Schools 148(2.1)

8. Due process

Parents asserted property interest protected by due process when they alleged that county's social services department had placed Medicaid liens on personal injury awards of minor disabled children to recover for costs of education-related services to be provided to children with disabilities as part of their individual education plans under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA). Andree ex rel. Andree v. County of Nassau, E.D.N.Y.2004, 311 F.Supp.2d 325. Constitutional Law 4416

9. Proportional services

School district satisfied the requirement of the 1975 Amendment to this chapter, that it provide educational services to handicapped students 18 and older in at least the same proportion as it provides similar services to nonhandicapped peers where ten of 418 handicapped students enrolled in school district were 18 and over and 24 of 3,175 nonhandicapped students enrolled during that year were 18 or over. Timms on Behalf of Timms v. Metropolitan School Dist. of Wabash County, Ind., C.A.7 (Ind.) 1983, 722 F.2d 1310. Schools 148(2.1)

10. Educational agency--Generally

Once local school district informed state department of education that it was unable to provide an appropriate program for severely disabled child who was deaf and blind, and that school district was not a special district, state department became, under Missouri law, direct provider of child's education and thus was required, in order to satisfy its obligation under IDEA and Missouri law to provide child with free appropriate public education (FAPE), to have representative from state department present at child's individualized education program (IEP) meetings. Missouri Dept. of Elementary and Secondary Educ. v. Springfield R-12 School Dist., C.A.8 (Mo.) 2004, 358 F.3d 992. Schools 148(3)

Court, having determined that residential placement was appropriate for severely retarded child, did not err in assigning responsibility to the State Board of Education rather than the local school district. Kruelle v. New Castle County School Dist., C.A.3 (Del.) 1981, 642 F.2d 687. Schools 154(3)

California Department of Education had responsibility by default under IDEA for providing free appropriate public education (FAPE) to parentless child in absence of any California law designating local entity responsible for that education. Orange County Dept. of Educ. v. A.S., C.D.Cal.2008, 567 F.Supp.2d 1165, question certified 650 F.3d 1268, opinion after certified question declined 668 F.3d 1052. Schools 148(2.1)

Where there were at least two means by which children could be placed at school for mentally retarded, either through local education agency or through Division of Mental Health, state scheme of placement violated federal mandate established by subsec. (6) of this section that there be one centralized agency which assumes responsibility for providing a free and appropriate education to handicapped children. Garrity v. Gallen, D.C.N.H.1981, 522 F.Supp. 171. Schools 154(2.1)

11. ---- Duties of educational agency

Substantial evidence supported ALJ's determination that goals in individualized education program (IEP) prepared for non-cognitively impaired student were not based upon reasoned criteria or student's current skill levels, failed to meet student's need for phonemic awareness, failed to provide measurable standards for success, and failed to use prior term's achievements to set next term's goals, and thus that school district violated its duty under IDEA to provide student with free appropriate public education (FAPE), where psychoeducational evaluation did not provide any indication of what, if any, skills student had in area of mathematics, spelling goal was too vague to determine what area of need it addressed, objectives for each reporting period were too vague to be meaningful, and reading goals did not address phonemic awareness or information as to what questions he was expected to ask or answer. Ravenswood City School Dist. v. J.S., N.D.Cal.2012, 2012 WL 2510844. Schools 155.5(4)

Under Pennsylvania's statutory scheme, charter schools are independent local educational agencies (LEAs) and assume duty to ensure that free appropriate public education (FAPE) is available to a child with a disability in compliance with IDEA and its implementing regulations. R.B. ex rel. Parent v. Mastery Charter School, E.D.Pa.2010, 762 F.Supp.2d 745, stay denied 2011 WL 121901. Schools 148(2.1)

State public education department had obligation to compel school district to provide free and appropriate public education (FAPE) for public-school student who qualified for receipt of special education based on autism, or provide direct services to student, under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA); local education agency failed to provide student FAPE for two full school years, state department was on notice through letter from parents and conversation with parent that local agency was not providing FAPE to student, and state department had ample time to compel school district to provide FAPE to student or to provide direct services to student before onset of administrative proceedings. Chavez v. Board of Educ. of Tularosa Municipal Schools, D.N.M.2008, 614 F.Supp.2d 1184, clarification denied, motion to amend denied, affirmed in part , reversed in part 621 F.3d 1275. Schools 148(2.1)

Once Kentucky accepted funds from federal government and acceded to administrative and appellate scheme of Education for Handicapped Children Act, state had overriding duty to provide appropriate individualized education program for every handicapped child capable of benefiting from one, and that obligation could require that some children be placed at Kentucky School for the Blind, even if children did not meet school's admission criteria, if placement would be the only way for appropriate IEP to be designed for student. Eva N. v. Brock, E.D.Ky.1990, 741 F.Supp. 626, affirmed 943 F.2d 51. Schools 154(2.1)

State board of education was not relieved from ultimate responsibility for the provision of educational benefits to a handicapped child by the possibility of financial or in-kind assistance from other government or private agencies. William S. v. Gill, N.D.Ill.1983, 572 F.Supp. 509. Schools 148(2.1)

12. ---- Individualized educational program, educational agency

Because education provided each disabled child must be uniquely appropriate for child's educational needs, state must prepare individualized education program (IEP) for each child through joint participation of local education agency, child's teacher, and child's parents. Curtis K. by Delores K. v. Sioux City Community School Dist., N.D.Iowa 1995, 895 F.Supp. 1197.

13. ---- Liability of educational agency

Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) does not dictate which district or agency within a state must assume financial liability for special education services, but rather, leaves the assignment and allocation of financial responsibility for special education cost of local school districts to each individual state's legislature. Manchester School Dist. v. Crisman, C.A.1 (N.H.) 2002, 306 F.3d 1. Schools 148(2.1)

District court has authority to award reimbursement costs for private school placement of disabled child against state educational agency, local educational agency, or both in any particular case under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA); either or both entities may be held liable for failure to provide free appropriate public education, as district court deems appropriate after considering all relevant factors. St. Tammany Parish School Bd. v. State of La., C.A.5 (La.) 1998, 142 F.3d 776, certiorari dismissed 119 S.Ct. 587, 525 U.S. 1036, 142 L.Ed.2d 490. Schools 155.5(5)

State education agency may be held liable for failure to comply with its duty to assure that substantive requirements of Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) are implemented at state and local levels, as agency is statutorily required to ensure that each child within its jurisdiction is provided free appropriate public education, even when local education agency is unwilling or unable to do so. Gadsby by Gadsby v. Grasmick, C.A.4 (Md.) 1997, 109 F.3d 940. Schools 148(2.1)

Office of the State Superintendent of Education (OSSE) could not be held liable in mother's Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) action for alleged failure of a local education agency (LEA) charter to provide son with free appropriate public education (FAPE), where District of Columbia Public Schools (DCPS), rather than OSSE, was acting as the state education agency (SEA) responsible for supervision and enforcement. Thomas v. District of Columbia, D.D.C.2011, 773 F.Supp.2d 15. Schools 148(2.1)

When a residential placement of a disabled student is made necessary by a combination of problems, the local education agency (LEA) may be found financially responsible for the placement under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA). 14. Delegation of duties

For purposes of determining contract's enforceability, Ohio school district did not abdicate or bargain away its obligation under IDEA to provide disabled student with free appropriate public education (FAPE) by allegedly contracting with private academy, a facility better equipped to deal with student's autism, and in so contracting school district did not relieve itself of obligations to monitor academy for compliance with state-set educational standards or to ensure that academy was meeting requirements of the individualized education program (IEP). Bishop v. Oakstone Academy, S.D.Ohio 2007, 477 F.Supp.2d 876. Schools 154(4)

15. Eligibility for services

Since-repealed Hawai'i regulation, conditioning eligibility for special education on existence of "severe discrepancy" between academic achievement and intellectual ability without permitting use of "response to intervention model," violated IDEA provision prohibiting states from requiring exclusive reliance on "severe discrepancy model" and requiring states to allow use of "response to intervention model." Michael P. v. Department of Educ., C.A.9 (Hawai'i) 2011, 656 F.3d 1057. Schools 148(2.1)

Record in IDEA case did not support classification of plaintiffs' minor child as a "child with a disability" under emotional disturbance prong, and they were not entitled to reimbursement for costs of his unilateral out-of-state placement at residential therapeutic school; evidence preponderated that academic problems he presented were result of his truancy, i.e., that he failed his classes because he refused to attend school, and that his refusal behavior was principally the product of a conduct disorder, narcissistic personality tendencies and substance abuse rather than of depression. W.G. v. New York City Dept. of Educ., S.D.N.Y.2011, 801 F.Supp.2d 142. Schools 154(3); Schools 155.5(4)

Disabilities of student who suffered from major depressive disorder and attention deficit hyperactivity disorder (ADHD), who had undergone psychiatric hospitalizations and made multiple suicide attempts, and who also had other behavioral problems, adversely impacted her educational performance, such that she was entitled to special education services under IDEA, notwithstanding that she had performed well under appropriate programs provided in private schools, in which her parents had unilaterally enrolled her, after school district failed to evaluate her. N.G. v. District of Columbia, D.D.C.2008, 556 F.Supp.2d 11. Schools 148(3)

Student did not exhibit characteristics of emotional disturbance "over a long period of time and to a marked degree," as required to qualify student for special education services under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA); student was personable and well-liked by teachers and students and got along well with both groups, and did not demonstrate verbal aggression, physically assaultive behavior, authority conflicts, general pervasive mood of unhappiness or depression, despondency, mood swings, or other conduct typically associated with emotional disturbance while at school. Tracy v. Beaufort County Bd of Ed., D.S.C.2004, 335 F.Supp.2d 675. Schools 148(3)

16. Domicile

Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) does not forbid a state from providing and funding a free appropriate public education to a disabled child who may not be a domiciliary of that state, even if the state is not required to do so and the child is a charge under the IDEA upon the custodial parent's state. Manchester School Dist. v. Crisman, C.A.1 (N.H.) 2002, 306 F.3d 1. Schools 148(2.1)

Under the Education of the Handicapped Act (EHA), Arizona was required to provide special education services tuition free to American citizen born to Mexican parents who was within borders of state of Arizona for bona fide reasons, regardless of child's residency status. Domicile plays no role where no state has assumed responsibility for providing education to handicapped person who has resided nearly all her life within borders of the state, and state, at minimum, under such circumstances has obligation to provide child with education. 17. Private school

Private high school's requirement of performance at the fifth grade level as a condition of placement in mainstream academic high school classes could not violate IDEA because the school was not directly subject to the IDEA's standards, though disabled student was placed there because local school district lacked its own high school. St. Johnsbury Academy v. D.H., C.A.2 (Vt.) 2001, 240 F.3d 163. Schools 8

18. Transfer of student

School board was not legally obligated, under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), to provide on-site sign language interpreter to student at private school, where student was offered free appropriate individualized education program (IEP) at public schools before voluntarily transferring to private school. Cefalu on Behalf of Cefalu v. East Baton Rouge Parish School Bd., C.A.5 (La.) 1997, 117 F.3d 231. Schools 8; Schools 148(2.1)

When responsibility for providing a disabled child a free appropriate public education (FAPE) under the IDEA transfers from one public agency to another, the new public agency is required only to provide a program that is in conformity with the placement in the last agreed upon individualized education plan (IEP) or individual family service plan (IFSP); the new agency need not, and probably could not, provide the exact same educational program. Pardini v. Allegheny Intermediate Unit, W.D.Pa.2003, 280 F.Supp.2d 447, reversed and remanded 420 F.3d 181, certiorari denied 126 S.Ct. 1646, 547 U.S. 1050, 164 L.Ed.2d 353, on remand 2006 WL 3940563. 19. Expelled or suspended students

Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) does not require provision of free appropriate public education (FAPE) to handicapped students expelled or suspended for criminal or other serious misconduct wholly unrelated to their disabilities; statute requires only that all handicapped students be provided with right to FAPE, and such right is susceptible of forfeiture through conduct unrelated to a student's disability which so completely disrupts classroom as to prevent continuation of educational process or which constitutes crime against society. Com. of Va., Dept. of Educ. v. Riley, C.A.4 1997, 106 F.3d 559. Schools 148(2.1)

Charter school denied free appropriate public education (FAPE) to adult learning disabled student when it failed to conduct Functional Behavioral Assessment (FBA) and implement Behavioral Intervention Plan (BIP) following student's suspension and expulsion. 20. Incarcerated children

District of Columbia's failure to provide special education services, pursuant to IDEA individualized education program (IEP), for learning disabled student incarcerated in another state, which provided its own special education services for student, did not breach agreement with student for provision of services, under District of Columbia law, since state officials made it impracticable for District to provide special education services by refusing to allow its educators entry into prison for security reasons. Hester v. District of Columbia, C.A.D.C.2007, 505 F.3d 1283, 378 U.S.App.D.C. 272, rehearing en banc denied. Schools 148(3)

District of Columbia, Chancellor of District of Columbia Public Schools (DCPS), and District Superintendent of Education failed to comply with their "Child Find" duties to disabled students in violation of IDEA, at least through and including the year 2007; their attempts to find disabled children in the District through public awareness, outreach, and even direct referrals were inadequate, they actually failed to find these disabled children, proven by the large number of children to whom defendants denied a free appropriate public education (FAPE), and defendants' initial evaluations were inadequate, proven by low number of 65.80% of children that received timely evaluation and by U.S. Office of Special Education Programs' (OSEP's) annual determinations that District did not meet requirement for timely evaluations. DL v. District of Columbia, D.D.C.2010, 730 F.Supp.2d 84. Schools 148(2.1)

Learning disabled student who resided in District of Columbia did not lose his D.C. residence by virtue of being incarcerated in Maryland; thus, District was obligated to provide educational services required under IDEA in accordance with explicit terms of consent order and hearing officer's determination (HOD). 21. Duty to identify student with disabilities

School district had reason to suspect that student had disability, and that student may have required special education, as required to comply with its obligation under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act's (IDEA's) Child Find provision to identify, locate, and timely evaluate students with disabilities and to develop methods to ensure that those students received necessary special education, where student exhibited hyperactivity in class, impulsive behaviors, uncontrollable vocalizations, and other related behavioral problems. D.G. ex rel. B.G. v. Flour Bluff Independent School Dist., S.D.Tex.2011, 832 F.Supp.2d 755, subsequent determination 2011 WL 2446375, vacated 2012 WL 1992302. Schools 148(3)

School district's obligation under IDEA's child-find provision to identify student who suffered from an affective disorder and provide her special education services did not end after her parents unilaterally withdrew her from district and placed her in an out-of-state private educational setting, even though district had not previously denied student a free appropriate public education (FAPE); parents continued to reside in district and could seek a FAPE from district as part of a plan to bring student home to a public placement. J.S. v. Scarsdale Union Free School Dist., S.D.N.Y.2011, 826 F.Supp.2d 635. Schools 148(3)

Under District of Columbia law, even if public charter school acting as a local education agency (LEA) violated its child find obligations under IDEA by failing to identify and evaluate student diagnosed with major depressive disorder in order to provide her with free appropriate public education (FAPE), District of Columbia Public Schools (DCPS), which had assumed role as the state education agency (SEA) was not liable to student's mother for LEA's IDEA violations, since public charter school had not notified DCPS that it needed assistance, nor had DCPS been ordered by hearing officer to provide FAPE to student. State Department of Public Instruction (DPI) did not satisfy Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) requirement that children in need of special education be found and placed, when DPI inspected school district, determined that compliance was unsatisfactory, but then took insufficient action to bring about compliance. Jamie S. v. Milwaukee Public Schools, E.D.Wis.2007, 519 F.Supp.2d 870, clarification denied 2007 WL 4365799, vacated 668 F.3d 481. Schools 148(2.1)

Under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), school board was not required to identify student as special education student, based on psychiatric institute's discharge form for student, before it was entitled to conduct psychological evaluation, and therefore parents were not justified in refusing consent to evaluation on such grounds, given that there was no statutory requirement that student be identified before evaluations that could aid in formulation of individualized education program (IEP) were conducted, that discharge could not alone have formed basis for identification, and that psychological evaluation was relevant to identification. P.S. v. Brookfield Bd. of Educ., D.Conn.2005, 353 F.Supp.2d 306, adhered to on reconsideration 364 F.Supp.2d 237, affirmed 186 Fed.Appx. 79, 2006 WL 1788293. Schools 148(3)

22. Child find provisions

School district's failure to evaluate student for disabilities until his first-grade year, failure to employ functional behavioral assessment in his evaluation, and refusal to label him disabled under IDEA until his second-grade year was not child find violation under IDEA or Rehabilitation Act, thus foreclosing compensatory education remedy, where school district was not required to jump to conclusion that student's misbehavior denoted disability, as his hyperactivity, difficulty following instructions, and tantrums were typical during early primary school years, student's report cards and conference forms indicated intermittent progress and some academic success, evaluation included four tests covering discrepant skill sets, probed for indicia of varying disabilities, and did not require inclusion of functional behavioral test, student's continuing misbehavior post-evaluation was typical of boys his age rather than requiring immediate reevaluation, and his teachers took proactive steps to provide him extra assistance. D.K. v. Abington School Dist., C.A.3 (Pa.) 2012, 2012 WL 4829193. Schools 148(3)

School district satisfied its child find obligations under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) and §§ 504 of the Rehabilitation Act; school district routinely posted child find notices in local paper, made information available on its website, sent residents the information in their tax bills, and posters and pamphlets were placed in private schools. P.P. ex rel. Michael P. v. West Chester Area School Dist., C.A.3 (Pa.) 2009, 585 F.3d 727. Schools 148(2.1)

School district could not force child to be evaluated under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) to determine whether child needed special services, under IDEA's child-find provision, since child was privately educated at home by parents who refused to consent to the testing and expressly waived all benefits under the IDEA; purpose of IDEA was to make free appropriate public education (FAPE) available to all children with disabilities and parents could waive child's right to services. Fitzgerald v. Camdenton R-III School Dist., C.A.8 (Mo.) 2006, 439 F.3d 773. Schools 148(2.1)

Pennsylvania's formula for allocating special-education funding to school districts did not violate IDEA's child-find requirement by creating a disincentive to identify students as eligible for special education services; there was no evidence establishing systematic, or even isolated, violations of child-find requirement as a result of funding formula. School district had no obligation under IDEA's child-find provision to identify disabled student and provide her special education services prior to her withdrawal from district during her junior year of high school; student's educational performance did not measurably decline between her freshman and sophomore years, when her affective disorder first manifested itself, her homework and attendance problems during her junior year came on gradually, not becoming problematic until two months before she withdrew, and her psychiatric therapy had previously allowed her to bounce back from her bouts with depression. Under IDEA, for purposes of determining whether student was provided with free appropriate public education (FAPE), student was "located and identified" as a potential special education candidate, and school's child find obligations were triggered, upon charter school's referral of student to school district's specialist for psycho-educational evaluation; evaluation diagnosed student with a learning disorder, a developmental coordination disorder, and a possible language disorder, and recommended that school further assess student with a speech-language evaluation, an occupational therapy (OT) evaluation, a clinical evaluation, and a behavior intervention plan (BIP). State education department's procedures for selecting type of evaluation to administer to potentially disabled child upon request by parent violated Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) and Rehabilitation Act; department chose either comprehensive evaluation meant to determine whether child was disabled or evaluation which department purportedly administered to children not suspected of having handicap but still exhibiting "achievement delays," and department had no clear distinction between situations that called for either particular type of test. School district did not evaluate student within reasonable time after noticing behavioral issues, and therefore violated its obligation under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act's (IDEA's) Child Find provision to identify, locate, and timely evaluate students with disabilities and to develop methods to ensure that those students received necessary special education, where district did not hold admission, review, and dismissal (ARD) meeting until one year after observing student's behavior, during which time student was attending disciplinary program at district's discipline and guidance center, and waited another two months after meeting before making special education services available. School district failed to offer student with learning disabilities free and appropriate public education (FAPE), as required by IDEA, even though student was enrolled in private school, where student was domiciled in district, and district denied requests of student's parents for evaluations and individualized education program (IEP) before having to decide whether to continue student's placement at private school for then current and subsequent year or to re-enroll student in public school. School district conducted evaluation of student with diabetes mellitus, adjustment disorder, and social anxiety disorder to determine whether she was qualified for special education and related benefits under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) within 60 days of date on which student's father consented to evaluation, as required by Illinois law pertaining to identification of eligible children for special education, and thus evaluation was timely. Loch v. Board of Educ. of Edwardsville Community School Dist. A functional behavioral assessment (FBA) sought by a student's parent was an "educational evaluation" for purposes of an Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) regulation giving parents the right to an independent educational evaluation at public expense, despite claim that the FBA was merely a tool to help students with behavioral, not educational, problems; an FBA was essential to addressing a child's behavioral difficulties, and, as such, it played an integral role in the development of an individualized education plan (IEP). Harris v. District of Columbia, D.D.C.2008, 561 F.Supp.2d 63. Schools 148(3)

Secretary of Education's refusal to approve state's proposed amendment to its plan under the No Child Left Behind (NCLB) Act seeking to assess special education students at instructional rather than grade level, on grounds that amendment violated NCLB mandate that same academic standards apply to all students in the state, was not arbitrary and capricious in violation of the Administrative Procedure Act (APA), despite Secretary's own regulation exempting from testing one percent of special education students; although regulation, which was adopted in the Individuals with Disabilities Act (IDEA), permitted states to provide reasonable accommodations, it did not permit out-of-grade testing. Connecticut v. Spellings, D.Conn.2008, 549 F.Supp.2d 161, affirmed as modified 612 F.3d 107, certiorari denied 131 S.Ct. 1471, 179 L.Ed.2d 360. Schools 148(2.1)

Under the IDEA, hearing officer erred in requiring Massachusetts school district to arrange for and fund twelve-week extended evaluation of disabled student with Wolf-Hirschorn Syndrome at unapproved and unaccredited program in order to inform parties further on issue of whether that program would meet student's needs. Assuming that exception existed to school board's right to have student undergo psychological evaluation in determining his eligibility for special education under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), based on parents' alleged fear that student would be harmed by evaluation, exception did not apply to justify parents' refusal to consent to evaluation when there was no evidence that evaluation was likely to harm student, most generous reading of the record supported only the finding that an inappropriate evaluation could harm student and student's parents were concerned that evaluation might be inappropriate, and hearing officer concluded that parents' true concern was that evaluator would not be impartial. P.S. v. Brookfield Bd. of Educ., D.Conn.2005, 353 F.Supp.2d 306, adhered to on reconsideration 364 F.Supp.2d 237, affirmed 186 Fed.Appx. 79, 2006 WL 1788293. Schools 148(3)

24. Budgetary constraints

Cost considerations when devising appropriate programs for individual handicapped students are only relevant when choosing between several options, all of which offer "appropriate" education. Clevenger v. Oak Ridge School Bd., C.A.6 (Tenn.) 1984, 744 F.2d 514. Schools 154(2.1)

Where school district did not receive funding under this chapter until beginning of its fiscal year in July 1978, it was not subject to either procedural or substantive requirements of this subchapter during the 1977-78 school year. Scokin v. State of Tex., C.A.5 (Tex.) 1984, 723 F.2d 432.

A factor that school district may take into account in placement of disabled student is impact proposed placement would have on limited educational and financial resources. Cheltenham School Dist. v. Joel P. by Suzanne P., E.D.Pa.1996, 949 F.Supp. 346, affirmed 135 F.3d 763. Schools 148(2.1)

State's receipt of federal funds for assistance in educating handicapped children, pursuant to this chapter, required state to comply with its part of bargain, i.e., to provide sufficient funds to cover full cost of their education, and state's budgetary constraints did not excuse it from obligations arising from acceptance of federal funds. Kerr Center Parents Ass'n v. Charles, D.C.Or.1983, 581 F.Supp. 166. Schools 148(2.1)

Inadequacy of funds does not relieve a state of its obligation to assure handicapped child equal access to educa-

State which volunteered to participate in this chapter could not refuse to provide funds necessary to send handicapped child to special schools on theory that, because of budgetary constraints, the state and local school authorities could not afford to spend the sums necessary to send child to such schools and, if sufficient funds were not available to finance all of services and programs needed, available funds must be expended equitably in such manner that no child was entirely excluded from publicly supported education consistent with his needs and ability to benefit therefrom. 25. Duration of State's duty

Once a student has graduated, he is no longer entitled to a free and appropriate public education (FAPE), and thus any claim that a FAPE was deficient becomes moot upon a valid graduation; rule applies only where a student does not contest his graduation, and where he is seeking only prospective, rather than compensatory, relief. T.S. v. Independent School Dist. No. 54, Stroud, Oklahoma, C.A.10 (Okla.) 2001, 265 F.3d 1090, certiorari denied 122 S.Ct. 1297, 535 U.S. 927, 152 L.Ed.2d 209. Schools 155.5(2.1)

School district was not required, under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), to provide disabled student with hearing on his IDEA claims, since student no longer resided in the school district nor did he go to school there at the time he requested the hearing, and student's mother had received copy of "parents' rights" brochure, which contained notice of parent's right to request due process hearing, and notification that the hearing had to be conducted by "district directly responsible for your child's education." 26. Minimum educational achievement

Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) requires states to provide disabled child with meaningful access to education, but it cannot guarantee totally successful results. Walczak v. Florida Union Free School Dist., C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1998, 142 F.3d 119. Schools 148(2.1)

Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) contains no substantive requirement regarding level of education to be afforded disabled students or level of achievement they must achieve, nor any requirement that their potential be maximized, but merely requires that states insure that their disabled children receive some form of specialized education and states that "appropriate education" is afforded if personalized services are provided for child. King v. Board of Educ. of Allegany County, Maryland, D.Md.1998, 999 F.Supp. 750. Schools 148(2.1)

27. Demonstration of benefit

Education of All Handicapped Children Act did not require that a handicapped child demonstrate that he could benefit from special education in order to be eligible for that education. Timothy W. v. Rochester, N.H., School Dist., C.A.1 (N.H.) 1989, 875 F.2d 954, certiorari denied 110 S.Ct. 519, 493 U.S. 983, 107 L.Ed.2d 520. Schools 148(2.1)

28. Monitoring

Lack of guidelines in Individuals with Disabilities Act (IDEA) with respect to monitoring efforts to be made by state agencies responsible for ensuring compliance with IDEA's least restrictive environment (LRE) mandate did not excuse inadequacy of monitoring efforts undertaken by state Board of Education, as state Board was statutorily required to ensure compliance through effective monitoring plan. Corey H. v. Board of Educ. of City of Chicago, N.D.Ill.1998, 995 F.Supp. 900. Schools 148(2.1)

It is responsibility of state educational agency either to make sure that local agencies provide adequate purposes to handicapped children or to provide those services. Yaris v. Special School Dist. of St. Louis County, E.D.Mo.1983, 558 F.Supp. 545, affirmed 728 F.2d 1055. Schools 148(2.1)

29. Termination of funding

State educational agency (SEA) did not violate IDEA or Rehabilitation Act by failing to cut off special education funding to local educational agency (LEA) which had failed to remedy deficiencies in its special education program; SEA reasonably believed that LEA was making good faith effort to move toward compliance, and there was no evidence that LEA's multiple-year delay in attaining compliance was attributable to any failure of SEA to fulfill its supervisory and monitoring responsibilities. A.A. v. Board of Educ., Cent. Islip Union Free School Dist., E.D.N.Y.2003, 255 F.Supp.2d 119, remanded 87 Fed.Appx. 216, 2004 WL 303917, opinion after remand 386 F.3d 455. Schools 148(2.1)

30. Notice

Hearing officer's finding, in denying tuition reimbursement to mother for placement of her child in private reading clinic, that mother's cancer did not excuse her failure to provide notice that she was rejecting placement proposed in Individualized Education Program (IEP) was supported by sufficient evidence; mother's completion of detailed application for the reading clinic indicated that she could take care of her affairs. School's violation of Education of the Handicapped Act's parental notification requirements in connection with development of individualized educational program did not require relief under Act, where parents fully participated in individualized educational program process. Doe v. Alabama State Dept. of Educ., C.A.11 (Ala.) 1990, 915 F.2d 651. Schools 155.5(2.1)

School officials' failure to adequately inform parents of a student with dyslexia of their procedural rights under Education for All Handicapped Children Act when suggesting that the parents hire a tutor and when parents announced their intention to withdraw their son from the public school, in itself, was adequate grounds for holding that school failed to provide student with a free appropriate public education in violation of the Act and North Carolina law. Hall by Hall v. Vance County Bd. of Educ., C.A.4 (N.C.) 1985, 774 F.2d 629.

Impartial Hearing Officer's (HO) finding that school district gave ample notice to student with diabetes mellitus, adjustment disorder, and social anxiety disorder and her parents as to evaluations it was going to conduct of student, its decision that student was not eligible for special education and related services under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), and its decision to remove student from school rolls, even though not required by statute, was well supported by record; student's father was present at collaborative team meeting, and parents received copy of written report that contained ineligibility determinations, as well as other reports. Loch v. Board of Educ. of Edwardsville Community School Dist. No. 7, S.D.Ill.2008, 573 F.Supp.2d 1072, motion to amend denied 2008 WL 4899437, affirmed 327 Fed.Appx. 647, 2009 WL 1747897, certiorari denied 130 S.Ct. 1736, 176 L.Ed.2d 212. Schools 155.5(4)

There was no evidence that school district withheld information from parents of student with diabetes mellitus, adjustment disorder, and social anxiety disorder regarding specific procedures for pursuing referral for case study evaluation of student, as would determine her qualification for special education and related benefits under Individuals with Disabilities Act (IDEA); assistant superintendent explained to student's father how out-of-district placements might be paid for by district if student was eligible, assistant superintendent followed up by sending parents a letter and parents' rights booklet, and parents received copy of school's handbook, which provided information on how to request evaluation. Loch v. Board of Educ. of Edwardsville Community School Dist. Shaw v. District of Columbia, D.D.C.2002, 238 F.Supp.2d 127. Schools 154(2.1)

Failure of school district's letters to inform handicapped student's parents of right to due process hearing and letters' failure to comply with notice requirements did not warrant reversal of hearing officer's determination that student was given free and appropriate public education by school district; parent was actively involved with student's teachers and principal throughout his time in public school system, and they were responsive to parents' concerns and student's needs. Livingston v. DeSoto County School Dist., N.D.Miss.1992, 782 F.Supp. 1173 . Schools 155.5(2.1)

31. Power of court

In case involving student with autism and cerebral palsy, hearing officer exceeded her authority to remedy IDEA violation by expunging statutorily mandated individualized education program (IEP) team and replacing them with service providers from home-based program; potential conflict of interest created by arrangement was evident in that providers had financial interest in prolonging student's home-based program and, more importantly, school district was responsible for orchestrating student's educational needs and developing IEP that would address student's unique circumstances. Anchorage School Dist. v. D.S., D.Alaska 2009, 688 F.Supp.2d 883. Schools 148(3)

Neither a hearing officer nor a court can order Connecticut Department of Mental Health and Addiction Services (DMH) to find a person eligible for its services because this is a discretionary decision left to the superintendent; however, if an otherwise responsible educational or noneducational agency fails to provide disabled children with a free appropriate public education, a district court may issue orders relating to an individual child's entitlement to special education or related services. 33. Standing

Disabled students had standing to challenge, under Individuals with Disabilities Act (IDEA) and Rehabilitation Act, requirement that they take on same basis as other students California High School Exit Exam (CAHSEE), which must be passed prior to receiving high school diploma, despite prematurity claim that nobody had yet been forced to take test and that state education board had authority to delay date that test passage became graduation requirement. Chapman v. CA Dept. of Educ., N.D.Cal.2002, 229 F.Supp.2d 981, reversed in part 45 Fed.Appx. 780, 2002 WL 31001869, amended and superseded 53 Fed.Appx. 474, 2002 WL 31856343, rehearing and rehearing en banc denied. Schools 155.5(2.1)

34. Jurisdiction

IDEA's incorporation of New York Law in its standards for Free Appropriate Public Education (FAPE) did not provide district court with jurisdiction over parent's action seeking review of New York State administrative decision holding that school district was obligated by state law to provide student with teacher's aide. Bay Shore Union Free School Dist. v. Kain, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 2007, 485 F.3d 730. Schools 155.5(2.1)

35. Burden of proof

District Court's error was harmless in placing burden of persuasion on parents in school district's challenge under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) to findings by hearing officer of IDEA violations as to provision of free appropriate public education (FAPE) to elementary school student; hearing officer's errors stemmed largely from mistakes of omissions regarding application of law, which were unaffected by burden of persuasion. 36. Evidence

Purported new evidence offered by disabled student did not establish failure of city education department to provide student with free appropriate public education (FAPE) in violation of Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA); items were public documents that were available to student's parents at time of administrative hearing, special education service delivery report indicating that school site selected for student did not always deliver full special education services to all of its students requiring them was irrelevant since student's individualized education program (IEP) provided for him to receive therapy at separate location, and stipulation entered in earlier class action also was irrelevant. M.S. ex rel. M.S. v. New York City Dept. of Educ., E.D.N.Y.2010, 734 F.Supp.2d 271. Schools 155.5(4)

School district would not be permitted to benefit from its violation of its obligation under IDEA to evaluate student as potentially in need of special education services by basing its subsequent ineligibility determination, two years later, on her success at private schools in which parents were forced to enroll her after school district defaulted on its obligations, and thus evidence of student's prior dismal performance at district schools was improperly excluded by evaluation team and hearing officer on basis that it did not relate to student's current educational and behavioral status. 37. Summary judgment

Parties' summary judgment motions were premature on disabled students' class claim that state statute imposing 20-year age limit on admissions to public schools violated IDEA, where record was incomplete as to whether Hawai‘i's education department regularlyencouraged general education students who would otherwise “age out” under state statute to pursue continued education in adult education courses and whether adult education programs and Hawai‘i's secondary education program were similar in nature. R.P.-K. v. Department of Educ., Hawaii, D.Hawai'i 2011, 817 F.Supp.2d 1182. Schools 155.5(5)

Genuine issue of material fact, as to whether charter school's violation of hearing officer's determination (HOD) by refusing to implement it during pendency of appeal resulted in denial of free appropriate public education (FAPE) to adult learning disabled student, precluded summary judgment on that aspect of student's IDEA claim. Shelton v. Maya Angelou Public Charter School, D.D.C.2008, 578 F.Supp.2d 83. Schools 155.5(5)

Genuine issue of material fact as to whether parents' unilateral placement of autistic child in private school was appropriate after they were offered inadequate individualized education program (IEP) that recommended his placement in district program, precluded summary judgment in IDEA suit on parents' claim for tuition reimbursement. A.Y. v. Cumberland Valley School Dist., M.D.Pa.2008, 569 F.Supp.2d 496. Schools 155.5(5)

Genuine issue of material fact existed as to whether individual school administrators abrogated their child find duties, precluding summary judgment in their favor of district defendants on Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) claim based on qualified immunity; there were numerous red flags which should have alerted the administrators, including grades which when compared to student's tested ability, demonstrated severe academic underachievement, student's chronic discipline problems from seventh grade onward, and student's test scores. Material issues of fact existed as to whether student was denied free appropriate public education (FAPE) under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) in light of almost 12-month delay between school officials' observation of behavior likely indicating disability and their completion of comprehensive evaluation report (CER), precluding summary judgment for school district on student's claim alleging violation of IDEA. O.F. ex rel. N.S. v. Chester Upland School Dist., E.D.Pa.2002, 246 F.Supp.2d 409. Federal Civil Procedure 2491.5

Material issues of fact existed as to whether student was denied free appropriate public education (FAPE) under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) as a result of length of time that it took to evaluate student and author individualized education plan (IEP) for her, precluding summary judgment for state education department on student's IDEA claim. 38. Injunction

For purposes of request for injunctive relief by class of disabled District of Columbia children, violations by District of Columbia, Chancellor of District of Columbia Public Schools (DCPS), and District Superintendent of Education resulted in irreparable injury to all eligible children between ages of three and five years old, inclusive, who lived in, or were wards of, District of Columbia, and whom District did not identify, locate, evaluate, or offer special education and related services, and without access to those special education and related services, preschool-age children in the District of Columbia suffered substantial harm by being denied vital educational opportunities that were essential to their development. DL v. District of Columbia, D.D.C.2011, 845 F.Supp.2d 1. Schools 155.5(5)

Disabled students were not entitled to preliminary injunction to enjoin enforcement of Hawai‘i statute imposing

20-year age limit on admissions to public schools, where students failed to show that Hawai'i's education department regularly transferred general education students who would otherwise "age out" from secondary education to adult education programs or that education offered by adult education programs was functional equivalent of education provided in Hawai'i's secondary schools. R.P.-K. v. Department of Educ., Hawaii, D.Hawai'i 2011, 817 F.Supp.2d 1182. Injunction 1319

Irreparable harm requirement, for issuance of preliminary injunction, was satisfied by disabled students seeking to bar state from requiring them to take on same basis as other students California High School Exit Exam (CAHSEE), which must be passed in order to graduate from high school; denial of appropriate accommodations would deny students right, under Individuals with Disabilities Act (IDEA) and Rehabilitation Act, to participate in statewide assessment available to other students, and would be injurious to their individual dignity. Chapman v. CA Dept. of Educ., N.D.Cal.2002, 229 F.Supp.2d 981, reversed in part 45 Fed.Appx. 780, 2002 WL 31001869, amended and superseded 53 Fed.Appx. 474, 2002 WL 31856343, rehearing and rehearing en banc denied. 39. Estoppel

Hawai'i's education department was not judicially estopped from asserting that disabled students' special education and related services ended at age 20, per state statute, where prior representation that, pursuant to IDEA, free appropriate public education (FAPE) was available to students between ages of three and 21 was in section of federal form that did not allow department to explain that it had lowered age limit by terms of IDEA, and department explained in another section of form that it did not offer FAPEs to students beyond age 20. R.P.-K. v. Department of Educ., Hawaii, D.Hawai'i 2011, 817 F.Supp.2d 1182. Estoppel 68(2)

Having agreed to comply with IDEA, its federal regulations, and parallel State regulations, and having accepted and spent federal IDEA funding, Virginia county school board was quasi-estopped to bring Spending Clause challenge to IDEA and implementing regulations, including pendent lite payment rule. 40. Moot issues

IDEA originally entitled disabled student to a free appropriate public education (FAPE) until his 22nd birthday, whereas Vermont law was consistent with an application of IDEA to children through their 21st year, and thus the additional year of IDEA coverage awarded by the district court as compensatory education preserved the case from mootness, even though the student was between his 22nd and 23rd birthdays at time of decision on appeal. St. Johnsbury Academy v. D.H., C.A.2 (Vt.) 2001, 240 F.3d 163. Schools 155.5(2.1)

In IDEA case, hearing officer's order that school board provide student with guidance counseling services was not moot and remained issue of controversy as it was capable of repetition, yet evading review. School Bd. of the City of Norfolk v. Brown, E.D.Va.2010, 769 F.Supp.2d 928. Schools 155.5(2.1)

Claim challenging autistic student's recommended placement in special public school pursuant to Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) was rendered "moot" and was not capable of repetition, warranting dismissal of case, where student received educational placement in private school that he sought, his parents received full compensation for their expenditures for private school for pertinent school year, and new placement determination was made each year based upon student's continuing development, requiring new assessment under IDEA. M.S. ex rel. M.S. v. New York City Dept. of Educ., E.D.N.Y.2010, 734 F.Supp.2d 271. Schools 155.5(2.1)

Parent's claim that failure of individualized education program (IEP) to provide disabled student with individual speech therapy rendered it substantively inadequate was moot, where school district offered parents individual speech therapy during the mediation process. E.G. v. City School Dist. of New Rochelle, S.D.N.Y.2009, 606 F.Supp.2d 384. Schools 155.5(2.1)

41. Remand

Hearing officer's erroneous denial of any compensatory education award based on school district's failure to provide appropriate placement for 4 months of school year for elementary student with learning disabilities, despite multi-disciplinary team's determination that student required full-time special education placement, pursuant to IDEA, warranted remand to determine amount of compensatory education required to provide student benefits that would likely have accrued had he been given free appropriate public education (FAPE), since student was left at school which did not meet his needs, his academic achievement scores had declined, and individually tailored assessment of student and his compensatory education needs had been conducted. Brown v. District of Columbia, D.D.C.2008, 568 F.Supp.2d 44. Schools 155.5(2.1)

42. Declaratory judgment

Class of disabled District of Columbia children between the ages of three and five was entitled to declaration that, from January 1, 2008 to April 6, 2011, District of Columbia, Chancellor of District of Columbia Public Schools (DCPS), and District Superintendent of Education were in violation of IDEA and District of Columbia law because they had failed and continued to fail to ensure that (a) free appropriate public education (FAPE) was available to all children with disabilities who resided in or were wards of District of Columbia between ages of three and five, inclusive, (b) all children between ages of three and five, who resided in or were wards of District of Columbia who were in need of special education and related services, were identified, located, and evaluated within 120 days of referral, and (c) all children participating in Part C early intervention and who would participate in Part B preschool education experienced smooth and effective transition to Part B by their third birthdays. DL v. District of Columbia, D.D.C.2011, 845 F.Supp.2d 1. Declaratory Judgment 210

43. Least restrictive environment

Pennsylvania's formula for allocating special-education funding to school districts did not violate IDEA's least-restrictive-environment (LRE) requirement by creating an incentive for districts to educate students in overly restrictive environments; there was no evidence that placement of students in restrictive settings in districts receiving less funding was inappropriate. CG v. Pennsylvania Dept. of Educ., M.D.Pa.2012, 2012 WL 3639063. Schools 19(1); Schools 154(2.1)

II. FREE APPROPRIATE PUBLIC EDUCATION

<Subdivision Index>

Although Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) may not require public schools to maximize the potential of disabled students commensurate with opportunities provided to other children, and potential financial burdens imposed on participating states may be relevant to arriving at sensible construction of IDEA, Congress intended to open the door of public education to all qualified children and required participating states to educate handicapped children with nonhandicapped children whenever possible. Cedar Rapids Community School Dist. v. Garret F. ex rel. Charlene F., U.S.Iowa 1999, 119 S.Ct. 992, 526 U.S. 66, 161 A.L.R. Fed. 683, 143 L.Ed.2d 154. Schools 148(2.1); Schools 154(2.1)

Although at times disabled students at public school were treated differently than their non-disabled peers, treatment did not violate Equal Protection Clause, since differential treatment was based upon students' particular needs as determined by their individualized education plans (IEP), pursuant to IDEA. New Britain Bd. of Educ. v. New Britain Federation of Teachers, Local 871, D.Conn.2010, 754 F.Supp.2d 407. Constitutional Law 3159; Schools 148(2.1)

In educational context, plaintiff asserting claims under Title II of the ADA or Rehabilitation Act must show more than an IDEA violation based upon a failure to provide a free appropriate public education (FAPE); plaintiff must also demonstrate intentional discrimination or some bad faith or gross misjudgment by the school. J.D.P. v. Cherokee County, Ga. School Dist., N.D.Ga.2010, 735 F.Supp.2d 1348. Schools 148(2.1)

In assessing whether district's plan afforded child a free appropriate public education (FAPE), two issues are relevant: whether state complied with procedural requirements of IDEA and whether challenged individualized education program (IEP) was reasonably calculated to enable child to receive educational benefits. Gabel ex rel. L.G. v. Board of Educ. of Hyde Park Central School Dist., S.D.N.Y.2005, 368 F.Supp.2d 313. Schools 148(2.1)

Failure to provide an individualized education program (IEP), the failure to hold a due process hearing, or the failure to provide a written determination in a timely manner after requests for an IEP meeting or a hearing have been made constitutes the denial of a free appropriate public education as required by Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA). Blackman v. District of Columbia, D.D.C.2003, 277 F.Supp.2d 71. Schools 148(2.1)

Disabled child is receiving “free appropriate public education” (FAPE) required under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) if personalized instruction is being provided with sufficient supportive services to permit child to benefit from instruction, and instruction and services are provided at public expense and under public supervision, meet state's educational standards, approximate grade levels used in state's regular education, and comport with child's Individual Education Program (IEP). D.B. v. Ocean Tp. Bd. of Educ., D.N.J.1997, 985 F.Supp. 457, affirmed 159 F.3d 1350. Schools 148(2.1)

Under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), state receiving federal funds for the education of handicapped children must provide those children with a “free appropriate public education”; in this context, “free appropriate public education” consists of educational instruction designed to meet the unique needs of the handicapped child, supported by such services as are necessary to permit the child to benefit from the instruction, and benefit conferred by this special education must be meaningful and not trivial or de minimis. Christen G. by Louise G. v. Lower Merion School Dist., E.D.Pa.1996, 919 F.Supp. 793. Schools 148(2.1)

If state elects to receive federal funds provided for education of disabled children, state must adopt certain procedures and practices in the education of the disabled pursuant to Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) which requires that each disabled child in cooperating state be provided with "free appropriate education." 72. Matters considered, free appropriate public education

In determining whether disabled child can be educated satisfactorily in regular classroom with supplementary aids and services, court should consider: steps school has taken to try to include the child in regular classroom; comparison between educational benefits child will receive in regular classroom, with supplementary aids and services, and benefits child will receive in segregated special education classroom; and possible negative effect child's inclusion may have on education of other children in the regular classroom. Oberti by Oberti v. Board of Educ. of Borough of Clementon School Dist., C.A.3 (N.J.) 1993, 995 F.2d 1204. Schools 148(2.1)

Severity of child's handicap and extent to which child could benefit from education are proper subjects of consideration in determining whether child's individualized education program (IEP) would fulfill requirement of appropriate education. Christopher M. by Laveta McA. v. Corpus Christi Independent School Dist., C.A.5 (Tex.) 1991, 933 F.2d 1285. Schools 148(2.1)

Appropriate issue in review of adequacy of individualized education program proposed by school district under the Education of the Handicapped Act was not whether the school district's program was "better" or "worse" than that preferred by the parents in terms of academic results or some other purely scholastic criteria, but whether the school district's program, taking into account the totality of the child's special needs, struck an "adequate and appropriate" balance on the fulcrum of maximum benefit and least restrictive environment. Roland M. v. Concord School Committee, C.A.1 (Mass.) 1990, 910 F.2d 983, rehearing denied, certiorari denied 111 S.Ct. 1122, 499 U.S. 912, 113 L.Ed.2d 230. Schools 148(2.1)

whether to place a handicapped child in a more restrictive environment include: (1) whether the child was experiencing emotional conditions that fundamentally interfered with the child's ability to learn in local placement; (2) whether the child's behavior was so inadequate, or regression was occurring to such a degree, as to fundamentally interfere with the child's ability to learn in a local placement; (3) whether, before the dispute arose between the parents and the local school board, any health or educational professionals actually working with the child concluded that the child needed residential placement; (4) whether the child had significant unrealized potential that could only be developed in residential placement; (4) whether the child had significant unrealized potential that could only be developed in residential placement; and (6) whether the demand for residential placement was primarily to address educational needs. S.C. ex rel. C.C. v. Deptford Tp. Bd. of Educ., D.N.J.2003, 248 F.Supp.2d 368. Schools 154(2.1)

In determining appropriate placement for particular disabled student in accordance with mainstreaming presumption under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), if regular classroom is not feasible placement in light of nature and severity of student's handicapping conditions, same factors considered in coming to that determination should be considered, insofar as applicable, in evaluating any more restrictive points on continuum of possible placements. D.B. v. Ocean Tp. Bd. of Educ., D.N.J.1997, 985 F.Supp. 457, affirmed 159 F.3d 1350. Schools 148(2.1)

Evaluations based on grade levels are not determinative of educational progress for purposes of determining whether handicapped student is receiving educational benefit from placement in compliance with IDEA; grades, socialization skills, level of participation, consistency of effort, and commitment to studies are all relevant. Mather v. Hartford School Dist., D.Vt.1996, 928 F.Supp. 437. Schools 148(2.1)

Where factors considered under the IDEA in determining whether mainstreaming requirement has been met, as to whether child will receive educational or nonacademic benefits from regular classroom, point against more extensive mainstreaming, it should not be necessary to go on to deal with possible countervailing factors such as possible negative effects on other children in the regular classroom or cost of proposed program. D.F. v. Western School Corp., S.D.Ind.1996, 921 F.Supp. 559. Schools 148(2.1)

Hearing officers' decisions approving individualized educational programs (IEP) for two hearing-impaired students which would put the students in public schools, rather than in private school for the hearing impaired, were improper to the extent they failed to contain comparative least restrictive environment analysis of the two educational settings in light of children's abilities and needs and contained little discussion of the abilities, needs and maximum potential of each child in contravention of Michigan law and the IDEA. Brimmer v. Traverse City Area Public Schools, W.D.Mich.1994, 872 F.Supp. 447. Schools 155.5(1)

Factors relevant to determining whether a placement is appropriate under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) include: educational benefits available to child in regular classroom, supplemented with appropriate aids and services, as compared to educational benefits of special education classroom; nonacademic benefits to child of interaction with nonhandicapped children; effect of presence of handicapped child on teacher and other children in regular classroom; and costs of supplementary aids and services necessary to mainstream handicapped child in a regular classroom setting. Board of Educ., Sacramento City Unified School Dist. v. Hol-

In determining whether hearing impaired children were entitled to continue in private school for education of deaf under Education for All Handicapped Children Act, court was not to determine which of competing education methods for hearing impaired children was best; rather, court was to determine whether education program proposed by school district was appropriate means of education for the children. Visco by Visco v. School Dist. of Pittsburgh, W.D.Pa.1988, 684 F.Supp. 1310. Schools 154(4)

In order to meet requirement of a "free appropriate education," under this chapter educators, at the very least, must examine individual needs of child in order to determine whether there are sufficient "services to permit the child to benefit educationally from that instruction." Competing interests of the personal and unique needs of the individual and handicapped child and realities of limited funding and necessity of assisting in education of all handicapped children must be considered by District Court in analyzing what is a "free appropriate public education" under this chapter. Question whether child's primary handicapped condition was a type of organic psychosis denominated "organic childhood schizophrenia," or whether it was a severe mental retardation, while significant to question of whether placement of child in a six-hour day program met standard of "free appropriate public education," to which child was entitled under this chapter and section 794 of Title 29, was not dispositive, as the question was actually whether the child's educational placement was suited to her unique needs. Gladys J. v. Pearland Independent School Dist., S.D.Tex.1981, 520 F.Supp. 869. Schools 148(3)

73. Local control, free appropriate public education

Primary responsibility for formulating the education to be accorded to a handicapped child, and for choosing the educational method most suitable to the child's needs, is left by the IDEA to the state and local educational agencies. Pardini v. Allegheny Intermediate Unit, W.D.Pa.2003, 280 F.Supp.2d 447, reversed and remanded 420 F.3d 181, certiorari denied 126 S.Ct. 1646, 547 U.S. 1050, 164 L.Ed.2d 353, on remand 2006 WL 3940563. Schools 148(2.1)

74. Deference, free appropriate public education

District court finding that individualized education programs (IEPs) recommended by school district for dyslexic student were inadequate to provide student with free appropriate public education (FAPE), as required by IDEA, impermissibly imposed court's view of preferable education methods, and did not accord appropriate deference to state administrative determinations that IEPs were adequate under IDEA. Grim v. Rhinebeck Central School Dist., C.A.2 (N.Y.) 2003, 346 F.3d 377. Schools 155.5(2.1)

There was insufficient evidence in the record to overturn state review officer's (SRO's) finding that private school's regular education curriculum was not specifically designed to meet student's unique special education needs, and thus parents were not entitled to tuition reimbursement for cost of that placement. R.B. v. New York City Dept. of Educ., S.D.N.Y.2010, 713 F.Supp.2d 235. Schools 154(4)

Question of whether benefit accorded disabled student under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) is de minimis and therefore unacceptable must be gauged in relation to child's potential; although court is not to interfere with educational methodology, this limitation does not permit court to abdicate its obligation to enforce statutory provisions that ensure free and appropriate education to each disabled child. D.B. v. Ocean Tp. Bd. of Educ., D.N.J.1997, 985 F.Supp. 457, affirmed 159 F.3d 1350. Schools 155.5(2.1)

75. Age of student, free appropriate public education

Despite the text of the IDEA, which statutorily limits a school district's obligation to provide a free appropriate public education (FAPE) only to students under the age of 21, an individual over that age is still eligible for compensatory education for a school district's failure to provide a FAPE prior to the student turning 21; a court may grant compensatory education in such cases through its equitable power under the IDEA. Ferren C. v. School Dist. of Philadelphia, C.A.3 (Pa.) 2010, 612 F.3d 712. Schools 155.5(5)

Award of "compensatory education" under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) requires school district to provide education past child's twenty-first birthday to make up for any earlier deprivation. Hawaii Department of Education (DOE) could not limit autistic student's special education services solely on the basis that student aged out of special education program pursuant to DOE rule upon reaching age 20, and IDEA thus required DOE to provide special education to student through age 21 if student's individualized education plan (IEP) team determined such education was warranted, where state statute and practice permitted general education students to continue education beyond age 20 under certain circumstances. B.T. ex rel. Mary T. v. Department of Educ., Hawaii, D.Hawai'i 2009, 676 F.Supp.2d 982. Schools 148(3)

Hawai'i lacked state law consistently restricting age for admission of general education students into public school, as would allow deviation from IDEA requirement of providing free appropriate public education (FAPE) to all disabled children from age 3 to 21, unless application of IDEA to children aged 18 through 21 was inconsistent with state law or practice, in support of Hawai'i's duty to continue providing severely disabled student individualized education until his twenty-second birthday, since Hawai'i law prohibited general education students 18 years old or older from entering tenth grade, but had no additional age limits when student reached eleventh or twelfth grade, and allowed overage general education students admittance by permission of school principal. B.T. ex rel. Mary T. v. Department of Educ., State of Hawaii, D.Hawai'i 2009, 637 F.Supp.2d 856. Schools 148(2.1)

Generally, under the IDEA, a disabled student does not have the right to demand a public education beyond the age of twenty-one; however, compensatory education for student over that age is available as an equitable remedy where there has been a gross violation of the IDEA, which occurs when a student has been deprived of a free appropriate public education (FAPE) for a substantial period of time. Award of compensatory special education and related services beyond disabled child's twenty-first birthday was inappropriate under IDEA; although school district failed to provide free appropriate public education, child's parents failed to demonstrate that child's condition regressed as result of school district's failure to provide appropriate education in timely and consistent manner. 76. Individualized program, free appropriate public education--Generally

In determining whether student's Ehlers-Danlos Syndrome (EDS) adversely affected his educational performance under the IDEA, ALJ clearly erred in rejecting as unreliable adaptive gym teacher's testimony that student did not need special education to participate in gym curriculum; ALJ noted that teacher testified in detail about many adaptations and modifications she made for student to enable him to participate in gym class, but the referred-to behavior was mandated under student's individualized education program (IEP), and teacher was required by law to follow the directives set out in the IEP even though she may have thought they were unnecessary. Disabled student's individualized education plan (IEP) to address his significant developmental delays and severe language disorder resulting from autism did not substantively violate IDEA by allegedly depriving student of free and appropriate public education (FAPE) and failing to provide functional behavioral assessment (FBA) or behavior intervention plan (BIP) regarding student's biting, hair pulling, and other behavioral problems, since IEP authorized full-time 1:1 crisis management paraprofessional to provide significant benefits to student regarding his problem behaviors, and initial IEP was corrected to provide additional speech and language services as well as parent training. Failure to mandate counseling would not rise to level of procedural violation of IDEA because student would not have been denied free appropriate public education (FAPE) as a result. M.H. v. New York City Dept. of Educ., S.D.N.Y.2010, 712 F.Supp.2d 125, affirmed 685 F.3d 217. Schools 148(2.1)

Individualized education program (IEP) must be individualized and tailored to the “unique needs” of the child and reasonably calculated to produce benefits (i.e., learning, progress, growth) that are significantly more than de minimis, and gauged in relation to the potential of the child at issue; only by considering an individual child's capabilities and potentialities may a court determine whether an education benefit provided to that child allows for meaningful advancement. Blake C. ex rel. Tina F. v. Department of Educ., State of Hawaii, D.Hawai'i 2009, 593 F.Supp.2d 1199. Schools 148(2.1)

Goals set forth for autistic child in individualized education program (IEP) provided an individualized program for child, and could therefore be used to determine whether child's public school placement was reasonably calculated to provide child with meaningful educational benefit as required by Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), and the public school placement constituted a free appropriate public education (FAPE). Wagner v. Board of Educ. of Montgomery County, Maryland, D.Md.2004, 340 F.Supp.2d 603. Schools 148(3)

"Individualized Education Program" (IEP) required under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) consists of a detailed written statement arrived at by a multi-disciplinary team summarizing the child's abilities, outlining the goals for the child's education and specifying the services the child will receive. School district's failure to develop written plan to provide transition services to handicapped student did not violate the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA); student was provided with Individualized Education Plan (IEP) from outset of his matriculation to high school, and IEP meetings were also conducted yearly to assess his progress and formulate goals for academic year to follow. Chuhran v. Walled Lake Consol. Schools, E.D.Mich.1993, 839 F.Supp. 465, affirmed 51 F.3d 271. Schools 155.5(1)

Modus operandi of Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) is individualized education program (IEP) which is developed jointly by parents and school officials and sets forth an individualized education plan for particular disabled student, and must include statement of services to be provided to child, assessment of child's current education levels, and annual goals set for that child. 77. ---- Conference, individualized program, free appropriate public education

There can be no individualized education program (IEP) under IDEA unless an IEP conference is conducted first, and thus where school district never convened an IEP conference, the "draft" IEP that the district presented to behaviorally disabled child's parents could not properly be considered an IEP. Knable ex rel. Knable v. Bexley City School Dist., C.A.6 (Ohio) 2001, 238 F.3d 755, certiorari denied 121 S.Ct. 2593, 533 U.S. 950, 150 L.Ed.2d 752. Schools 148(3)

School district's failure to convene an individualized education program (IEP) conference under IDEA constituted a substantive deprivation of behaviorally disabled child's rights under IDEA, and a denial of a free appropriate public education (FAPE), though school officials met with parents on several occasions to discuss child's behavioral problems and to review possible placement options for him, as lack of IEP conference denied parents any meaningful opportunity to participate in the IEP process, and the absence of an IEP at any time during child's sixth-grade year caused him to lose educational opportunity, in that he did not have access to specialized instruction and related services that were individually designed to provide educational benefit. Knable ex rel. Knable v. Bexley City School Dist., C.A.6 (Ohio) 2001, 238 F.3d 755, certiorari denied 121 S.Ct. 2593, 533 U.S. 950, 150 L.Ed.2d 752. Schools 148(3)

Learning disabled student's individualized education plan (IEP), prepared by New York school district, was substantively deficient, and denied him free appropriate public education (FAPE) in violation of IDEA, where no goals or objectives were discussed at special education committee meeting held prior to beginning of school year, no eighth-grade teachers were present at meeting who could have discussed programs available to student, placement was not determined at meeting, and another meeting was not held prior to start of school year to alleviate parents' concerns over student's curriculum. Davis ex rel. C.R. v. Wappingers Central School Dist., S.D.N.Y.2010, 772 F.Supp.2d 500, affirmed 431 Fed.Appx. 12, 2011 WL 2164009. Schools 148(3)

Evidence supported finding by special education bureau hearing officer that autistic student's parents were responsible for individualized education program (IEP) team's failure to meet before school year started and develop IEP for student as required by the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA); parents canceled a scheduled meeting ten minutes before its start, did not appear for another meeting, and when parents sought a meeting, it was at the end of the school year or during summer when plans had already been made that impacted ability to gather fourteen people for IEP meeting, although school district's delay in responding to meeting requests on several occasions was less than admirable. 78. ---- Evaluation of progress, individualized program, free appropriate public education

Goals and assessment proffered by Hawai'i Department of Education in autistic student's individualized education program (IEP) were generally sufficient, and thus IEP constituted a free appropriate public education (FAPE) under IDEA; IEP showed a focus on evaluating student's speech and communication progress, which were areas identified by parent as the areas most crucial to student's development, and offered him services like speech/language therapy and behavior intensive support to address concerns in those areas, and, with respect to goals, the IEP provided for specific goals and areas where student needed to improve. K.D. ex rel. C.L. v. Department of Educ., Hawaii, C.A.9 (Hawai'i) 2011, 665 F.3d 1110. Schools 148(3)

School district's failure to include and consider student's progress report and student profile for school year in drafting student's individualized education program (IEP) violated student's right to free appropriate public education (FAPE) under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), even though student's parents did not provide documentation until conclusion of IEP meeting, and did not object to IEP until beginning of next school year, where documentation was provided weeks in advance of IEP's implementation. County school board failed to properly evaluate student for a specific learning disability, and, thus, student was not provided free appropriate public education (FAPE) required by the IDEA, although he was promoted a grade every year, where he consistently showed a lack of measurable progress, he was making only trivial, minimal academic advancement toward goals in his IEP, and goals, services, and placement proposed in the IEP were not reasonably calculated to confer an educational benefit beyond minimal academic advancement. D.B. v. Bedford County School Bd., W.D.Va.2010, 708 F.Supp.2d 564. Schools 148(3)

Administrative law judge's (ALJ) determination, that school district's use of Kaufman Assessment Battery 2 (KABC-2) test for re-evaluation of student diagnosed with Fragile X syndrome was appropriate under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), was supported by administrative record; district's expert noted that although test was designed for children up to 18 years of age, it was an appropriate tool for assessing the intellectual functioning of persons with Fragile X. Rosinsky ex rel. Rosinsky v. Green Bay Area School Dist., E.D.Wis.2009, 667 F.Supp.2d 964. Schools 155.5(4)

School board's failure to include evaluation methods that would be used to evaluate autistic child's progress toward four of five individualized education program (IEP) goals, though error, was mere technical defect which did not deprive child of free and appropriate public education (FAPE); failure was mere clerical oversight, and it was clear that child would receive education benefit from services proposed in IEP. County School Bd. of Henrico County, Vir. v. Palkovics ex rel. Palkovics, E.D.Va.2003, 285 F.Supp.2d 701, reversed and remanded 399 F.3d 298. Schools 148(3)

79. ---- Substantial performance, individualized program, free appropriate public education

School committee's individualized education programs (IEP) for high school student who suffered from Asperger's Syndrome, attention deficit hyperactivity disorder, and anxiety disorder were not reasonably calculated to confer any meaningful benefit in critical area of pragmatic language skills, thus depriving student of free and appropriate education (FAPE) under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) and Massachusetts law; committee pointed to no assessment that addressed this need directly and offered no evidence that it provided meaningful instruction in that area, and student's pragmatic language deficits were central component to his disability, affected his ability to transition from high school to other settings in critical way, and were well known to committee well before IEPs in question. Dracut School Committee v. Bureau of Special Educ. Appeals of the Massachusetts Dept. of Elementary and Secondary Educ., D.Mass.2010, 737 F.Supp.2d 35. Schools 148(3)

Evidence supported special education bureau hearing officer's findings that services provided autistic student under expired individualized education programs (IEPs) allowed student to make progress toward achievement of IEP goals, consistent with the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), despite deficiencies in data collection; school district offered numerous tests into evidence. District's failure to notify parent of progress of student diagnosed with Fragile X syndrome toward new individualized educational program (IEP) goals, only 12 days into the implementation of those goals, did not render the implementation of the IEP violative of Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA); teacher had completed the student's progress report under the previous IEP's goals, as they had been effective for almost all of the subject semester, and an evaluation under the new standards, applicable for only 12 days, would have yielded results of questionable worth. School district did not provide student with free, appropriate, public education (FAPE) between the first and fifth grades, as required under the IDEA, where student had average intellectual abilities, but his standardized test scores in reading remained low over this five-year period, and he was still reading at a first grade level at the end of fifth grade. School substantially implemented student's individualized education program (IEP), and thus provided free and appropriate public education (FAPE) required under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act's (IDEA), even though student did not have shared classroom aide, access to word processing device in classroom, or individualized social skills training, and was not tested at beginning of school year, as required by IEP, where failure to have classroom aide was largely due to parents' delays, student resisted using device and instead used classroom computer, student received social skills training in group setting that was individualized for him based on IEP, and school collected objective data in form of grades, standardized tests, and teacher observations. A.P. ex rel. Powers v. Woodstock Bd. of Educ., D.Conn.2008, 572 F.Supp.2d 221, affirmed 370 Fed.Appx. 202, 2010 WL 1049297. Schools 148(3)

80. ---- Special education, individualized program, free appropriate public education

Individualized education program's (IEP) provision of individualized instructional support and 1:1 after-school support for autistic student met student's requirement for a 1:1 skills trainer, and thus IEP constituted a free appropriate public education (FAPE) under IDEA, absent evidence that such services would not be on a 1:1 basis. ALJ's determination in IDEA claim that student with Ehlers-Danlos Syndrome (EDS) needed special education in gym was not supported by doctor's conclusory testimony and reports that student needed special education because he could not safely engage in unrestricted participation in various activities of the regular gym program because his joints could be injured; school had devised a health plan that would allow student to participate in regular gym and avoid harmful activities or reduce threat of injury during certain exercises, school considered doctor's comments in creating health plan, doctor was not a trained educational professional, and doctor was not familiar with the curriculum and what student needed to do in gym. Hearing officer and the Appeals Panel did not err in concluding that student was denied free appropriate public education (FAPE) after she was exited from special education at the end of sixth grade because district never addressed student's specific learning disability; school district did not come forward with sufficient extrinsic evidence to overcome the prima facie validity of the hearing officer and Appeals Panel's conclusions concerning student's grade level functioning, and assessment tools that the district used were outdated and lacking as compared to those used by the independent evaluator. Counseling as related service was not required to provide nine-year-old student, who suffered from learning disabilities, with Free Appropriate Public Education (FAPE) under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA); student's Individualized Education Plan (IEP) included goals and objectives to address his needs, special education teacher testified very specifically about how he would address student's issues within his class, city department of education (DOE) psychologist testified that IEP team did not believe student required counseling because of progress he had made and fact that placement being recommended was sufficiently small enough to provide therapeutic setting, and student had not been receiving counseling at his private school. Hawaii Department of Education, in concluding that student's behavior needed to be addressed in an intensive environment in order for his educational needs to be met, did not inappropriately ignore student's unique needs, specifically his writing deficits and relationship between student's academic needs and behavior; student showed ample behavioral issues, and based upon observation and test results, evidence at the time the IEPs were created did not indicate student had a learning disability based on a visual processing deficit. Evidence supported special education bureau hearing officer's findings that autistic student's individualized education program (IEP) was appropriate to address special education needs by using numerous teaching methodologies and different teaching systems and so was consistent with Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) obligations, although student's parents argued IEP did not contain specific behavioral recommendations, plans for generalization of skills, or statement of services to be provided to the student. Individualized education program (IEP) for a student did not reflect evaluators' recommendations, and thus, did not provide the student with the free appropriate public education (FAPE) required by the IDEA; every evaluation and the testimony of an evaluator made clear that the student had to be instructed differently from other students to access educational information and had to be taught in a small, structured classroom, and the IEP failed to address those concerns. District of Columbia v. Bryant-James, D.D.C.2009, 675 F.Supp.2d 115. Schools 148(2.1)

Purported failure of charter school to deliver additional hours of specialized instruction to learning-disabled student did not constitute material failure to implement individualized education program (IEP), as would violate Individuals with Disabilities Education Improvement Act (IDEIA); special education teacher's delivery of services to student was not compromised by additional group and individualized instruction. S.S. ex rel. Shank v. Howard Road Academy, D.D.C.2008, 585 F.Supp.2d 56. Schools 148(3)

Learning-disabled student's eighth-grade individualized education program (IEP) was not procedurally defective because of school district's alleged failure to make comprehensive language evaluation before its creation; IEP was based on far more than school district's "intuitive sense," and evaluations conducted were sufficiently comprehensive to ensure that student's special education needs were identified. 81. ---- State regulation or control, individualized program, free appropriate public education

Individualized education program (IEP) prepared for student who suffered from learning disabilities satisfied Massachusetts requirement that IEP maximize student's development where plan would have enabled student to spend most of his school day learning along side nonhandicapped children, and provided for "mainstream facilitator" who would have observed student's regular classes, worked with his teachers, and provided him with academic support classes, even though parents alleged that student enjoyed better academic progress in private schools; under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), IEP must prescribe pedagogical format in which handicapped student is educated with children who are not handicapped to maximum extent appropriate. Hawai'i Department of Education lacked consistent practice of restricting age for admitting general education students into public school, as would allow deviation from IDEA requirement of providing free appropriate public education (FAPE) to all disabled children from age 3 to 21, unless application of IDEA to children aged 18 through 21 was inconsistent with state law or practice, in support of Department's obligation to continue providing severely disabled student individualized education until his twenty-second birthday upon such recommendation by his individualized education plan (IEP), since Department blatantly discriminated in violation of IDEA and Rehabilitation Act by approving every single overage general education student while barring almost every single overage special education student, unless approved due to settlement of legal action, and failed to provide admitted overage special education students individualized education. Alleged deficiencies in superseded individualized educational programs (IEP) concerning student diagnosed with attention deficit hyperactivity disorder (ADHD) could not constitute a denial of free appropriate public education (FAPE) justifying student's removal from district several years later and placement in a private behavioral modification facility, notwithstanding Oregon statute governing special education hearings within two years after date of act or omission; earlier IEPs were in effect for a limited term and were superseded before parents ever disputed child's IEP or placement, and allowing such a claim would amount to an end-run around IDEA requirement that parents give advance notice that they were rejecting placement. Disabled student's individualized education plan (IEP) that allegedly deprived parents of right to meaningful participation in development of IEP by failing to specify particular school at which autistic student would receive services was not procedurally deficient, under IDEA and implementing regulations defining IEP as including location and educational placement of student, since "location" referred to general type of environment in which services would be provided, and "educational placement" referred to general type of educational program, not specific school. 83. Amendment of individualized educational program, free appropriate public education

84. Delay of individualized educational program, free appropriate public education

87. Benefit educationally from instruction, free appropriate public education

Requirement under this chapter of "free appropriate public education" is satisfied when state provides personalized instruction with sufficient support services to permit handicapped child to benefit educationally from that instruction; such instruction and services must be provided at public expense, must meet state's educational standards, must approximate grade levels used in state's regular education, and must comport with child's individualized educational plan, as formulated in accordance with requirements under this chapter, and if child is being educated in regular classrooms, the individualized educational plan should be reasonably calculated to enable child to achieve passing marks and advance from grade to grade. Hearings officer failed to determine whether department of education's placement provided for in individualized educational program (IEP) was reasonably calculated to provide special education student with meaningful educational benefit at time IEP was developed and implemented, as required to determine whether to uphold appropriateness of placement under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA). Aaron P. v. Hawaii, Dept. of Educ., D.Hawai'i 2012, 2012 WL 4321715. Schools 155.5(1)

Preponderance of the evidence supported determination of state review officer (SRO) that disabled student's individualized education programs (IEPs) were reasonably calculated to enable student to receive educational benefits and that school district and board of education provided student with a free appropriate public education (FAPE) required by Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), despite parents' desire for more reading instruction, and therefore, did not warrant reimbursing parents upon their unilateral withdrawal of student and placement in private school; district evaluated student's test scores, reports from private school from previous year, and teacher reports in creating IEPs, parents only objected to reading instruction provisions, IEPs provided two 40 minute sessions of reading instruction per week in a group of five students based on student's decrease in reading comprehension scores for the year, and district felt additional reading instruction would take too much time away from general education classes. E.W.K. ex rel. B.K. v. Board of Educ. of Chappaqua Cent. School Dist., S.D.N.Y.2012, 2012 WL 3205571. Schools 154(4); Schools 155.5(4)

Learning disabled student's individualized education program (IEP) was not substantively deficient, as would violate Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), despite contention by student's parents that student received no educational benefits during his entire time at school district; in twelve measures student was tested for reading and comprehension, student advanced by as much as six months on three measures, declined a few months on two measures, and advanced average of three months on all measures during his time at school district. Proposed individualized education program (IEP) for disabled student suffering from Down syndrome was reasonably calculated to provide him meaningful educational benefits in compliance with IDEA; proposed IEP was focused on training student to function independently in community based on his age and necessity to transition him into independent living, it was formulated based on current, reliable data available to IEP team and was individualized for student's reasonable, defined goals, it addressed parental concerns where appropriate, and it built upon student's existing knowledge and strengths. Individualized education plan (IEP) provided student who suffered from schizoaffective disorder and borderline intellectual functioning free appropriate public education (FAPE) for his ninth grade year under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) and New York regulations; given what committee on special education (CSE) knew about student at time it was developing IEP, recommended class was reasonably calculated to enable student to receive educational benefits. E.S. ex rel. B.S. v. Katonah-Lewisboro School Dist., S.D.N.Y.2010, 742 F.Supp.2d 417, affirmed 2012 WL 2615366. Schools 148(3)

Student's individual education plan (IEP) was not reasonably calculated to enable him to receive educational benefits, as required by the IDEA, where school board did not use psychological testing to evaluate student for specific learning disability, or to make any eligibility determinations regarding specific learning disability, even though he appeared to have a disorder in one or more of basic psychological processes involved in understanding or in using language, and student's eligibility documentation did not disclose any statements whether he had a specific learning disability, nor any basis for making that determination. Emotionally disabled elementary school student received educational benefit, as required in order for district to comply with Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) mandate that he receive free appropriate public education (FAPE), when he did good quality academic work, while in regular classes during spring semester and later when home schooled by district teacher. Keith H. v. Janesville School Dist., W.D.Wis.2003, 305 F.Supp.2d 986. Schools 148(3)

Individualized Education Program (IEP) was reasonably calculated to confer educational benefits on dyslexic student, and thus satisfied IDEA, even though it did not incorporate parents' request for private school placement where student could receive on-on-one teaching using Orton-Gillingham approach; there was evidence that student's reading skills had improved in public school setting which plan proposed to continue. Antonaccio v. Board of Educ. of Arlington Cent. School Dist., S.D.N.Y.2003, 281 F.Supp.2d 710. Schools 148(3)

Learning and behaviorally disabled student received meaningful educational benefit under individual educational programs (IEPs) developed and offered by school district pursuant to Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA); student's parents approved all IEPs at issue, student's academic performance improved under IEPs, neither student nor his parents ever expressed dissatisfaction with school district's efforts or programs, and credible expert testimony before hearing officer had indicated that IEPs were satisfactory. Individual educational program (IEP) developed under the IDEA was not reasonably calculated to confer educational benefit on dyslexic high school student where conclusions of hearing officer and state review officer were directly contradicted by testimony of each of the experts on dyslexia, student's academic performance showed no improvement and even deteriorated since he began receiving special education at public high school, district's experts in special education had no specific expertise in area of student's disability, and hearing officers could not have reasonably concluded that student's education was not significantly impeded or adversely affected by his emotional difficulties, which were directly associated with his learning disability. Evans v. Board of Educ. of Rhinebeck Cent. School Dist., S.D.N.Y.1996, 930 F.Supp. 83. Schools 148(3)

Whether free public education is "appropriate public education" as required by IDEA depends on whether education is sufficient to confer some educational benefit on the handicapped child, and child's grades, test scores, and advancements from one grade level to the next are important evidence for court to consider when assessing whether child has benefitted from her education. Fort Zumwalt School Dist. v. Missouri State Bd. of Educ., E.D.Mo.1996, 923 F.Supp. 1216, affirmed in part , reversed in part 119 F.3d 607, rehearing and suggestion for rehearing en banc denied, certiorari denied 118 S.Ct. 1840, 523 U.S. 1137, 140 L.Ed.2d 1090. School educational agency is required to show that each individualized education program (IEP) for its handicapped students is reasonably calculated to confer educational benefit and to allow student to progress adequately from grade to grade, but school district is not required to show that IEP will in fact confer educational benefits. Standard to be employed in assessing whether or not individualized education plan (IEP) provides appropriate education is whether IEP provides personalized instruction with sufficient support services to enable handicapped child to benefit educationally from that instruction. Lewis v. School Bd. of Loudoun County, E.D.Va.1992, 808 F.Supp. 523. Schools 148(2.1)

Previous individualized education programs (IEPs) for dyslexic student did not yield educational benefit to student, so that IEP which continued program of previous years was inappropriate; student's grades continually decreased, his reading level failed to increase in six years, and he did not necessarily pass each subject each year, even though student was advanced from grade to grade. Straube v. Florida Union Free School Dist., S.D.N.Y.1992, 801 F.Supp. 1164. Schools 148(3)

88. Progress, free appropriate public education

Individualized education program (IEP) was reasonably calculated to enable autistic student to make some progress toward goals, and thus satisfied requirement that school district provide student with free appropriate public education (FAPE), even though student was not generalizing skills learned at school and was often unevenly tempered, displaying inappropriate and sometimes violent behavior at home and in public places. Thompson R2-J School Dist. v. Luke P., ex rel. Jeff P., C.A.10 (Colo.) 2008, 540 F.3d 1143, certiorari denied 129 S.Ct. 1356, 555 U.S. 1173, 173 L.Ed.2d 590. Schools 148(3)

Individual education plan provided student with a basic floor of opportunity where it provided that emotionally disturbed student would receive two and one-half hours per day of learning disability instruction, two and one-half hours per day of emotional disability instruction, and regular instruction in gym and music, especially in view of great improvement in his post-IEP performance and his successful completion of the requirements for advancing to second grade. Tice By and Through Tice v. Botetourt County School Bd., C.A.4 (Va.) 1990, 908 F.2d 1200. Schools 148(3)

School district's decision to transfer handicapped student who was not making satisfactory progress to another school which could provide assistance from an instructor especially qualified to train students with that particular disability was reasonably calculated to furnish the student with a free, appropriate education and thus did not violate this chapter. Wilson v. Marana Unified School Dist. No. 6 of Pima County, C.A.9 (Ariz.) 1984, 735 F.2d 1178. Schools 154(2.1)

Positive academic and non-academic progress of student, who had auditory memory and visual motor integration disorders and had difficulty with reading, written expression, and verbal expression, during fourth grade, her final year in public school, was indicative of propriety of her fifth grade individualized education plan (IEP), which recommended her continued placement in public school, under Individuals with Disabilities Education Improvement Act (IDEA). S.H. v. Fairfax County Bd. of Educ., E.D.Va.2012, 2012 WL 2366146. Schools 148(3)

Student was not denied a free, appropriate, public education (FAPE), as required by IDEA, because District of Columbia school district did not provide him with a laptop and educational software to take home; student's increases in his testing scores in math and reading, accompanied by his other development, demonstrated that his academic progress was not de minimis without the laptop and software, student had also received a great deal more than a basic floor opportunity, as he was enrolled at a private school at district expense and received 28.5 hours per week of specialized instruction, he had daily access in the classroom to a computer, a calculator, highlighters, and sticky notes, and he also could use and take home a device to assist in word processing, typing, and proofreading. Smith v. District of Columbia, D.D.C.2012, 2012 WL 746396. Schools 148(3)

Disabled student's lack of developmental progress over 16-year period was insufficient to establish that school district intentionally discriminated against student by failing to provide her education benefits, and, thus, student's parents could not recover compensatory damages in their action against district alleging violations of ADA and RA; district made numerous attempts to provide student with free appropriate public education (FAPE), as required by IDEA, and it repeatedly revised her individualized education programs (IEPs). Chambers v. School Dist. of Philadelphia Bd. of Educ., E.D.Pa.2011, 827 F.Supp.2d 409. Schools 155.5(5)

Impartial Hearing Officer (IHO) and New York Sate Review Officer (SRO), in determining under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) that school district provided student who suffered from schizoaffective disorder and borderline intellectual functioning free appropriate public education (FAPE) in least restrictive environment for his ninth and tenth grade school years, appropriately found that student made progress in middle school; teacher report described student as child who had made gains in word reading and fluency, spelling, reading comprehension, writing, and daily living skills, report card reflected that student received grades of 100% on most spelling tests and commented that student was becoming “more and more independent,” and student did not regress in his individual achievement test scores, but rather, stayed in same percentile or dropped only slightly. E.S. ex rel. B.S. v. Katonah-Lewisboro School Dist., S.D.N.Y.2010, 742 F.Supp.2d 417, affirmed 2012 WL 2615366. Schools 148(3)

A school district fulfills its substantive obligations under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Improvement Act (IDEIA) if it provides an individualized education program (IEP) that is likely to produce progress, not regression, and if the IEP affords the student with an opportunity greater than mere trivial advancement. M.N. v. New York City Dept. of Educ., Region 9 (Dist. 2), S.D.N.Y.2010, 700 F.Supp.2d 356. Schools 148(2.1)

Hearing officer's determination that a student's individualized education plan (IEP) was not deficient, so as to deny him the free appropriate public education (FAPE) required by the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), was not arbitrary or unreasonable, despite evidence of the student's regression; there was no evidence or logical reason why it was more probable than not that the IEP, as opposed to other valid reasons, caused the student's lack of progress, and a multidisciplinary team, in recognition of the student's underachievement, had increased the intensity of services provided. T.H. v. District of Columbia, D.D.C.2009, 620 F.Supp.2d 86. Schools 148(2.1)

School district's offer to place student with autistic behaviors at private school specializing in the education of students with behavioral needs, instead of residential program, was reasonably calculated to provide educational benefits to student, and court would not defer to hearing officer's finding that, because student already had intensive behavioral support in his home for as much as 30 hours per week, day program would not provide the "repetitive learning across all environments" that student needed in order to "generalize skills across settings" and that transferring student from learning center to private school was essentially a "lateral move"; hearing officer's analysis was premised on erroneous legal conclusion that IDEA required district to address behavior outside the home regardless of educational progress, and student's educational progress at learning center, while not perfect, was substantial notwithstanding his behavioral difficulties. San Rafael Elementary School Dist. v. California Special Educ. Hearing Office, N.D.Cal.2007, 482 F.Supp.2d 1152. Schools 154(3); Schools 154(4)

Parent of student with learning disability who transferred to new school offered insufficient evidence to demonstrate that school failed to provide student with free appropriate public education (FAPE) during school year, due to allegedly deficient individualized education program (IEP), under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA); student improved his performance on state functional reading and math tests, significantly increased grades, won school-wide writing contest, and was selected as most improved student in class. Waller v. Board of Educ. of Prince George's County, D.Md.2002, 234 F.Supp.2d 531. Schools 155.5(4)

School district provided hearing-impaired child with free appropriate education under IDEA; violation was not established by fact that child did not make desired progress toward some of the objectives set out in the individualize education program (IEP) or by use of teaching method different from that desired by parent, or by continuing mainstreaming in nonacademic areas contrary to wishes of parent. O'Toole By and Through O'Toole v. Olathe Dist. Schools Unified School Dist. No. 223, D.Kan.1997, 963 F.Supp. 1000, affirmed 144 F.3d 692. Schools 148(2.1)

89. Likelihood of educational progress, free appropriate public education

Magistrate judge properly ordered a 20-year-old mentally retarded child transferred from educational school for handicapped children to a community residence; there was evidence that the child could be appropriately served in community, that the child could obtain educational services in school district from which she would be able to obtain educational benefit, and that if the child were to remain at the school for handicapped children for the remaining two years of her eligibility for educational benefits, her progress over course of those two years would not be significant. Sherri A.D. v. Kirby, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1992, 975 F.2d 193. Schools 155.5(4)

State, in qualifying for assistance from federal government under Education of the Handicapped Act, was required to provide handicapped child with personalized plan of instruction under which educational progress was likely, rather than merely with plan avoiding regression or providing trivial educational advancement; standard was not whether plan would be "of benefit" to child. 90. Achievement of full potential, free appropriate public education

Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) does not require states to provide services which maximize each child's potential or to achieve strict equality of opportunity or services; education secured by IDEA is not one that will maximize potential or best possible education but instead is simply one that is appropriate. Straube v. Florida Union Free School Dist., S.D.N.Y.1992, 801 F.Supp. 1164. Schools 148(2.1)

91. Best possible education, free appropriate public education

The free and appropriate public education (FAPE) described in an individual education plan (IEP) under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) need not be the best possible one, but rather, need only be an education that is specifically designed to meet the disabled child's unique needs, supported by services that will permit him to benefit from the instruction. Loren F. ex rel. Fisher v. Atlanta Independent School System, C.A.11 (Ga.) 2003, 349 F.3d 1309. Schools 148(2.1)

Although school board should not make placement decisions under the EHA on basis of financial considerations alone, an "appropriate public education" does not mean the best possible education that a school could provide if given access to unlimited funds; Congress intended states to balance competing interests of economic necessity on the one hand, and the special needs of the handicapped child, on the other when making education placement decisions. Barnett by Barnett v. Fairfax County School Bd., C.A.4 (Va.) 1991, 927 F.2d 146, certiorari denied 112 S.Ct. 175, 502 U.S. 859, 116 L.Ed.2d 138. Schools 148(2.1)

"Appropriate education" required under the IDEA does not mean the best possible or optimal one nor require that school district maximize the potential of handicapped students; rather, it means providing personalized instruction with sufficient support services to permit child to benefit educationally from that instruction at public expense, under public supervision, and approximating state's educational standards in its regular education. Cypress-Fairbanks Independent School Dist. v. Michael F. by Barry F., S.D.Tex.1995, 931 F.Supp. 474, affirmed as modified 118 F.3d 245, 152 A.L.R. Statement of present levels of performance in hearing impaired student's individualized educational program

(IEP) did not violate procedural requirements of IDEA and Kansas law, despite fact that it did not clearly convey student's present levels of educational performance in way that related those levels to her disability or explain import of student's raw test scores, where IEP referred to specialists' reports which presumably contained more detail about scores and student's parents and teachers were fully aware of student's level and performance and had discussed them in detail in formulating IEP. Education for All Handicapped Children Act does not require a state to maximize the potential of each handicapped child commensurate with the opportunity provided nonhandicapped children; Act sought primarily to identify and evaluate handicapped children, and to provide them with access to a free public education. Garcia ex rel. Garcia v. Board of Educ. of Albuquerque Public Schools, D.N.M.2006, 436 F.Supp.2d 1181. Schools 148(2.1)

Requirement of Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) that participating states and their public education agencies provide all students with disabilities with free appropriate public education (FAPE) is satisfied when state provides personalized instruction with sufficient support services to allow disabled child to benefit educationally from that instruction; requirement of FAPE does not require state to maximize each child's potential commensurate with opportunity provided to nondisabled children. Foley v. Special School Dist. of St. Louis County, E.D.Mo.1996, 927 F.Supp. 1214, rehearing denied 968 F.Supp. 481, affirmed 153 F.3d 863. Schools 148(2.1)

Free, appropriate education under IDEA does not require states to maximize potential of handicapped children commensurate with opportunity provided to other children. Hall v. Shawnee Mission School Dist. (USD No. 512), D.Kan.1994, 856 F.Supp. 1521. Schools 148(2.1)

While educational benefit provided to handicapped child under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) must be meaningful, IDEA does not require state to attempt to maximize each child's potential. Bonnie Ann F. by John R.F. v. Calallen Independent School Dist., S.D.Tex.1993, 835 F.Supp. 340, affirmed 40 F.3d 386, certiorari denied 115 S.Ct. 1796, 514 U.S. 1084, 131 L.Ed.2d 723. Schools 148(2.1)

In reviewing agency determinations under Individuals With Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), courts must be mindful of fact that "appropriate" education for handicapped child does not mean "potential-maximizing." P.J. By and Through W.J. v. State of Conn. Bd. of Educ., D.Conn.1992, 788 F.Supp. 673. Schools 148(2.1)

Advancement of handicapped student is not necessarily "potential maximizing" that is not required by Education of the Handicapped Act. Angevine v. Jenkins, D.D.C.1990, 752 F.Supp. 24, reversed on other grounds 959 F.2d 292, 294 U.S.App.D.C. 346. Schools 148(2.1)

93. Maximum program attainable, free appropriate public education

Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) does not require states to develop individualized education programs (IEPs) that maximize potential of handicapped children, but, instead, guarantees appropriate education, not one that provides everything that might be thought desirable by loving parents. Walczak v. Florida Union Free School Dist., C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1998, 142 F.3d 119. Schools 148(2.1)

Handicapped child's allegation that programming longer than four-hour school day envisioned in his individualized education plan (IEP) might increase benefit he received failed to meet burden of demonstrating that child's IEP would not provide child any meaningful benefit; Education of Handicapped Act does not require school to supply handicapped child with maximum benefit possible. Christopher M. by Laveta McA. v. Corpus Christi Independent School Dist., C.A.5 (Tex.) 1991, 933 F.2d 1285. Schools 155.5(4)

School district was not required to place handicapped child in a private program serving both handicapped and nonhandicapped children and, though private program may have offered the best educational opportunities, could properly decide to place a child in a public educational program serving only handicapped children without violating the requirement in the Education of the Handicapped Act that handicapped children be educated "to the maximum extent appropriate" as long as requirements for placement in public program were met. Mark A. v. Grant Wood Area Educ. Agency, C.A.8 (Iowa) 1986, 795 F.2d 52, certiorari denied 107 S.Ct. 1579, 480 U.S. 936, 94 L.Ed.2d 769. Schools 154(4)

94. Most appropriate education, free appropriate public education

Evidence was sufficient to establish that private school provided appropriate educational setting for high school student who suffered from attention deficit disorder, as required by IDEA, entitling parents to cost of placing student in private school after public school failed to provide student with appropriate placement; at private school, student had small class with high teacher-student ratio, immediate consequences when he misbehaved or did not do his work, and performed better academically after transferring to private school. Capistrano Unified School Dist. v. Wartenberg By and Through Wartenberg, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1995, 59 F.3d 884. Schools 154(4)

School district mainstreamed handicapped child to maximum extent appropriate, as required by IDEA; child had cerebral palsy, hydrocephalus, seizure disorder, perceptual vision deficits and communication disorder, and I.Q. of less than 32, witnesses who knew him well and worked with him closely testified that his individualized education program (IEP) goals and objectives could not be met in general education class, though opposing expert believed that he would benefit from such placement, evidence was overwhelming that the child would be engaged in entirely different academic activities than would his nondisabled peers, and member of child's multidisciplinary team testified that child did not model or imitate other students so as to receive nonacademic benefits from mainstreaming, and witness testified that one-to-one support required for the child would isolate him and make him a visitor in the classroom. 95. Perfect education, free appropriate public education

Under this chapter and Va. Code 1950, § 22.1-214(A), state was not required to pay all of the expenses incurred by parents in educating child, whether child was handicapped or nonhandicapped, nor was state required to provide perfect education to any child. Bales v. Clarke, E.D.Va.1981, 523 F.Supp. 1366. Schools 148(2.1)

96. Self-sufficiency of child, free appropriate public education

Under this chapter, calling for free appropriate public education, unique needs which must be met by educational program include those which, if satisfied, allow the child, within the limits of his or her handicap, to become self-sufficient. Armstrong v. Kline, D.C.Pa.1979, 476 F.Supp. 583, remanded on other grounds 629 F.2d 269, on remand 513 F.Supp. 425, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 3123, 452 U.S. 968, 69 L.Ed.2d 981. Schools 164

97. Passing and promotion, free appropriate public education

Given statutory bias in Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) for mainstreaming handicapped children, individualized education program (IEP) which places pupil in public school program will ordinarily pass academic muster so long as it is reasonably calculated to enable child to achieve passing marks and advance from grade to grade. Lenn v. Portland School Committee, C.A.1 (Me.) 1993, 998 F.2d 1083. Schools 148(2.1)

While passing marks and annual grade promotion are important to consideration of whether school is meeting requirement of Education of the Handicapped Act (EHA), child's ability or inability to achieve marks and progress does not automatically resolve inquiry as to whether child is receiving free appropriate public education. In re Conklin, C.A.4 (Md.) 1991, 946 F.2d 306. Schools 148(2.1)

98. Grade level, free appropriate public education

Although residential placement might increase benefit to student with behavior disorder and emotional disturbance, he was receiving a meaningful educational benefit where he was in self-contained classroom for behavior disordered-emotionally disturbed students with a teacher's aide, computers, and teacher certified in special education and, as a sixth grader, he was performing math, reading, and spelling on the fourth grade level and English on the 3rd grade level. Swift By and Through Swift v. Rapides Parish Public School System, W.D.La.1993, 812 F.Supp. 666, affirmed 12 F.3d 209. Schools 154(3)

Evidence supported school's determination that student with Down's Syndrome should be placed in school's class for moderately retarded, which emphasized survival skills, as opposed to its program for mildly retarded, which emphasized some academics; there was evidence that child, while being retained in mildly retarded class during pendency of court proceedings, was functioning only at first grade level and had to receive individualized instruction from teacher, while remainder of class was operating at fifth or sixth grade level. Chris C. by Barbara C. v. Gwinnett County School Dist., N.D.Ga.1991, 780 F.Supp. 804, affirmed 968 F.2d 25. Schools 155.5(4)

99. Class size, free appropriate public education

Class size provisions for special education students contained in collective bargaining agreement (CBA) between board of education and teachers' union, which placed restrictions on student-teacher ratios, were not illegal, invalid, or unenforceable, under federal or Connecticut state laws concerning students with disabilities, since provisions could be implemented without denying special education services required by students' individualized education plans (IEP); provisions did not require that disabled students be removed from regular classroom for any period of time if doing so would be inconsistent with their IEPs, nor did it mandate that any particular number of classes be created for special education students, and board could comply with class size provisions if it created additional sections for special education inclusion classes and hired additional teachers, so issue was one of allocation of resources rather than an educational or legal issue. New Britain Bd. of Educ. v. New Britain Federation of Teachers, Local 871, D.Conn.2010, 754 F.Supp.2d 407. Labor And Employment 1255; Schools 148(2.1)

School district's special education school was appropriate educational placement for student with Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD) and Fetal Alcohol Syndrome, where school was equipped to implement his IEP as written and school's student-teacher ratio of 12 or 13-to-one satisfied IEP's requirement that student be educated in environment with low student-teacher ratio; fact that student could not continue at school for more than one year due to its grade limitations did not make placement presumptively inappropriate. O.O. ex rel. Pabo v. District of Columbia, D.D.C.2008, 573 F.Supp.2d 41. Schools 148(3)

School district failed to provide emotionally disturbed student with free appropriate public education (FAPE), as required by Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), when district proposed individualized education plan (IEP) that did not provide small, class setting declared by experts to be necessary for child to learn. Gellert v. District of Columbia Public Schools, D.D.C.2006, 435 F.Supp.2d 18. Schools 148(3)

100. Gender composition of class, free appropriate public education

Neither Va. Code 1950, § 22.1-214(A) nor this chapter mandated sexual composition of a class. Bales v. Clarke, E.D.Va.1981, 523 F.Supp. 1366. Schools 148(2.1)

100a. Harassment and bullying, free appropriate public education

A free appropriate public education (FAPE), under IDEA, for high school student with autism transitioning from private to public school placement did not require school district to prove that student would not face future bullying at public school; although student had experienced bullying at a school he had previously attended, and although student's mother had heard students at public school discuss bullying, fact that new placement could appropriately deal with any bullying that might occur was sufficient to meet IDEA. J.E. v. Boyertown Area School Dist., E.D.Pa.2011, 834 F.Supp.2d 240, affirmed 452 Fed.Appx. 172, 2011 WL 5838479. Schools 148(3)

Parents of disabled child who sued city department of education, alleging that school's failure to prevent bullying deprived child of free appropriate public education (FAPE), established that school personnel were deliberately indifferent to or failed to take reasonable steps to prevent bullying, as required to maintain claim under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA); child was isolated and victim of harassment from her peers, parents sent letters and tried to speak to principal about issue, school failed to take reasonable steps to address harassment, and child suffered emotional and social scars as result of bullying. T.K. v. New York City Dept. of Educ., E.D.N.Y.2011, 779 F.Supp.2d 289. Schools 148(2.1)

101. Diploma, free appropriate public education

Denial of diplomas to handicapped children who have been receiving special education and related services required under this chapter, but are unable to achieve educational level necessary to pass minimal competency test, is not denial of "free appropriate public education." Brookhart v. Illinois State Bd. of Educ., C.A.7 (Ill.) 1983, 697 F.2d 179. Schools 178

Graduation goal in learning disabled student's individualized education program (IEP), which projected that student would graduate with regular diploma within three years from date of IEP, did not create substantively deficient IEP, as would violate Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), even though, at time IEP was written, student has received little credit for his entire freshmen year and remained at elementary level for reading and math; tutoring program in which student was enrolled had several characteristics, including shorter grading period, which could allow student to meet goal of on-time graduation with regular diploma. G.R. ex rel. Russell v. Dallas School Dist. No. 2, D.Or.2011, 823 F.Supp.2d 1120. Schools 148(3)

Individuals with Disabilities Education Act's (IDEA) standard of free appropriate public education (FAPE) did not require local educational agency to ensure that sufficient education and supports be provided for student with borderline cognitive skills "to permit her to graduate with a diploma no later than the semester ending following her 21st birthday." District of Columbia v. Nelson, D.D.C.2011, 811 F.Supp.2d 508. Schools 148(3)

102. Equality of services, free appropriate public education

State-funded preschool program was not shown to be a free appropriate public education (FAPE) as required under IDEA on theory it was similar to Head Start, where there was no evidence that the school district ever evaluated this program with reference to child's individualized education program (IEP), and the district introduced no evidence of substantial equivalence of the programs. Board of Educ. of LaGrange School Dist. No. 105 v. Illinois State Bd. of Educ., C.A.7 (Ill.) 1999, 184 F.3d 912. Schools 154(2.1)

Disabled student voluntarily enrolled in private parochial school by his parents was entitled, under preamendment version of Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), to receive special education services comparable in quality, scope, and opportunity for participation to those services provided to public school students, in absence of any individualized determination by school district of how best to meet student's needs; due to nature of his disability, student required one-on-one assistance throughout school day, which could not be provided off-site, and cost of providing services was identical on- and off-site. Peter v. Wedl, C.A.8 (Minn.) 1998, 155 F.3d 992, rehearing and suggestion for rehearing en banc denied , on remand 35 F.Supp.2d 1134. Schools 154(4)

As long as individualized education program (IEP) proposed by school district meets minimum federal standards of appropriateness, Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) does not require school districts to reim-

School district's refusal to provide sign-language instructor for hearing-impaired student in private sectarian school setting was not abuse of district's discretion under 1997 amendments to Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA); school's provision of sign-language instructor while student attended classes in public school satisfied IDEA's genuine opportunity for equitable participation standard as clarified by amendment, school district offered student free appropriate public education (FAPE), and parents voluntarily placed student in private school. Individual with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) requires local school districts to make equitable distribution of IDEA resources made available to it among eligible students regardless of whether they attend district school or private school; although local school district is given some discretion in allocating resources, in exercising its discretion, local school district may not do so by totally excluding students who do not attend district schools. 103. Least restrictive environment, free appropriate public education

Provision of disabled student's individualized education plan (IEP) resolving that he would be in regular classroom 74% of time complied with Individuals with Disabilities Education Act's (IDEA) requirement that he be placed in least restrictive environment, despite parents' contention that he should have been placed in regular classroom 80% of time, where evidence produced during administrative proceeding demonstrated that education in regular classroom, with use of supplemental aids and services, could not be achieved satisfactorily. School district did not violate Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) provision requiring it to educate child in least restrictive environment, when it discontinued mainstreaming of student with Rett syndrome, given that while student was in mainstream school she spent most of her time in private room with instruction from special education teacher, rather than in mainstream classroom, due to her disruptive behavior. The IDEA requires that students with disabilities be educated in the least restrictive environment, reflecting a strong preference that disabled children attend regular classes with non-disabled children and a presumption in favor of placement in the public schools. T.F. v. Special School Dist. of St. Louis County, C.A.8 (Mo.) 2006, 449 F.3d 816. Schools 154(2.1)

Public special education preschool placement was not the "least restrictive environment" for student with autism spectrum disorder, and thus proposed Individualized Education Program (IEP) placing student in special education preschool failed to provide student with a free appropriate public education (FAPE) as required under the IDEA; student was succeeding in private mainstream preschool with the assistance of an aide and an intensive applied behavioral analysis program, child was the most academically advanced child in her mainstream classroom, students at the special education pre-school functioned at a considerably lower level than student, and mainstream classroom provided student with appropriate role models and had a more balanced gender ratio. L.B. ex rel. K.B. v. Nebo School Dist., C.A.10 (Utah) 2004, 379 F.3d 966. Schools 154(2.1)

Hybrid preschool program, involving a half-day preschool class composed of half disabled children and half non-disabled children, with afternoon placement in the school's resource room, would ordinarily provide the least restrictive environment (LRE) required by the IDEA only under two circumstances: first, where education in a regular classroom, with the use of supplementary aids and services, could not be achieved satisfactorily or, second, where a regular classroom is not available within a reasonable commuting distance of the child. T.R. v. Kingwood Tp. Bd. of Educ., C.A.3 (N.J.) 2000, 205 F.3d 572. Schools 154(2.1)

Full-time residential facility was least restrictive educationally appropriate setting under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) for severely mentally retarded student; residential program was required for student to make meaningful educational progress to reduce his severe self-stimulatory behavior or to improve his toileting, eating, and communication skills, which would succeed only in intense atmosphere of round-the-clock residential setting in which consistent educational program could be enforced throughout all of his waking hours. M.C. on Behalf of J.C. v. Central Regional School Dist., C.A.3 (N.J.) 1996, 81 F.3d 389, certiorari denied 117 S.Ct. 176, 519 U.S. 866, 136 L.Ed.2d 116. Schools 154(3)

Where district court found that school district had failed to present an independent educational program (IEP) which met the minimum requirements of IDEA and had failed to suggest any alternative to its program which did meet those minimums, district court had no choice but to order that the mentally retarded child be educated at out-of-state residential school as urged by the parents, as the only viable option, and since that was the only option, the court was not required to locate another school that would satisfy the least restrictive alternative requirement based on the entire pool of schools available, but rather was required simply to determine whether the one available choice would provide an appropriate education. Provision of hearing officer's order, requiring individualized education plan (IEP) team to change location of student with borderline cognitive skills to comparable full-time special education day school if he was not making sufficient progress at private institution, unduly restricted local educational agency from complying with Individuals with Disabilities Education Act's (IDEA) requirement of "least restrictive environment" by prohibiting consideration of regular educational environment or part-time placement in special education school. District of Columbia v. Nelson, D.D.C.2011, 811 F.Supp.2d 508. Schools 154(4)

There was sufficient evidence to support impartial hearing officer's (IHO) determination that applied behavioral services (ABS) was least restrictive environment for disabled student, and thus was appropriate placement under IDEA, even though ABS was more restrictive than public school, where expert's report established need for structured program offering applied behavior analysis, there was no evidence that school district could offer that type of learning environment, and student's individualized education program (IEP) failed to provide services that she required. Analysis of whether individualized education program (IEP) provided autistic student with the least restrictive environment (LRE) was irrelevant; both parties agreed that student would attend full instructional program of regular education kindergarten, and by definition student had been mainstreamed to maximum extent possible because there was no additional regular class time into which he could be incorporated. Therapeutic day school serving severely emotionally disturbed students, which school was the placement that Florida county school board developed in individualized education plan (IEP) for eight-year-old student who was severely emotionally disturbed, provided free and appropriate education (FAPE) to student, and thus, student's adoptive parents were not entitled to reimbursement from school board, under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), of costs incurred when parents decided to enroll child at residential behavioral health facility with classrooms; while IEP which had been developed in New York, shortly before student moved to Florida, had recommended placement in residential program, such placement was not least restrictive environment in Florida, number and variety of services at Florida therapeutic day school were greater than those offered in New York, educational professionals reported that student was manageable at school and able to learn, and it was student's allegedly dangerous behavior at home that parents sought to address through residential placement. Placement of emotionally handicapped and learning disabled student, who slashed another student with box cutter, in alternative school did not violate requirement that disabled student be educated in least restrictive environment, for purpose of determining whether student received free appropriate public education (FAPE) as guaranteed by IDEA, where both student's former high school and alternative school offered comparable educational benefits to student but student's inability to control his behavior made it impossible for student to obtain those benefits at high school without posing threat of injury to others. For purpose of determining extent of liability of state board of education for failure of city school board to comply with statutory mandates concerning education of disabled students, city school board's failure to comply was systemic and pervasive, where disabled students were placed by category of disability rather than with intention of educating them in least restrictive environment (LRE) for at least 17 years following enactment of LRE mandate. Private day program in alternative middle school was “least restrictive environment” which provided educational benefit to neurologically impaired student, within meaning of Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA); student's behavior and education improved following her enrollment in private day program, recommendation of one doctor that student be placed in residential facility was based upon representation of student's mother that student had already been labeled autistic, and another of student's doctors stated that while residential program would be most intense for student, other nonresidential settings might be appropriate. Schreiber v. Ridgewood Bd. of Educ., D.N.J.1997, 952 F.Supp. 205. Schools 154(2.1)

Dyslexic student's placement in private school for disabled students was not proper under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA); Individualized Education Program (IEP) proposed by school district offered student free appropriate public education, student required no remedial help in a number of subjects and was happy and participative student in public school, student's attendance at Girl Scouts and YMCA activities was not comparable to mainstreaming offered in IEP, student was able to progress in science and social studies in public school through means other than reading and writing, school district's instructors utilized multisensory approaches to promote student's cognitive capabilities, student's parents did not fully express implications of student's emotional state until conduct of due process hearing on proposed IEP, and proposed IEP placed student in least restrictive environment. Independent School Dist. No. 283, St. Louis Park, Minn. v. S.D. By and Through J.D., D.Minn.1995, 948 F.Supp. 860, affirmed 88 F.3d 556. Schools 154(4)

Student with Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD) could receive appropriate education at public high school, and therefore private school for disabled students was not the least restrictive environment for the student under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), where student was on nonsevere side of spectrum between mildly and moderately handicapped. Failure of state education officials to require expressly that local school districts consider least restrictive environment requirement of IDEA in meeting with parents on child's Individualized Education Program (IEP), before referring or re-referring child to state schools, violated IDEA's requirement that handicapped children be removed from regular education only if supplementary aids and services would not allow satisfactory education in regular classes. Centralizing cued speech program at high school that was approximately five miles farther from hearing impaired student's home than his base school provided free, appropriate public education in least restrictive environment and did not discriminate on basis of handicap, even if student wanted to attend his base school; student was involved in classes made up of nonhandicapped students; and nothing indicated that student would receive better education at his base school. Proposed placement of a student with Down syndrome in a self-contained classroom did not violate the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act's (IDEA) least restrictive environment (LRE) provisions; school district had taken multiple steps in an attempt to accommodate the student, including providing a one-on-one paraeducator, physical, occupational, and speech therapy, and adapted physical education, and had developed an adequate behavioral intervention plan (BIP); moreover, there was evidence that the student was receiving no benefit from being in a regular classroom and that his presence was often disruptive. 104. Special education, free appropriate public education

School district's failure to identify elementary school student as child in need of special education services at beginning of first grade did not deny student free appropriate public education (FAPE) as would violate the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), despite later determination of reading and learning disabilities, where student was evaluated several months prior in kindergarten and found to not qualify as student in need, first grade was first time students ever had a chance to be in a test taking situation, and other children also had difficulty taking a test. Ridley School Dist. v. M.R., C.A.3 (Pa.) 2012, 680 F.3d 260. Schools 148(3)

Under IDEA, appropriate placement for moderately mentally retarded nine-year-old student was in regular second grade classroom, with some supplemental services, as full-time member of that class; although school district claimed that it would lose up to $190,764 in state special education funding if student were not enrolled in special education class at least 51% of day, district did not seek statutory waiver, and district's proposal that child be taught by special education teacher ran directly counter to congressional preference that children with disabilities be educated in regular classes with children who are not disabled. Sacramento City Unified School Dist., Bd. of Educ. v. Rachel H. By and Through Holland, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1994, 14 F.3d 1398, certiorari denied 114 S.Ct. 2679, 512 U.S. 1207, 129 L.Ed.2d 813. Individualized education program (IEP) providing for placement of student diagnosed with autism as charter school specifically for children with autism, without providing for additional special education itinerant teacher (SEIT) services, occupational therapy, and physical therapy, was reasonably calculated to enable student to receive educational benefits, as required by the Individuals with Disabilities Education Improvement Act (IDEIA); the charter school provided intensive academic and behavioral programs for children with autism, the school developed an individualized program for student based on his needs, and the school provided the parents with a comprehensive training program and monthly home visits. Preponderance of evidence supported individual education plan committee's placement of 14-year-old developmentally disabled student at a middle school, rather than her home school, to be educated in basic special education classroom part-time and mainstreamed at middle school in unified arts classes the rest of the day; extensive record of administrative proceedings and great weight of evidence presented in those proceedings established that student was not developing any needed independent living skills or otherwise benefitting academically from her placement in regular education academic classes at her home school as subject matter was far beyond her intellectual ability and all of her teachers and paraprofessionals testified that student needed to be in special education basic classroom. Hudson By and Through Hudson v. Bloomfield Hills Public Schools, E.D.Mich.1995, 910 F.Supp. 1291, affirmed 108 F.3d 112, certiorari denied 118 S.Ct. 78, 522 U.S. 822, 139 L.Ed.2d 37. Under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), appropriate placement for moderately mentally retarded nine-year-old student was in a regular second grade classroom, with some supplemental services, as a full-time member of that class; factors of educational and nonacademic benefits to student and effect of her presence on teacher and other children in regular classroom weighed in favor of regular educational placement, and school district did not prove that educating student in regular education classroom with appropriate services would be significantly more expensive than educating her in a proposed special education setting. 105. Mainstreaming, free appropriate public education

States seeking to qualify for federal funds under Education of the Handicapped Act must develop policies assuring all disabled children the right to free appropriate public education, and must file with Secretary of Education formal plans mapping out in detail programs, procedures, and timetables under which they will effectuate such policies, and such plans must assure that to maximum extent appropriate, states will mainstream disabled children, that is, they will educate them with children who are not disabled, and will segregate or otherwise remove such children from regular classroom setting only when nature or severity of handicapped is such that education or regular classrooms cannot be achieved satisfactorily. Honig v. Doe, U.S.Cal.1988, 108 S.Ct. 592, 484 U.S. 305, 98 L.Ed.2d 686. Schools 17

Placement of disabled student in school with class specifically structured for autistic children as to academic subjects, but in which child would be placed in regular classes for other subjects, was appropriate under mainstreaming provision of Individuals With Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), as placement was carefully tailored to ensure that student was mainstreamed to maximum extent appropriate. Hartmann by Hartmann v. Loudoun County Bd. of Educ., C.A.4 (Va.) 1997, 118 F.3d 996, certiorari denied 118 S.Ct. 688, 522 U.S. 1046, 139 L.Ed.2d 634. Schools 148(3)

District court's finding that disabled student could receive educational benefit in regular classroom, and that individualized education program (IEP) which would involve only partial mainstreaming was thus inappropriate for student under Individuals With Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), was not supported by evidence; notwithstanding student's allegedly more successful experiences in regular classrooms before and after student's placement by defendant county, evidence indicated that student failed to make academic progress in regular classrooms, and interaction with non-handicapped students did not outweigh student's need for educational benefits. Hartmann by Hartmann v. Loudoun County Bd. of Educ., C.A.4 (Va.) 1997, 118 F.3d 996, certiorari denied 118 S.Ct. 688, 522 U.S. 1046, 139 L.Ed.2d 634. Schools 155.5(4)

Off-campus, self-contained program was “least restrictive environment” in which student with Tourette's Syndrome and Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder could be educated satisfactorily, for purposes of IDEA, despite claim that student could have been educated in mainstream setting if school provided personal classroom aide; it was not likely that aide would have made meaningful difference, student was socially isolated at mainstream placement, and he had violently attacked two students and school staff member and directed sexually explicit remarks at female students. Trial court did not err by finding that school's plan to educate student suffering from neurological impairment that hindered his ability to process auditory information and engage in normal language and thinking skills in classroom with a supplemental tutorial, which included access to word processor and substitution of oral examinations for written tests and longer papers satisfied “mainstreaming” requirement that handicapped children be educated along with other children to maximum extent possible; alternative proposed by parents was payment of tuition to attend private school, which consisted only of handicapped children. Mainstreaming requirement of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) prohibits school from placing child with disabilities outside regular classroom if educating child in regular classroom, with supplementary aids and support services, can be achieved satisfactorily and, if placement outside regular classroom is necessary for child to receive educational benefit, school may still be violating IDEA if it has not made sufficient efforts to include child in school programs with nondisabled children whenever possible. Preference of Individuals with Disabilities Education Act for mainstreaming handicapped students did not justify individualized educational program for learning disabled tenth grade student which stated goal of only four months' progress over period of more than one year so as to make public school placement superior to private school, which educated only children with disabilities; where necessary for educational reasons, mainstreaming assumed subordinate role in formulating educational program. In determining whether mainstreaming requirements of Education for All Handicapped Children Act were satisfied, court could consider both whether severely handicapped child would benefit from placement in regular public elementary school and costs to school district of such placement, which would require special, self-contained classroom with teacher trained to meet handicapped child's exceptional educational needs. Mainstreaming provisions of the Education of the Handicapped Act requiring a state receiving federal financial assistance, "to the maximum extent appropriate," to educate handicapped children with children who are not handicapped does not mean that a handicapped child must be educated in the same classroom with nonhandicapped children. Although handicapped child's progress, or lack thereof, at regular public school is relevant factor in determining maximum appropriate extent to which he can be mainstreamed, it is not dispositive of that question, since court must determine whether child could have been provided with additional services, such as those provided at schools for handicapped, which would have improved his performance at public school. School district's individualized education program (IEP) for autistic student failed to comport with Individuals with Disabilities Education Act's (IDEA) "mainstreaming" requirement; evidence strongly supported conclusions that an integrated class would be far more beneficial for student than a self-contained class, that student was capable of attending an integrated class if provided with sufficient accommodations, and that student did not negatively impact other students. Analyzing the effect of disabled student's presence on other students in regular classroom, in determining whether to mainstream the disabled student, pursuant to IDEA, focuses on the school district's obligation to educate all of its students, recognizing that, even if disabled student might benefit from inclusion, she may be so disruptive in regular classroom that other students' education is significantly impaired, and modifying the curriculum to include disabled student may demand so much of the teacher's attention that the teacher will be required to ignore the other students. Factors to be considered in determining whether disabled child can be educated satisfactorily in regular classroom with supplementary aids and services, in accordance with mainstreaming preference established by Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), are: steps that school has taken to try to include child in regular classroom; comparison between educational benefits child would receive in regular classroom and benefits child would receive in segregated setting; and possible negative effect child's inclusion might have on education of other children in regular classroom. D.B. v. Ocean Tp. Bd. of Educ., D.N.J.1997, 985 F.Supp. 457, affirmed 159 F.3d 1350. Schools 148(2.1)

Inclusive placement of learning disabled child, in regular classroom, was appropriate under IDEA, despite parent's opposition and failure of district to diagnose child's dyslexia, where recommendations made by parents' experts could be implemented in inclusive placement, and mirrored many of the recommendations in district's proposed individualized education program (IEP), and where the district did perform testing on the child and did not base its proposed IEP solely on anecdotal information. Jonathan G. v. Lower Merion School Dist., E.D.Pa.1997, 955 F.Supp. 413. Schools 148(3)

At its core, Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) has indisputable preference for "mainstreaming" special education students; such students are to be educated, to maximum extent appropriate, in regular class setting. Independent School Dist. No. 283, St. Louis Park, Minn. v. S.D. By and Through J.D., D.Minn.1995, 948 F.Supp. 860, affirmed 88 F.3d 556. Schools 148(2.1)

Within the statutory preference under the IDEA for "mainstreaming" handicapped student in least restrictive environment consistent with needs, to the maximum extent possible, "least restrictive environment" connotes not merely freedom from restraint but freedom to associate with family and with able-bodied peers. Cypress-Fairbanks Independent School Dist. v. Michael F. by Barry F., S.D.Tex.1995, 931 F.Supp. 474, affirmed as modified 118 F.3d 245, 152 A.L.R. Fed. 771, certiorari denied 118 S.Ct. 690, 522 U.S. 1047, 139 L.Ed.2d 636. Schools 148(2.1)

Mainstreaming is inappropriate under IDEA only where nature or severity of handicap is such that education in regular classes cannot be achieved satisfactorily. Mather v. Hartford School Dist., D.Vt.1996, 928 F.Supp. 437.

Schools 148(2.1)

Whether mainstreaming requirement of the IDEA has been met may be determined under two-part test, asking first whether education in regular classroom with use of supplemental aids and services can be achieved satisfactorily for the child and, if not, whether the school has mainstreamed child to maximum extent appropriate, and discussion of such test may be organized under the following factors: educational benefits available to child in regular classroom, supplemented with appropriate aids and services, compared with educational benefits of special education classroom; nonacademic benefits to handicapped child from interaction with nonhandicapped children; effect of presence of handicapped child on the teacher and other children in the regular classroom; and costs of supplementary aids and services necessary to mainstream the handicapped child in regular classroom setting. D.F. v. Western School Corp., S.D.Ind.1996, 921 F.Supp. 559. Schools 148(2.1)

Mainstreaming criteria of Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) require schools, to maximum extent appropriate, to educate disabled children in least restrictive environment with children who are not disabled. Ciresoli v. M.S.A.D. No. 22, D.Me.1995, 901 F.Supp. 378. Schools 148(2.1)

Parents of handicapped student failed to establish that placement of student in therapeutic day school was not appropriate under IDEA, despite their preference for "mainstreaming" student, particularly in light of evaluations by psychologists and social workers supporting conclusion that student was not benefitting from interaction with other students and would benefit from being placed in more structured program with additional support services; effort at mainstreaming had proven unsuccessful, particularly as student's behavior represented regression on his own part, in addition to disruption of others. MR by RR v. Lincolnwood Bd. of Educ., Dist. 74, N.D.Ill.1994, 843 F.Supp. 1236, reconsideration denied 1994 WL 30968, affirmed 56 F.3d 67, rehearing and suggestion for rehearing en banc denied. Schools 154(2.1)

Individualized education program (IEP) for mainstreaming mentally disabled student only for art, music, and gym did not comply with IDEA's mainstreaming requirement; school district did not take meaningful steps to include student in regular classroom with adequate supplemental aids and services and did not consider less restrictive alternative placements, and nothing indicated that student would present behavior problems if provided with adequate level of supplementary aids and services. Mavis v. Sobol, N.D.N.Y.1993, 839 F.Supp. 968. Schools 148(3)

Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) requires states to mainstream disabled children with able-bodied children whenever possible. Swift By and Through Swift v. Rapides Parish Public School System, W.D.La.1993, 812 F.Supp. 666, affirmed 12 F.3d 209. Schools 148(2.1)

In determining how to comply with Individuals With Disabilities Education Act school districts must carefully examine educational benefits, both academic and nonacademic, available to disabled child in a regular classroom, particularly advantages arrived from modeling on behavior and language of children without disabilities, effects of such inclusion upon other children in class, both positive and negative, and cost of necessary supplementary services. Oberti by Oberti v. Board of Educ. of Borough of Clementon School Dist., D.N.J.1992, 801 F.Supp. 1392, affirmed and remanded 995 F.2d 1204. Schools 148(2.1)

Provision of Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) requiring state to assure that children with disabilities are educated with children who are not disabled to maximum extent appropriate denotes clear preference by Congress for inclusion of handicapped children in classes with other children. Cordero by Bates v. Pennsylvania Dept. of Educ., M.D.Pa.1992, 795 F.Supp. 1352. Schools 148(2.1)

Individuals with Disabilities Education Act's (IDEA's) preference or presumption in favor of including disabled student in regular classrooms will not be rebutted unless school district shows that child's disabilities are so severe that he or she will receive little or no benefit from inclusion, that he or she is so disruptive as to significantly impair education of other children in the class, or that cost of providing inclusive education will significantly affect other children in district. Oberti by Oberti v. Board of Educ. of Borough of Clementon School Dist., D.N.J.1992, 789 F.Supp. 1322. Schools 148(2.1)

Local board of education's decision to place child, who had been diagnosed as having mental retardation secondary to Downs Syndrome, in its preschool program, which was not fully integrated, was based on fact that child was handicapped, rather than on professional review of available alternatives and recommendations of experts familiar with particular special education needs that were incidental to child's handicap, and thus placement decision was clearly inconsistent with procedural requirements of Individuals With Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) and regulations promulgated thereunder. P.J. By and Through W.J. v. State of Conn. Bd. of Educ., D.Conn.1992, 788 F.Supp. 673. Schools 148(3)

The Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) has a strong preference for "mainstreaming" which rises to level of a rebuttable presumption; "mainstreaming" is the placement of handicapped children in regular classrooms. Board of Educ., Sacramento City Unified School Dist. v. Holland By and Through Holland, E.D.Cal.1992, 786 F.Supp. 874, affirmed 14 F.3d 1398, certiorari denied 114 S.Ct. 2679, 512 U.S. 1207, 129 L.Ed.2d 813. Schools 148(2.1); Schools 155.5(4)

Placement of a hearing-impaired student with multiple physical handicaps at a school for the deaf was appropriate and consistent with the "mainstreaming" requirements of the Education of the Handicapped Act; the student would receive no benefit from mainstreaming and even if there was a marginal benefit from "mainstreaming" which would result from interacting with hearing children and adults while passing in the halls or eating in the lunchroom, it was outweighed by the benefits gained from an all-signing environment provided by school for the deaf. French v. Omaha Public Schools, D.Neb.1991, 766 F.Supp. 765. Schools 154(2.1)

Handicapped student's individualized education program could be implemented reasonably satisfactorily in integrated program at neighborhood high school that student would have attended were she not handicapped and, thus, placement there was in accordance with Education for All Handicapped Children Act, despite parents' desire to have student placed in totally segregated program for handicapped; student's socialization needs would be met at neighborhood school, where she would interact with age-appropriate nonhandicapped peers, no credible evidence supported concern that neighborhood school had excessively hostile educational environment, and student's recreational and physical education needs could be met there. School Dist. of Kettle Moraine v. Grover, E.D.Wis.1990, 755 F.Supp. 243. Schools 154(2.1)

Under Education of All Handicapped Children Act, removal of child from "mainstream" educational environment is permitted only when education in regular classes cannot be achieved satisfactorily. Carey on Behalf of Carey v. Maine School Administrative Dist. No. 17, D.Me.1990, 754 F.Supp. 906. Schools 148(2.1)

School district was required to explore feasibility of mainstreaming mentally handicapped child into classes for nonacademic subjects, even though child would have to take academic subjects in classes for students socially and emotionally disturbed/mentally retarded. Liscio by Hippensteel v. Woodland Hills School Dist., W.D.Pa.1989, 734 F.Supp. 689, affirmed 902 F.2d 1561, affirmed 902 F.2d 1563. Schools 148(3)

Mainstreaming of eight-year-old student with severe hearing loss, rather than placement in a facility for the hearing impaired, met the free appropriate public education requirement of Education of the Handicapped Act where child had superior intellectual potential and was learning in a ordinary classroom setting and, in some areas, was on a par with her peers, and her social adjustment was improving and her classmates had learned to communicate with her; however, board could continue to transport child to another facility for one-to-one supplementary academic work, especially given child's rapport with resource room teachers at the other facility. Bonadonna v. Cooperman, D.C.N.J.1985, 619 F.Supp. 401. Schools 154(2.1)

It is possible to provide an appropriate public education, within meaning of this chapter, in a separate educational setting. St. Louis Developmental Disabilities Treatment Center Parents Ass'n v. Mallory, W.D.Mo.1984, 591 F.Supp. 1416, affirmed 767 F.2d 518. Schools 148(2.1)

School system and school officials did not violate this chapter by transferring student with cerebral palsy from school where she was being taught in traditional classes in which majority of students were not handicapped to a school where separate classrooms were maintained for children who were physically or otherwise health impaired. Johnston by Johnston v. Ann Arbor Public Schools, E.D.Mich.1983, 569 F.Supp. 1502. Schools 154(2.1)

Inasmuch as public school's individual education program for an 18-year-old handicapped student, who was mentally retarded, mentally ill and epileptic, relied on legitimate educational philosophy akin to the mainstreaming approach preferred by this chapter and would provide the student an education that benefited her within meaning of this chapter, the plan would be deemed satisfactory under this section's requirement of a "free appropriate public education," despite the objections of student's parents and their desire that daughter remain in private school she attended for last eight years. Lang v. Braintree School Committee, D.C.Mass.1982, 545 F.Supp. 1221. Schools 164

Individualized education program that school offered to severely retarded 18-year-old boy did not place him in contact with nonhandicapped students to the maximum extent consistent with appropriate education program as required by this chapter, where under the program he had virtually no contact with nonhandicapped students outside of his lunch period and even than his contacts were few. 106. Disruption, free appropriate public education

Disruptive impact that disabled student had on other students was a relevant consideration in deciding whether he received an appropriate education under the IDEA. Alex R., ex rel. Beth R. v. Forrestville Valley Community Unit School Dist. No. 221, C.A.7 (Ill.) 2004, 375 F.3d 603, certiorari denied 125 S.Ct. 628, 543 U.S. 1009, 160 L.Ed.2d 474. Schools 148(2.1)

107. Parental participation, free appropriate public education--Generally

Any procedural failure by school district in scheduling disabled student's individualized education program (IEP) meetings at times his parents could not attend during pendency of their challenge to district's proposed triennial reevaluation of student's special education services did not deny student a free appropriate public education (FAPE) under IDEA; student remained in his placement in district, and parents failed to describe any portions of IEPs for which they withdrew their consent. G.J. v. Muscogee County School Dist., C.A.11 (Ga.) 2012, 668 F.3d 1258. Schools 148(2.1)

School district's creation of individualized education plan (IEP) for disabled student was not rendered procedurally inadequate due to lack of participation by student's parents; even if district should have held a second IEP meeting to review goals and objectives that were ultimately included in IEP but were not discussed at earlier meeting, parents did not fully avail themselves of opportunity to actively and meaningfully participate in development of IEP, since they refused to talk about any issue other than whether district would pay for student's placement at private school. Hjortness ex rel. Hjortness v. Neenah Joint School Dist., C.A.7 (Wis.) 2007, 507 F.3d 1060, certiorari denied 128 S.Ct. 2962, 554 U.S. 930. Schools 148(2.1)

District court did not clearly err in determining that parents had meaningful opportunity to participate in development and review of individualized education plan (IEP) for student with Rett syndrome, as required by Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), in that addendum drafted by district officials at IEP meeting could be viewed as expression of concern rather than evidence that district had predetermined student's placement, fact that district had attorney poised to file suit did not indicate that meeting was sham, and parties conducted comprehensive review of student's situation at IEP meeting. Board of Educ. of Tp. High School Dist. No. 211 v. Ross, C.A.7 (Ill.) 2007, 486 F.3d 267. Schools 148(3)

Parental right to provide input into location of services under IDEA does not grant parents veto power over individualized education program (IEP) team site selection decisions. White ex rel. White v. Ascension Parish School Bd., C.A.5 (La.) 2003, 343 F.3d 373. Schools 148(2.1)

Substantive harm, resulting in a denial of a free appropriate public education (FAPE) under IDEA, occurs when the procedural violations of IDEA seriously infringe upon the parents' opportunity to participate in the individualized education program (IEP) process, and procedural violations that deprive an eligible student of an individualized education program or result in the loss of educational opportunity also will constitute a denial of a FAPE. Knable ex rel. Knable v. Bexley City School Dist., C.A.6 (Ohio) 2001, 238 F.3d 755, certiorari denied 121 S.Ct. 2593, 533 U.S. 950, 150 L.Ed.2d 752. Schools 148(2.1)

Court's determination that individual education plan (IEP) for handicapped student was appropriate was supported by evidence that it was calculated to confer some educational benefit on the student, even though parents felt that residential setting where he would be with other blind students would be more advantageous, and where the plan had a number of points which were not included in prior individual education plan which parents claimed had been inadequate. Carlisle Area School v. Scott P. By and Through Bess P., C.A.3 (Pa.) 1995, 62 F.3d 520, amended , certiorari denied 116 S.Ct. 1419, 517 U.S. 1135, 134 L.Ed.2d 544. Schools 155.5(4)

It is permissible to consider parental hostility to individualized educational program (IEP) as part of prospective evaluation required by Education of the Handicapped Act (EHA) of the placement's expected educational benefits; if facts show that parents are so opposed to placement as to undermine its value to child, there is no obligation under EHA to order the placement. Board of Educ. of Community Consol. School Dist. No. 21, Cook County, Ill. v. Illinois State Bd. of Educ., C.A.7 (Ill.) 1991, 938 F.2d 712, rehearing denied, certiorari denied 112 S.Ct. 957, 502 U.S. 1066, 117 L.Ed.2d 124. Schools 154(2.1)

Parents of handicapped child waived right to properly constituted individualized educational program meeting when they rejected school district's offer to schedule one, though parents had been seeking extended school year services for their child for three years, they had specifically agreed with school district to hold individualized educational program meeting to discuss study by clinical psychologist, meeting convened by school district was not proper individualized educational program meeting, and at meeting school district refused to place extended school year program on child's individualized educational program unless parents agreed to exclude program from "stay put" provision of Education of the Handicapped Act. Cordrey v. Euckert, C.A.6 (Ohio) 1990, 917 F.2d 1460, certiorari denied 111 S.Ct. 1391, 499 U.S. 938, 113 L.Ed.2d 447. Schools 155.5(1)

School district's failure following parental requests for documentation personally identifiable to disabled student to either provide parents with complete set of copies or to allow them to review all requested documents did not deprive student of free appropriate public education (FAPE); hearing officer found that while district's document maintenance was "less than organized," irregularities cited by parents were nothing more than district's attempts to correct mistakes, that any trouble parents may have had in recovering documents from district could not have impeded parent's decisionmaking regarding district's provision of FAPE to student because parents did not request any documents until end of school year and just a few months before student was withdrawn from district, and parents offered no evidence that documents provided to them at earlier dates were somehow inadequate, relying instead on speculation as to what might have occurred. C.H. ex rel. C.H. v. Northwest Independent School Dist., E.D.Tex.2011, 815 F.Supp.2d 977. Schools 148(2.1)

Substantial evidence supported hearing officer's conclusion that decision to place student in "Chrysalis Program" as result of disciplinary violation was made by school board and not individualized education program (IEP) team, and resulting procedural violation constituted denial of free appropriate public education (FAPE) as it significantly impeded parent's opportunity to participate in decisionmaking process. School Bd. of the City of Norfolk v. Brown, E.D.Va.2010, 769 F.Supp.2d 928. Schools 155.5(4)

Learning disabled student's parents acted unreasonably during the individualized education program (IEP) process, and thus any delay in the development of an IEP did not violate IDEA, where parents objected to all evaluations of student proposed by the school district, they breached a clearly-worded settlement agreement permitting the district to have student evaluated by up to three of its own evaluators, and they insisted upon conditions that the district could not agree to, such as requiring that the district waive its right to see the independent evaluators' records. Kasenia R. ex rel. M.R. v. Brookline School Dist., D.N.H.2008, 588 F.Supp.2d 175. Schools 148(3)

Student's individualized education plan (IEP) was appropriate, as required by the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), despite claim by the student's mother that the IEP was not appropriately tailored to address the student's "deficits in expressive and receptive language" which impacted his "ability to access the general curriculum"; the mother fully participated in the IEP development process, fully agreed with the substance of the IEP as drafted at a meeting and signed the IEP indicating her agreement. Hinson ex rel. N.H. v. Merritt Educational Center, D.D.C.2008, 579 F.Supp.2d 89. Schools 148(3)

Individualized education program (IEP) could have been instituted for student and none was developed because of conduct of student's mother; she initially returned permission request form without properly checking off box that authorized that evaluation, initial team meeting adjourned before IEP could be developed and mother could not meet until after start of school year due to various scheduling conflicts, and continued IEP meeting did not occur because student's mother had filed request for due process hearing and refused to participate in any further IEP meetings. Charter middle school did not deny student, with Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD) and atypical learning disorder, free appropriate public education (FAPE) required by Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), through adoption of competency-based system, where teacher had flexibility in determining whether student mastered subject matter, through use of tests, discussions or other methods, and simply passed or failed student without awarding letter or numerical grades, despite claim that parents did not receive sufficient input regarding student's progress to determine whether they should request additional assistance for him. Preponderance of the evidence in IDEA case supported ALJ's finding that disabled student's parent refused to cooperate with Child Study Team (CST) to such an extent that CST was unreasonably prevented from creating an individualized education program (IEP) for school year in question; student's mother had refused to sign consent to have her son evaluated, a necessary prerequisite to creating his IEP, and withheld her consent to evaluate for two months until day she notified school board her son had been offered enrollment at private school and, through her attorney, gave school district's attorneys enrollment contract and outline of services provided at that school. Evidence that teacher prepared draft individualized education program (IEP) for student after informal meeting with student's parents, for discussion at next meeting of student's IEP team, was insufficient to support finding, in administrative proceedings on parents' request for reimbursement for private placement under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), that parents were denied adequate participation in process of preparation of student's IEP, as basis for finding that student was denied free appropriate public education (FAPE), absent any evidence that parents were forced to accept proposed IEP or were unaware of their rights in IEP process. Autistic child's individualized education plans (IEPs) for the first and third grades were reasonably calculated to confer meaningful educational benefit, and did not deprive child of a “free appropriate public education” (FAPE); however, school district's failure to include a district representative as part of the IEP team was a procedural violation that deprived child's parents an opportunity to meaningfully participate in the IEP process and deprived child of educational opportunity. Parents of disabled child did not show such hostility to individualized education program (IEP) as to establish that it lacked value for the child; though parents offered testimony at hearing that they opposed placement that school officials were proposing for the child at the time of the hearing, two years after the development of IEP, mother participated in all five case conferences, signed documents showing unqualified agreement with plans developed at each conference, and did not provide school with notice that she later came to disagree with the plans. 108. ---- Consent of parents, parental participation, free appropriate public education

School district's refusal to offer an individualized education program (IEP) to student without an evaluation of the student by an expert of the district's choice did not deny learning disabled student a free appropriate public education (FAPE) under IDEA, even though student had been evaluated by doctor selected by her parents, where parents had entered settlement agreement expressly permitting district to reevaluate student with its own specialists. 110. Deaf students, free appropriate public education

South Dakota Board of Regents did not violate IDEA when it closed the South Dakota School for the Deaf and out-sourced its services to home school districts; although deaf and hearing impaired students preferred to attend programs at the school's campus and their parents preferred to enroll their children in a separate, language-rich school, the IDEA's integrated-classroom preference made no exception for deaf students, and did not require states to make available the best possible option. Order requiring school to furnish profoundly and prelingually deaf child with a certified teacher of the deaf comported with the "appropriate education" requirement of this section, notwithstanding that child might learn more quickly at state school for the deaf as attendance at public school would be consistent with this chapter's, mainstreaming goals and state educational agency determined that child be placed in public school and provided personalized instruction in reading, arithmetic, spelling, telling of time, health, social services, and art along with manual communication, lip reading, writing and speaking, and cost to the school did not justify judicial intervention. Springdale School Dist. No. 50 of Washington County v. Grace, C.A.8 (Ark.) 1982, 693 F.2d 41, certiorari denied 103 S.Ct. 2086, 461 U.S. 927, 77 L.Ed.2d 298. Schools 154(2.1)

Deaf student would not be denied a free appropriate public education (FAPE) under IDEA even if school provided her with a meaning-for-meaning transcription of classroom discussions, rather than a verbatim word-for-word transcription, which was preferred by her parents, since meaning-for-meaning transcriptions were reasonably calculated to provide student with educational benefits, enable her to achieve passing marks, and allow her to advance from grade to grade, especially considering that individual education plan (IEP) also provided student with preferential seating in classrooms, a second set of textbooks at home, copies of teachers' notes when necessary, closed captioning, a peer note-taker in one of her classes, an auditory FM system to presumably amplify sounds, a special laptop for videos with closed captioning, and a closed-captioning decoder. 111. Sign language, free appropriate public education

In light of finding that deaf child, who performed better than average child in her class and was advancing easily from grade to grade, was receiving an adequate education and fact that deaf child was receiving personalized instruction and related services calculated by school administrators to meet her educational needs, this chapter did not require provision of a sign-language interpreter for deaf child. Board of Educ. of Hendrick Hudson Central School Dist., Westchester County v. Rowley, U.S.N.Y.1982, 102 S.Ct. 3034, 458 U.S. 176, 73 L.Ed.2d 690. Schools 148(2.1)

Student did not receive free appropriate public education to which she was entitled under the IDEA, where due process panel concluded that the education student received at state school with respect to sign language instruction was "wholly deficient," given that all evaluations of student over the years showed an intensive need for a language-based program that adequately considered her profound deafness. Findings that profoundly deaf Native American Child required immediate intensive instruction in American Sign Language (ASL) in order to comprehend instruction offered in regular classroom, that he could not presently receive any educational benefit from continued mainstreaming, and that he should therefore be placed in residential school 280 miles from home were not clearly erroneous notwithstanding value of social interaction with family and friends and of influence of his tribe and fact that child was of above average intelligence and would not detrimentally affect mainstream classroom environment. School district was not required under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) to provide deaf student with full-time sign language interpreter at public expense after his parents elected to place him in private school, where district provided student with free appropriate public education (FAPE), and cost for student's full time interpreter was more than ten times amount available under IDEA for all parentally-placed private school students in district. Any burden placed upon hearing-impaired student's free exercise of religion by school district's refusal to provide student with sign-language instructor in private sectarian school setting was not so substantial as to call decision into constitutional question; any burden was on act of sending child to private school rather than on religious practice, and student attended school for part of each day at public school for disabled students at which he received services of interpreter. School district's refusal to provide sign-language instructor for hearing-impaired student in private sectarian school setting, prior to 1997 amendments to Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), was not abuse of discretion afforded district by IDEA; student was provided with sign language instructor while he attended public school, but not while he attended private sectarian school, student's parents effectively opted for lesser entitlement under IDEA by choosing to place student in private school, and student was given genuine opportunity to participate in all services called for in his Individualized Education Program (IEP). School district's use of modified Signing Exact English sign language system in education of hearing impaired students, rather than strict Signing Exact English system, did not violate Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) as modified system proved adequate in conferring educational benefits on students; each student showed continued academic and lingual improvement through his or her educational experience, modifications were completed after consultations with educators knowledgeable in filed of signing systems, and modifications were designed to utilize strengths of unmodified system, while alleviating some difficulties recognized to exist with strict system. Assuming that mentally retarded student voluntarily enrolled by her parents in private school was individually entitled, under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), to proportionate share of federal funds received by state under the IDEA, in form of publicly subsidized services of consultant teacher and teacher's aide, state did not have to provide such services on-site at private school, but had discretion under the IDEA as to whether services would be provided on-site. 113. Assistive aids, free appropriate public education

The IDEA does not require school districts to pass a student claiming a disability when the student is able, with less than the assistive aids requested, to succeed but nonetheless fails; if a school district simply provided the assistive devices requested, even if unneeded, and awarded passing grades, it would in fact deny the appropriate educational benefits the IDEA requires. Policy of refusing, in formulation of individual education programs for children within school system, to consider possible necessity for programs extending beyond 180 days per year violated mandates of this chapter that individual educational program be designed to meet personal needs of each handicapped child, that each child receive some benefit, and that lack of funds not bear more heavily on handicapped than on nonhandicapped children. Inflexible application of Commonwealth of Pennsylvania's administrative policy which set a limit of 180 days of

116. Presumption in favor of public schools, free appropriate public education

School district did not deny disabled student a free appropriate public education, although parents claimed that district predetermined student's placement; IDEA required district to assume public placement for student, through provision mandating that district educate student with his nondisabled peers to the greatest extent appropriate, and district thus did not need to consider private placement once it determined that public placement was appropriate. Placement of deaf student at regional day school which was specially designed for disabled students, rather than at regular school closer to deaf student's home, satisfied least restrictive environment provisions of IDEA; school district's decision to send deaf student to regional day school was based on scarcity of interpreters and speech pathologists in area, and regional day school was only an additional eight miles from deaf student's home. School district satisfied its obligation under Education of the Handicapped Act to provide handicapped child with fully integrated public education by busing handicapped child to a nearby school, and therefore did not violate Act by refusing to modify neighborhood elementary school nearest to child's home to make it accessible to child. Parents' placement of student with learning disabilities at private school was appropriate under IDEA, as required to support parents' entitlement to tuition reimbursement from public school district, despite district's contention that New Jersey Department of Education did not approve placement; parents searched all available options for student and chose private school, and no less than four experts, who all knew student for more than three years, testified that they believed student's placement was appropriate and that he received educational benefit from his time at private school. Reviewing court would defer to findings of impartial hearing officer (IHO) and state review officer (SRO) that private school placement was appropriate for autistic student, despite New York City Department of Education's (DOE's) contention he "had shown little progress during his previous year (there)" and that school was not "specially designed to meet (student's) unique needs"; school provided student with essentially all the services that committee on special education (CSE) had recommended in its individualized education program (IEP), except it offered one session per week of occupational therapy rather than two and did not place student in classroom with consistent student-teacher-paraprofessional ratio, and it also offered him certain services not required by IEP such as art therapy and academic units specifically tailored to his interest in filmmaking. District of Columbia Public Schools (DCPS) could not satisfy its obligation under IDEA to provide disabled student with free appropriate public education (FAPE) by offering services comparable to those described in student's individualized education program (IEP) from private school; student's IEP could not be transferred to DCPS because private school was not "public agency" within meaning of education regulation governing IEP transfers and student transferred schools during summer, not within same school year. Preponderance of evidence supported state review officer's determination that placement of learning disabled student in transitional program at private school was not reasonably calculated to enable her to receive educational benefit, in denying parents' request for tuition reimbursement under IDEA; although student was placed in mainstream science classroom, she was not mainstreamed for other subjects despite positive reports about her abilities, but was instead placed in self-contained classrooms away from her nondisabled peers. Placement of student diagnosed with attention deficit hyperactivity disorder (ADHD) in a private behavioral modification program was not necessary to meet student's educational needs, so as to require that district cover parents' cost of such program under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), since student's placement stemmed from issues apart from the learning process which manifested themselves away from school grounds; main reasons mother withdrew student from school had little to do with quality of education student was receiving, but rather was due to student's sneaking out of the house to carry on a relationship of some sort with a 28-year old man who was formerly a custodian at the school and perhaps with one or more teenage boys, student's alleged defiance, and mother's disapproval of student's friends. Since school district's proposed public school placement could not meet all of student's unique needs, as required under the Individuals with Disabilities in Education Act (IDEA) to qualify as a free appropriate public education, district court would order that student be placed at district's expense for a transitional period of one year in a private school that had on-site psychological services which had proven to be of great importance in student's integration to school; student had been out of school for almost four years, was diagnosed with major depression disorder after having been enrolled at the public school, and had communicated thoughts of hurting herself after attending the public school. Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) required school district to provide disabled student with consultant teacher and teacher's aide at parochial school; district's only justification for its failure to provide such benefits was its view that establishment clause prohibited on-site provision of such services in parochial school, statute and its regulations were more consistent with mandatory entitlements than with discretionary authority, and giving school district discretion to offer services required by IDEA only in public schools would have required student to either forgo IDEA benefits, bear cost of such benefits herself, or transfer to public school. Russman by Russman v. Salley v. St. Tammany Parish School Bd., C.A.5 (La.) 1995, 57 F.3d 458. Schools 154(3)

Education of the Handicapped Act required residential placement of child who was suffering from several congenital physical abnormalities and from neurological impairment inhibiting his ability to walk or to communicate, rather than placement in day program, in view of severity of child's disability; only residential placement would provide child with requisite free appropriate public education. Board of Educ. of East Windsor Regional School Dist. v. Diamond in Behalf of Diamond, C.A.3 (N.J.) 1986, 808 F.2d 987. Schools 154(3)

To determine whether residential placement is appropriate under provisions of Education for All Handicapped Children Act [20 U.S.C.A. §§ 1401(16), 1413(a)(4)(B)], court must analyze whether full-time placement may be considered necessary for educational purposes or whether residential placement is response to medical, social or emotional problems that are segregable from learning process. McKenzie v. Smith, C.A.D.C.1985, 771 F.2d 1527, 248 U.S.App.D.C. 387. Schools 154(3)

Where unique condition of severely retarded child demanded that he receive round-the-clock training and reinforcement in order to make any educational progress at all, order that child be placed in residential program was proper under this chapter. Abrahamson v. Hershman, C.A.1 (Mass.) 1983, 701 F.2d 223. Schools 154(3)

Findings that child might regress if moved to an entirely new home and school environment pursuant to education plan proposed by school officials and that it would be detrimental for student to return to his parents' home was a finding that student could not benefit from the proposed program of instruction and sustained district court's determination that residential program was required. Doe v. Anrig, C.A.1 (Mass.) 1982, 692 F.2d 800, on remand 561 F.Supp. 121. Schools 155.5(4)

Private day school placement provided disabled student with free appropriate public education (FAPE), and student did not require residential placement under IDEA; student's emotional problems were segregable from his ability to learn. Y.B. v. Board of Educ. of Prince George's County, D.Md.2012, 2012 WL 3962511. Schools 154(3)

Residential placement was not required to afford student a free appropriate public education (FAPE); weight of the evidence demonstrated that student had progressed significantly in his months away from public high school and could return to high school with benefit of increased support services and more structure to his school day, and while student indisputably had frequent problems out of school involving criminal activity, drug use, and violence, his academic performance at public high school was at least average. C.T. v. Croton-Harmon Union Free School Dist., S.D.N.Y.2011, 812 F.Supp.2d 420. Schools 154(3)

School district's individualized education plan (IEP) for autistic student recommending his placement in non-residential high school was not reasonably calculated to enable student to receive educational benefits, as required to provide student with free appropriate public education (FAPE) under IDEA; student's needs were extensive, requiring great deal of structure and consistency, and best met through 24-hour residential program. Cone v. Randolph County Schools Bd. of Educ., M.D.N.C.2009, 657 F.Supp.2d 667. Schools 148(3); Schools 154(3)

Placement of disabled student in 24-hour a day residential facility was not proper under the IDEA, for purposes of parents' request for reimbursement of costs thereof, as it did not provide him an education in the least restrictive environment (LRE); there was no credible evidence that student would regress and lose skills from time he left school until time he returned in the morning, and doctor opined that student could receive educational benefit without additional services beyond school day. A.S. v. Madison Metropolitan School Dist., W.D.Wis.2007, 477 F.Supp.2d 969. Schools 154(3)

Residential placement was required in order for autistic child to receive a free appropriate public education (FAPE) under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA); child was not showing any academic progress at day school, and all but one witness concurred that could academically improve in the more restrictive environment of a residential program. S.C. ex rel. C.C. v. Deptford Tp. Bd. of Educ., D.N.J.2003, 248 F.Supp.2d 368. Schools 154(3)

Residential placement of disabled child under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) is inappropriate where such placement is requested or needed to address needs other than child's educational needs, as where placement is sought in response to medical, social, emotional, or caretaking or custodial problems segregable from learning process. D.B. v. Ocean Tp. Bd. of Educ., D.N.J.1997, 985 F.Supp. 457, affirmed 159 F.3d 1350. Schools 154(3)

Relevant factors in determining whether residential placement of disabled student is least restrictive educational environment and therefore required for educational purposes under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) include: steps that school has taken to try to include child in regular or local community-based school setting; comparison between educational benefits child would receive in local placement and benefits child would receive in residential placement; and possible negative effect child's inclusion might have on education of other children in local placement class and school. D.B. v. Ocean Tp. Bd. of Educ., D.N.J.1997, 985 F.Supp. 457, affirmed 159 F.3d 1350. Schools 154(3)

Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) does not authorize residential care merely to enhance otherwise sufficient day program; handicapped child who would make educational progress in day program would not be entitled to placement in residential school merely because latter would more nearly enable the child to reach his or her full potential, but rather, district is required merely to ensure that child be placed in program that provides opportunity for some educational progress. Ciresoli v. M.S.A.D. No. 22, D.Me.1995, 901 F.Supp. 378. Schools 154(3)

Given clearly inappropriate individualized education program (IEP) proposed for school year by school district, student's residential placement at private school by parent was appropriate placement under Education of the Handicapped Act (EHA), notwithstanding fact that residential placement at private school was more restrictive than was optimally necessary for student, as it did not provide mainstreaming; parent was thus entitled to tuition reimbursement for that school year, where school district failed to show availability of more appropriate, less restrictive placements. Norton School Committee v. Massachusetts Dept. of Educ., D.Mass.1991, 768 F.Supp. 900 . Schools 154(4)

Upon determination that twenty-four hour residential placement for 16-year-old student suffering from severe infantile autism and severe mental retardation was necessary for student to achieve educational progress, Education of the Handicapped Act mandated that school district provide student with residential placement until age 21, or, in the alternative, to pay for placement in residential facility mutually agreed upon by student's parents and school officials. Drew P. v. Clarke County School Dist., M.D.Ga.1987, 676 F.Supp. 1559, affirmed 877 F.2d 927, certiorari denied 110 S.Ct. 1510, 494 U.S. 1046, 108 L.Ed.2d 646.

Psychologically handicapped child's residential placement, whereby State paid only tuition component of facility's charges, deprived child of free and appropriate public education, in violation of the Education for the Handicapped Act. Vander Malle v. Ambach, S.D.N.Y.1987, 667 F.Supp. 1015. Schools 154(3)

Although during her term in private boarding school, now 16-year-old mentally handicapped child's emotional condition and social orientation had improved and although those problems were exhibited primarily in response to stressful home environment, a residential program was not necessary to provide child with the appropriate education to which she was entitled under this chapter and public funding of that placement was not required as school district offered a free appropriate program which conferred educational benefits, notwithstanding unrebutted evidence that child's gains might be lost if private placement was changed. Ahern v. Keene, D.C.Del.1984, 593 F.Supp. 902. Schools 154(3)

Under New Jersey's regulations implementing this subchapter and requiring local public school districts to provide each handicapped pupil with special education program and services according to how pupil can best achieve educational success, continued attendance by 15-year-old trainable, mentally retarded child with neurological impairment in residential school was more appropriate placement than placing child in his home and in local schools since child's continued attendance at the residential school would enable him to best achieve success in learning and where placing him in his home and in local schools would have adverse effect on his ability to learn and develop to maximum possible extent. Geis v. Board of Educ. of Parsippany-Troy Hills, Morris County, D.C.N.J.1984, 589 F.Supp. 269, affirmed 774 F.2d 575. Schools 154(3)

Under this chapter, school district was required to provide residential program for profoundly retarded child, in view of evidence that child would realize his learning potential only if he received more professional help than a

125. Compensatory education, free appropriate public education

Absence of specially designed instruction in Individualized Education Program (IEP) for elementary school student who suffered reading and learning disabilities did not affect substantive rights of student or parents, and therefore, did not warrant award of compensatory education under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA); subsequent Notices of Recommended Educational Placement (NOREP) contained required information, including specialized educational placement, and parents signed and approved NOREPs. Ridley School Dist. v. M.R., C.A.3 (Pa.) 2012, 680 F.3d 260. Schools 155.5(5)

Student was not denied free and appropriate public education (FAPE) in violation of Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) for time period during which she was in acute care ward of long-term psychiatric residential treatment center, as would warrant award of compensatory education; school district responded promptly after being informed of learning disabled student's admission to facility and sought to reevaluate her educational needs and develop a new individualized education plan (IEP), and failure to develop new IEP was attributable to acute nature of student's medical condition. Mary T. v. School Dist. of Philadelphia, C.A.3 (Pa.) 2009, 575 F.3d 235. Schools 155.5(5)

Denial of compensatory education under IDEA to disabled student, on basis that private school program had provided her with social and psychological services and that she continued making gains in those areas during enrollment, was supported by evidence, including conclusions of school and private psychologists regarding student's social and emotional well-being and program's provision of constant feedback and monitoring and group counseling. Arkansas Department of Education (ADE) did not violate IDEA or § 1983 with regard to its training and monitoring of school district personnel throughout the state; ADE's receipt of five-year state improvement grant was de facto compliance with requirement of comprehensive system of personnel development (CSPD) and thus defense to claim for injunctive relief by parents of autistic student, while student was not in school when first grant was approved his personal rights under IDEA were not violated so he could not receive compensatory education at state's expense for alleged statewide failure of ADE's special education training program, and in any event district court's finding that Arkansas's state plans including provisions for training of personnel had all been approved as in compliance with IDEA was not clearly erroneous. Bradley ex rel. Bradley v. Arkansas Dept. of Educ., C.A.8 (Ark.) 2006, 443 F.3d 965. Schools 148(3)

Student was entitled to compensatory education under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) upon finding that his Individualized Education Program (IEP) was inappropriate and that school district knew or should have known of deficiency; majority of skills that student possessed at time of expert's evaluation were gained before he was placed in day program pursuant to IEP, same rate of progress did not continue after he was placed at day program, and he reached plateau in his development. Disabled student received all compensatory education to which he would otherwise have been entitled for period after he started elementary school and before his interim individualized education program (IEP) was implemented, and thus student was not entitled under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) to compensatory education for that period, where school district provided student with many more hours of applied behavior analysis (ABA), verbal behavior (VB), and occupational therapy (OT) services than were called for in interim IEP. 126. Reimbursement, free appropriate public education--Generally

Under IDEA, parents are entitled to reimbursement of private-education tuition for their child only if a federal court concludes both that the public placement violated IDEA and the private school placement was proper under the Act, and even then courts retain discretion to reduce the amount of a reimbursement award if the equities

District Court, in considering, pursuant to IDEA, whether reimbursement of some or all of cost of child's private education was warranted by school district's alleged failure to provide child with free appropriate public education (FAPE), and on basis that private-school placement was suitable, was required to consider all relevant factors, including notice provided by parents and school district's opportunities for evaluating the child. Forest Grove School Dist. v. T.A., U.S.2009, 129 S.Ct. 2484, 557 U.S. 230, 174 L.Ed.2d 168. Schools 154(4)

Even if public school denied learning-disabled student a free appropriate public education (FAPE) by failing to have an individualized educational program (IEP) in effect for student on first day of classes, as required by IDEA, equitable considerations weighed against reimbursing student's parents for cost of student's private school education for one school year, since parents' conduct in delaying continuation of individualized educational program (IEP) meeting and canceling speech and language evaluation substantially precluded any possibility that school could timely develop an appropriate IEP for student. C.H. v. Cape Henlopen School Dist., C.A.3 (Del.) 2010, 606 F.3d 59. Schools 154(4)

Parents and minor child seeking reimbursement for educational expenses under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) failed to establish that school district's proposed individualized education program (IEP) was substantively inappropriate; IEP included numerous supports and services to assist autistic child with his transition from primarily home-based educational program to school-based program. Student's need for special education services was not so obvious that general exercise of equity would override statutory requirement for tuition reimbursement under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA); parents were aware of procedures under IDEA and obligation to provide notice prior to removal, it was not obvious to school that student needed special education services, and parents withdrew student from public school and enrolled him in private residential school in order to address his drug use. Nothing in a student's individualized education program even suggested that for him to receive an appropriate preschool education he needed to attend private preschool full-time, and thus, under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), the school district was responsible to pay for only part-time enrollment; the decision of the student's parents to enroll him at the preschool full-time was a personal one, above and beyond the requirements of his individualized education program, and thus, they were entitled to only partial tuition reimbursement. Parents were not entitled to reimbursement under IDEA for their unilateral placement of their child with emotional and learning disabilities at a private, out-of-state school specializing in treating disabled children, even if individualized education program (IEP) proposed by school district was inadequate and even if the private

IDEA provision providing for reimbursement of private school tuition when a public agency failed to provide a free appropriate public education (FAPE) did not preclude reimbursement when child had not previously received special education and related services; express purpose of IDEA was to ensure that a FAPE was available to all children with disabilities and IDEA conferred broad discretion on district court to grant relief it deemed appropriate to parents of disabled children who opt for unilateral private placement where placement was proper and proposed individualized education program (IEP) was inadequate. Frank G. v. Board of Educ. of Hyde Park, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 2006, 459 F.3d 356, certiorari denied 128 S.Ct. 436, 552 U.S. 985, 169 L.Ed.2d 325. Schools 154(4)

Significant disputed factual issues existed as to conduct and intent of both school district and parents of ninth-grade student with alleged nonverbal learning disability, precluding judgment on the record as to whether parents acted reasonably, as required for reimbursement for costs of attending private school after school district allegedly failed to provide appropriate special education services as required under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) and the Rehabilitation Act. Individualized education program (IEP) generated for learning disabled student's sixth grade year was reasonably calculated to enable student to receive educational benefits and provided student with a free appropriate public education (FAPE) required by Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), even if it did not include particular reading programs or goals, and therefore, reimbursement was not warranted for parents' unilateral withdrawal of student and placement in private school; tests showed student was in the average range, including in reading, fifth grade report card showed student scoring either "consistent" or "exemplary" in all fields with only two "inconsistent" scores in separate subjects, student's literary extension teacher found that student was "performing in an acceptable range" and able to manage the curriculum, student was progressing under prior IEPs, which did not include separate reading instruction, student's special education case manager, who consulted with his teachers daily, believed student had no difficulty in reading fifth grade materials, and co-chairperson of reading department believed separate reading services were not necessary as reading goals would be addressed in services already provided by IEP. Even if county board of education failed to provide student, who had auditory memory and visual motor integration disorders and had difficulty with reading, written expression, and verbal expression, free and appropriate public education (FAPE) for her fifth grade year, equity would prevent district court from awarding reimbursement for cost of placement of student in private school; board had no notice of parents' intent to seek private placement or reimbursement for that private placement until more than a year after final individualized education plan (IEP) meeting, prior to student's removal from public school. School district met the free appropriate public education (FAPE) requirements of the IDEA when it created individualized education program (IEP) and Evaluation Report (ER) for student, even though ER did not identify student as having a learning disability in math computation and did not assess his social and emotional functioning; areas in question were not identified as suspected disabilities and so were properly excluded from ER. Public school district's proposed individualized education program (IEP) for student diagnosed with autism and other disabilities was not substantively deficient in violation of the Individuals with Disabilities in Education Act (IDEA); although the parents claimed that the IEP promoted learned helplessness by providing student with a personal aide, the IEP provided for decreasing the level of prompting from the aide where it was no longer needed, team meetings with the parents every four to six weeks to discuss student's progress, including the level of prompting required, and stressed independence in the following of daily routines and the application of reading and math skills. Board of education introduced sufficient evidence to prove that the public school preschool placement, involving a half-day preschool class composed of half disabled children and half non-disabled children, with afternoon placement in the school's resource room, provided a meaningful educational benefit to handicapped child, considering child's specific needs, and thus satisfied IDEA's requirement of a free appropriate public education (FAPE) for child. Autistic student's placement in private facility, which was only certified to provide designated instruction and service (DIS) of counseling and not special education itself, was appropriate under California law providing that handicapped three to five-year-old students may be placed in program that only provides DIS without simultaneous special education and therefore, placement was appropriate under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA). Union School Dist. v. Smith, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1994, 15 F.3d 1519, certiorari denied 115 S.Ct. 428, 513 U.S. 965, 130 L.Ed.2d 341. Schools 154(4)

District court's determination that individualized education program (IEP) was adequate and appropriate to ensure requisite degree of educational benefit to handicapped child under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) was supported by evidence; although IEP did not contain precise programs that parents preferred for enhancing child's social skills, it embodied substantial suitably diverse socialization component, and academic programs assured child basic floor of educational opportunity. School board's recommended placement of handicapped child in new public school program for school year 1990-91 did not violate the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), notwithstanding complaint of parents that because program was new and could not be observed in operation prior to its recommendation it was not reasonably calculated to meet child's needs; new program offered one-on-one programming and longer school day than alternative programs, a full-time behavioral consultant, occupational therapy, speech therapy, and transitional programming; moreover, program was in a school closer to child's home than alternative placement options. School district failed to provide learning disabled student with free appropriate public education (FAPE) for two school years since district's placement of student was not designed to address her unique needs in the areas of pragmatics and social skills. Katherine G. ex rel. Cynthia G. v. Kentfield School Dist., N.D.Cal.2003, 261 F.Supp.2d 1159, affirmed 112 Fed.Appx. 586, 2004 WL 2370562. Schools 148(3)

Parents proved school had violated IDEA in connection with child's first year at school where, because of administrative confusion and budgetary constraints, school failed to respond to mother's inquiries, informed mother that child could not be tested until months after school began, failed to develop Individual Education Plan (IEP) within required time limits, and did not tailor IEP to child's individual needs. Gerstmyer v. Howard County Public Schools, D.Md.1994, 850 F.Supp. 361. Schools 148(2.1)

Pennsylvania's system of special education violated dictates of Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), due to state's failure to ensure that special education systems were running properly, and if not, to correct them; as result of lack of centralized state supervision, significant numbers of handicapped children waited inordinate amounts of time to obtain placements in private schools when such placement may not have been appropriate and may have unnecessarily caused separation of families. Cordero by Bates v. Pennsylvania Dept. of Educ., M.D.Pa.1992, 795 F.Supp. 1352. Schools 154(4)

Child's behavior problems during his developmental kindergarten year were not proper basis for deciding that it would be appropriate to place child in segregated special education class outside district where kindergarten teacher had no prior experience in working with children with special needs, where she received only occasional assistance from another teacher who was experienced with Downs Syndrome children, where no teacher's aide was placed in classroom until March of school years and where teacher had only informal contact with student's speech therapist; it was unfair and improper to base Individualized Education Program (IEP) on problems that developed during that year. Oberti by Oberti v. Board of Educ. of Borough of Clementon School Dist., D.N.J.1992, 789 F.Supp. 1322. Schools 148(3)

Individualized education plan providing for 5.25 hours per week of special needs services was inappropriate for middle school student where it failed to implement recommendations of special hospital evaluation of student, which middle school had allegedly relied upon and endorsed; student was performing between two and one-half and five years below his grade level in reading and language-based skills. Norton School Committee v. Massachusetts Dept. of Educ., D.Mass.1991, 768 F.Supp. 900. Schools 148(2.1)

School board did not satisfy requirements of Education of the Handicapped Act in its efforts to develop and implement educational program for emotionally handicapped student; student's current individualized education program did not include sufficiently specific behavioral or academic goals or methods for evaluating student's progress, board officials did not provide counseling or training to student's parents or adequately involve them in efforts to teach student or control his behavior, and student's current educational program offered him no realistic prospect of returning to regular class setting. Chris D. v. Montgomery County Bd. of Educ., M.D.Ala.1990, 753 F.Supp. 922. Schools 148(3)

Evidence established that mentally handicapped child obtained no benefit in academic subjects in educably mentally retarded class while showing academic progress in socially and emotionally disturbed/mentally retarded class, and, thus, placement in educably mentally retarded class for academic subjects was inappropriate. Liscio by Hippensteel v. Woodland Hills School Dist., W.D.Pa.1989, 734 F.Supp. 689, affirmed 902 F.2d 1561, affirmed 902 F.2d 1563. Schools 155.5(4)

Officials operating state school for mentally handicapped violated provisions of Education for All Handicapped Children Act by failing to provide clients with free, appropriate public education and to provide individualized education plan. Lelsz v. Kavanagh, N.D.Tex.1987, 673 F.Supp. 828. Schools 148(3)

Evidence that public school teacher in special-day-class program had been exposed to intensive multisensory approach required by individualized education program for fifth grade student who had dyslexia was insufficient to show that public school placement was appropriate for such student, where there was testimony that teacher's exposure was insufficient to allow her to make effective use of such approach, teacher did not consistently use such approach and teacher's responses indicated that she did not feel such approach was necessary. Adams by Adams v. Hansen, N.D.Cal.1985, 632 F.Supp. 858. Schools 155.5(4)

Individualized education program formulated by school district for handicapped child pursuant to the Education of the Handicapped Act [28 U.S.C.A. § 1401(19)] was insufficient to satisfy requirements under the Act, in that it failed to address all three areas of child's handicaps, namely, cognitive, physical and language, and furthermore did not contain adequate statement of specific educational services to be provided to the child. Russell By and Through Russell v. Jefferson School Dist., N.D.Cal.1985, 609 F.Supp. 605. Schools 148(2.1)

In action challenging proposed placement by school committee of two children afflicted by learning disabilities and associated emotional problems, evidence was sufficient to establish that both children had severe learning disabilities and significant accompanying emotional problems, and that school committee's proposals calling for placement within public classrooms with pupil-teacher ratios possibly as high as ten-to-one and providing for some mainstreaming violated children's right to a free appropriate education under this chapter. Colin K. v. Schmidt, D.C.R.I.1982, 536 F.Supp. 1375, affirmed 715 F.2d 1. Schools 155.5(4)

Preponderance of evidence supported finding that placement of multiply-handicapped child in six-hour day program, augmented by home support, did not constitute "free appropriate public education" to which handicapped children are entitled under this chapter and section 794 of Title 29, as all objective indications demonstrated that child made no meaningful progress in her current placement within the six-hour day program; therefore, child was entitled to be placed, at no cost to her parents, in an educational residential facility capable of meeting the unique needs of severely intellectually impaired schizophrenic children. Gladys J. v. Pearland Independent School Dist., S.D.Tex.1981, 520 F.Supp. 869. Schools 155.5(4)

Individualized education program that school offered to severely retarded 18-year-old boy failed to teach him functional and communicative skills, which might, to whatever degree, increase his independence, and lacked detailed evaluation and recordkeeping and, therefore, the program was not appropriate under this chapter. III. RELATED SERVICES

<Subdivision Index>

161. Related services generally

School district was not required to provide related services at public school under Rehabilitation Act to student who was provided with free and appropriate education (FAPE) through her enrollment at private school. Lauren W. ex rel. Jean W. v. DeFlaminis, C.A.3 (Pa.) 2007, 480 F.3d 259. Schools 148(2.1)

Even if disabled child voluntarily placed in private school had individual right to some level of special education services, school district did not have to provide such services on private school premises, when such action would violate state law. Foley v. Special School Dist. of St. Louis County, C.A.8 (Mo.) 1998, 153 F.3d 863. Schools 148(2.1)

States are not obligated under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) to expend their own funds on disabled children who have voluntarily enrolled in private school; rather, states are required to provide to such children, voluntarily enrolled in private schools, only with those services that can be purchased with proportionate amount of federal funds received by state under the IDEA. Russman v. Board of Educ. of City of Watervliet, C.A.2 1998, 150 F.3d 219, on remand 92 F.Supp.2d 95. Schools 148(2.1)

Under Individuals with Disability Education Act (IDEA), "free appropriate public education" includes not only special education, but also related services, such as transportation and other supportive services required to assist child with disability to benefit from special education. Union School Dist. v. Smith, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1994, 15 F.3d 1519, certiorari denied 115 S.Ct. 428, 513 U.S. 965, 130 L.Ed.2d 341. Schools 148(2.1)

When handicapped child is voluntarily placed in private school, public school district need not provide related service to that child under Education of Handicapped Act if that particular service is not designed to meet the unique needs of the child. McNair v. Oak Hills Local School Dist., C.A.6 (Ohio) 1989, 872 F.2d 153. Schools 154(4)

School district's occasional failure to follow plan for accommodating student's diabetes mellitus did not cause student to become emotionally disturbed, as would support her entitlement to special education and related services under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA); over two-year period, instances in which district failed to follow plan were infrequent, school staff made every effort to follow plan, student was very able to speak up for herself and take appropriate action when any problems arose, and student's medical records did not reflect that any of her emotional difficulties were caused by failure to follow plan. Loch v. Board of Educ. of Edwardsville Community School Dist. No. 7, S.D.Ill.2008, 573 F.Supp.2d 1072, motion to amend denied 2008 WL 4899437, affirmed 327 Fed.Appx. 647, 2009 WL 1747897, certiorari denied 130 S.Ct. 1736, 176 L.Ed.2d 212. Schools 148(3)

Under federal law, right of private school student to receive related services is extremely limited, and IDEA and its corresponding regulations clearly and explicitly do not confer on disabled student's parents the right to any due process hearing if related services are not provided or paid for. Gabel ex rel. L.G. v. Board of Educ. of Hyde Park Central School Dist., S.D.N.Y.2005, 368 F.Supp.2d 313. Schools 148(2.1)

IDEA mandates that states cannot avoid their responsibilities thereunder by asserting that they lack the resources to provide special education and related services to disabled children, and school district cannot avoid responsibility for related services on ground that they are beyond the competence of public school system, as agency responsible for providing services may do so indirectly. J.B. v. Killingly Bd. of Educ., D.Conn.1997, 990 F.Supp. 57. Schools 148(2.1)

Handicapped child is generally entitled to health services under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) as long as services are provided by individual other than physician. Morton Community Unit School Dist. No. 709 v. J.M., C.D.Ill.1997, 986 F.Supp. 1112, affirmed 152 F.3d 583, certiorari denied 119 S.Ct. 1140, 526 U.S. 1004, 143 L.Ed.2d 208. Schools 148(4)

Related services such as development of social skills, study skills, and self-esteem need not be provided unless they are necessary in order for handicapped child to benefit educationally. Livingston v. DeSoto County School Dist., N.D.Miss.1992, 782 F.Supp. 1173. Schools 148(2.1)

Fact that particular program may benefit classified child's special education program does not ipso facto compel conclusion that that program is a "related service" and that school district has responsibility for cost of that service under Education for All Handicapped Children Act. Field v. Haddonfield Bd. of Educ., D.N.J.1991, 769 F.Supp. 1313. Schools 148(2.1)

162. Extracurricular activities, related services

Under the Education for All Handicapped Children Act, school district was not obligated to provide extracurricular activities to handicapped student, where student, because of lack of interest and sporadic and recurring behavior, would receive no significant educational benefit from extracurricular activities. Rettig v. Kent City School Dist., C.A.6 (Ohio) 1986, 788 F.2d 328, certiorari denied 106 S.Ct. 3297, 478 U.S. 1005, 92 L.Ed.2d 711 . Schools 148(2.1)

Preliminary injunction would be issued barring school districts from potentially violating Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), by prohibiting student who reached age 19 while still in high school, due to disabilities, from membership on track and cross country teams, and barring state high school athletic association from sanctioning districts for allowing student to compete; claimants were likely to succeed on merits of claim that IDEA was violated, denial of chance to compete would result in irreparable injury, and balance of hardship favored inclusion of student, as he almost always finished last in races and would not compromise competitive balance among teams. Kling v. Mentor Public School Dist., N.D.Ohio 2001, 136 F.Supp.2d 744. Schools 155.5(5)

Placement of emotionally handicapped and learning disabled student, who slashed another student with box cutter, in alternative school was reasonably calculated to enable him to receive adequate educational benefits, for purpose of determining whether student received free appropriate public education (FAPE) as guaranteed by IDEA; although alternative school offered limited extracurricular activities and did not offer reading instructor certified to teach special education students, student's behavior improved during tenure at alternative school and he earned passing grades in all courses. Jane Parent ex rel. John Student v. Osceola County School Bd.,

M.D.Fla.1999, 59 F.Supp.2d 1243, affirmed 220 F.3d 591. Schools 154(2.1)

163. In-service training for parents, related services

This chapter did not oblige school district to provide in-service training to parents of handicapped student, and in-service training provided by the school district to its employed staff was adequate. Rettig v. Kent City School Dist., C.A.6 (Ohio) 1983, 720 F.2d 463, appeal dismissed, certiorari denied 104 S.Ct. 2379, 467 U.S. 1201, 81 L.Ed.2d 339, rehearing denied 104 S.Ct. 3549, 467 U.S. 1257, 82 L.Ed.2d 852. Schools 148(2.1)

City department of education's failure to include parent training and counseling in nine-year-old autistic student's individualized education program (IEP) did not result in denial of Free Appropriate Public Education (FAPE), as would render IEP substantively inadequate; department's recommended placement offered parent training opportunities consistent with New York regulations. E. Z.-L. ex rel. R.L. v. New York City Dept. of Educ., S.D.N.Y.2011, 763 F.Supp.2d 584. Schools 148(3)

In action brought by parents of handicapped child seeking to redress alleged violations of rights guaranteed by this chapter, evidence was sufficient to establish that an appropriate educational placement for child, who parents contended was autistic and school district asserted was severely mentally retarded, was a highly structured educational program on a 12-month, year-round basis designed specifically to meet child's particular and unique needs; accordingly, school district was required to prepare individual education program for child, to provide child's parents with the training in behavioral techniques for the management of child's abnormal behavior, and to provide counseling to child's parents. Stacey G. by William and Jane G. v. Pasadena Independent School Dist., S.D.Tex.1982, 547 F.Supp. 61. Schools 155.5(4)

164. Medical services, related services

Provision of clean intermittent catheterization to eight-year-old girl born with spina bifida so that she could attend special education classes was not "medical service" which school was not required to provide except for purposes of diagnosis or evaluation where services of physician were not required to perform the procedure but could be provided by nurse or trained layperson. Irving Independent School Dist. v. Tatro, U.S.Tex.1984, 104 S.Ct. 3371, 468 U.S. 883, 82 L.Ed.2d 664, on remand 741 F.2d 82. Schools 148(4)

Services required by handicapped student, including constant monitoring, frequent adjustments to tracheostomy system, and ointment applications were "related services" which school district had to provide at its own expense under IDEA, rather than "medical services" outside scope of district's obligations; financial burden of hiring nurse to attend student would not cause undue burden to district, and services were time-consuming but did not require high degree of expertise or any medical treatment expense. Morton Community Unit School Dist. No. 709 v. J.M., C.A.7 (Ill.) 1998, 152 F.3d 583, certiorari denied 119 S.Ct. 1140, 526 U.S. 1004, 143 L.Ed.2d 208. Schools 148(4)

In the absence of any evidence that the student's educational and emotional disabilities were so severe that hospitalization was necessary to provide him with the free appropriate public education, parents were not entitled to recover for medical services provided to him after a nervous breakdown. Tice By and Through Tice v. Botetourt County School Bd., C.A.4 (Va.) 1990, 908 F.2d 1200. Schools 148(4)

Although some staff members appeared, in the opinion of student's physician, to be reluctant to administer medical services to student and although three unions representing teachers and principals filed grievances petition for determination of whether their contracts required them to perform such services, individualized educational plan for handicapped child which called for her to be placed in a regular public school and to have the staff trained to administer medical services which she might need was an appropriate free public education. Department of Educ., State of Hawaii v. Katherine D. By and Through Kevin and Roberta D., C.A.9 (Hawai'i) 1983, 727 F.2d 809, certiorari denied 105 S.Ct. 2360, 471 U.S. 1117, 86 L.Ed.2d 260. Schools 148(4)

Providing handicapped child with clean intermittent catheterization was "related service," within meaning of par. (17) of this section, where absence of such service would prevent the child from participating in regular public school program. Tokarcik v. Forest Hills School Dist., C.A.3 (Pa.) 1981, 665 F.2d 443, certiorari denied 102 S.Ct. 3508, 458 U.S. 1121, 73 L.Ed.2d 1383. Schools 148(4)

Under the IDEA, parents of learning disabled student were not entitled to reimbursement from school district for vision therapy services they obtained privately; services were obtained before school district was made aware of student's potential eligibility for special education services, and district had satisfied its child find obligations during period when parents obtained vision therapy for student. P.P. ex rel. Michael P. v. West Chester Area School Dist., E.D.Pa.2008, 557 F.Supp.2d 648, affirmed in part , reversed in part 585 F.3d 727. Schools 148(4)

Handicapped child is not generally entitled to health services under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) if allocation of services required places undue burden on particular school district. Morton Community Unit School Dist. No. 709 v. J.M., C.D.Ill.1997, 986 F.Supp. 1112, affirmed 152 F.3d 583, certiorari denied 119 S.Ct. 1140, 526 U.S. 1004, 143 L.Ed.2d 208. Schools 148(4)

Parents were entitled to reimbursement for payments made by health insurer for independent educational evaluation of disabled child since health insurance policy had lifetime cap and payment by insurer would reduce lifetime benefits; even though parents voluntarily submitted insurance claim without being pressured by state, they suffered "financial loss" within meaning of Secretary of Education's Notice of Interpretation on Use of Parent's Insurance Proceeds which interpreted "free appropriate public education" to mean that agency may not compel parents to file insurance claim when filing claim would pose realistic threat that parents of handicapped children would suffer financial loss not incurred by similarly situated parents. Raymond S. v. Ramirez, N.D.Iowa 1996, 918 F.Supp. 1280. Schools 148(2.1)

Absent evidence that nursing care for child having Congenital Central Hypoventilation Syndrome would be unduly burdensome for school district, nursing care, a related, supportive service, fell outside medical services exclusion of Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA); properly qualified individual could be retained at hourly rate of nine dollars, 40-hour work week for 9.5 months at this hourly rate translated into base salary of $13,680, district currently employed personnel who performed tasks similar to that which child's nurse would perform and costs of that care and of requested nursing care were comparable, alternative schooling arrangement, presumably home schooling, would not be cost free to district, and gains to child, relative to burden imposed on district, were weightier. Neely By and Through Neely v. Rutherford County Schools, M.D.Tenn.1994, 851 F.Supp. 888, reversed 68 F.3d 965, certiorari denied 116 S.Ct. 1418, 517 U.S. 1134, 134 L.Ed.2d 543. Schools 148(4)

Emotionally disturbed student's placement in substance abuse program after he was expelled by school in which he was placed after being found in possession of Valium and admitting to drinking and smoking marijuana, was not a "related service" under Education for All Handicapped Children Act but, rather, was a "medical service" the payment of which was responsibility of parents, although school "required" student to attend substance abuse program as condition for continued enrollment of school; testimony and records revealed that program provided intensive therapy for student's underlying psychiatric disorders and provided medical treatment which school could not, as an educational institution, provide. Field v. Haddonfield Bd. of Educ., D.N.J.1991, 769 F.Supp. 1313. Schools 148(4)

"Medical services" exclusion to school district's obligation to provide supportive services to facilitate handicap student's access to school, was limited to services provided by a licensed physician, and did not include services of a trained medical professional other than a physician. Macomb County Intermediate School Dist. v. Joshua S., E.D.Mich.1989, 715 F.Supp. 824. Schools 148(4)

Public school was not required to fund emotionally handicapped child's hospitalization at private psychiatric hospital as related service to special education at the hospital where placement in hospital was for medical and not educational reasons, hospitalization was not made in support of special educational program, and hospitalization was for treatment of student's condition and not for diagnostic and evaluation purposes. McKenzie v. Jefferson, D.C.D.C.1983, 566 F.Supp. 404. Schools 148(3)

165. Nursing services, related services

Full-time care of nursing care due to constant possibility of mucous plug in student's tracheotomy tube fell within "medical service" exclusion of Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, and thus, was not related or "supportive service" that school district had to provide as matter of federal law; court rejected physician-nonphysician test for medical services. Granite School Dist. v. Shannon M. by Myrna M., D.Utah 1992, 787 F.Supp. 1020. Schools 148(4)

Basic floor of opportunity as required by Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (Act) was being provided to handicapped child pursuant to her individualized education program (IEP) which recommended home instruction, and thus, school's refusal to provide child with full-time nursing tracheostomy care during school hours so as to allow her to attend regular classes did not violate Act. Granite School Dist. v. Shannon M. by Myrna M., D.Utah 1992, 787 F.Supp. 1020. Schools 148(4)

Full time, individualized nursing service for multiply-handicapped child, which was necessary to allow child to attend school, was not a "related service" which school district was required to provide to child without charge under Education for All Handicapped Children Act, since the nursing services, including constant attention to possibility of life-threatening plug in child's tracheotomy tube, were so varied and intensive that nursing personnel with responsibility for other children could not safely care for the child and since services were more in nature of "medical services" than "related services." Bevin H. by Michael H. v. Wright, W.D.Pa.1987, 666 F.Supp. 71.

Education of All Handicapped Children Act did not require school district and board of education to provide severely physically disabled child with constant in-school nursing care, where constant monitoring was required to protect child's life, and medical attention required by child was beyond competence of school nurse. Detsel by Detsel v. Board of Educ. of Auburn Enlarged City School Dist., N.D.N.Y.1986, 637 F.Supp. 1022, affirmed 820 F.2d 587, certiorari denied 108 S.Ct. 495, 484 U.S. 981, 98 L.Ed.2d 494. Schools 148(4)

166. Personal care attendant, related services

Provision in disabled high school student's individualized education program (IEP) purportedly authorizing her parents to select her personal care attendant (PCA), was not substantial or significant, and thus district's replacement of parent-selected PCA with district employee was at most de minimis violation which did not deprived student of free appropriate public education (FAPE). Slama ex rel. Slama v. Independent School Dist. No. 2580, D.Minn.2003, 259 F.Supp.2d 880. Schools 148(2.1)

167. Psychiatric services, related services

Emotionally disturbed child's placement in acute care psychiatric hospital was primarily for medical, psychiatric reasons, and child's hospitalization thus did not constitute educationally related service for the costs of which a school district was responsible under the Education for All Handicapped Children Act (EHA), even though psychotherapeutic services which child received at hospital might be qualitatively similar to those she would receive at residential placement. Clovis Unified School Dist. v. California Office of Administrative Hearings, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1990, 903 F.2d 635. Schools 148(4)

Under this chapter, psychiatrists, in contradistinction to psychologists, counselors and other providers of psychological services, are licensed physicians whose services are appropriately designated as medical treatment, and thus excluded from "related services" which states must provide as part of free appropriate education. Darlene L. v. Illinois State Bd. of Educ., N.D.Ill.1983, 568 F.Supp. 1340. Schools 148(4)

168. Psychological services, related services

Learning-disabled child was barred from reimbursement under the IDEA for the costs of his psychological treatment, even prior to 1997 amendments and even assuming that psychological counseling was required to assist the child to benefit from special education during the period he was treated and that child's individualized education programs (IEPs) for that period failed adequately to address this need for counseling, where child's parents failed to raise any issue with respect to the extent or nature of the psychological counseling services provided for child in his IEPs until after the treatment had ended. M.C. ex rel. Mrs. C. v. Voluntown Bd. of Educ., C.A.2 (Conn.) 2000, 226 F.3d 60, on remand 122 F.Supp.2d 289. Schools 148(4)

Severely emotionally disturbed child was "handicapped" under Education of the Handicapped Act, and thus entitled to free appropriate public education, including psychological care and related services. Babb v. Knox County School System, C.A.6 (Tenn.) 1992, 965 F.2d 104, certiorari denied 113 S.Ct. 380, 506 U.S. 941, 121 L.Ed.2d 290. Schools 148(3); Schools 148(4)

Preponderance of the evidence in IDEA case showed that parents of emotionally disturbed student were entitled to reimbursement for costs of appropriate related services in form of counseling, social work, psychological services, and parent counseling services, i.e., "wrap-around services," and hearing officer did not properly deny reimbursement on grounds that parents failed to present evidence of their costs during case-in-chief; hearing officer twice acknowledged parents' offer to provide the cost information but refused to admit it into evidence, and that refusal ran afoul of statutory mandate that his decision be made on substantive grounds. A.G. v. District of Columbia, D.D.C.2011, 794 F.Supp.2d 133. Schools 155.5(4)

Original classification of student as "other health impairment" rather than autistic did not amount to substantive flaw in student's education program, entitling parents to reimbursement for additional hours of 1:1 behavior therapy. J.A. v. East Ramapo Cent. School Dist., S.D.N.Y.2009, 603 F.Supp.2d 684. Schools 154(4)

District court could not conclude that 20-year-old language and learning disabled student who was also suffering from pedophilia was capable of making academic progress without psychological and counseling services where he had not made academic progress or received significant psychological or counseling services in current placement; thus, at a minimum, IDEA required that student should receive a psychiatric evaluation for diagnostic and evaluation purposes to determine the extent of the psychological and counseling services that he needed to benefit from special education. J.B. v. Killingly Bd. of Educ., D.Conn.1997, 990 F.Supp. 57. Schools 148(3)

Parent was entitled to reimbursement from school district under Education of the Handicapped Act for costs of individual psychotherapy and group therapy provided his mentally ill son at hospital, where such therapy was required for son to benefit from special education. Doe v. Anrig, D.Mass.1987, 651 F.Supp. 424. Schools 148(3)

Neurological evaluation performed by doctor and psychological evaluation performed by psychologist needed to help pediatrician ascertain source of handicapped child's difficulties were requested and required by county department of education to assist child to benefit from special education and, as such, had to be furnished to child by department pursuant to Education of the Handicapped Act, § 602(16-18), as amended, 20 U.S.C.A. § 1401(16-18). Seals v. Loftis, E.D.Tenn.1985, 614 F.Supp. 302. Schools 148(4)

Psychotherapy provided for an 11-year-old emotionally disturbed boy as part of his individualized education plan developed by school board constituted a covered "related service" within meaning of par. Board of Educ. of Piscataway, N.J., D.C.N.J.1983, 576 F.Supp. 420, affirmed 738 F.2d 420, affirmed 738 F.2d 421, affirmed 738 F.2d 425, certiorari denied 105 S.Ct. 592, 469 U.S. 1086, 83 L.Ed.2d 701. 169. Residential placement, related services--Generally

School district was not entitled under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) to attempt day-schooling of disabled child before agreeing to child's placement in residential program; district had recognized child's serious problems for several years and had been attempting various forms of intervention in nonresidential setting; child was at crucial age and any further delay in getting her appropriate placement would significantly worsen her chances of improvement, and IDEA did not require child to spend years in educational environment likely to be inadequate and to impede her progress simply to permit district to try every option short of residential placement. Seattle School Dist., No. 1 v. B.S., C.A.9 (Wash.) 1996, 82 F.3d 1493. Schools 154(3)

Residential programs are appropriate under IDEA if they are necessary to allow a disabled child to benefit from special education and related services, and fact that residential placement may be required due primarily to emotional problems does not relieve the state of its obligation to pay for the program so long as it is necessary to insure that the child can be properly educated. J.B. v. Killingly Bd. of Educ., D.Conn.1997, 990 F.Supp. 57. Schools 154(3)

Settlement agreement reached in Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) action, concerning costs of special education student's placement in residential facility, requiring board of education to contribute 90% of any increase in the costs for the array of services provided in the previous school year was unambiguous and since aide was outside the array of services covered in the previous school year, board, pursuant to settlement agreement, was not required to pay for costs of aide. D.R. by M.R. v. East Brunswick Bd. of Educ., D.N.J.1993, 838 F.Supp. 184, on remand 94 N.J.A.R.2d (EDS) 145, 1994 WL 514779. Compromise And Settlement 12

A residential rehabilitation facility for brain injury victims represented the appropriate educational placement for a brain damaged student; placement qualified as "special education and related services" under Education for All Handicapped Children Act and was not simply medical in nature and the placement was the only appropriate educational program in view of the student's disability. Brown By and Through Brown v. Wilson County School Bd., M.D.Tenn.1990, 747 F.Supp. 436. Schools 154(3)

Under Education of the Handicapped Act, school board was required to place 12-year-old emotionally disabled student in full-time residential school, as residential placement would provide for needed behavior modification and thus, potentially, for student to return to regular classroom; school board's two suggested alternatives, individual instruction at home or in isolated room in administrative building, would be inadequate, as student's behavior problems could not be redressed in isolated environment, and interaction with student's peers was necessary for any behavior modification program for student. Chris D. v. Montgomery County Bd. of Educ., M.D.Ala.1990, 743 F.Supp. 1524. Schools 154(3)

Under appropriate circumstances, local school districts must provide residential placement to a handicapped child. Stacey G. by William and Jane G. v. Pasadena Independent School Dist., S.D.Tex.1982, 547 F.Supp. 61. Schools 154(3)

170. ---- Adult group homes, residential placement, related services

Placement of severely retarded 18-year-old woman in group home for adults was an "educational placement" under Education for All Handicapped Children Act, even if arguably mistake because group home was not educational institution, since placement in community setting was part of individualized plan and multidisciplinary team determined that placement was part of appropriate educational plan. McClain v. Smith, E.D.Tenn.1989, 793 F.Supp. 756. Schools 154(3)

171. ---- Location of facility, residential placement, related services

New Jersey Division of Development Disabilities (DDD) was obligated to place autistic 20-year-old student in approved facility located in her home town rather than in conditionally provided facility located elsewhere, under the IDEA, despite alleged difficulties DDD had with approved facility in home town regarding methods of reimbursement for specific clients; facility in hometown remained approved educational placement. Remis by Trude v. New Jersey Dept. of Human Services, D.N.J.1993, 815 F.Supp. 141. Schools 154(2.1)

There is no requirement under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) that child receive residential placement located in his immediate geographic area, although it is preferable. Straube v. Florida Union Free School Dist., S.D.N.Y.1992, 801 F.Supp. 1164. Schools 154(3)

172. ---- Non-educational problems, residential placement, related services

School district's obligation to provide free appropriate education did not extend to reimbursement of costs incurred by parent who placed her criminally inclined and truant son in private residential school for difficult students; son did not suffer from any learning impairment, and school was essentially providing incarceration services not contemplated by Individuals with Disabilities Education Act. Dale M. ex rel. Alice M. v. Board of Educ. of Bradley-Bourbonnais High School Dist. No. 307, C.A.7 (Ill.) 2001, 237 F.3d 813, rehearing and rehearing en banc denied , certiorari denied 122 S.Ct. 546, 534 U.S. 1020, 151 L.Ed.2d 423, rehearing denied 122 S.Ct. 1134, 534 U.S. 1157, 151 L.Ed.2d 1024. Schools 154(4)

Evidence that severely handicapped child had reached a point of diminishing marginal returns and would not be able to learn much more, and that child's living in rented apartment had become primarily custodial, established that proposed program of day school at elementary school for severely and profoundly retarded children and living at home constituted the free appropriate public education child was entitled to under this chapter, notwithstanding testimony by child's caretaker and neurologist that it might be possible to teach child self-initiation of toilet use, which would have required continuation of 24-hour residential care and education. Matthews by Matthews v. Davis, C.A.4 (Va.) 1984, 742 F.2d 825. Schools 155.5(4)

Under the IDEA, school district was not responsible for ensuring that disabled student translated behavior skills learned in classroom to home or community settings; district was not required to address behavior problems that occurred outside of school when student demonstrated educational progress in the classroom, even though student contended that generalization of behavioral skills into settings outside the classroom was educational need that district could appropriately address only through a residential placement. San Rafael Elementary School Dist. v. California Special Educ. Hearing Office, N.D.Cal.2007, 482 F.Supp.2d 1152. Schools 148(3)

Individualized educational plan (IEP) proposed by school district failed to adequately address behavior of disabled student diagnosed with, inter alia, pedophilia and paraphilia, and thus, district was responsible for student's placement at a special education residential facility, despite claims that student was not entitled to educational and related services to address behavior which manifested itself outside the school setting, and that the placement amounted to treatment of an underlying medical (psychiatric) condition; student's out-of-school behavior was inextricably intertwined with his educational performance. Mohawk Trail Regional School Dist. v. Shaun D. ex rel. Linda D., D.Mass.1999, 35 F.Supp.2d 34. Schools 148(3)

When residential placement of disabled student is response to medical, social or emotional problems segregable from learning process,school district is not obligated to bear total cost of placement; instead, school district must cover cost of special education and related services but need not fund medical treatment or other noneducational expenses. King v. Pine Plains Cent. School Dist., S.D.N.Y.1996, 918 F.Supp. 772. Schools 154(3)

Multihandicapped student with severe emotional disturbance, neurological impairment, and lack of socialization skills was entitled to year-round residential placement, under New Jersey law, even though student had received passing grades in public school while he was in youth behavior program, out-of-home living arrangement, and even though student was not mentally retarded; student's emotional problems and lack of socialization skills could not be severed from learning process; and student showed strong signs of regression despite two years with youth behavior program. B.G. by F.G. v. Cranford Bd. of Educ., D.N.J.1988, 702 F.Supp. 1140, supplemented 702 F.Supp. 1158, affirmed 882 F.2d 510. Schools 154(3)

Where residential placement was required in order for emotionally disturbed children to benefit from special education, school district would not be relieved of its responsibility to provide residential placement by asserting claim that placement was means of addressing social and emotional, rather than educational problems. Christopher T. by Brogna v. San Francisco Unified School Dist., N.D.Cal.1982, 553 F.Supp. 1107. Schools 154(3)

Residential placement is required under this chapter when necessary for educational purposes, but there is no obligation to provide residential placement where the placement is a response to medical, social, or emotional problems that are segregable from the learning process; the concept of education under this chapter is necessarily broad, however, and residential placement is within contemplation of this chapter where the child's social, emotional, medical, and educational problems are so intertwined that it is impossible for court to separate them. Gladys J. v. Pearland Independent School Dist., S.D.Tex.1981, 520 F.Supp. 869. Schools 154(3)

173. ---- Room and board, residential placement, related services

Under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), school officials were required to pay for deaf, blind and developmentally disabled student to reside with his grandparents while he attended private school day program pending availability of place in residential program which had been determined to be appropriate placement for him but that reimbursement could not exceed cost that state would have incurred had student been placed in private school's residential program. Ojai Unified School Dist. v. Jackson, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1993, 4 F.3d 1467, certiorari denied 115 S.Ct. 90, 513 U.S. 825, 130 L.Ed.2d 41. Schools 154(4)

Education of the Handicapped Act provides for residential placement when such placement may be necessary to meet individual needs of handicapped child; if residential placement is required, room, board, and related services must be provided at no cost to child's parents. Vander Malle v. Ambach, S.D.N.Y.1987, 667 F.Supp. 1015. Schools 154(3)

"Related service," for purpose of Education of the Handicapped Act provision defining educational expenses for which public school district must make reimbursement, did not include costs of room and board for placement of student who had dyslexia in private residence, where school in which student was placed was day school. Adams by Adams v. Hansen, N.D.Cal.1985, 632 F.Supp. 858. Schools 154(4)

State would be required to pay all costs of residential placement of emotionally disturbed student in a special education school, including room and board, through student's graduation where student could not be educated without residential placement because a therapy program had to be coordinated with teaching program. Papacoda v. State of Conn., D.C.Conn.1981, 528 F.Supp. 68. Schools 154(3)

This chapter contemplates residential placement under some circumstances, and when residential placement is necessary for educational purposes, program, including nonmedical care and room and board, must be at no cost to the child's parents. Kruelle v. Biggs, D.C.Del.1980, 489 F.Supp. 169, affirmed 642 F.2d 687. Schools 154(3)

174. ---- Out of state placement, residential placement, related services

If a state does not have the facilities to educate a child with a specific disability, an out-of-state residential placement will be appropriate under IDEA if it is first approved by the commissioner or the local or regional board of education. J.B. v. Killingly Bd. of Educ., D.Conn.1997, 990 F.Supp. 57. Schools 154(4)

175. Summer enrichment activities, related services

Determination of whether handicapped child's level of achievement would be jeopardized by summer break in structured educational programming, for purposes of determining whether Education of Handicapped Act requires summer program, requires consideration not only of retrospective data, such as past regression and rate of recoupment, but also predictive data, based on opinion of professionals in consultation with child's parents as well as circumstantial considerations of child's individual situation at home and in neighborhood and community. Johnson By and Through Johnson v. Independent School Dist. No. 4 of Bixby, Tulsa County, Okl., C.A.10 (Okla.) 1990, 921 F.2d 1022, certiorari denied 111 S.Ct. 1685, 500 U.S. 905, 114 L.Ed.2d 79. 175a. Transition services, related services

From 2008 to first day of trial in case, District of Columbia, Chancellor of District of Columbia Public Schools (DCPS), and District Superintendent of Education violated IDEA through their failure to provide students with smooth and effective transition from Part C to Part B. DL v. District of Columbia, D.D.C.2011, 845 F.Supp.2d 1 . Schools 148(2.1)

176. Transportation, related services

A school district may, under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), apply a facially neutral transportation policy to a disabled child without violating the law when the request for a deviation from the policy is not based on the child's educational needs, but on the parents' convenience or preference. Fick ex rel. Fick v. Sioux Falls School Dist. 49-5, C.A.8 (S.D.) 2003, 337 F.3d 968, rehearing and rehearing en banc denied. Schools 159.5(4)

Language and spirit of Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) encompassed reimbursement for transportation costs of commuting between San Jose where parents of autistic child lived and Los Angeles where autistic child attended private counseling facility at beginning and end of child's participation in program and when facility was officially closed to students such as at winter and spring breaks, reimbursement for transportation costs to and from facility each day and reimbursement for costs of lodging for child and mother in Los Angeles. Union School Dist. v. Smith, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1994, 15 F.3d 1519, certiorari denied 115 S.Ct. 428, 513 U.S. 965, 130 L.Ed.2d 341. Schools 154(4)

Parents of hearing-impaired child, seeking to have public school district provide transportation to private school, needed to demonstrate that child was handicapped, transportation was related service, that transportation was required to meet needs of child caused by the handicap, and that school district was responsible under Education of Handicapped Act and its regulations for providing the related services under the particular circumstances at hand. McNair v. Oak Hills Local School Dist., C.A.6 (Ohio) 1989, 872 F.2d 153. Schools 159.5(4)

School district's transportation policy, even if facially neutral, was not exempt from review under IDEA, as applied to wheelchair-using student who was not regularly attending school and whose individualized education program (IEP) was not being implemented effectively; student's educational needs were not being met by services provided, and student's nonattendance at school was due to his inability to travel from door of his family's apartment to school bus, so student and parents were not requesting transportation because of convenience or preference, but out of necessity. District of Columbia v. Ramirez, D.D.C.2005, 377 F.Supp.2d 63. Schools 148(4)

Door-to-door transportation was not "necessary" for disabled student to benefit from her special education program, as required for such transportation to be considered "related service" school district was required to provide under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), despite fact that student's one-way trip to school was 13.5 miles, absent any evidence of average one-way distance traveled by other students; student was eight years old and capable of following directions not to walk out into traffic, and parent was able to provide transportation. Malehorn on Behalf of Malehorn v. Hill City School Dist., D.S.D.1997, 987 F.Supp. 772. Schools 159.5(4)

State defendants, along with local school district, were properly enjoined to provide transportation to parochial school student to special education classes in public school where funding necessary for local district to provide such transportation would be provided by state Department of Elementary and Secondary Education. Felter v. Cape Girardeau Public School Dist., E.D.Mo.1993, 830 F.Supp. 1279. Injunction 1319

Transportation of a handicapped student to and from school represented "supportive services," rather than medical services, which a school district was required to provide to the student under the Education for All Handicapped Children Act in order to provide the student with meaningful access to education, absent showing of need for attention of licensed physician during transport. Macomb County Intermediate School Dist. v. Joshua S., E.D.Mich.1989, 715 F.Supp. 824. Schools 159.5(4)

Upon parents' decision to place handicapped child, who required total special education program, in private school of their own choosing, thereby rejecting public school district's designation of appropriate placement for child, public school district was not required to provide transportation for student between her home and private school, even though school district placed and funded other children at such private school and public school bus passed within few blocks of child's home. Work v. McKenzie, D.D.C.1987, 661 F.Supp. 225. Schools 159.5(4)

Neither Va. Code 1950, § 22.1-214(A), Virginia regulations, nor this chapter required reimbursement of transportation expenses incurred by parents of handicapped child. Bales v. Clarke, E.D.Va.1981, 523 F.Supp. 1366.

Although county school officials were not required to establish a self-contained program at school attended by learning disabled child, it was appropriate to require county to pay for related service of alternative transportation to a school having such program and located six miles farther from child's home as it would take child 30 minutes or more by bus to reach the other school because of transfers and state law permitted reimbursement for reasonable transportation costs. Pinkerton v. Moye, W.D.Va.1981, 509 F.Supp. 107. Schools 159.5(4)

Since half-time attendance by the minor plaintiff at specified private educational institution was essential to the success of the special education program being offered to her by public school, the public school board, if the child's parents accepted the offered program and placement, would have to pay the cost of the child's transportation to and from and her tuition at the private school during the transition period. Anderson v. Thompson, E.D.Wis.1980, 495 F.Supp. 1256, affirmed 658 F.2d 1205. Schools 8; Schools 159.5(4)

177. Miscellaneous related services

Requiring school district to provide compensatory services in amount of 60 minutes per week of direct occupational therapy (OT) services was appropriate remedy for school district's failure to follow state's requirement for licensing its occupational therapist. Evanston Community Consolidated School Dist. Number 65 v. Michael M., C.A.7 (Ill.) 2004, 356 F.3d 798. Schools 155.5(5)

School district's denial of the use of an advanced calculator in learning disabled student's math course, confirmed by administrative rulings of an impartial hearing officer (IHO) and state review officer (SRO), did not deprive student of a free appropriate public education within the meaning of the IDEA, notwithstanding student's failing grade in the math class; evidence demonstrated that student was capable of passing the class with the assistance of a less advanced calculator in a manner consistent with the education goals of the class's curriculum, and that student's lack of effort contributed to the failing grade. Parents' procurement of otherwise appropriate Applied Behavioral Analysis (ABA) services for child less than three years of age was reimbursable notwithstanding providers' lack of proper qualifications under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) section governing services to infants and toddlers, where state's denial of appropriate services was due to shortage of qualified providers. Still v. DeBuono, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1996, 101 F.3d 888. Schools 154(4)

Neither the Education of the Handicapped Act nor North Carolina's special education law required school board to fund habilitative services in the home for 19-year-old student who was autistic and moderately mentally handicapped, in order to provide free appropriate public education, where, after student had returned home from residential facility and enrolled in local school, he had continued to make educational progress despite failure of home care aides to follow rigorously the successful behavior management program that had been used at the residential facility. Burke County Bd. of Educ. v. Denton By and Through Denton, C.A.4 (N.C.) 1990, 895 F.2d 973.

Hearing officer's finding, that school district's speech paraprofessional was qualified to provide speech and language services to disabled student pursuant to student's individualized education program (IEP), was reasonable in hearing regarding due process complaint by student's parents under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), where principal and district's speech language pathologist testified that paraprofessional was qualified, and parents failed to provide any evidence questioning paraprofessional's qualifications. Provision of equine therapy adequately addressed student's physical therapy needs, and thus school district fulfilled its duty to provide free and appropriate public education (FAPE); parents' neuropsychologist testified that equine therapy improved student's physical status and mobility which lead to improvements in balance and gross motor skills, and father testified that equine therapy was beneficial, and equine therapy instructor indicated that equine therapy resulted in significant improvement in student's balance, coordination, self-esteem, and ability to take direct instruction in a positive matter. K.C. ex rel. Her Parents v. Nazareth Area School Dist., E.D.Pa.2011, 806 F.Supp.2d 806. Schools 148(4)

Regulations interpreting the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) to exclude cochlear implant mapping from the definition of "related services" required as part of a free appropriate education (FAPE) were reasonable and entitled to deference; the statutory provision at issue, including a subpart establishing that the term "related services" included audiology services and a subpart excepting from the definition of "related services" a "medical device that is surgically implanted, or the replacement of such device," was ambiguous, and the Department of Education adequately articulated the basis for its choice to exclude mapping services from coverage. Petit v. U.S. Dept. of Educ., D.D.C.2008, 578 F.Supp.2d 145. Schools 148(4)

School district's provision of "free appropriate public education" (FAPE), pursuant to IDEA, did not require furnishing facilitated communication to student with severe mental retardation, static non-progressive encephalopathy, and sensory disorder, since facilitated communication was not scientifically valid methodology for mentally retarded children, was not appropriate component of individualized education program (IEP) for student who was highly distractible, and could cause student to lose ground in other communication skills. Greenwood v. Wissahickon School Dist., E.D.Pa.2008, 571 F.Supp.2d 654, affirmed 374 Fed.Appx. 330, 2010 WL 1173017. Schools 148(3)

Individuals with Disabilities Act (IDEA) did not require that school district supply second grade student, forced to miss approximately 25% of school days due to complications of leukemia treatment, with video teleconferencing equipment (VTC) in order that student might improve interpersonal skills by having virtual access to classroom and its interactive possibilities; improvements in those areas could be achieved by emphasizing them during 75% of time student was in school. Infants 3135; Infants 3139

Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) did not require school district to provide special education services at private parochial school in which disabled student had been unilaterally placed by her parents, where such services were made available to student by district at public school; under plain language of regulations, state and local agency's obligation to make services available and to provide services did not equate to obligation to pay for related services where school had appropriate alternative, and school's provision at public school of services consistent with student's individualized education plan (IEP) constituted genuine opportunity for equitable participation. Foley v. Special School Dist. of St. Louis County, E.D.Mo.1996, 927 F.Supp. 1214, rehearing denied 968 F.Supp. 481, affirmed 153 F.3d 863. Schools 148(2.1)

While plaintiff, a child with exceptional educational needs, might benefit from being accompanied to public school by a staff member of the private school plaintiff had been attending, and while her period of adjustment as a result might be significantly shorter, the district court had no authority to order a staff member from a private educational institution to undertake that obligation. ➞➞ § 1094.5. Review of administrative orders or decisions; filing record; extent of injury; abuse of discretion; relevant evidence; judgment; stay; disposal of administrative records; application to state employees

(a) Where the writ is issued for the purpose of inquiring into the validity of any final administrative order or decision made as the result of a proceeding in which by law a hearing is required to be given, evidence is required to be taken, and discretion in the determination of facts is vested in the inferior tribunal, corporation, board, or officer, the case shall be heard by the court sitting without a jury. All or part of the record of the proceedings before the inferior tribunal, corporation, board, or officer may be filed with the petition, may be filed with respondent's points and authorities, or may be ordered to be filed by the court. Except when otherwise prescribed by statute, the cost of preparing the record shall be borne by the petitioner. Where the petitioner has proceeded pursuant to Article 6 (commencing withSection 68630) of Chapter 2 of Title 8 of the Government Code and the Rules of Court implementing that section and where the transcript is necessary to a proper review of the administrative proceedings, the cost of preparing the transcript shall be borne by the respondent. Where the party seeking the writ has proceeded pursuant to Section 1088.5, the administrative record shall be filed as expeditiously as possible, and may be filed with the petition, or by the respondent after payment of the costs by the petitioner, where required, or as otherwise directed by the court. If the expense of preparing all or any part of the record has been borne by the prevailing party, the expense shall be taxable as costs.

(b) The inquiry in such a case shall extend to the questions whether the respondent has proceeded without, or in excess of, jurisdiction; whether there was a fair trial; and whether there was any prejudicial abuse of discretion. Abuse of discretion is established if the respondent has not proceeded in the manner required by law, the order or decision is not supported by the findings, or the findings are not supported by the evidence.

(c) Where it is claimed that the findings are not supported by the evidence, in cases in which the court is authorized by law to exercise its independent judgment on the evidence, abuse of discretion is established if the court determines that the findings are not supported by the weight of the evidence. In all other cases, abuse of discretion is established if the court determines that the findings are not supported by substantial evidence in the light of the whole record.

(d) Notwithstanding subdivision (c), in cases arising from private hospital boards or boards of directors of districts organized pursuant to the Local Health Care District Law (Chapter 1 (commencing with Section 32000) of Division 23 of the Health and Safety Code) or governing bodies of municipal hospitals formed pursuant to Article 7 (commencing with Section 37600) or Article 8 (commencing with Section 37650) of Chapter 5 of Part 2 of Division 3 of Title 4 of the Government Code, abuse of discretion is established if the court determines that the findings are not supported by substantial evidence in the light of the whole record. However, in all cases in which the petition alleges discriminatory actions prohibited by Section 1316 of the Health and Safety Code, and the plaintiff makes a preliminary showing of substantial evidence in support of that allegation, the court shall exercise its independent judgment on the evidence and abuse of discretion shall be established if the court determines that the findings are not supported by the weight of the evidence.

(e) Where the court finds that there is relevant evidence that, in the exercise of reasonable diligence, could not have been produced or that was improperly excluded at the hearing before respondent, it may enter judgment as provided in subdivision (f) remanding the case to be reconsidered in the light of that evidence; or, in cases in which the court is authorized by law to exercise its independent judgment on the evidence, the court may admit the evidence at the hearing on the writ without remanding the case.

(f) The court shall enter judgment either commanding respondent to set aside the order or decision, or denying the writ. Where the judgment commands that the order or decision be set aside, it may order the reconsideration of the case in light of the court's opinion and judgment and may order respondent to take such further action as is specially enjoined upon it by law, but the judgment shall not limit or control in any way the discretion legally vested in the respondent.

(g) Except as provided in subdivision (h), the court in which proceedings under this section are instituted may stay the operation of the administrative order or decision pending the judgment of the court, or until the filing of a notice of appeal from the judgment or until the expiration of the time for filing the notice, whichever occurs first. However, no such stay shall be imposed or continued if the court is satisfied that it is against the public interest. The application for the stay shall be accompanied by proof of service of a copy of the application on the respondent. Service shall be made in the manner provided by Title 4.5 (commencing with Section 405) of Part 2 or Chapter 5 (commencing with Section 1010) of Title 14 of Part 2. If an appeal is taken from a denial of the writ, the order or decision of the agency shall not be stayed except upon the order of the court to which the appeal is taken. However, in cases where a stay is in effect at the time of filing the notice of appeal, the stay shall be continued by operation of law for a period of 20 days from the filing of the notice. If an appeal is taken from the granting of the writ, the order or decision of the agency is stayed pending the determination of the appeal unless the court to which the appeal is taken shall otherwise order. Where any final administrative order or decision is the subject of proceedings under this section, if the petition shall have been filed while the penalty imposed is in full force and effect, the determination shall not be considered to have become moot in cases where the penalty imposed by the administrative agency has been completed or complied with during the pendency of the proceedings.

(h)(1) The court in which proceedings under this section are instituted may stay the operation of the administrative order or decision of any licensed hospital or any state agency made after a hearing required by statute to be conducted under the Administrative Procedure Act, as set forth in Chapter 5 (commencing with Section 11500) of Part 1 of Division 3 of Title 2 of the Government Code, conducted by the agency itself or an administrative law judge on the staff of the Office of Administrative Hearings pending the judgment of the court, or until the filing of a notice of appeal from the judgment or until the expiration of the time for filing the notice, whichever occurs first. However, the stay shall not be imposed or continued unless the court is satisfied that the public interest will not suffer and that the licensed hospital or agency is unlikely to prevail ultimately on the merits. The application for the stay shall be accompanied by proof of service of a copy of the application on the respondent. Service shall be made in the manner provided by Title 4.5 (commencing with Section 405) of Part 2 or Chapter 5 (commencing with Section 1010) of Title 14 of Part 2.

(2) The standard set forth in this subdivision for obtaining a stay shall apply to any administrative order or decision of an agency that issues licenses pursuant to Division 2 (commencing with Section 500) of the Business and Professions Code or pursuant to the Osteopathic Initiative Act or the Chiropractic Initiative Act. With respect to orders or decisions of other state agencies, the standard in this subdivision shall apply only when the agency has adopted the proposed decision of the administrative law judge in its entirety or has adopted the proposed decision but reduced the proposed penalty pursuant to subdivision (c) of Section 11517 of the Government Code; otherwise the standard in subdivision (g) shall apply.

(3) If an appeal is taken from a denial of the writ, the order or decision of the hospital or agency shall not be stayed except upon the order of the court to which the appeal is taken. However, in cases where a stay is in effect at the time of filing the notice of appeal, the stay shall be continued by operation of law for a period of 20 days from the filing of the notice. If an appeal is taken from the granting of the writ, the order or decision of the hospital or agency is stayed pending the determination of the appeal unless the court to which the appeal is taken shall otherwise order. Where any final administrative order or decision is the subject of proceedings under this section, if the petition shall have been filed while the penalty imposed is in full force and effect, the determination shall not be considered to have become moot in cases where the penalty imposed by the administrative agency has been completed or complied with during the pendency of the proceedings.

(i) Any administrative record received for filing by the clerk of the court may be disposed of as provided in Sections 1952, 1952.2, and 1952.3.

(j) Effective January 1, 1996, this subdivision shall apply to state employees in State Bargaining Unit 5. For purposes of this section, the court is not authorized to review any disciplinary decisions reached pursuant to Section 19576.1 of the Government Code.

LAW REVISION COMMISSION COMMENTS

1995 Amendment

Subdivision (d) of Section 11513 is intended to avoid or eliminate routine objections to administrative hearsay. If a proposed finding is supported only by hearsay evidence, a single objection at the conclusion of testimony, or on petition for reconsideration by the agency, is sufficient and timely.

The "irrelevant and unduly repetitious" standard formerly found in Section 11513 is replaced in subdivision (f) by the general standard of Evidence Code Section 352. The basic standard of admissibility of relevant evidence is stated in subdivision (c); nothing in subdivision (f) authorizes admission of irrelevant evidence.

The unnumbered paragraph formerly located between subdivisions (c) and (d) is restated in Section 11440.40(a).

Former subdivisions (d)-(n) are restated in Sections 11435.20-11435.65.

Former subdivision (o) is restated in Section 11440.40(b).

Former subdivision (p) is restated in Section 11440.40(c).

Former subdivision (q) is deleted as obsolete. [25 Cal.L.Rev.Comm. Reports 711 (1995)]

HISTORICAL AND STATUTORY NOTES

2005 Main Volume

Section 2 of Stats.1993, c. 701 (S.B.358), provides:

"The Employment Development Department shall, not later than October 1, 1994, adopt regulations to clarify the factors by which the employment status of language interpreters will be determined."

The 1995 amendment rewrote the section, which read:

"(a) Oral evidence shall be taken only on oath or affirmation.

"(b) Each party shall have these rights: to call and examine witnesses, to introduce exhibits; to cross-examine opposing witnesses on any matter relevant to the issues even though that matter was not covered in the direct examination; to impeach any witness regardless of which party first called him or her to testify; and to rebut the evidence against him or her. If respondent does not testify in his or her own behalf he or she may be called and examined as if under cross-examination.

"(c) The hearing need not be conducted according to technical rules relating to evidence and witnesses, except as hereinafter provided. Any relevant evidence shall be admitted if it is the sort of evidence on which responsible persons are accustomed to rely in the conduct of serious affairs, regardless of the existence of any common law or statutory rule which might make improper the admission of the evidence over objection in civil actions. Hearsay evidence may be used for the purpose of supplementing or explaining other evidence but shall not be sufficient in itself to support a finding unless it would be admissible over objection in civil actions. The rules of privilege shall be effective to the extent that they are otherwise required by statute to be recognized at the hearing, and irrelevant and unduly repetitious evidence shall be excluded.

"In any proceeding under subdivision (i) or (j) of Section 12940, or Section 19572 or 19702, alleging conduct which constitutes sexual harassment, sexual assault, or sexual battery, evidence of specific instances of a complainant's sexual conduct with individuals other than the alleged perpetrator is not admissible at hearing unless offered to attack the credibility of the complainant, as provided for under subdivision (o). Reputation or opinion evidence regarding the sexual behavior of the complainant is not admissible for any purpose.

"(d) The hearing, or any medical examination conducted for the purpose of determining compensation or monetary award, shall be conducted in the English language, except that a party who does not proficiently speak or understand the English language and who requests language assistance shall be provided an interpreter. Except as provided in subdivision (k), interpreters utilized in hearings shall be certified pursuant to subdivision (e). Except as provided in subdivision (k), interpreters utilized in medical examinations shall be certified pursuant to subdivision (f). The cost of providing the interpreter shall be paid by the agency having jurisdiction over the matter if the administrative law judge or hearing officer so directs, otherwise the party for whom the interpreter is provided.

"The administrative law judge's or hearing officer's decision to direct payment shall be based upon an equitable consideration of all the circumstances in each case, such as the ability of the party in need of the interpreter to pay, except with respect to hearings before the Workers' Compensation Appeals Board or the Division of Workers' Compensation relating to workers' compensation claims. With respect to these hearings, the payment of the costs of providing an interpreter shall be governed by the rules and regulations promulgated by the Workers' Compensation Appeals Board or the Administrative Director of the Division of Workers' Compensation, as appropriate.

"(e) The State Personnel Board shall establish, maintain, administer, and publish annually, an updated list of certified administrative hearing interpreters it has determined meet the minimum standards in interpreting skills and linguistic abilities in languages designated pursuant to subdivision (g). Any interpreter so listed may be examined by each employing agency to determine the interpreter's knowledge of the employing agency's technical program terminology and procedures. Court interpreters certified pursuant to Section 68562, and interpreters listed on the State Personnel Board's recommended lists of court and administrative hearing interpreters prior to July 1, 1993, shall be deemed certified for purposes of this subdivision.

"(f) The State Personnel Board shall establish, maintain, administer, and publish annually, an updated list of certified medical examination interpreters it has determined meet the minimum standards in interpreting skills and linguistic abilities in languages designated pursuant to subdivision (g). Court interpreters certified pursuant to Section 68562 and administrative hearing interpreters certified pursuant to subdivision (e) shall be deemed certified for purposes of this subdivision.

"(g) The State Personnel Board shall designate the languages for which certification shall be established under subdivisions (e) and (f). The languages designated shall include, but not be limited to, Spanish, Tagalog, Arabic, Cantonese, Japanese, Korean, Portuguese, and Vietnamese until the State Personnel Board finds that there is an insufficient need for interpreting assistance in these languages. The language designations shall be based on the following:

"(1) The language needs of non-English-speaking persons appearing before the administrative agencies, as determined by consultation with the agencies.

"(2) The cost of developing a language examination.

"(3) The availability of experts needed to develop a language examination.

"(4) Other information the board deems relevant.

"(h) Each certified administrative hearing interpreter and each certified medical examination interpreter shall pay a fee, due on July 1 of each year, for the renewal of his or her certification. Court interpreters certified under Section 68562 shall not pay any fees required by this section.

"(i) The State Personnel Board shall establish and charge fees for applications to take interpreter examinations and for renewal of certifications. The purpose of these fees is to cover the annual projected costs of carrying out this section. The fees may be adjusted each fiscal year by a percent that is equal to or less than the percent change in the California Necessities Index prepared by the Commission on State Finance. If the amount of money collected in fees is not sufficient to cover the costs of carrying out this section, the board shall charge and be reimbursed a pro rata share of the additional costs by the state agencies that conduct administrative hearings.

"(j) The State Personnel Board may remove the names of people from the list of certified interpreters if the following conditions occur:

"(1) A person on the list is deceased.

"(2) A person on the list notifies the board that he or she is unavailable for work.

"(3) A person on the list does not submit a renewal fee as required by subdivision (h).

"(k) In the event that interpreters certified pursuant to subdivision (e) cannot be present at the hearing, the hearing agency shall have discretionary authority to provisionally qualify and utilize other interpreters. In the event that interpreters certified pursuant to subdivision (f) cannot be present at the medical examination, the physician provisionally may utilize another interpreter if that fact is noted in the record of the medical evaluation.

"(l) Every state agency affected by this section shall advise each party of their right to an interpreter at the same time that each party is advised of the hearing date or medical examination. Each party in need of an interpreter shall also be encouraged to give timely notice to the agency conducting the hearing or medical examination so that appropriate arrangements can be made.

"(m) The rules of confidentiality of the agency, if any, that may apply in an adjudicatory hearing, shall apply to any interpreter in the hearing or medical examination, whether or not the rules so state.

"(n) The interpreter shall not have had any involvement in the issues of the case prior to the hearing.

"As used in subdivisions (d) and (e), the terms 'administrative law judge' and 'hearing officer' shall not be construed to require the use of an Office of Administrative Hearings' administrative law judge or hearing officer.

"(o) Evidence of specific instances of a complainant's sexual conduct with individuals other than the alleged perpetrator is presumed inadmissible absent an offer of proof establishing its relevance and reliability and that its probative value is not substantially outweighed by the probability that its admission will create substantial danger of undue prejudice or confuse the issue.

"(p) For purposes of this section 'complainant' means any person claiming to have been subjected to conduct which constitutes sexual harassment, sexual assault, or sexual battery.

"(q) This section shall become operative on July 1, 1995."

NOTES OF DECISIONS

<See, also, Notes of Decisions under Government Code § 11513.5.>

1. Construction with evidentiary law

Common-law rules of evidence are not based on constitutional interdictions and administrative tribunals are not bound by such rules except those perpetuated in governing regulations. Schoeps v. Carmichael, C.A.9 (Cal.)1949, 177 F.2d 391, certiorari denied 70 S.Ct. 566, 339 U.S. 914, 94 L.Ed. 1340. Administrative Law And Procedure 313

Ordinary rules of evidence or procedure do not apply to those who exercise executive or administrative functions or functions akin to them, and usual incidences attending upon a judicial or quasi-judicial hearing need not be present when an administrative functionary has the duty to determine a fact, but it is enough that the functionary has before him facts upon which to act. The Golden Sun, S.D.Cal.1939, 30 F.Supp. 354. Officers And Public Employees 107

Technical rules of evidence do not apply to administrative hearings. Big Boy Liquors, Limited v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Bd. (1969) 81 Cal.Rptr. 258, 71 Cal.2d 1226, 459 P.2d 674. Administrative Law And Procedure 313

Administrative bodies are not expected to observe meticulously all of rules of evidence applicable to court trial, but common sense and fair play dictate certain basic requirements for conduct of any hearing at which facts are to be determined, and among those are the following: evidence must be produced at hearing by witnesses personally present, or by authenticated documents, maps or photographs; ordinarily, hearsay evidence standing alone can have no weight, including hearsay evidence concerning someone else's opinion; cross-examination within reasonable limits must be allowed; and telephone calls to officials sitting in case, statements made in letters and arguments made in petitions should not be considered as evidence. Desert Turf Club v. Board of Sup'rs of Riverside County (App. 1956) 141 Cal.App.2d 446, 296 P.2d 882. Administrative Law And Procedure 458.1

Where the legislature has created a professional board such as the board of dental examiners and has conferred on it power to administer the provisions of a general regulatory plan governing the members of the profession, such a board is not required to conduct its proceedings for the revocation of a license in accordance with theories developed in the field of criminal law on matters of evidence. Webster v. Board of Dental Examiners of Cal. (1941) 17 Cal.2d 534, 110 P.2d 992. Health 218

Rules of evidence followed in administrative proceedings are more liberal than those in formal judicial proceedings and all relevant evidence probative of the issues is admissible. 14 Op.Atty.Gen. 155 (1949).

2. Nature of proceedings

In quasi-judicial proceedings, witnesses should be sworn and examined, and a record made, upon which reviewing courts may be enabled to determine whether substantial evidence was or was not considered by quasi-judicial body, and proceedings should be conducted in a quasi-judicial manner. Nishkian v. City of Long Beach (App. 1951) 103 Cal.App.2d 749, 230 P.2d 156. Administrative Law And Procedure 475; Administrative Law And Procedure 476

A hearing by the board of medical examiners for revocation of license of physician for unprofessional conduct need not be conducted according to the technical rules relating to evidence and witnesses, and any relevant evidence may be admitted, if it is the sort of evidence on which responsible persons rely in conduct of serious affairs. Stuck v. Board of Medical Examiners of State (App. 1 Dist. 1949) 94 Cal.App.2d 751, 211 P.2d 389. Health 218

3. Full and fair hearing, generally

Motorist was deprived of the opportunity to present a meaningful defense in Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV) proceeding to suspend his driving privileges such that his due process rights were violated, where motorist's counsel requested blood alcohol test results approximately one month before suspension hearing but initially received the results only minutes before the hearing, and DMV hearing officer denied counsel's request for a continuance. Petrus v. State Dept. of Motor Vehicles (App. 4 Dist. 2011) 123 Cal.Rptr.3d 686, 194 Cal.App.4th 1240. Automobiles 144.2(1); Constitutional Law 4358

Due process rights of correctional officers dismissed from their employment by the Department of Youth Authority were not violated by denial of opportunity to speak personally to Department's wards to request interviews prior to

State Personnel Board hearing, where officers had been provided with wards' prior statements and, at the hearing, officers could call and examine witnesses, introduce exhibits, cross-examine opposing witnesses on any relevant matter even if not covered on direct examination, impeach witnesses, and rebut evidence. Cimarusti v. Superior Court (App. 2 Dist. 2000) 94 Cal.Rptr.2d 336, 79 Cal.App.4th 799, as modified. Officers And Public Employees 72.65

The fact that a fact finding tribunal does not see or hear witnesses does not in every instance constitute a denial of a fair and full hearing, but such hearing is given where fact finder fully reviews record and an opportunity is given parties to argue their contentions as to credibility of witnesses and other matters involved in the proceeding. Leeds v. Gray (App. 1 Dist. 1952) 109 Cal.App.2d 874, 242 P.2d 48. Administrative Law And Procedure 473

3.5. Administrative proceedings

Unauthenticated videotapes purportedly showing school district employee working on a job on a day he took sick leave, on which the school district relied to terminate his employment, were improperly admitted; absent a proper authenticating foundation for the videotapes, they were irrelevant to the administrative proceeding. Ashford v. Culver City Unified School Dist. (App. 2 Dist. 2005) 29 Cal.Rptr.3d 728, 130 Cal.App.4th 344. Schools 121

While administrative bodies are not expected to observe meticulously all of the rules of evidence applicable to a court trial, certain basic requirements for the conduct of any hearing at which facts are to be determined are necessary, including the evidence must be produced at the hearing by witnesses personally present, or by authenticated documents, maps or photographs, and ordinarily, hearsay evidence standing alone can have no weight. Ashford v. Culver City Unified School Dist. (App. 2 Dist. 2005) 29 Cal.Rptr.3d 728, 130 Cal.App.4th 344. Administrative Law And Procedure 462; Administrative Law And Procedure 476

4. Pro se appearance

Licensees electing to appear in propria persona, in administrative proceedings which culminated in suspension of their license, were not, by so appearing, entitled to any special privileges, and if objectionable evidence was offered they were required to object, just as if they were represented by counsel. Griswold v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (App. 1956) 141 Cal.App.2d 807, 297 P.2d 762. Administrative Law And Procedure 474; Intoxicating Liquors 108.9

5. Pleading

In administrative proceedings, the courts are more interested with fair notice to the accused than they are to adherence to the technical rules of pleading. Nelson v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (App. 1959) 166 Cal.App.2d 783, 333 P.2d 771. Administrative Law And Procedure 312

6. Burden of proof

In proceeding for mandate to compel board of examiners to permit plaintiff to take an examination for a license as a physician and surgeon of osteopathy, plaintiff had the burden to show her right to take the examination. Lay v. State Board of Osteopathic Examiners of Cal. (App. 3 Dist. 1960) 3 Cal.Rptr. 727, 179 Cal.App.2d 356. Mandamus 168(2)

In disciplinary administrative proceedings the burden of proof is upon the party asserting the affirmative and guilt must be established to a reasonable certainty and cannot be based on surmise or conjecture, suspicion or theoretical conclusions, or uncorroborated hearsay, but such disciplinary proceedings are not criminal in nature and are not governed by the law applicable to criminal cases. Cornell v. Reilly (App. 1 Dist. 1954) 127 Cal.App.2d 178, 273 P.2d

572. Administrative Law And Procedure 460; Administrative Law And Procedure 462

7. Order of proof

Administrative law judge has discretion to control the order of evidence and testimony in an administrative hearing. Douglass v. Board of Medical Quality Assur. (App. 4 Dist. 1983) 190 Cal.Rptr. 506, 141 Cal.App.3d 645. Administrative Law And Procedure 476

Licensee's admission that he had bought five cases of beer from an unlicensed vendor for resale by his business was admissible in proceeding to suspend his on-sale general license as an admission by a party, an exception to hearsay rule. Mumford v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (App. 4 Dist. 1968) 65 Cal.Rptr. 495, 258 Cal.App.2d 49. Evidence 222(2)

8. Ex parte communications

Ex parte communication between new motor vehicle dealer franchisor's attorney and administrative law judge (ALJ) could be characterized as "evidence", within ambit of Government Code, only if information was considered by ALJ for its bearing on issues resolved by findings in his proposed decision; if information was not so considered, it was not "evidence" taken or admitted, nor could attorney be characterized as opposing witness. Mathew Zaheri Corp. v. New Motor Vehicle Bd. (App. 3 Dist. 1997) 64 Cal.Rptr.2d 705, 55 Cal.App.4th 1305, rehearing denied , review denied. Antitrust And Trade Regulation 366

New motor vehicle dealer franchisee did not establish that franchisor's attorney's ex parte communication with administrative law judge (ALJ) resulted in violation of Government Code section governing evidence and examination of witnesses; ALJ did not consider this information for illicit purpose. Mathew Zaheri Corp. v. New Motor Vehicle Bd. (App. 3 Dist. 1997) 64 Cal.Rptr.2d 705, 55 Cal.App.4th 1305, rehearing denied , review denied. Antitrust And Trade Regulation 341

9. Witnesses, generally

Any error by the Department of Consumer Affairs, Bureau of Security and Investigative Services in refusing to consider the transcript of proceedings in which alarm company manager pled no contest to disturbing the peace was not prejudicial and did not require reversal of decision to revoke manager's license as an alarm company manager; a more favorable result was not likely if the ALJ considered defense counsel's representations at the plea hearing to the effect that the victim was a supporter of environmental terrorist causes and related matters, as, even if true, it did not justify manager chasing her down a residential street carrying a rifle and then holding her at gun point. Lone Star Sec. & Video, Inc. v. Bureau of Sec. and Investigative Services (App. 2 Dist. 2009) 98 Cal.Rptr.3d 559, 176 Cal.App.4th 1249, review denied. Telecommunications 1403

Day-care operators' right to confrontation of witness was not violated, in proceeding to revoke operators' day-care license, by exclusion of the operators from the hearing room during testimony of four-and one-half-year-old girl, who was allegedly sexually abused by one of the operators; girl's psychiatrist stated that requiring girl to testify in the physical presence of the operators would carry risk that girl would incur additional injury and would likely raise her level of fear, and operators were permitted to view girl's testimony on live, closed circuit television and to confer with their attorney prior to the commencement of his cross-examination of the girl. Seering v. Department of Social Services of State of Cal. (App. 1 Dist. 1987) 239 Cal.Rptr. 422, 194 Cal.App.3d 298. Constitutional Law 4278; Infants 1385; Infants 1402

Even if Evid.C. § 800 et seq. provisions governing expert testimony apply to violations of occupational safety standards, employer waived any claim of error by failing to object to testimony of engineer from division of industrial safety that power line located near scaffolding carried more than 750 volts and, in any event, engineer's testimony concerning the "high voltage" warning marking was not hearsay. Gaehwiler v. Occupational Safety & Health Appeals Bd. (App. 1 Dist. 1983) 191 Cal.Rptr. 336, 141 Cal.App.3d 1041. Labor And Employment 2612

Section 11500 and this section permitting each party, who has been allowed to appear in proceeding to call and examine witnesses and to cross-examine opposing witnesses do not apply to county boards of equalization or assessment appeals boards. Stevens v. Fox Realty Corp. of Cal. (App. 2 Dist. 1972) 100 Cal.Rptr. 63, 23 Cal.App.3d 199. Taxation 2625; Taxation 2667

In a disciplinary action before a hearing officer conducted under the Administrative Procedure Act, to revoke or suspend a license issued by the insurance commissioner the respondent may not be called as a witness by the department under this section until he has had opportunity to testify in his own behalf and has failed to do so, and when so called he may be examined as if under cross-examination. 11 Op.Atty.Gen. 116 (1948).

10. Admissibility of evidence--In general

The more liberal the practice in admitting testimony in administrative proceedings, the more imperative the obligation to preserve the essential rules of evidence by which rights are asserted or defended. Bridges v. Wixon, U.S.Cal.1945, 65 S.Ct. 1443, 326 U.S. 135, 89 L.Ed. 2103. Administrative Law And Procedure 313

In administrative law judge (ALJ) hearing on a tenured teacher's termination, evidence of a prior administrative decision finding that two junior teachers were properly retained in a prior force reduction and school district superintendent's testimony regarding the junior teachers' qualifications were properly considered for the purpose of supplementing other evidence that had not been subject to any timely hearsay objection, even if the administrative decision and testimony would not have been sufficient by themselves to support a finding on the issue of the junior teachers' qualifications because they had been subject to timely hearsay objections. Bledsoe v. Biggs Unified School Dist. (App. 3 Dist. 2008) 88 Cal.Rptr.3d 13, 170 Cal.App.4th 127, modified on denial of rehearing, review denied. Schools 147.40(1)

A photocopy of letter written by husband of former patient was not admissible in physician's disciplinary proceeding in light of incompleteness of document, uncertainty of author as to when letter was written, and equivocal information as to how letter came into physician's possession. Pasha v. Board of Medical Quality Assur. (App. 2 Dist. 1985) 219 Cal.Rptr. 778, 174 Cal.App.3d 439. Health 218

Testimony given by witnesses under promise of immunity made in reliance on repealed statute could be considered against dentist seeking to vacate order suspending him from practicing dentistry. Parker v. Board of Dental Examiners of State of Cal. (1932) 216 Cal. 285, 14 P.2d 67. Evidence 154

11. ---- Extrajudicial evidence, admissibility of evidence

Administrative tribunals which are required to make a determination after a hearing cannot act upon their own information, and nothing can be considered as evidence that was not introduced at a hearing of which the parties had notice or at which they were present and the fact that there may be substantial and properly introduced evidence which supports the board's ruling is immaterial. English v. City of Long Beach (1950) 217 P.2d 22, 35 Cal.2d 155; La Prade v. Department of Water and Power of City of Los Angeles (1945) 162 P.2d 13, 27 Cal.2d 47.

In an administrative law judge (ALJ) hearing under the Administrative Procedure Act (APA) on a school district's termination of a tenured teacher in an economic layoff, a prior administrative law decision finding that school district properly "skipped" two community day school teachers in an earlier economic layoff in favor of terminating more senior teachers was "the sort of evidence on which responsible persons are accustomed to rely in the conduct of serious affairs," thus supporting its admission into evidence, even if it was hearsay; the decision was relevant to explain why the teachers were being skipped again in the new layoff, and thus why the plaintiff teacher was unable to bump them from their positions. Bledsoe v. Biggs Unified School Dist. (App. 3 Dist. 2008) 88 Cal.Rptr.3d 13, 170 Cal.App.4th 127, modified on denial of rehearing , review denied. Schools 147.40(1)

Hearing officer's observing of witnesses while testifying did not constitute taking of evidence outside hearing and was not an improper or secret method of taking evidence. Steele v. Los Angeles County Civil Service Commission (App. 1958) 166 Cal.App.2d 129, 333 P.2d 171. Administrative Law And Procedure 473

12. ---- Affidavits, admissibility of evidence

In proceeding to revoke optometrist's license on ground of violation of Bus. & Prof.C. § 650, prohibiting payment of unearned rebates as inducement for referring patients, affidavits of persons who allegedly had received rebates for referring patients were admissible. Mast v. State Bd. of Optometry (App. 2 Dist. 1956) 139 Cal.App.2d 78, 293 P.2d 148. Health 218

Under §§ 11510, 11514, relating to evidence in contested administrative hearings, where an affidavit is offered in evidence by the licensee or applicant and prior to the submission of the case for decision, and the presenting deputy of the department so requests, the licensee or applicant need not produce the affiant for cross-examination, but the affidavit remains subject to the limitations imposed by this section and would in itself be insufficient to support a finding, notwithstanding that affiant may be beyond the range of subpoena under § 11510(b). 6 Op.Atty.Gen. 219 (1945).

In hearings under §§ 11504, 11510 relating to evidence in contested administrative hearings, an affidavit under this section containing irrelevant matter need not be accepted in toto and relevant and otherwise admissible portions may be received and the inadmissible portion rejected. 6 Op.Atty.Gen. 219 (1945).

Under this section an officer of the insurance department presenting an affidavit in evidence is not a party, but the commissioner of insurance is a party in legal contemplation to the proceeding, and the presenting officer of the department would be required to follow the procedure set forth in the section. 6 Op.Atty.Gen. 219 (1945).

13. ---- Prior offenses, admissibility of evidence

It was prejudicial error, at disciplinary hearing involving state hospital psychiatric technician charged with masturbating a male mentally retarded patient to admit evidence of almost ten-year-old misdemeanor conviction under Pen.C. § 647 where prior offense involved only a vague suggestion of homosexual conduct, at time evidence was presented the employee had not put on a defense warranting rebuttal, evidence came among an array of irrelevant and incompetent suggestions of prior sexual misconduct and sole issue was credibility of witnesses. Coburn v. California State Personnel Bd. (App. 1 Dist. 1978) 148 Cal.Rptr. 134, 83 Cal.App.3d 801. Officers And Public Employees 72.62

Officer who conducted disciplinary hearing with respect to alleged fraudulent conduct of plumbing contractor properly admitted in evidence judgment showing conviction of the contractor for violation of building ordinance in connection with contractor's conduct in purportedly testing gas line it had installed whereas, in reality, it only tested two inch capped pipe. McNeil's Inc. v. Contractors' State License Bd. (App. 4 Dist. 1968) 68 Cal.Rptr. 640, 262 Cal.App.2d 322. Licenses 38

A judgment of conviction in federal court is "sort of evidence on which responsible persons rely" within purview of government code subsection making evidence of that sort admissible in administrative hearings, and therefore federal court judgment convicting real estate licensee of conspiracy, with regard to false statement in home loan report presented to Veterans' Administration was admissible, in license suspension proceedings, as proof of conduct of licensee on which such judgment was based, but being a determination of guilt by third persons upon evidence not before administrative agency in which such judgment was offered, evidence of such judgment was hearsay. Manning v. Watson (App. 1 Dist. 1952) 108 Cal.App.2d 705, 239 P.2d 688. Brokers 3

Under Educ.C.1959, § 12012 providing that any record of conviction of any applicant or holder of a teacher certification document shall be admissible in evidence in any civil action or administrative proceedings pertaining to the issuance, suspension or revocation of such certification document, a finding of fact may be made that a convicted party has committed the act constituting the crime for which the conviction is suffered based upon the sole evidence of a record of conviction even though the record of conviction may remain hearsay evidence as to the conduct of the convicted party. 34 Op.Atty.Gen. 34 (1959).

14. ---- Police reports, admissibility of evidence

A police officer's report, even if unsworn, constitutes the sort of evidence on which responsible persons are accustomed to rely in the conduct of serious affairs, within the meaning of the statute governing evidence in administrative proceedings. Hildebrand v. Department of Motor Vehicles (App. 4 Dist. 2007) 62 Cal.Rptr.3d 234, 152 Cal.App.4th 1562. Administrative Law And Procedure 461

Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV) could consider, in addition to the arresting officer's sworn statement, the arresting officer's unsworn statement in license suspension hearing for driver driving with excessive blood-alcohol level, notwithstanding statute requiring officer to forward to DMV sworn statement of all relevant information; unsworn statement constituted type of evidence on which persons were accustomed to rely, and, provided that sworn statement was not devoid of relevant information, relaxed evidentiary standard furthered statutory purpose of providing efficient mechanism for suspending licenses of those driving with excessive blood-alcohol levels; disapproving Solovij v. Gourley, 87 Cal.App.4th 1229, 105 Cal.Rptr.2d 278, and Dibble v. Gourley, 103 Cal.App.4th 496, 126 Cal.Rptr.2d 709. MacDonald v. Gutierrez (2004) 8 Cal.Rptr.3d 48, 32 Cal.4th 150, 81 P.3d 975. Automobiles 144.2(9.7)

In contested hearing for review of suspension of driver's license for driving with blood-alcohol concentration of .08% or higher, non-arresting officer's report that licensee was driving at time of accident, which was based on statements of eyewitnesses and on licensee's own admission, constituted admissible evidence, even though report was not sworn. Lake v. Reed (1997) 65 Cal.Rptr.2d 860, 16 Cal.4th 448, 940 P.2d 311, rehearing denied. Automobiles 144.2(9.7)

15. ---- Laboratory tests, generally, admissibility of evidence

A forensic lab report need not be sworn, because of the relaxation of evidentiary rules applicable in administrative driver's license suspension hearing; such a report, prepared by a properly licensed lab, is the sort of evidence on which responsible persons are accustomed to rely in the conduct of serious affairs and is thus admissible under the Administrative Procedure Act. Petricka v. Department of Motor Vehicles (App. 1 Dist. 2001) 107 Cal.Rptr.2d 909, 89 Cal.App.4th 1341. Automobiles 144.2(9.7)

Letter, signed by an assistant public health chemist of the department of public health's food and drug laboratory, giving analysis of alcoholic content of contents of bottles, though hearsay, would be admissible in evidence, to supplement other evidence, in proceedings before state department of alcoholic beverage control upon accusation that liquor licensee had violated rule by permitting waitresses to accept alcoholic drinks purchased for them by customers. Mercurio v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (App. 1956) 144 Cal.App.2d 626, 301 P.2d

Under this section, admission in proceeding before board for revocation of physician's license for having procured a criminal abortion, of laboratory tests indicating pregnancy of victim, was not improper. Marlo v. State Board of Medical Examiners of Department of Professional Standards (App. 2 Dist. 1952) 112 Cal.App.2d 276, 246 P.2d 69.

16. ---- Polygraph tests, admissibility of evidence

In administrative disciplinary proceedings resulting in finding that doctor was grossly negligent in treating child, it was proper to exclude evidence concerning polygraph test administered by "friendly polygrapher" and arranged by the doctor's attorney. Aengst v. Board of Medical Quality Assur. (App. 2 Dist. 1980) 167 Cal.Rptr. 796, 110 Cal.App.3d 275. Health 218

17. ---- Newspaper articles, admissibility of evidence

Hearing officer's excluding of article from trade journal containing excerpts from speech allegedly referring to unfair practices in sale of unspecified brands of alcoholic beverages was not erroneous, when liquor licensee was charged with violation of retail price maintenance provisions of Bus. & Prof.C. §§ 24749 to 24757. Wilke & Holzheiser, Inc. v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1966) 55 Cal.Rptr. 23, 65 Cal.2d 349, 420 P.2d 735. Intoxicating Liquors 108.5

Epstein v. California Horse Racing Bd. (App. 2 Dist. 1963) 35 Cal.Rptr. 642, 222 Cal.App.2d 831. Evidence 318(1)

18. ---- Rebuttal, admissibility of evidence

Proof offered before hearing officer of state personnel board in disciplinary proceeding against employee of department of human resources who had been convicted of possession of marijuana that no letters, calls or other indications of actual discredit to the department had been received concerning employee's conduct or conviction was admissible to rebut inference that could be drawn from the misbehavior that the agency or the employment was discredited and to show that employee's conduct would not cause further discredit. Vielehr v. State Personnel Bd. (App. 5 Dist. 1973) 107 Cal.Rptr. 852, 32 Cal.App.3d 187. States 53

The evidence, including doctor's stipulation as to the truth of the allegations of the accusation and doctor's additional evidence by way of mitigation and testimony of witness given by way of rebuttal, supported decision of board of osteopathic examiners that doctor's license should be revoked for employing and aiding and abetting such witness, an unlicensed person, in treating the sick and for signing death certificate representing that doctor had attended a decedent whom doctor had never seen. Thayer v. Board of Osteopathic Examiners (App. 1958) 157 Cal.App.2d 4, 320 P.2d 28. Health 212

19. Hearsay evidence--In general

Unauthenticated videotapes purportedly showing school district employee working on a job on a day he took sick leave, on which the school district relied to terminate his employment, were hearsay evidence because they constituted out-of-court statements by the person making the videotapes, about employee's activities, and were offered to prove the truth of the district's assertion that employee was actively working on three specific days when he had claimed to be ill. Ashford v. Culver City Unified School Dist. (App. 2 Dist. 2005) 29 Cal.Rptr.3d 728, 130 Cal.App.4th

344. Evidence 318(1); Schools 121

There must be substantial evidence to support an administrative decision, and hearsay, unless specially permitted by statute, is not competent evidence to that end. Furman v. Department of Motor Vehicles (App. 6 Dist. 2002) 122 Cal.Rptr.2d 520, 100 Cal.App.4th 416, review denied. Administrative Law And Procedure 461; Administrative Law And Procedure 791

Hearsay, which is admitted without objection in administration proceeding, will have probative value unless there is some evidence, admissible in administrative proceedings, to contrary, and, unless objected to, will serve to shift burden of producing evidence of existence or nonexistence of fact disclosed; overruling Swegle v. State Board of Equalization, 125 Cal.App.2d 432, 270 P.2d 518, Benedetti v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control, 187 Cal.App.2d 213, 9 Cal.Rptr. 525, and Sunseri v. Administrative Law And Procedure 462

Hearsay evidence is admissible in administrative proceeding, but its use is limited and it alone cannot support a finding, though it may be used to supplement other evidence and aid in support of findings. Sunseri v. Board of Medical Examiners (App. 1 Dist. 1964) 36 Cal.Rptr. 553, 224 Cal.App.2d 309. Administrative Law And Procedure 461; Administrative Law And Procedure 462

Mast v. State Bd. of Optometry (App. 2 Dist. 1956) 139 Cal.App.2d 78, 293 P.2d 148. Administrative Law And Procedure 313

19.5. ---- Admissible, hearsay evidence

Fire captain's hearsay statements of his observations of finding driver's vehicle stuck on railroad tracks and escorting him to safety were admissible in administrative hearing to suspend driver's license to supplement or explain driver's admissions about event. Hildebrand v. Department of Motor Vehicles (App. 4 Dist. 2007) 62 Cal.Rptr.3d 234, 152 Cal.App.4th 1562. Automobiles 144.2(9.7)

20. ---- Supplementing or explaining, hearsay evidence

Letter from real estate broker who had been convicted of violating Corporate Securities Act to his probation officer that he and real estate salesman who had sold stock in sand and gravel corporation had loaned $15,000 of their money to third parties and letter from persons who had purchased stock to same probation officer that broker and salesman had used money received in sale of stock to repay themselves $15,000 which had been loaned to third parties were hearsay but were admissible in disciplinary proceedings against broker and salesman to supplement testimony that money received for sale of stock was used to pay off old obligations and to pay broker and salesman salaries. Ring v. Smith (App. 2 Dist. 1970) 85 Cal.Rptr. 227, 5 Cal.App.3d 197. Brokers 3

At hearing before state board of equalization, minor's testimony that he bought beer from bartender behind bar and whiskey from same bartender who worked there all night, another minor's testimony that minors ordered beer at bar and saw bartender serve it, and bartender's testimony that he was bartender that night, was not hearsay, and, under this section, testimony as to prior identification of bartender by the minors was then admissible to supplement such direct evidence. Moyer v. State Bd. of Equalization (App. 1956) 140 Cal.App.2d 651, 295 P.2d 583. Evidence 317(2); Intoxicating Liquors 108.5

In proceeding before state real estate commissioner for revocation of license of broker on ground that she obtained fees from registrants by false representations in newspaper advertisements concerning rental properties, testimony of registrants that at some of the places where registrants were directed to go by broker the owners told registrants that the places had been rented or that broker had been notified of such renting or that such places were not for rent or had not been listed with broker, was hearsay, but was properly admitted to explain direct evidence that registrants were unable to rent places. Dyer v. Watson (App. 1 Dist. 1953) 121 Cal.App.2d 84, 262 P.2d 873. Administrative Law And Procedure 327; Brokers 3; Evidence 116; Evidence 317(4)

21. ---- Other purposes, hearsay evidence

Where witness' testimony was introduced at hearing before fair employment practice commission as proof that absent witness and landlord spoke certain words, not to prove that those words represented the truth, but to show that landlord presented requirements to black prospective tenant that he did not present to the absent witness, a white man, when he represented himself to be a prospective tenant, testimony of witness concerning transaction between landlord and the absent witness was not inadmissible before the commission as hearsay. Stearns v. Fair Employment Practice Commission (1971) 98 Cal.Rptr. 467, 6 Cal.3d 205, 490 P.2d 1155. Civil Rights 1710

In proceeding to punish for violation of department of alcoholic beverage control rule prohibiting liquor licensees' female employees from soliciting alcoholic drinks, statements of these female employees in soliciting drinks, and questions posed by bartender to such an employee as to whether she wanted a drink were admissible to show what was said, and were not excluded by the hearsay rule. Greenblatt v. Munro (App. 1958) 161 Cal.App.2d 596, 326 P.2d 929. Evidence 317(2)

22. ---- Multiple hearsay evidence

Multiple hearsay testimony to the fact that witness interviewed prison inmate who told him what another inmate had said concerning activities of correctional officer was not sufficient in itself to support finding of violation of regulations by correctional officer when measured against this section admitting hearsay evidence in administrative hearing for purpose of supplementing or explaining other evidence but declaring such testimony not sufficient in itself to support finding unless it would be admissible over objection in civil action. Martin v. State Personnel Bd. (App. 3 Dist. 1972) 103 Cal.Rptr. 306, 26 Cal.App.3d 573. Administrative Law And Procedure 462; Officers And Public Employees 72.63

23. ---- Admissions, hearsay evidence

Since, as regarded hearing before state personnel board on charges that plaintiff correctional officer maintained a supply of marijuana at his residence, smoked marijuana in public, and on one occasion brought three marijuana cigarettes with him onto the prison premises, the testimony of an agent and officer of the department of corrections concerning admissions made by plaintiff would, over a hearsay objection, be admissible in a civil action as an admission by a party, such evidence could support a finding of fact by the hearing officer against plaintiff, if the evidence was not inadmissible on some other ground. Szmaciarz v. California State Personnel Bd. (App. 1 Dist. 1978) 145 Cal.Rptr. 396, 79 Cal.App.3d 904. Officers And Public Employees 72.62

24. ---- Transcripts, hearsay evidence

In administrative law judge (ALJ) hearing on a tenured teacher's termination, teacher's failure to make hearsay objections to all of the evidence of the qualifications of junior teachers who were not laid off waived the argument that all such evidence was hearsay evidence not sufficient in itself to support a finding; teacher made hearsay objections to admission of a prior administrative decision finding that the junior teachers were properly retained in a prior force reduction and to district superintendent's testimony regarding the qualifications of one junior teacher, but never objected to admission and consideration of a seniority list or superintendent's testimony regarding the other junior teacher. Bledsoe v. Biggs Unified School Dist. (App. 3 Dist. 2008) 88 Cal.Rptr.3d 13, 170 Cal.App.4th 127, modified on denial of rehearing , review denied. Schools 147.40(1)

Where board of public health, in a proceeding to revoke a clinical laboratory technologist's license, admitted into evidence, a transcript of testimony taken in a prior proceeding against the licensee before the board of medical examiners, to revoke licensee's drugless practitioner's license when transcript was used solely for purpose of supplementing and explaining direct evidence, its admission was not prejudicial error. Cooper v. State Bd. of Public Health (App. 1951) 102 Cal.App.2d 926, 229 P.2d 27. Administrative Law And Procedure 764.1; Health 219

A transcript of testimony taken in a proceeding before the board of medical examiners to revoke license of drugless practitioner who was also a licensed chemical laboratory technologist, constituted "hearsay evidence" in a subsequent proceeding before the state board of health to revoke his license as a clinical laboratory technologist. Cooper v. State Bd. of Public Health (App. 1951) 102 Cal.App.2d 926, 229 P.2d 27. Administrative Law And Procedure 461; Health 218

25. ---- Stipulations, hearsay evidence

Department's receipt into evidence of verified complaint and stipulation settling fraud action against holder of real estate salesman's license and affirming truth of allegations of complaint, even if hearsay, was admissible to supplement or explain direct evidence in license revocation proceeding. Borror v. Department of Inv., Division of Real Estate (App. 1 Dist. 1971) 92 Cal.Rptr. 525, 15 Cal.App.3d 531.

In disciplinary proceeding, testimony contained in stipulation was properly received in evidence, notwithstanding its hearsay character, where it was used only for purpose of "supplementing or explaining" other evidence concerning conduct of bail agents sought to be disciplined and parties with whom they were dealing. Nardoni v. McConnell (1957) 48 Cal.2d 500, 310 P.2d 644. Stipulations 14(7)

26. ---- Police reports, hearsay evidence

In contested hearing for review of suspension of driver's license for driving with blood-alcohol concentration of .08% or higher, statements of witnesses that licensee was driving, which were contained in or attached to officer's report, were admissible under exception to hearsay rule to supplement or explain licensee's own admission that he was driving. Lake v. Reed (1997) 65 Cal.Rptr.2d 860, 16 Cal.4th 448, 940 P.2d 311, rehearing denied. Automobiles 144.2(9.7)

Although hearsay, officer's observations of licensee's driving that were incorporated into report of second officer, who did not have personal knowledge of licensee's driving, were admissible under public employee records exception in license suspension proceeding, and thus could be considered as competent evidence establishing that licensee was driving vehicle. McNary v. Department of Motor Vehicles (App. 4 Dist. 1996) 53 Cal.Rptr.2d 55, 45 Cal.App.4th 688. Automobiles 144.2(9.7)

Hearsay statement of police officer reporting blood test results was admissible as public employee record to the extent it recorded the officer's firsthand observations. Imachi v. Department of Motor Vehicles (App. 1 Dist. 1992) 3 Cal.Rptr.2d 478, 2 Cal.App.4th 809, modified. Administrative Law And Procedure 459; Automobiles 144.2(9.7)

In hearing to determine whether one's driver's license should be suspended for failure to submit to blood, breath or urine chemical test after arrest for drunken driving, arresting officer's sworn statement and police arrest reports were admissible to supplement and explain driver's testimony but not to impeach it. Goss v. Department of Motor Vehicles

(App. 4 Dist. 1968) 70 Cal.Rptr. 447, 264 Cal.App.2d 268. Automobiles 144.2(9.7)

Police officer's compilation of disposition of cases of 76 arrested persons, which was not an official record, was clearly hearsay as officer who made compilation had no personal knowledge of arrests or convictions and sentencing of persons arrested, but under circumstances would be used for purpose of supplementing and explaining direct evidence at hearing to revoke on-sale beer and wine license. Harris v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Bd. (App. 1 Dist. 1963) 28 Cal.Rptr. 74, 212 Cal.App.2d 106. Intoxicating Liquors 108.5

In hearing before city's board of police commissioners with respect to revocation of permit of owner of Turkish bath to operate Turkish bath and application for renewal of permit, testimony of police officers that, as to some of the patrons arrested at Turkish bath, there were convictions in court, was admissible, over objection that testimony was hearsay, where officers testified as to their own knowledge and the only arrest reports, to which objection was made, were those in which there was no disposition shown. Sultan Turkish Bath, Inc. v. Board of Police Com'rs of City of Los Angeles (App. 1959) 169 Cal.App.2d 188, 337 P.2d 203. Licenses 38

27. ---- Blood alcohol tests, hearsay evidence

Alcohol analysis report was not inadmissible hearsay, in hearing to suspend driver's license, even though the report was not typed until 6 days after driver's blood was analyzed; although the writing was not made at or near the time of the drunk driving incident, the report was substantially reliable in that the wording of the report reflected a post-ponement, not in the recording of the analysis, but merely in the typing of a journal-type entry, the report supple-mented other evidence introduced at the hearing, and the report was relevant to show that driver's blood alcohol content was above the legal limit. Komizu v. Gourley (App. 1 Dist. 2002) 127 Cal.Rptr.2d 229, 103 Cal.App.4th 1001. Automobiles 144.2(9.7)

A forensic alcohol report becomes an official record of the Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV), and thus is ad-missible at an administrative per se hearing, if it complies with the requirements governing the admission of evidence, including hearsay. Furman v. Department of Motor Vehicles (App. 6 Dist. 2002) 122 Cal.Rptr.2d 520, 100 Cal.App.4th 416, review denied. Automobiles 144.2(9.7); Automobiles 411

Emblem on scientific investigation report concerning motorist's blood alcohol level did not constitute a “seal” within meaning of evidence code, and thus report was not sufficiently authenticated to be admissible over motorist's hearsay objection in administrative hearing to suspend his driver's license, where the report was not signed by one. Jacobson v. Gourley (App. 4 Dist. 2000) 100 Cal.Rptr.2d 349, 83 Cal.App.4th 1331. Automobiles 144.2(9.7); Automobiles 422.1

Trial court, in proceeding challenging administrative suspension of drivers license for driving while intoxicated, properly considered driver's hearsay evidence which indicated that second of three blood-alcohol breath tests was invalid due to presence of mouth alcohol, since hearsay evidence supplemented Department of Motor Vehicle's (DMV) evidence indicating that second test was invalid but which gave no explanation; also, statute which placed limitation on how hearsay evidence could be used in administrative adjudication was to serve as check on sufficiency of evidence to warrant license suspension, but did not expressly limit manner in which driver's evidence may be considered. Robertson v. Zolin (App. 4 Dist. 1996) 51 Cal.Rptr.2d 420, 44 Cal.App.4th 147. Automobiles 144.2(9.7); Automobiles 422.1

Testing laboratory's report of blood test results was admissible in proceeding to suspend motorist's driving privileges under public records exception to hearsay rule, absent evidence report was not properly prepared. Santos v. Depart-ment of Motor Vehicles (App. 1 Dist. 1992) 7 Cal.Rptr.2d 10, 5 Cal.App.4th 537, rehearing denied and modified , review denied. Evidence 333(1)

Vehicle Code provisions requiring Department of Motor Vehicles to determine whether person was driving motor vehicle with blood alcohol level of .08 percent or more on basis of police officer's report and to consider its "official records" did not establish hearsay exception for reports of chemical test results. Santos v. Department of Motor Vehicles (App. 1 Dist. 1992) 7 Cal.Rptr.2d 10, 5 Cal.App.4th 537, rehearing denied and modified , review nied. Evidence 333(1)

Hearsay statement of public employee, such as statement of police officer or blood-alcohol tester's written report of test results, is admissible at Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV) hearing and is sufficient in and of itself to support finding that driver's blood-alcohol concentration exceeded permissible limits, if statements meet criteria of public employee business record exception to hearsay rule. Burge v. Department of Motor Vehicles (App. 1 Dist. 1992) 7 Cal.Rptr.2d 5, 5 Cal.App.4th 384, rehearing denied and modified , review denied. Administrative Law And Procedure 461; Automobiles 144.2(9.7); Automobiles 144.2(10.2); Automobiles 411

28. Sufficiency of evidence--In general

School district, which terminated employment of school bus driver when she lost her license after being convicted of drunk driving, produced convincing proof to a reasonable certainty of the alleged misconduct to support her termination. California School Employees Ass'n v. Board of Trustees of Templeton Unified School Dist. (App. 2 Dist. 1983) 192 Cal.Rptr. 633, 144 Cal.App.3d 392. Schools 63(1)

A determination of an administrative body must be supported by the evidence which would be admissible in a court of law. 14 Op.Atty.Gen. 155 (1949).

29. ---- Hearsay evidence, sufficiency of evidence

Officer's sworn "Officer's Statement" and his unsworn arrest report, each incorporating hearsay statement that fire captain, a non-peace officer, observed driver was driver of vehicle, were admissible in administrative hearing to suspend driver's license, as records by public employees, to prove driver was driving vehicle; in reporting his personal observations of seeing driver's vehicle stuck on railroad tracks to the reporting police officer, fire captain was acting pursuant to his duty to observe the facts and report them correctly. Hildebrand v. Department of Motor Vehicles (App. 4 Dist. 2007) 62 Cal.Rptr.3d 234, 152 Cal.App.4th 1562. Automobiles 144.2(9.7)

Substantial evidence supported rejection of application for real estate salesperson's license by the Department of Real Estate (DRE), based on applicant's previous disbarment as an attorney, where hearsay evidence in opinions of State Bar Court and Review Department and unpublished appellate court opinions affirming underlying fraud judgment against attorney by former client was used only to supplement or explain prior disbarment, and thus was permissible. Berg v. Davi (App. 3 Dist. 2005) 29 Cal.Rptr.3d 803, 130 Cal.App.4th 223, rehearing denied , review denied. Brokers 3

Although former teacher failed to appear at hearing before commission for teacher preparation and licensing which recommended revocation of teacher's credentials and failed to object to hearsay evidence, where only evidence presented by commission to support its findings was hearsay, evidence did not support revocation of credentials. Carl S. v. Commission for Teacher Preparation and Licensing (App. 2 Dist. 1981) 178 Cal.Rptr. 753, 126 Cal.App.3d 365. Schools 132

In an administrative proceeding, for revocation of license, hearsay evidence alone is insufficient to satisfy requirement of due process of law, and mere uncorroborated hearsay does not constitute substantial evidence. Dyer v. Watson (App. 1 Dist. 1953) 121 Cal.App.2d 84, 262 P.2d 873. Administrative Law And Procedure 327; Constitutional Law 4262; Licenses 38

Board of Civil Service Com'rs (1945) 26 Cal.2d 716, 160 P.2d 816. Administrative Law And Procedure 462; Administrative Law And Procedure 484.1

30. ---- Business licensing, generally, sufficiency of evidence

Fact that reports of New York and Arizona insurance commissioners containing allegations with respect to applicant for insurance agent's license involving violations of law, various other misdealings, mismanagement and missing company property were hearsay, was no reason for rejecting reports which applicant himself offered in response to inquiry from commissioner concerning prior dealings in insurance business, and reports constituted substantial evidence to support decision of commissioner that he was unable to find that applicant was of good business reputation. Goldberg v. Barger (App. 2 Dist. 1974) 112 Cal.Rptr. 827, 37 Cal.App.3d 987. Insurance 1615

In proceeding culminating in revocation of boxing matchmaker's license, retired police officer's testimony that individual with whom licensee had associated was considered a "racketeer, a hoodlum and a mobster" was hearsay and would not sustain finding that licensee had associated with a "notorious criminal and racketeer." 31. ---- Medical licensing, sufficiency of evidence

O'Mara v. California State Bd. of Pharmacy (App. 2 Dist. 1966) 54 Cal.Rptr. 862, 246 Cal.App.2d 8. Controlled Substances 10

Conviction of physician for violating Internal Revenue Code did not in and of itself establish existence of moral turpitude and he could offer evidence in disciplinary proceedings on question of whether he intentionally and for personal gain filed false income tax returns. 218

32. ---- Liquor licensing, sufficiency of evidence

Fact that persons of ill repute congregate in a certain bar is not cause for revocation or even indefinite suspension of liquor license, it being necessary that it be proved by competent evidence that solicitation of acts of prostitution actually took place on premises. Swegle v. State Bd. of Equalization (App. 1 Dist. 1954) 125 Cal.App.2d 432, 270 P.2d 518. Intoxicating Liquors 106(4)

33. ---- Teacher licensing, sufficiency of evidence

Male teacher who engaged with fellow male teacher in limited noncriminal physical relationship of homosexual nature in first teacher's apartment on four separate occasions in a one-week period was not subject to disciplinary action under Educ.C.1959, § 13202, authorizing revocation of a teacher's life diplomas for immoral conduct, unprofessional conduct, and acts involving moral turpitude, in absence of any evidence that first teacher's conduct indicated his unfitness to teach; disapproving Sarac v. State Bd. of Education, 249 Cal.App.2d 58, 57 Cal.Rptr. 69. Morrison v. State Bd. of Educ. (1969) 82 Cal.Rptr. 175, 1 Cal.3d 214, 461 P.2d 375. Schools 132

San Francisco Unified School Dist. v. Superior Court for City and County of San Francisco (App. 1 Dist. 1981) 172 Cal.Rptr. 42, 116 Cal.App.3d 231. Schools 147.31

36. Failure to object

Objection to hearsay evidence is not necessary during administrative hearing to preserve issue of evidence's admissibility. McNary v. Department of Motor Vehicles (App. 4 Dist. 1996) 53 Cal.Rptr.2d 55, 45 Cal.App.4th 688. Administrative Law And Procedure 670

Regardless of whether hearsay evidence would have been admissible over objection in civil actions, hearsay evidence that prisoner had seen correctional officer passing “hot dog” books to another prisoner, although probative of officer's disposition toward that prisoner, had no tendency to prove officer's connection with prisoner's unauthorized letter and the testimony at most raised suspicion that the prisoner had transmitted the letter to officer. Martin v. State Personnel Bd. (App. 3 Dist. 1972) 103 Cal.Rptr. 306, 26 Cal.App.3d 573. Officers And Public Employees 72.62

Even if testimony, in liquor license suspension proceeding arising from violations of minimum price schedule, that monthly trade paper, which contained minimum price schedule, was mailed to every distilled spirits licensee in trading area, was inadmissible hearsay, licensee could not properly first raise hearsay objection before Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board. Kirby v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Bd. (App. 1 Dist. 1970) 87 Cal.Rptr. 908, 8 Cal.App.3d 1009. Intoxicating Liquors 108.10(1)

Even if exhibit constituted objectionable hearsay, it was of probative value in absence of objection to it when it was offered by board of medical examiners entertaining application of drugless practitioner to take written examination for license as physician and surgeon. Savelli v. Board of Medical Examiners (App. 1 Dist. 1964) 40 Cal.Rptr. 171, 229 Cal.App.2d 124, certiorari denied 85 S.Ct. 940, 380 U.S. 934, 13 L.Ed.2d 821. Health 157

Hearsay, even at common law, if unobjected to when offered, had probative value, and occupies a similar position in an administrative proceedings. Fox v. San Francisco Unified School District (App. 1952) 111 Cal.App.2d 885, 245 P.2d 603. Administrative Law And Procedure 476; Trial 105(2)

37. Statute of limitations

Bar of statute of limitations is matter of defense in administrative proceeding and burden of proof is upon party asserting the bar. International Union of Operating Engineers, Local No. 12 v. Fair Employment Practice Commission (App. 2 Dist. 1969) 81 Cal.Rptr. 47, 276 Cal.App.2d 504, certiorari denied 90 S.Ct. 1356, 397 U.S. 1037, 25 L.Ed.2d 648. Administrative Law And Procedure 309.1; Limitation Of Actions 195(3)

38. Continuance

Motorist was deprived of the opportunity to present a meaningful defense in Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV) proceeding to suspend his driving privileges such that his due process rights were violated, where motorist's counsel requested blood alcohol test results approximately one month before suspension hearing but initially received the results only minutes before the hearing, and DMV hearing officer denied counsel's request for a continuance. Petrus v. State Dept. of Motor Vehicles (App. 4 Dist. 2011) 123 Cal.Rptr.3d 686, 194 Cal.App.4th 1240. Automobiles 144.2(1); Constitutional Law 4358

Hearing officer was not required to offer automobile driver a continuance for purpose of curing defects in the evidence, on driver's request for hearing on suspension of his license for driving with blood alcohol content greater than .08%; if driver felt continuance was necessary, it was incumbent upon him to request one. 39. Mandamus

Notice which was sent to probationary school teacher on May 15, 1967 of governing board's decision not to rehire teacher for ensuing year but which was not sent after full compliance with statutorily prescribed procedural requirements, including opportunity for teacher to cross-examine witnesses as to reasons for decision not to rehire, was ineffective and could not serve as valid notice for subsequent action of governing board in determining not to rehire teacher after proceeding initiated by ineffective notice had been set aside by writ of mandate. Ward v. Fremont Unified School Dist. (App. 1 Dist. 1969) 80 Cal.Rptr. 815, 276 Cal.App.2d 313. Schools 147.34(2)

In mandamus proceedings by discharged stenographer of civil service board of city, who was dismissed by board, on ground that she was unable to perform duties of stenographer because of defective vision, superior court did not have right to judge of intrinsic value of evidence or to weigh it, and its power was confined to determining whether there was substantial evidence before board to support its findings. Thompson v. City of Long Beach (1953) 41 Cal.2d 235, 259 P.2d 649. Mandamus 172

In mandamus proceedings by discharged stenographer of civil service board of city, who was dismissed by board, on ground that she was unable to perform duties of stenographer because of defective vision, superior court was bound to disregard medical evidence contrary to medical evidence received by board in support of its findings. Thompson v. City of Long Beach (1953) 41 Cal.2d 235, 259 P.2d 649. Mandamus 168(4)

40. Review

Administrative tribunal need not observe strict rules of evidence enforced in courts, and admission or rejected of evidence is not ground for reversal in absence of denial of justice. Kunimori Ohara v. Berkshire, 1935, 76 F.2d 204. Administrative Law And Procedure 313

Police officer's hearsay statement reporting blood test results could not be sole basis for suspension of an automobile driver's license for driving with blood alcohol content greater than .08% and where test result was improperly considered, appellate court could not assume trial court did not rely primarily upon it, though there was other evidence. Imachi v. Department of Motor Vehicles (App. 1 Dist. 1992) 3 Cal.Rptr.2d 478, 2 Cal.App.4th 809, modified. Automobiles 144.2(10.2)

Where psychologist did not appear at disciplinary hearing and was not called to testify by administrative agency, court hearing psychologist's appeal from denial of review of the revocation of his license would not consider challenge to validity of this section which permits an agency to call a respondent to testify. Cooper v. Board of Medical Examiners (App. 1 Dist. 1975) 123 Cal.Rptr. 563, 49 Cal.App.3d 931. Health 223(2)

Where only time that teacher sought to prove that charges against her had been discriminatorily instituted was before evidence was offered to hearing officer to sustain charges against her, trial court on review should not have found that she sought to raise issue of discrimination but should have found against truth of such allegations of her defense and of her petition in trial court. NOTES OF DECISIONS

1. Admissibility, generally

Under this section and § 11510, if the insurance department offers an affidavit and the applicant or licensee requests the right to cross-examine the affiant, the department need not produce the affiant for cross-examination before the affidavit can be entered into evidence, notwithstanding the witness resides outside the county of the hearing and at a distance of more than 100 miles, as set forth in § 11510(b). 6 Op.Atty.Gen. 219 (1945).

2. Admissibility as hearsay

Provision of Government Code which sets out procedure for using affidavits in lieu of direct testimony in proceedings governed by Administrative Procedure Act (APA) creates special further exception to hearsay rule for administrative proceedings and was obviously not intended to restrict admission in administrative proceedings of evidence falling within other exceptions to hearsay rule. Poland v. Department of Motor Vehicles (App. 1 Dist. 1995) 40 Cal.Rptr.2d 693, 34 Cal.App.4th 1128. Administrative Law And Procedure 461

Provision of Government Code which sets out procedure for using affidavits in lieu of direct testimony in proceedings governed by Administrative Procedure Act (APA) was irrelevant to admission of report of breath test admitted in license suspension hearing for motorist arrested for driving under influence where report was independently admissible under exception to hearsay rule for public records. Poland v. Department of Motor Vehicles (App. 1 Dist. 1995) 40 Cal.Rptr.2d 693, 34 Cal.App.4th 1128. Automobiles 411

3. Weight accorded affidavit

Statute pursuant to which affidavit may be introduced in evidence but may be given only same effect as other hearsay evidence if opportunity to cross-examine affiant is not afforded after proper request did not affect evidentiary weight to be accorded to laboratory report of blood test results in administrative license suspension proceeding, even though motor vehicle department failed to produce blood test analyst pursuant to motorist's purported request; weight to be accorded report depended on whether it would be admissible over objection in civil action. Monaghan v. Department of Motor Vehicles (App. 1 Dist. 1995) 42 Cal.Rptr.2d 167, 35 Cal.App.4th 1621. Automobiles 144.2(10.2)

For agencies under the Administrative Procedure Act, affidavits may serve as direct evidence if no request to cross-examine is made. Windigo Mills v. California Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (App. 5 Dist. 1979) 155 Cal.Rptr. 63, 92 Cal.App.3d 586. Administrative Law And Procedure 462

Under this section and Government Code § 11510, where an affidavit is offered in evidence by the licensee or applicant and prior to the submission of the case for decision, and the presenting deputy of the department so requests, the licensee or applicant need not produce the affiant for cross-examination, but the affidavit remains subject to the limitations imposed by § 11513(c) and would in itself be insufficient to support a finding, notwithstanding that affiant may be beyond the range of subpoena under § 11510(b). 6 Op.Atty.Gen. 219 (1945).

4. Failure to provide copy

Admission, in license suspension proceeding, of expert's declaration, which asserted that licensee's blood may have fermented, resulting in inaccurate blood alcohol content determination, was erroneous, given licensee's failure to provide Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV) with copy of declaration prior to hearing, so as to give DMV opportunity to cross-examine expert, as statutorily required. McNary v. Department of Motor Vehicles (App. 4 Dist. 1996) 53 Cal.Rptr.2d 55, 45 Cal.App.4th 688. Automobiles 144.2(9.7); Automobiles 425

5. Failure to request cross-examination

Motorist subject to administrative per se order based on blood test allegedly revealing blood alcohol concentration of at least .08% did not adequately invoke procedures for subpoenaing blood alcohol analyst such that suspension had to be set aside due to failure by motor vehicle department to produce analyst; motorist's letter to department merely demanded affidavits that department intended to use, asserted motorist's general right of cross-examination, and objected to use of affidavits not timely provided; moreover, even if letter constituted request for issuance of subpoenas, motorist took no further steps to secure analyst's attendance and never asked hearing officer to either continue hearing or to issue subpoena. Monaghan v. Department of Motor Vehicles (App. 1 Dist. 1995) 42 Cal.Rptr.2d 167, 35 Cal.App.4th 1621. Automobiles 144.2(9.5)

Where automobile dealer did not exercise its right to demand the opportunity to cross-examine witnesses whose affidavits were admitted in evidence in proceeding challenging the revocation of the dealer's new car dealer's license, the dealer was not entitled to complain on appeal that it was deprived of any right by the admission of the affidavits into evidence. Park Motors, Inc. v. Director, Dept. of Motor Vehicles (App. 3 Dist. 1975) 122 Cal.Rptr. 337, 49 Cal.App.3d 12. Mandamus 187.4

6. Failure to produce affiant for cross-examination

Statute, pursuant to which affidavit may be introduced in evidence but may be given only same effect as other hearsay evidence if opportunity to cross-examine affiant is not afforded after proper request, could not serve as basis for ordering motor vehicle department to produce blood test analyst at administrative hearing on suspension of motorist's license based on his blood alcohol concentration; statute did not impose burden or obligation of producing affiant as witness for cross-examination, but only set forth consequences of failing to satisfy request. Monaghan v. Department of Motor Vehicles (App. 1 Dist. 1995) 42 Cal.Rptr.2d 167, 35 Cal.App.4th 1621. Automobiles

144.2(9.7); Automobiles 422.1

7. Failure to object to admission

Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV) did not waive its objections to admission in license suspension proceeding of expert's affidavit regarding determination of licensee's blood alcohol content when it failed to object at time affidavit was admitted. McNary v. Department of Motor Vehicles (App. 4 Dist. 1996) 53 Cal.Rptr.2d 55, 45 Cal.App.4th 688. Automobiles 144.2(2.1)

➞➞ § 41601. Reports of average daily attendance

For the purposes of this chapter, the governing board of each school district shall report to the Superintendent of Public Instruction during each fiscal year the average daily attendance of the district for all full school months during (1) the period between July 1 and December 31, inclusive, to be known as the "first period" report for the first principal apportionment, and (2) the period between July 1 and April 15, inclusive, to be known as the "second period" report for the second principal apportionment. Each county superintendent of schools shall report the average daily attendance for the schools and classes maintained by him or her and the average daily attendance for the county school tuition fund.

Each report shall be prepared in accordance with instructions on forms prescribed and furnished by the Superintendent of Public Instruction. Average daily attendance shall be computed in the following manner:

(a) The average daily attendance in the regular elementary, middle, and high schools, including continuation schools and classes, opportunity schools and classes, and special day classes, maintained by the school districts shall be determined by dividing the total number of days of attendance allowed in all full school months in each period by the number of days the schools are actually taught in all full school months in each period, exclusive of Saturdays or Sundays and exclusive of weekend makeup classes pursuant to Section 37223.

(b) The attendance for schools and classes maintained by a county superintendent of schools and the county school tuition fund shall be reported in the same manner as reported by school districts. The average daily attendance in special education classes operated by county superintendents of schools shall be determined in the same manner as all other attendance under subdivision (a). The average daily attendance in all other schools and classes maintained by the county superintendents of schools shall be determined by dividing the total number of days of attendance in all full school months in the first period by a divisor of 70, in the second period by 135 and at annual time by 175. For attendance in special classes and centers pursuant to Section 56364 or Section 56364.2, as applicable, the average daily attendance shall be reported by the county superintendents of schools, but credited for revenue limit purposes to the district in which the pupil resides.

(c) The days of attendance in classes for adults and regional occupational centers programs shall be reported in the same manner as all other attendance under subdivision (a). The average daily attendance in those schools and classes shall be determined by dividing the total number of days of attendance in all full school months in the first period by a divisor of 85 in the second period by 135 and at annual time by 175.

§ 56836. Computation of apportionments

Commencing with the 1998-99 fiscal year and for each fiscal year thereafter, apportionments to special education local plan areas for special education programs operated by, and services provided by, districts, county offices, and special education local plan areas shall be computed pursuant to this chapter.

§ 56836.01. Responsibilities of administrators of special education local plan areas

Commencing with the 1998-99 fiscal year and each fiscal year thereafter, the administrator of each special education local plan area, in accordance with the local plan approved by the board, shall be responsible for the following:

(a) The fiscal administration of the annual budget plan pursuant to paragraph (1) of subdivision (b) of Section 56205 and annual allocation plan for multidistrict special education local plan areas pursuant to Section 56836.05 for special education programs of school districts and county superintendents of schools composing the special education local plan area.

(b) The allocation of state and federal funds allocated to the special education local plan area for the provision of special education and related services by those entities.

(c) The reporting and accounting requirements prescribed by this part.

§ 56836.02. Apportionments for districts and county offices; regionalized services and program specialists

(a) The superintendent shall apportion funds from Section A of the State School Fund to districts and county offices of education in accordance with the allocation plan adopted pursuant to Section 56836.05, unless the allocation plan specifies that funds be apportioned to the administrative unit of the special education local plan area. If the allocation plan specifies that funds be apportioned to the administrative unit of the special education local plan area, the administrator of the special education local plan area shall, upon receipt, distribute the funds in accordance with the method adopted pursuant to subdivision (i) of Section 56195.7. The allocation plan shall, prior to submission to the superintendent, be approved according to the local policymaking process established by the special education local plan area.

(b) The superintendent shall apportion funds for regionalized services and program specialists from Section A of the State School Fund to the administrative unit of each special education local plan area. Upon receipt, the administrator of a special education local plan area shall direct the administrative unit of the special education local plan area to distribute the funds in accordance with the budget plan adopted pursuant to paragraph (1) of subdivision (b) of Section 56205.

➞§ 56836.03. Revised local plans; transition guidelines; division of local plan areas

(a) On or after January 1, 1998, each special education local plan area shall submit a revised local plan. Each special education local plan area shall submit its revised local plan not later than the time it is required to submit its local plan pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 56100 and the revised local plan shall meet the requirements of Chapter 3 (commencing with Section 56205).

(b) Until the board has approved the revised local plan and the special education local plan area begins to operate under the revised local plan, each special education local plan area shall continue to operate under the programmatic, reporting, and accounting requirements prescribed by the State Department of Education for the purposes of Chapter 7 (commencing with Section 56700) as that chapter existed on December 31, 1998. The department shall develop transition guidelines, and, as necessary, transition forms, to facilitate a transition from the reporting and accounting methods required for Chapter 7 (commencing with Section 56700) as that chapter existed on December 31, 1998, and related provisions of this part, to the reporting and accounting methods required for this chapter. Under no circumstances shall the transition guidelines exceed the requirements of the provisions described in paragraphs (1) and (2). The transition guidelines shall, at a minimum, do the following:

(1) Describe the method for accounting for the instructional service personnel units and caseloads, as required by Chapter 7 (commencing with Section 56700) as that chapter existed on December 31, 1998.

(2) Describe the accounting that is required to be made, if any, for the purposes of Sections 56030, 56140, 56156.4, 56361.5, 56362, 56363.3, 56366.2, 56366.3, 56441.5, and 56441.7.

(c) Commencing with the 1997-98 fiscal year, through and including the fiscal year in which equalization among special education local plan areas has been achieved, the board shall not approve any proposal to divide a special education local plan area into two or more units, unless the division has no net impact on state costs for special education; provided, however, that the board may approve a proposal that was initially submitted to the department prior to January 1, 1997.

➞§ 56836.04. Monitoring and review of special education programs; assurance of proper expenditures

(a) The Superintendent continuously shall monitor and review all special education programs approved under this part to ensure that all funds appropriated to special education local plan areas under this part are expended for the purposes intended.

(b) Funds apportioned to special education local plan areas pursuant to this chapter are to assist local educational agencies to provide special education and related services to individuals with exceptional needs and shall be expended exclusively for programs operated under this part.

➞§ 56836.05. Time for apportionments; multidistrict areas; changes in administrative units

(a) Apportionments made under this part shall be made by the superintendent as early as practicable in the fiscal year. Upon order of the superintendent, the Controller shall draw warrants upon the money appropriated, in favor of the eligible special education local plan areas.

(b) If the special education local plan area is a multidistrict special education local plan area, and the approved allocation plan does not specify that funds will be apportioned to the special education local plan area administrative unit, the special education local plan area shall submit to the superintendent an annual allocation plan to allocate funds received in accordance with this chapter among the local educational agencies within the special education local plan area. The annual allocation plan may be revised during any fiscal year, and these revisions may be submitted to the superintendent as amendments. The amendments shall, prior to submission to the superintendent, be approved according to the policymaking process established by the special education local plan area.

(c) If funds are apportioned to a special education local plan area administrative unit in the 1998-99 fiscal year and the special education local plan area administrative unit is changed in the 1998-99 fiscal year or thereafter, monthly payments shall be made according to the schedule in paragraph (2) of subdivision (a) of Section 14041 unless all local educational agencies are on the same schedule. If all local educational agencies are on the same schedule, the appropriate schedule in paragraph (2), (7), or (8) of subdivision (a) of Section 14041 shall apply.

(e) For a charter school deemed a local educational agency for the purposes of special education, an amount equal to the amount computed pursuant to Section 56836.08 for the special education local plan area in which the charter school is included shall be apportioned by the State Department of Education pursuant to the local allocation plan developed pursuant to subdivision (i) of Section 56195.7 or 56836.05, or both. If the charter school is a participant in a local plan which only includes other charter schools pursuant to subdivision (f) of Section 56195.1, the amount computed pursuant to Section 56836.11, as adjusted for any amount for which the special education local plan area is eligible pursuant to the incidence multiplier set forth in Section 56836.155, shall be apportioned by the department pursuant for each unit of average daily attendance reported pursuant to subdivision (a).

➞§ 56836.07. Allocation of funds for the special education local plan area under section 56331; proportionate share to the Los Angeles County Juvenile Court and Community School/Division of Alternative Education Special Education Local Plan Area

For the 2004-05 fiscal year and each fiscal year thereafter for which there is an appropriation in the annual Budget Act for this purpose, the Superintendent shall allocate funds per unit of average daily attendance, as defined in Section 56836.06, reported for the special education local plan area to a special education local plan area for the purposes of Section 56331. For the 2004-05 fiscal year and each fiscal year thereafter for which there is an appropriation in the annual Budget Act for this purpose, the Superintendent shall determine a proportionate share, consistent with existing law, to the Los Angeles County Juvenile Court and Community School/Division of Alternative Education Special Education Local Plan Area based on the ratio of the amount per unit of average daily attendance determined pursuant to Section 56836.10 to the amount of the statewide target per unit of average daily attendance determined pursuant to Section 56836.11.

➞§ 56836.08. Computations to determine funding for each local plan area; general fund moneys

(a) For the 1998-99 fiscal year, the superintendent shall make the following computations to determine the amount of funding for each special education local plan area:

(1) Add the amount of funding per unit of average daily attendance computed for the special education local plan area pursuant to paragraph (1) of subdivision (a) of Section 56836.10 to the inflation adjustment computed pursuant to subdivision (d) for the 1998-99 fiscal year.

(2) Multiply the amount computed in paragraph (1) by the units of average daily attendance reported for the special education local plan area for the 1997-98 fiscal year, exclusive of average daily attendance for absences excused pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 46010, as that subdivision read on July 1, 1996.

(3) Add the actual amount of the equalization adjustment, if any, computed for the 1998-99 fiscal year pursuant to Section 56836.14 to the amount computed in paragraph (2).

(4) Add or subtract, as appropriate, the adjustment for growth computed pursuant to Section 56836.15 from the amount computed in paragraph (3).

(b) For the 1999-2000 fiscal year and each fiscal year thereafter, the superintendent shall make the following computations to determine the amount of funding for each special education local plan area for the fiscal year in which the computation is made:

(1) Add the amount of funding per unit of average daily attendance computed for the special education local plan area for the prior fiscal year pursuant to Section 56836.10 to the inflation adjustment computed pursuant to subdivision (d) for the fiscal year in which the computation is made.

(2) Multiply the amount computed in paragraph (1) by the units of average daily attendance reported for the special education local plan area for the prior fiscal year.

(3) Add the actual amount of the equalization adjustment, if any, computed for the special education local plan area for the fiscal year in which the computation is made pursuant to Section 56836.14 to the amount computed in paragraph (2).

(4) Add or subtract, as appropriate, the adjustment for growth or decline in enrollment, if any, computed for the special education local plan area for the fiscal year in which the computation is made pursuant to Section 56836.15 from the amount computed in paragraph (3).

(c) For the 1998-99 fiscal year and each fiscal year thereafter, the superintendent shall make the following computations to determine the amount of General Fund moneys that the special education local plan area may claim:

(1) Add the total of the amount of property taxes for the special education local plan area pursuant to Section 2572 for the fiscal year in which the computation is made to the amount of federal funds allocated for the purposes of paragraph (1) of subdivision (a) of Section 56836.09 for the fiscal year in which the computation is made.

(2) Add the amount of funding computed for the special education local plan area pursuant to subdivision (a) for the 1998-99 fiscal year, and commencing with the 1999-2000 fiscal year and each fiscal year thereafter, the amount computed for the fiscal year in which the computations were made pursuant to subdivision (b) to the amount of funding computed for the special education local plan area pursuant to Article 3 (commencing with Section 56836.16).

(3) Subtract the sum computed in paragraph (1) from the sum computed in paragraph (2).

(d) For the 1998-99 fiscal year and each fiscal year thereafter, the superintendent shall make the following computations to determine the inflation adjustment for the fiscal year in which the computation is made:

(1) For the 1998-99 fiscal year, multiply the sum of the statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance for special education local plan areas for the 1997-98 fiscal year computed pursuant to paragraph (3) of subdivision (a) of Section 56836.11 and the amount determined pursuant to paragraph (e) of Section 56836.155 for the 1997-98 fiscal year that corresponds to the amount determined pursuant to paragraph (1) of subdivision (d) of Section 56836.155 by the inflation adjustment computed pursuant toSection 42238.1 for the 1998-99 fiscal year.

(2) For the 1999-2000 fiscal year and each fiscal year thereafter, multiply the sum of the statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance for special education local plan areas for the prior fiscal year computed pursuant to Section 56836.11 and the amount determined pursuant to paragraph (1) of subdivision (d) of Section 56836.155 for the prior fiscal year by the inflation adjustment computed pursuant to Section 42238.1 for the fiscal year in which the computation is made.

(3) For the purposes of computing the inflation adjustment for the special education local plan area identified as the Los Angeles County Juvenile Court and Community School/Division of Alternative Education Special Education Local Plan Area for the 1998-99 fiscal year and each fiscal year thereafter, the superintendent shall multiply the amount of funding per unit of average daily attendance computed for that special education local plan area for the prior fiscal year pursuant to Section 56836.10 by the inflation adjustment computed pursuant to Section 42238.1 for the fiscal year in which the computation is being made.

(e) For the 1998-99 fiscal year and each fiscal year thereafter to and including the 2002-03 fiscal year, the superintendent shall perform the calculation set forth in Section 56836.155 to determine the adjusted entitlement for the incidence of disabilities for each special education local plan area, but this amount shall not be used in the next fiscal year to determine the base amount of funding for each special education local plan area for the current fiscal year, except as specified in this article.

➞§ 56836.09. Computation of funding for 1997-98 fiscal year; base for computation of 1998-99 fiscal year amounts

(3) The total amount of General Fund moneys allocated to the special education local plan area pursuant to Chapter 7 (commencing with Section 56700) plus the total amount received for equalization pursuant to Chapter 7.1 (commencing with Section 56835), as those chapters existed on December 31, 1998.

(4) The total amount of General Fund moneys allocated to another special education local plan area for any pupils with exceptional needs who are served by the other special education local plan area but who are residents of the special education local plan area for which this computation is being made.

(b) Add the following amounts received in the 1997-98 fiscal year:

(1) The total amount determined for the special education local plan area for the purpose of providing nonpublic, nonsectarian school services to licensed children's institutions, foster family homes, residential medical facilities, and other similar facilities for the 1997-98 fiscal year pursuant to Article 3 (commencing with Section 56836.16).

(c) Subtract the sum computed in subdivision (b) from the sum computed in subdivision (a).

➡ § 56836.095. 2001-2002 fiscal year computations

For the 2001-02 fiscal year, the superintendent shall make the following computations in the following order:

(a) Calculate and carry out the equalization adjustments authorized pursuant to Sections 56836.12 and 56836.14.

(b) Complete the calculations required to adjust the statewide total average daily attendance pursuant to Section 56836.156, and adjust the statewide target per unit of average daily attendance for the 2001-02 fiscal year in accordance with this calculation.

(c) Determine and provide the amount of funding required for the special disabilities adjustment pursuant to Section 56836.155.

(d) Compute and distribute the amount of funding appropriated for increasing the statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance pursuant to Section 56836.158.

(e) Compute and provide a permanent adjustment for each special education local plan area pursuant to Section 56836.159.

➞§ 56836.10. Amount of funding per unit of average daily attendance; computations

(a) The superintendent shall make the following computations to determine the amount of funding per unit of average daily attendance for each special education local plan area for the 1998-99 fiscal year:

(1) Divide the amount of funding for the special education local plan area computed for the 1997-98 fiscal year pursuant to Section 56836.09 by the number of units of average daily attendance, exclusive of average daily attendance for absences excused pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 46010 as that subdivision read on July 1, 1997, reported for the special education local plan area for the 1997-98 fiscal year.

(b) Commencing with the 1999-2000 fiscal year and each fiscal year thereafter, the superintendent shall make the following computations to determine the amount of funding per unit of average daily attendance for each special education local plan area for the fiscal year in which the computation is made:

(1) For the 1999-2000 fiscal year, divide the amount of funding for the special education local plan area computed for the 1998-99 fiscal year pursuant to subdivision (a) of Section 56836.08 by the number of units of average daily attendance upon which funding is based pursuant to subdivision (a) of Section 56836.15 for the special education local plan area for the 1998-99 fiscal year.

(2) For the 2000-01 fiscal year, and each fiscal year thereafter, divide the amount of funding for the special education local plan area computed for the prior fiscal year pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 56836.08 by the number of units of average daily attendance upon which funding is based pursuant to subdivision (a) of Section 56836.15 for the special education local plan area for the prior fiscal year.

➞§ 56836.11. Statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance; computation of equalization and other adjustments for fiscal years

(a) For the purpose of computing the equalization adjustment for special education local plan areas for the 1998-99 fiscal year, the Superintendent shall make the following computations to determine the statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance for special education local plan areas:

(1) Total the amount of funding computed for each special education local plan area exclusive of the amount of funding computed for the special education local plan area identified as the Los Angeles County Juvenile Court and Community School/Division of Alternative Education Special Education Local Plan Area, pursuant to Section 56836.09 for the 1997-98 fiscal year.

(2) Total the number of units of average daily attendance reported for each special education local plan area for the 1997-98 fiscal year, exclusive of average daily attendance for absences excused pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 46010 as that section read on July 1, 1996, and exclusive of the units of average daily attendance computed for the special education local plan area identified as the Los Angeles County Juvenile Court and Community School/Division of Alternative Education Special Education Local Plan Area.

(3) Divide the sum computed in paragraph (1) by the sum computed in paragraph (2) to determine the statewide target amount for the 1997-98 fiscal year.

(4) Add the amount computed in paragraph (3) to the inflation adjustment computed pursuant to subdivision (d) of Section 56836.08 for the 1998-99 fiscal year to determine the statewide target amount for the 1998-99 fiscal year.

(b) Commencing with the 1999-2000 fiscal year to the 2004-05 fiscal year, inclusive, to determine the statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance for special education local plan areas, the Superintendent shall multiply the statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance computed for the prior fiscal year pursuant to this section by one plus the inflation factor computed pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 42238.1 for the fiscal year in which the computation is made.

(c) Commencing with the 2005-06 fiscal year and each fiscal year thereafter, to determine the statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance for special education local plan areas for the purpose of computing the incidence multiplier pursuant to Section 56836.155, the Superintendent shall add the statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance computed for the prior fiscal year for this purpose to the amount computed in paragraph (2) of subdivision (d) or paragraph (2) of subdivision (e), as appropriate.

(d) For the 2005-06 fiscal year, the Superintendent shall make the following computation to determine the statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance to determine the inflation adjustment pursuant to paragraph (2) of subdivision (d) of Section 56836.08 and growth pursuant to subdivision (c) of Section 56836.15, as follows:

(1) The 2004-05 fiscal year statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance less the sum of the 2004-05 fiscal year total amount of federal funds apportioned pursuant to Schedule (1) in Item 6110-161-0890 of Section 2.00 of the Budget Act of 2004 for the purposes of special education for individuals with exceptional needs enrolled in kindergarten and grades 1 to 12, inclusive, divided by the total average daily attendance computed for the 2004-05 fiscal year.

(2) Multiply the amount computed in paragraph (1) by the inflation factor computed pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 42238.1 for the fiscal year in which the computation is made.

(3) Add the amounts computed in paragraphs (1) and (2).

(e) Commencing with the 2006-07 fiscal year and each fiscal year thereafter, the Superintendent shall make the following computation to determine the statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance for special education local plan areas for the purpose of computing the inflation adjustment pursuant to paragraph (2) of subdivision (d) of Section 56836.08 and growth pursuant to subdivision (c) of Section 56836.15:

(1) The statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance computed for the prior fiscal year pursuant to this section.

(2) Multiply the amount computed in paragraph (1) by the inflation factor computed pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 42238.1 for the fiscal year in which the computation is made.

(3) Add the amounts computed in paragraphs (1) and (2).

➞§ 56836.12. Local plan areas with amount per unit of average daily attendance below the statewide target amount; computation of equalization adjustment

(a) For the purpose of computing the equalization adjustment for special education local plan areas for the 1998-99 fiscal year, the superintendent shall make the following computations to determine the amount that each special education local plan area that has an amount per unit of average daily attendance that is below the statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance may request as an equalization adjustment:

(1) Subtract the amount per unit of average daily attendance computed for the special education local plan area pursuant to subdivision (a) of Section 56836.10 from the statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance determined pursuant to subdivision (a) of Section 56836.11.

(2) If the remainder computed in paragraph (1) is greater than zero, multiply that remainder by the number of units of average daily attendance reported for the special education local plan area for the 1997-98 fiscal year, exclusive of average daily attendance for absences excused pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 46010, as that section read on July 1, 1996.

(b) Commencing with the 1999-2000 fiscal year, through and including the fiscal year in which equalization among the special education local plan areas has been achieved, the superintendent shall make the following computations to determine the amount that each special education local plan area that has an amount per unit of average daily attendance that is below the statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance may request as an equalization adjustment:

(1) Add to the amount per unit of average daily attendance computed for the special education local plan area pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 56836.10 for the fiscal year in which the computation is made the inflation adjustment computed pursuant to subdivision (d) of Section 56836.08 for the fiscal year in which the computation is made.

(2) Subtract the amount computed pursuant to paragraph (1) from the statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance computed pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 56836.11 for the fiscal year in which the computation is made.

(3) If the remainder computed in paragraph (2) is greater than zero, multiply that remainder by the number of units of average daily attendance reported for the special education local plan area for the prior fiscal year, exclusive of average daily attendance for absences excused pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 46010, as that section read on July 1, 1996.

(c) This section shall not apply to the special education local plan area identified as the Los Angeles County Juvenile Court and Community School/Division of Alternative Education Special Education Local Plan Area.

APPLICATION

<By its own terms, this section does not apply to the Los Angeles County Juvenile Court and Community School/Division of Alternative Education Special Education Local Plan Area.>

➞§ 56836.13. Computation of amounts available for making equalization adjustments

Commencing with the 1998-99 fiscal year, through and including the fiscal year in which equalization among the special education local plan areas has been achieved, the superintendent shall make the following computations to determine the amount available for making equalization adjustments for the fiscal year in which the computation is made:

(a) Subtract the prior fiscal year funds pursuant to paragraph (1) of subdivision (c) of Section 56836.08 from the current fiscal year funds pursuant to paragraph (1) of subdivision (c) of Section 56836.08.

(b) The amount of any increase in federal funds computed pursuant to subdivision (a) shall result in a reduction in state general funds computed pursuant to paragraph (3) of subdivision (c) of Section 56836.08. This is the amount of state general funds that shall be designated in the annual Budget Act for the purpose of Section 56836.12, as augmented by any deficiency appropriation, for the purposes of equalizing funding for special education local plan areas pursuant to this chapter.

(c) Until the actual amount of any increase in federal funds pursuant to subdivision (a) can be determined for the current fiscal year, equalization apportionments pursuant to Section 56836.12 shall be certified based on the authority available in Item 6110-161-0001 of the Budget Act of 1998, or its successor in the annual Budget Act.

➞§ 56836.14. Local plan areas with amount per unit of average daily attendance below the statewide target amount; computation of actual amount of equalization adjustment

Commencing with the 1998-99 fiscal year, through and including the fiscal year in which equalization among the special education local plan areas has been achieved, the superintendent shall make the following computations to determine the actual amount of the equalization adjustment for each special education local plan area that has an amount per unit of average daily attendance that is below the statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance:

(a) Add the amount determined for each special education local plan area pursuant to Section 56836.12 for the fiscal year in which the computation is made to determine the total statewide aggregate amount necessary to fund each special education local plan area at the statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance for special education local plan areas.

(b) Divide the amount computed in subdivision (a) by the amount computed pursuant to Section 56836.13 to determine the percentage of the total amount of funds necessary to fund each special education local plan area at the statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance for special education local plan areas that are actually available for that purpose.

(c) To determine the amount to allocate to the special education local plan area for a special education local plan area equalization adjustment, multiply the amount computed for the special education local plan area pursuant to Section 56836.12, if any, by the percentage determined in subdivision (b).

➞§ 56836.15. Mitigation of effects of declining enrollment

(a) In order to mitigate the effects of any declining enrollment, commencing in the 1998-99 fiscal year, and each fiscal year thereafter, the superintendent shall calculate allocations to special education local plan areas based on the average daily attendance reported for the special education local plan area for the fiscal year in which the computation is made or the prior fiscal year, whichever is greater. However, the prior fiscal year average daily attendance reported for the special education local plan area shall be adjusted for any loss or gain of average daily attendance reported for the special education local plan area due to a reorganization or transfer of territory in the special education local plan area.

(b) For the 1998-99 fiscal year only, the prior year average daily attendance used in this section shall be the 1997-98 average daily attendance reported for the special education local plan area, exclusive of average daily attendance for absences excused pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 46010, as that section read on July 1, 1996.

(c) If in the fiscal year for which the computation is made, the number of units of average daily attendance upon which allocations to the special education local plan area are based is greater than the number of units of average daily attendance upon which allocations to the special education local plan area were based in the prior fiscal year, the special education local plan area shall be allocated a growth adjustment equal to the product determined by multiplying the amounts determined under paragraphs (1) and (2).

(1) The statewide target amount per unit of average daily attendance for special education local plan areas determined pursuant to Section 56836.11, added to the amount determined in paragraph (1) of subdivision (d) of Section 56836.155.

(2) The difference between the number of units of average daily attendance upon which allocations to the special education local plan area are based for the fiscal year in which the computation is made and the number of units of average daily attendance upon which allocations to the special education local plan area were based for the prior fiscal year.

(d) If in the fiscal year for which the computation is made, the number of units of average daily attendance upon which allocations to the special education local plan area are based is less than the number of units of average daily attendance upon which allocations to the special education local plan area were based in the prior fiscal year, the special education local plan area shall receive a funding reduction equal to the product determined by multiplying the amounts determined under paragraphs (1) and (2):

(1) The amount of funding per unit of average daily attendance computed for the special education local plan area for the prior fiscal year.

(2) The difference between the number of units of average daily attendance upon which allocations to the special education local plan area are based for the fiscal year in which the computation is made and the number of units of average daily attendance upon which allocations to the special education local plan area were based for the prior fiscal year.

(e) If, in the fiscal year for which the computation is made, the number of units of average daily attendance upon which the allocations to the special education local plan area identified as the Los Angeles County Juvenile Court and Community School/Division of Alternative Education Special Education Local Plan Area are based is greater than the number of units of average daily attendance upon which the allocations to that special education local plan area were based in the prior fiscal year, that special education local plan area shall be allocated a growth adjustment equal to the product determined by multiplying the amounts determined under paragraphs (1) and (2).

(1) The amount of funding per unit of average daily attendance computed for the special education local plan area for the prior fiscal year pursuant to Section 56836.10 multiplied by one plus the inflation adjustment computed pursuant to Section 42238.1 for the fiscal year in which the computation is being made.

(2) The difference between the number of units of average daily attendance upon which allocations to the special education local plan area are based for the fiscal year in which the computation is made and the number of units of average daily attendance upon which allocations to the special education local plan area were based for the prior fiscal year.

C

HENRY BOSSERT and EFFIE BOSSERT, Appellants,
v.
SOUTHERN PACIFIC COMPANY (a Corporation), et al., Respondents.

Supreme Court of California.
S. F. No. 6916.
April 24, 1916.

NEGLIGENCE—EVIDENCE—PRIMA FACIE CASE FOR PLAINTIFF—APPEAL FROM JUDGMENT FOR DEFENDANT.

The fact that the plaintiff in an action to recover damages for bodily injuries caused by the defendant's alleged negligence made out a prima facie case does not of necessity require the reversal of a judgment for the defendant. The plaintiffs' proof may have been overcome by that of the defense, and in the absence of any showing or claim that it did not, it will be presumed on appeal that the jury decided for the defendant in accordance with the weight of the evidence.

ID.—MISCONDUCT OF JUDGE—DISPARAGING REMARKS TO WITNESS.

Severely disparaging remarks addressed by the judge to a witness produced by the plaintiff as a medical expert, after he had given false testimony as to his medical qualifications, and the court had refused to allow him to testify as an expert, will not warrant a reversal, especially where the plaintiffs fail to point out wherein the verdict is unjust or unsupported by the evidence.

ID.—INSTRUCTIONS—PRIOR INJURIES TO PLAINTIFF.

Where there was evidence tending to show that the plaintiff had received certain injuries long prior to the accident complained of, and was still suffering therefrom, and had received no injury on the occasion mentioned in the complaint, an instruction to the jury "that if they believed that the plaintiff did not receive any injuries at the time of the accident mentioned in the complaint, then it was unimportant whether that accident was caused by the negligence of the defendant or not, and that if they believed any injury proved to have been sustained by her was sustained prior to the time of the accident alleged in the complaint, and that none of the defendants were responsible for those injuries so sustained by her," they must find for the defendants, does not require the jury to find for the defendant even if they believed that the plaintiff had received the injury complained of and that it was caused by the negligence of the defendant.

APPEAL from a judgment of the Superior Court of Santa Cruz County. Lucas F. Smith, Judge.

The facts are stated in the opinion of the court.

504 John H. Leonard, for Appellants.

Charles M. Cassin, and James L. Atteridge, for Respondents.

505 SHAW, J.

The plaintiffs appeal from the judgment. The record was prepared in the mode provided in sections 953a, 953b, and 953c of the Code of Civil Procedure, and is in typewriting.

The first ground urged for reversal is "that plaintiffs made out a prima facie case." The plaintiffs do not print in their brief any statement which enables us to ascertain the nature of the action. We learn from the defendants' brief that it was an action to recover damages for bodily injuries alleged to have been caused to Effie Bossert by the negligence of the defendant. The fact that plaintiffs made out a prima facie case does not of necessity require a reversal. The proof of plaintiffs may have been overcome by that of the defense. In the absence of any showing or claim that it did not, we will presume that the jury decided for the defendants in accordance with the weight of the evidence.

The plaintiffs called a witness to testify as a physician regarding the nature of the injuries claimed to have been inflicted. On the examination as to his qualifications as an expert witness, he first testified that he was a graduate of the medical college of Miami University, in Ohio. On cross-examination he confessed that this testimony was false, and that he was not a graduate of any medical college, or a regular practicing physician of any recognized school of medicine. The court refused to allow him to testify as an expert, and struck out some testimony which he had given before his want of qualifications was disclosed. At the close of the examination regarding his qualifications, the judge asked him if he understood the nature of an oath, and further stated that it would be his duty to call the attention of the grand jury to his testimony, saying to him that he was old enough to know better than to testify in such a way and to attempt to deceive the court and jury. This conduct, it is claimed, was prejudicial to the plaintiffs. It clearly appeared that the witness had given false testimony. The remarks of the court to the witness were not without cause. They were addressed to the witness, not to the jury. It would have been better if the court had not spoken to him during the trial or in the presence of the jury. But the testimony of the witness was properly excluded because it was incompetent. The episode had no real bearing on the case, and was no part of the evidence. The production of such a witness and his egregious506 failure to qualify may have had some effect to prejudice the jury against the plaintiffs. This, however, was caused by their failure to ascertain the character of their witness and the nature of his testimony, before putting him on the stand. The remarks of the court could have added little, if anything, to the prejudice produced by the plaintiffs themselves. The error, if any, is not sufficient to warrant a reversal, especially in view of the failure of plaintiffs to point out wherein the verdict is unjust or unsupported by the evidence.

It was the province of the court to determine, from the examination as to the witness' qualifications, whether he was competent to testify as an expert. The plaintiffs did not have the right to submit that matter to the jury for their consideration.

In the course of the trial it appeared that Effie Bossert, who was the person injured, had suffered an injury to her spine and other organs many years before. There was evidence tending to prove that she was still suffering from these injuries, and that she had received no injury on the occasion mentioned in the complaint. In this connection the court instructed the jury that if they believed that she did not receive any injuries at the time of the accident to her, in 1910, as claimed in the complaint, then it was unimportant whether that accident was caused by the negligence of the defendant or not, and that, "If you believe that any injury proved to have been sustained by Effie Bossert was sustained by her at a time prior to September 17, 1910, and that none of the defendants were responsible for those injuries so sustained by her," they must find for the defendants. The plaintiffs contend that this instruction required the jury to find for the defendant, even if they believed that she had received the injury complained of, and that it was caused by the negligence of the defendant. We do not think the instruction is susceptible of this meaning. The phrase "if you believe any injury proved to have been sustained by Effie Bossert was sustained by her at a time prior to September 17, 1910," in the connection in which it was used, required the jury to find that she had not received any injury except such prior injury, before rendering a verdict for the defendants. These are the only points presented in support of the appeal. We find none of them meritorious.

The judgment is affirmed.

HEADNOTES

(1) Constitutional Law--Self-execution--Rule.

A constitutional provision may be said to be self-executing if it supplies a sufficient rule by means of which the right given may be enjoyed and protected, or the duty imposed may be enforced.

(2) Taxation--Military Service--Exemptions--Constitutional Law.

Section 1 1/4, article XIII, of the Constitution of California, providing certain tax exemptions for those who have served in the army, navy, marine corps or revenue marine service in time of war, is self- executing, that is, it required no legislative enactment to put it into effect.

(3) Taxation--Claim of Exemption--Regulations.

Notwithstanding the fact that section 1 1/4, article XIII, of the state Constitution is self-executing, the legislature had power to enact legislation providing reasonable regulations for the exercise of the right to the exemptions granted therein.

(4) Taxation--Claim of Exemption--Section 3612, Political Code--Statutory Construction.

Section 3612 of the Political Code does not impose an unreasonable restriction or limitation upon the exercise of the right to exemption granted by section 1 1/4 of article XIII of the Constitution in requiring a claimant to make a claim of exemption provided for in said constitutional provision.

See 24 Cal. Jur. 106.

(5) Taxation--Constitutional Right--Waiver.

Section 3612 of the Political Code establishes a uniform system throughout the state for those desiring to claim the exemption granted under section 1 1/4 of article XIII of the Constitution; and a right granted by the Constitution may be waived by the inaction of the person entitled to exercise such right.

SUMMARY

APPEAL from a judgment of the Superior Court of Los Angeles County. Emmet H. Wilson, Judge. Reversed.

The facts are stated in the opinion of the court.

COUNSEL

Everett W. Mattoon, County Counsel, J. H. O'Connor, County Counsel, and Gordon Boller, Deputy County Counsel, for Appellant. 461

Holbrook & Tarr and W. Sumner Holbrook, Jr., for Respondent.

Bernard C. Brennan, as Amici Curiae, on Behalf of Respondent.

CARTER, J.

This is an appeal from a judgment of the Superior Court of Los Angeles County granting a writ of mandate against appellant, H. L. Byram, tax collector of the county of Los Angeles, compelling him to receive the sum of $21.84 as the full amount of taxes due on the real property of respondent for the fiscal year 1936-37, in lieu of taxes in the sum of $67 levied upon and extended against said property on the assessment roll of said county for said year.

Respondent's property was assessed by the Los Angeles County assessor for the fiscal year 1936-37 at the value of $1350. He claims an exemption in the amount of $1,000, by reason of his being a veteran within the meaning of section 1 1/4 of article XIII of the Constitution of California. He tendered payment to the appellant of taxes based upon the valuation of $350, which tender was refused. Respondent then secured a writ of mandate compelling appellant to accept the amount tendered and to issue a receipt in full for respondent's taxes.

The provision of the Constitution above referred to reads as follows:

"The property to the amount of one thousand dollars of every resident of this state who has served in the army, navy, marine corps or revenue marine service of the United States in time of war, and received an honorable discharge therefrom, ... shall be exempt from taxation; provided, this exemption shall not apply to any person named herein owning property of the value of five thousand dollars or more, or where the wife of such soldier or sailor owns property of the value of five thousand dollars or more. No exemption shall be made under the provisions of this act of the property of a person who is not a legal resident of the state."

Section 3612 of the Political Code provides that every person entitled to such exemption from taxation shall give to the assessor under oath all information required upon forms prescribed by the State Board of Equalization and failure 462 of any person entitled to such exemption so to do shall be deemed as a waiver of such exemption.

The allegations of the petition for a writ of mandate bring respondent within the constitutional provision for exemption, to wit: that he is and was during the fiscal year 1936-37, a resident of California, that he served in the marine corps of the United States during the world war and received an honorable discharge therefrom, that he is married, that neither he nor his wife nor the two together owned property greater than $5,000 in value, and that in 1936 he furnished a copy of his honorable discharge to the county assessor. Respondent further alleged that at no time did he file an application for exemption or any affidavit as required by section 3612 of the Political Code.

The appellant, tax collector of the county of Los Angeles, contends that the failure of respondent herein to make the exemption claim required by Political Code section 3612 constituted a waiver of said exemption. The respondent, however, maintains his right thereto, claiming that the provision in said section, that a veteran having failed to make proof of his constitutional right to exemption prior to completion of the assessment roll "waives" such exemption, is unconstitutional and void, as being an invalid statutory "limitation" on such constitutional right.

The sole question then before this court is whether the waiver provision of section 3612 of the Political Code is an invalid infringement upon a constitutional right, or is a valid legislative provision regulating the exercise or assertion thereof.

Respondent contends that section 1 1/4 of article XIII of the Constitution is self-executing and that section 3612 of the Political Code is an attempt to limit the constitutional right to exemption from taxation granted to veterans under said provision of the Constitution. It has been held that:

(1) "A constitutional provision may be said to be self-executing if it supplies a sufficient rule by means of which the right given may be enjoyed and protected, or the duty imposed may be enforced." (Cooley's Constitutional Limitations, 7th ed., p. 121; Winchester v. Howard, 136 Cal. 432, 439 [64 Pac. 692, 69 Pac. 77, 89 Am. St. Rep. 153]; People v. Hoge, 55 Cal. 612.) 463

(2) We are disposed to hold that the constitutional provision above-mentioned is self-executing; that is, that it required no legislative enactment to put it into effect. If the legislature had failed to make any provision for a veteran to avail himself of the tax exemption provided for in said provision of the Constitution, we are of the opinion that the veteran would nevertheless be entitled to the exemption provided for. How such exemption could be obtained, would be a matter first for the determination of the assessors of the respective political subdivisions, and in case of their failure to recognize the right granted to the veteran, their action would be subject to review by the courts. (3) However, it does not follow from the determination that the above-mentioned constitutional provision is self-executing, that the legislature did not have the power to enact legislation providing reasonable regulation for the exercise of the right to the exemption granted by the Constitution, and if section 3612 of the Political Code constitutes such reasonable regulation and not an invalid limitation of the right thereby granted, the power of the legislature to enact said section should be upheld. (Chester v. Hall, 55 Cal. App. 611 [204 Pac. 237]; First M. E. Church v. Los Angeles County, 204 Cal. 201 [267 Pac. 703].)

In the case of Chester v. Hall, supra, the court held that the requirement of section 1083a of the Political Code that the signer of a petition for a county charter election shall affix thereto the date of such signing is not void as making an additional requirement to the self-executing character of section 7 1/2 of article XI of the Constitution, since it in no manner prevents any person from signing but merely facilitates the operation of the constitutional provision and places a safeguard around the exercise of the rights thereby secured.

In that case the court said:

"It is clear that the constitutional provision in question is self- executing, but it does not follow that legislation may not be enacted to facilitate its operation and place safeguards around the exercise of the rights thereby secured so long as the right itself is not curtailed or its exercise unreasonably burdened. 'Legislation may be desirable, by way of providing convenient remedies for the protection of the right secured, or of regulating the claim of the right so that its 464 exact limits may be known and understood; but all such legislation must be subordinate to the constitutional provision, and in furtherance of its purpose, and must not in any particular attempt to narrow or embarrass it.' Cooley's Constitutional Limitations, 7th ed., p. 122. See, also, Welch v. Williams, 96 Cal. 365 [31 Pac. 222]; State v. Hooker, 22 Okl. 712 [98 Pac. 964]; City of Pond Creek v. Haskell, 21 Okl. 711 [97 Pac. 338]; Stevens v. Benson, 50 Or. 269 [91 Pac. 577]; State v. Superior Court, 81 Wash. 623 [Ann. Cas. 1916B, 838, 143 Pac. 461].) The requirement of section 1083a of the Political Code that the signer of a petition shall 'affix thereto the date of such signing' in no manner prevents any person from signing or places an undue burden on the exercise of the right. The Constitution prescribed the qualifications of electors and provides that all persons having such qualifications 'shall be entitled to vote at all elections'. The Constitution makes no provision for the registration of electors, yet registration laws have always been upheld as reasonable regulations by the legislature for the purpose of ascertaining who are qualified electors and preventing illegal voting."

In the case of First M. E. Church v. Los Angeles County, supra, this court while declining to pass upon the question of whether or not section 1 1/2 of article XIII of the Constitution of California is self-executing, made this comment with respect to legislation enacted for the purpose of facilitating the operation of a self-executing provision of the Constitution:

"It may be assumed as argued by respondent, that even though a constitutional provision is self-executing, the legislature may, and in many instances must, enact legislation to facilitate its operation, and to provide convenient remedies for the protection of the right established, and for the determination thereof and the regulation of claims thereto. Such legislation must be in furtherance of the purposes of the constitutional provisions, but if so, it is valid and enforceable. The last provision of section 3611 is, we think, such a law. It is regulatory, and places no unreasonable burden upon those entitled under section 1 1/2 of article XIII of the Constitution to tax exemption. It creates no hardship to require of a property owner that he file an affidavit showing that the property claimed to be exempt is used solely 465 for religious worship, that it is required for the convenient use and occupation of the building upon the premises, and that the same is not rented for such purposes and rent received by the owner therefor."

(4) We are not impressed with the argument advanced by respondent to the effect that the provisions of section 3612 of the Political Code imposes an unreasonable restriction or limitation upon the exercise of the right to the exemption granted by the constitutional provision above mentioned. On the other hand, it appears to us reasonable and proper that some method should be provided by the legislature for the determination of those who may be entitled to the exemption provided for in the Constitution. It is obvious that the burden should be upon the person claiming the exemption to establish his right thereto. The method provided for under section 3612 of the Political Code is a simple one and is available to all who desire to claim the exemption provided for under the above-mentioned provision of the Constitution; in fact, it would be much easier and simpler for a person claiming such exemption to comply with the provisions of section 3612 of the Political Code than to resort to the procedure followed by respondent in this case, even if the tax collector had complied with respondent's request to accept the sum of $21.84 in full payment of the taxes due from respondent, and the latter had not been required to institute this action.

It has been uniformly held that the legislature has the power to enact statutes providing for reasonable regulation and control of rights granted under constitutional provisions. (Bergevin v. Curtz, 127 Cal. 86 [59 Pac. 312]; Chester v. Hall, supra; Crescent Wharf etc. Co. v. Los Angeles, 207 Cal. 430 [278 Pac.

1028]; Western Salt Co. v. City of San Diego, 181 Cal. 696 [186 Pac. 345]; Bancroft v. City of San Diego, 120 Cal. 432 [52 Pac. 712]; Sala v. City of Pasadena, 162 Cal. 714 [124 Pac. 539]; Potter v. Ames, 43 Cal. 75.) In the case of Bergevin v. Curtz, supra, this court considered the effect of a statute requiring a citizen to register in order to exercise the voting franchise guaranteed by the Constitution. In discussing the power of the legislature to impose conditions on those entitled to exercise the voting franchise under the Constitution, this court said: 466

"We do not think the legislature, even if it attempted to do so, could add any essential to the constitutional definition of an elector. It is settled by the great weight of authority that the legislature has the power to enact reasonable provisions for the purpose of requiring persons who are electors and who desire to vote to show that they have the necessary qualifications, as by requiring registration, or requiring an affidavit or oath as to qualifications, as a condition precedent to the right of such electors to exercise the privilege of voting. Such provisions do not add to the qualifications required of electors, nor abridge the right of voting, but are only reasonable regulations for the purpose of ascertaining who are qualified electors, and to prevent persons who are not such electors from voting. These regulations must be reasonable and must not conflict with the requirements of the constitution. The legislature has required that all electors, as a condition of the right to vote, shall have their names properly and in due season entered upon the great register of the county. (Pol. Code, sec. 1094.) The section provides that in the register shall be entered the names of the qualified electors of the county, and 'that any elector who has registered and thereafter moved his residence to another precinct in the same county thirty days before an election may have his registration transferred to such other precinct upon his application'. The legislature has made no attempt to change or add to the qualifications of an elector, but has simply provided a means whereby the elector who is entitled to vote may be known by having his name enrolled upon an authentic list."

In the case of Crescent Wharf etc. Co. v. Los Angeles, supra, this court had before it a case involving the right of a person whose property had been appropriated for public use to compensation for such property in accordance with the provisions of section 14 of article I of the Constitution of California. In that case it was contended by the plaintiff that its right to recover such compensation could not be abrogated by a charter provision of the city of Los Angeles requiring the presentation of a claim as a condition precedent to the commencement of an action to recover the value of the property appropriated by the city. In answering this contention, this court speaking through the late Mr. Justice Seawell said: 467

"All that the framers of the Constitution meant to do was to protect the citizen in his ownership of property against the state or its agencies appropriating private property to public uses against the will of the owner without making just compensation for all damages which the owner should sustain by the exercise of governmental power. It was not intended to remove the subject matter beyond the operation of reasonable statutory enactments which affect property rights generally, such as the bar of the statute of limitations."

Certainly, if the legislature has the power to pass statutes providing reasonable regulations and control over the constitutional right of a citizen to vote and the constitutional right of a citizen to recover compensation for his property which has been appropriated to a public use, it should likewise have the power to enact statutory provisions providing reasonable regulations and control over the exercise of rights granted by the Constitution for the exemption of property from taxation.

In determining the reasonableness of the regulation provided for in section 3612 of the Political Code as applied to the exercise of the right of a veteran to exemption from taxation under section 1 1/4 of article XIII of the Constitution, let us examine the constitutional provision and ascertain to whom it applies and what property is exempted from taxation thereunder. It is obvious that the exemption therein provided for is available to veterans of a particular class, having specific qualifications as to experience, property ownership and residence, to wit: (1) He must be a resident of this state; (2) he must have served in the army, navy, marine corps or revenue marine service of the United States army in time of war; (3) he must have received an honorable discharge; and, (4) neither he nor his wife is the owner of property of the value of $5,000 or more. If such veteran falls within the classification above-outlined, he is entitled to an exemption from taxation of any property owned by him up to the value of $1,000. It is obvious that before an assessor can determine whether or not a property owner is entitled to an exemption under the above-mentioned provision of the Constitution, it is necessary to obtain sufficient information to enable him to ascertain whether or not such person comes within the classification specified therein. It 468 is likewise obvious that such determination and ascertainment is necessary in order to enable the assessor to make up his assessment roll and determine the value of property within the political subdivision subject to assessment and taxation. Such determination must be made not later than the first of July of each year as the assessment roll is thereupon submitted to the Board of Equalization of the respective political subdivisions and the valuation determined by such board is used as the basis for the tax rate required to raise revenue for the maintenance of the government.

It would seem to be consonant with the establishment of a sound fiscal policy to have all matters of exemption of property from taxation determined not later than July 1st of each year, and it is obvious that this can only be done by the application of a uniform regulation to those who are entitled to exemptions. The legislature undoubtedly had the foregoing considerations in mind in the adoption of section 3612 of the Political Code and similar enactments for the determination of claims for exemption of property from taxation. Such regulations, if reasonable, as those provided for under section 3612 of the Political Code, do not constitute a limitation or restriction upon the constitutional right of the person entitled to the exemption, but simply establishes a rule for the determination of whether or not the right is to be exercised or waived.

(5) The provisions of section 3612 of the Political Code establish a uniform system throughout the state for those desiring to claim the exemption granted by the Constitution under the provisions of section 1 1/4 of article XIII thereof. It amply safeguards the exercise of the right of those entitled to the exemption, facilitates the operation of the system of assessment and taxation now authorized by law, and protects the public against the fraudulent claims of those not entitled to the exemption who may nevertheless assert their claim thereto. Such legislation is clearly not in contravention of the constitutional right to which it relates.

That a right to have property exempted from taxation can be waived, there can be no doubt. Even counsel for respondent in the case at bar concedes that unless appropriate legal proceedings were instituted by the exemption claimant to resist the payment of the tax or the recovery of the tax after 469 the same is paid within the time provided for in the statute of limitation applicable thereto, the exemption claimant would lose his right; in other words, the exemption claimant would waive his right to the exemption by failing to assert his claim in time to have his exemption noted on the assessment roll or by failing to take appropriate action thereafter within the period of time allowed by the statute for the recovery of taxes paid under protest.

It is well settled that a right granted by the Constitution may be waived by the inaction of the person entitled to exercise such right. Probably the most common example of such waiver is disclosed by those cases where a property owner whose property has been taken or damaged for public use fails to avail himself of the remedies provided for by statute to either recover the property so taken or compensation and damages for its taking. It has been repeatedly held that mere inaction on the part of the owner of such property may constitute a waiver of the right to compensation or damages guaranteed to him by section 14 of article I of the Constitution of California. (Bigelow v. Ballerino, 111 Cal. 559 [44 Pac. 307]; Gurnsey v. Northern Cal. Power Co., 160 Cal. 699 [117 Pac. 906, 36 L. R. A. (N. S.) 185]; Sala v. City of Pasadena, supra; Yonker v. City of San Gabriel, 23 Cal. App. (2d) 556 [73 Pac. (2d) 623].)

The trial court based its decision in favor of the respondent in this action upon the case of St. John's Church v. County of Los Angeles, 5 Cal. App. (2d) 235 [42 Pac. (2d) 1093], wherein it was held that a similar provision of the Constitution (sec. 1 1/2 of art. XIII) exempting church properties from taxation was self-executing, and that no legislation was necessary to achieve its purpose, and that no legislation was permissible that would impair, limit or destroy the rights thereby granted. In the written opinion filed by the learned trial judge in overruling the demurrer in the case at bar, he said:

"On the authority of that case (St. John's Church v. County of Los Angeles) it must be held that that part of section 3612 of the Political Code which declares that failure to make the affidavit and to furnish the evidence therein required operates as a waiver of the constitutional exemption is void by reason of its being in excess of the power of the 470 legislature to impair or destroy the exemption granted by a self- executing provision of the Constitution."

While it may be argued that a different rule should be applied to the legislation relating to the exemption of church property under the above-mentioned provision of the Constitution, it is our conclusion that the same rule should be applied to such legislation as that involved in the case at bar, and we therefore disapprove the holding of the District Court of Appeal in the case of St. John's Church v. County of Los Angeles, supra, to the effect that the provision in subdivision 3 of section 3611 of the Political Code that the failure on the part of the person claiming the exemption to make the affidavit mentioned therein should be deemed a waiver of such exemption is ineffective for the reason that it constitutes an attempt by the legislature to limit the exemption provided for in section 1 1/2 of article XIII of the Constitution.

In view of what we have said with respect to the power of the legislature to enact statutes providing for reasonable regulation and control of a constitutional right, we deem it unnecessary to devote further time in this opinion to a discussion of the St. John's Church case. We can see no reason why the same rule as to waiver of the right to exemption should not apply to church property as to any other right granted by the Constitution, and we think it is immaterial whether such waiver is the result of the failure of the exemption claimant to comply with the provisions of the statute providing such reasonable regulation or is the result of inaction on the part of such claimant.

The regulation provided for in section 3611 of the Political Code before its amendment in 1929 was held not to be unreasonable in the case of First M. E. Church v. Los Angeles County, supra, as appears from the portion of the opinion in said case hereinabove quoted. The 1929 amendment to section 3611 of the Political Code simply provides that the failure of the exemption claimant to make the affidavit required by said section constitutes a waiver of the exemption. From what we have heretofore said with reference to a similar provision contained in section 3612 of the Political Code, this amendment did not transform said section from a reasonable regulation into an invalid limitation upon the exercise 471 of the constitutional right granted by section 1 1/2 of article XIII of the Constitution.

The basis of the decision of the District Court of Appeal in the St. John's Church case appears to be that property subject to exemption from taxation under the provisions of section 1 1/2 of article XIII of the Constitution of California, is not subject to assessment and taxation and that any attempt to place the same on the assessment roll of a political subdivision for the purpose of assessment and taxation is abortive. In the opinion in said case, the court said:

"The basic question is whether or not the property is taxable and while reasonable regulations may be made for the making of preliminary proof and while a failure to comply therewith may subject an owner of such property to the burden of making his proof in a more inconvenient and expensive manner, through an action in court, it cannot confer an authority to tax which has been expressly withheld by the Constitution. The authority to levy such a tax thus withheld cannot be acquired by a statute providing, in effect, that if the owner does not claim the exemption before the assessment roll is completed the tax will be levied."

The inevitable result to be obtained by the line of reasoning which is the basis of the decision in the St. John's Church case must be, that if an owner of property exempt from taxation under the provisions of section 1 1/2 of article XIII of the Constitution would fail to assert a claim of exemption for said property, and the same would be assessed and the taxes thereon become delinquent and the property sold in accordance with the law authorizing the sale of property for delinquent taxes, a purchaser at such delinquent tax sale would not acquire a valid title to the property; in other words, all proceedings in connection with the assessment, levy of taxes and sale of said property would be void. It would therefore follow that the owner of such property could ignore all proceedings instituted by public officials to have said property subjected to assessment, levy and payment of taxes, and would suffer no loss as the result of such inaction or failure to assert a claim of exemption. It is obvious that such a situation would have a detrimental effect upon the administration of the laws providing for the assessment, levy and collection of taxes, and would create a condition of uncertainty with respect to what property was 472 available for the purpose of taxation within the respective political subdivisions which have the power to levy and collect taxes for the maintenance of local government.

The opinion of the District Court of Appeal in the St. John's Church case does not discuss the well-settled rules that a right granted under a provision of the Constitution may be waived and that the legislature has the power to enact statutes providing for reasonable regulation and control of a right granted by the Constitution. The application of these rules to the factual situation in said case would have resulted inevitably in the reversal of the judgment rendered therein.

The judgment is reversed with directions to the trial court to enter judgment in favor of appellant denying respondent the relief prayed for in his petition.

THE PEOPLE, Plaintiff and Respondent,
v.
RICHARD MARCELLUS DAVIS, Defendant and Appellant.

Crim. No. 7590.

Supreme Court of California
May 26, 1965.

HEADNOTES

(1) Criminal Law § 464--Evidence--Confessions--Admissibility.

In a murder prosecution, defendant's confession and his diagram of the murder scene were inadmissible where, at the time his statement was recorded, he was under arrest, the investigation had focused on him, the purpose of the interrogation was to elicit a confession, and there was no showing that he was allowed to see counsel, that he effectively waived this right, or that he was informed of his right to remain silent.

(2) Criminal Law § 1080(2)--Appeal--Reserving Questions--Evidence-- Admissions.

Where a murder case was tried before the decision in Escobedo v. Illinois, 378 U.S. 478 [84 S.Ct. 1758, 12 L.Ed.2d 977], defendant's failure to object to the admission of his confession and his diagram of the murder scene absent advice on his constitutional rights to counsel and to remain silent, does not preclude his raising the question on appeal.

(3) Criminal Law § 1382(27)--Appeal--Reversible Error--Evidence-- Confessions.

Though defendant in a murder prosecution testified to committing the same acts to which he confessed in a statement obtained from him by the police without first advising him of his constitutional rights to counsel and to remain silent, the error in admitting his confession resulted in a miscarriage of justice where his testimony was not only impelled by the erroneous admission of his confession, but the confession also rebutted his defense that he was guilty of no more than second degree murder, making it reasonably probable that a result more favorable to defendant would have been reached absent the error.

(4) Homicide § 118--Evidence--Motion Picture.

Where a motion picture of the victim of a gruesome murder is offered in evidence, the court must determine its admissibility by weighing its probative value against the danger of prejudice.

See Cal.Jur.2d, Evidence, §§ 226-230; Am.Jur., Homicide (1st ed § 451).

(5) Homicide § 118--Evidence--Documentary Evidence.

In a murder case involving the defense that defendant killed the victim in a heat of passion because he had read notebooks containing notes passed between his wife and the victim which convinced him that they had been practicing Lesbians, it was not an abuse of discretion to refuse to admit the entire notebooks on the ground that the great bulk of the material was irrelevant and immaterial where defendant was allowed to present the passages he considered relevant, as circumstantial evidence of his state of mind.

(6a, 6b, 6c) Criminal Law § 556--Evidence--Expert Witnesses-- Qualifications.

In a murder case where the defense attempted to prove by two psychologists that defendant suffered from a temporary functional psychosis that made him legally insane, and psychiatric experts for the prosecution denied such a disability could exist, the trial court erred in ruling that only one with medical training could testify on the issue.

See Cal.Jur.2d, Evidence, § 293; Am.Jur., Evidence (1st ed § 783).

(7) Criminal Law § 556--Evidence--Expert Witnesses--Qualifications.

A witness is qualified to testify about a matter calling for an expert opinion if his peculiar skill, training, or experience enable him to form an opinion that will be useful to the jury. (Code Civ. Proc., § 1870, subd. 9.)

(8) Criminal Law § 558--Evidence--Expert Witnesses--Qualifications.

Though determination of the qualification of a proffered witness is ordinarily within the trial court's discretion, the standards used in the exercise of this discretion, like other questions of law, are subject to review.

(9) Words and Phrases--"Functional Disorder."

A functional disorder is, by definition, nonorganic and without a biological cause.

(10) Criminal Law § 556--Evidence--Expert Witnesses--Qualifications.

Not all psychologists are competent to give an expert opinion on sanity; whether a psychologist qualifies as an expert on sanity in a particular case depends on the facts of that case, the questions propounded to the witness, and his peculiar qualifications.

SUMMARY

APPEAL, automatically taken under Pen. Code, § 1239, subd. (b), from a judgment of the Superior Court of San Diego County. William P. Mahedy, Judge. Reversed.

Prosecution for murder. Judgment of conviction imposing the death penalty reversed solely on the constitutional ground announced in People v. Dorado, ante, p. 338 [42 Cal.Rptr. 169, 398 P.2d 361].

COUNSEL

J. Perry Langford, under appointment by the Supreme Court, for Defendant and Appellant.

Stanley Mosk and Thomas C. Lynch, Attorneys General, William E. James, Assistant Attorney General, and Norman H. Sokolow, Deputy Attorney General, for Plaintiff and Respondent.

TRAYNOR, C. J.

Defendant killed his victim, Marion Burnett, by pounding her on the head and arms six or more times with a 16 1/2-pound stone. A jury found him guilty of murder of the first degree and sane at the time of the crime, and fixed his penalty at death. This appeal is automatic. (Pen. Code, § 1239, subd. (b).)

Defendant's wife of six months, Dorothy, left him and moved to her mother's house four days before the killing. Defendant had asked her several times to return. She always refused, in part apparently because of her belief that he was having sexual relations with her unmarried friend, Marion. Defendant had admitted to her that he had once engaged in 794 sexual intercourse with Marion. Dorothy and Marion, however, remained close friends.

On the night of the killing, defendant went to his mother-in-law's home to attempt again to persuade Dorothy to return to him. Dorothy and Marion were there together, but were leaving to go to Marion's home. When Dorothy remarked that he arrived just as Marion was leaving, defendant became angry and left. He walked across the street toward his home, ran after he turned a corner, and headed toward Marion's home. When he arrived at the street on which Marion lived, he crossed the street and picked up a large stone. He recrossed the street and hid behind a hedge near the sidewalk. Several minutes later, Marion appeared alone. Defendant advanced toward her, she turned to face him, and he beat her repeatedly with the stone. He then ran, threw the stone into a bush, and returned to his home to join a game of dominoes. An autopsy revealed that Marion was pregnant when she died.

At the trial on the issue of guilt, the prosecution sought to prove that defendant was guilty of murder in the first degree on the grounds that the killing was premeditated and deliberate and was perpetrated by lying in wait. (Pen. Code, § 189.) The prosecution argued as follows: Defendant regarded Marion as the obstacle to his reconciliation with his wife. He may even have been carrying on an affair with Marion that he wished to terminate, particularly because of Marion's pregnancy. He decided early in the evening to kill Marion, or at least to injure her. When the opportunity arose, he ran ahead of her, secured a weapon, and then waited behind the hedge to attack her.

The defendant testified that he had intercourse with Marion only once, while he was drunk, and had no emission. He denied knowing of her pregnancy before he killed her. He presented a witness who testified that Marion accused the witness of being the father of her expected child. Defendant also testified that he thought both women would pass the hedge on their way to Marion's home. His defense was based on three, interrelated theories:

(1) Defendant claimed that the killing was not premeditated. When he hid behind the hedge, he expected both women to pass and he wanted only to scare or talk to them. When Marion passed alone, defendant emerged from his hiding place. She turned to him and he hid his face behind the stone. He stated,

"I didn't want to hit her at first but I didn't know she couldn't have seen me. I kept thinking ... if I don't 795 she will tell Dorothy that I tried to or something and she might leave me." He then hit Marion on the forehead, she raised her arms in defense and screamed, and he hit her several more times.

(2) Defendant claimed that the killing was committed in a heat of passion. Several days before the killing, he read some notes, passed between Dorothy, Marion, and a third girl in high school the previous year, that convinced him that the girls had been practicing Lesbians. Because Marion and Dorothy were still friendly and were often together, defendant thought their relationship was another reason for Dorothy's leaving him. When Dorothy linked him with Marion on the night of the killing, he became incensed. When he later encountered Marion, he killed her in a heat of passion.

(3) Defendant claimed that he did not have the mental capacity at the time of the killing to premeditate and deliberate. A clinical psychologist, Dr. Robert G. Kaplan, testified that defendant was suffering from a temporary functional psychosis at the time of the killing and was incapable of wilful premeditation and deliberation.

To prove premeditation and deliberation and also to show the circumstances under which the killing was committed, the prosecution introduced a full, corrected, and signed statement made by defendant to the San Diego police. A diagram of the murder scene made by him was also introduced. (1) Defendant was arrested before noon two days after the killing. He was interrogated continuously by various police officers until, at 8 o'clock that evening he made the statement, recorded by a police stenographer, that was introduced against him. He made the diagram the next morning. Since the record does not show what the officers said to defendant and what he said to them before he made the recorded statement, it does not appear at what point the investigation began to focus on him. It is clear, however, that by the time the recorded statement was commenced, the investigation had focused on defendant and the purpose of the interrogation was to elicit a confession. Although defendant talked to his wife several times before making either the statement or the diagram, there was no showing that he was allowed to see counsel, that he had effectively waived his right to counsel, or that he was informed of his right to remain silent. Under these circumstances the statement and the diagram were inadmissible by virtue of the decision of the United States Supreme Court in 796Escobedo v. Illinois,* 378 U.S. 478 [84 S.Ct. 1758, 12 L.Ed.2d 977]. (People v. Dorado, ante, p. 338 [42 Cal.Rptr. 169, 398 P.2d 361]; People v. Stewart, ante, pp. 571, 576-581 [43 Cal.Rptr. 201, 400 P.2d 97]; People v. Lilliock, ante, pp. 618, 621 [43 Cal.Rptr. 699, 401 P.2d 4]; see also Clifton v. United States, 341 F.2d 649; Galarza Cruz v. Delgado, 233 F.Supp. 944; State v. Dufour, _____ R.I. _____ [206 A.2d 82, 85]; State v. Neely, _____ Ore. _____ [398 P.2d 482].) (2) Moreover, since this case was tried before the Escobedo decision, defendant's failure to object to the admission of the statement and the diagram into evidence does not preclude his raising the question on appeal. (People v. Hillery, ante, pp. 692, 711 [44 Cal.Rptr. 30, 401 P.2d 382] and cases cited.)

(3) It is contended, however, that since defendant took the stand and testified to committing the same acts he confessed to committing in his statement, we should make an exception to the rule that the erroneous admission of a confession into evidence is necessarily prejudicial. (See People v. Dorado, ante, pp. 338, 356-357 [42 Cal.Rptr. 169, 398 P.2d 361]; People v. Stewart, ante, pp. 571, 581 [43 Cal.Rptr. 201, 400 P.2d 97].) When defendant testified, however, the only substantial evidence that had been introduced connecting him with the crime was his statement and diagram. His testimony was therefore impelled by the erroneous admission of that evidence and cannot be segregated therefrom to sustain the judgment. (People v. Dixon, 46 Cal.2d 456, 458 [296 P.2d 557]; People v. Ibarra, 60 Cal.2d 460, 463 [34 Cal.Rptr. 863, 386 P.2d 487]; see also People v. Mickelson, 59 Cal.2d 448, 449 [30 Cal.Rptr. 18, 380 P.2d 658].)

Moreover, defendant's testimony at the trial was substantially less incriminating than his confession to the officers. Defendant testified that he did not lie in wait to harm his victim or his wife but only intended to scare or talk to them and that he decided to hit Marion with the rock only after she appeared alone and recognized him. If believed, this testimony would have supported a finding of second rather than first degree murder, and to rebut it the prosecution relied on evidence of premeditation contained in defendant's statement. In questioning defendant the officers were careful to probe for such evidence, [FN1] and in his argument to the jury 797 the prosecutor stressed its importance to show that the killing was premeditated. He pointed out that "Down at the police station before he talked to a lawyer, before he had time to learn about the differences in penalties between different degrees of murder, manslaughter, he was relatively frank with the police and he said a number of things, which I think should help us figure out-help us to confirm in our opinions the fact that he had planned this, the fact that he had been thinking about it for some time. ... So he admits to the police before he had acquired sophistication of learning that murder isn't just murder, it is of varying degrees and varying types and varying punishments, back then he admits that he began thinking of getting rid of Dorothy and Marion, way back at 7:00 o'clock. ..."

> FN1 "Q. To go back to the evening hours of the 4th, you made quite a point of asking your brother-in-law what time it was? A. I didn't ask him what time it was, I asked him was that clock right. Q. What was your reason? A. At the time I was on the verge of thinking of doing it and thinking of going there to play dominoes. Q. What do you mean when you say you were 'thinking of doing it'? A. I mean hitting Marion. I was thinking about the domino game too; they said they would be there around that time. Q. Were you thinking in terms of an alibi? A. Not then, no. Q. Why did you want to hurt Marion? A. Actually, I didn't want to hurt Marion alone. I would hurt Marion or Dorothy or anybody at the time that was with them. ..." Later, after a rambling, nonresponsive answer to a question, the interview continued: "Q. The original question was_____ A. I know. Q. You are building up to why and when you decided to do this. It has been kind of a long explanation and I wondered if we lost the point. We were up to Tuesday night. A. Around 7:00 I had just come from the park, playing basketball. I got to the record shop on Milbrae and Oceanview. Dorothy was standing out there. Again I asked if she was sure she was coming back. She said she didn't know, maybe. She mentioned Marion again. Q. That you and Marion were having an affair? A. Yes, she still thought I was. She wasn't too sure. I told her it was just one time. That's when I thought maybe if I could get rid of Dorothy or Marion, or hurt Dorothy or Marion, I could get it off my mind."

Even if we assume that in some cases a testimonial confession can make harmless the erroneous admission of an extrajudicial confession, defendant's testimony in this case did not do so. His testimony was not only impelled by the erroneous admission of the extrajudicial confession, but would have supported a verdict of second degree murder. The erroneously admitted confession rebutted his defense that he was guilty of no more than second degree murder. Whether or not its admission into evidence was necessarily prejudicial, it is reasonably probable that had it been excluded, a result more favorable to defendant would have been reached. Accordingly, the error resulted in a miscarriage of justice. (Cal. Const., art. VI, § 4 1/2; People v. Watson, 46 Cal.2d 818, 836 [299 P.2d 245].)

Other questions remain that may arise on retrial.

(4) A motion picture film of the victim at the scene of 798 the killing was admitted over defendant's objection. It appears on the face of the record [FN2] that the court failed to "weigh the probative value of the photographs in resolving a material issue as against the danger of prejudice to the defendant through needless arousal of the passions of the jurors." (People v. Ford, 60 Cal.2d 772, 801 [36 Cal.Rptr. 620, 388 P.2d 892].) If the motion picture is offered in evidence on retrial, the court must determine its admissibility by weighing its probative value against the danger of prejudice.

> FN2 In ruling on defendant's objection, the court stated: "Well, I viewed [the film] and I feel that while it is not pleasant to look at it is a legal exhibit and it is material for the purposes offered."

(5) The notes that convinced defendant of the homosexuality of his wife and the victim were written in three high school notebooks. Defendant contends that the notebooks should have been admitted in their entirety. Defendant testified that he learned of the girls' homosexual relationship by reading the entire notebooks. Upon request of the prosecution, defendant marked the passages that indicated such a relationship to him. The defense was allowed to read these passages to the jury; some 16 passages from various notes were read, and most were reread by defense counsel in his closing argument. The trial court refused, however, to allow the notebooks to be introduced because the great bulk of the material in them was irrelevant and immaterial.

Although the passages read from the notebooks were not used as hearsay, but as circumstantial evidence of defendant's state of mind (see People v. Marsh, 58 Cal.2d 732, 737-740 [26 Cal.Rptr. 300, 376 P.2d 300]; 6 Wigmore, Evidence (3d ed.) § 1789; 2 id., § 740), these passages were apparently only a small part of the three notebooks. Defendant was allowed to present whatever passages he considered relevant, and he has not shown that their probative value would be enhanced by reading the rest of the notes. There was therefore no abuse of discretion in refusing to admit the entire notebooks.

At the trial on the issue of sanity, defendant sought to establish that he was suffering from a transitory or temporary functional psychosis at the time of the killing and was insane. Two psychiatrists testified for the prosecution that defendant was sane at the time of the killing and that temporary psychoses are never functional in nature. Dr. Robert G. Kaplan, a clinical psychologist who also testified at the trial on the issue of guilt, testified for the defense that because of a temporary functional psychosis at the time of the killing, 799 defendant could not distinguish between right and wrong and did not know the nature and quality of his act.

(6a) Dr. Richard E. Worthington was also called by the defense. Dr. Worthington testified on voir dire that he obtained the degree of Doctor of Philosophy from the University of Chicago in 1940 under the Committee on Human Development, specializing in clinical psychology. Although he took the equivalent of about one year of medical school courses in physiology, neurology, and genetics, he did not attend medical school. He testified that he was "the fastest man to go through the University of Chicago"; he passed from freshman to Ph.D. in four and one-half years by taking three times the normal number of courses. He taught psychology at the University of Chicago and Cornell University, and worked as a psychologist at the Menninger Foundation for two years. He has published articles dealing with a wide range of topics within the field of psychology. He was certified by the Psychology Examining Committee of the State Board of Medical Examiners in 1958 (see Bus. & Prof. Code, § 2940 et seq.), and at the time of trial was vice chairman of that committee, which consists of eight members appointed by the Governor. (Bus. & Prof. Code, § 2910.) He was engaged in private practice in San Diego primarily in the treatment of emotional disturbances.

Dr. Worthington was excused by the court because of his lack of medical training. The court ruled that only a medical doctor is qualified to testify as an expert on the issue of sanity. [FN3] 800 Defendant contends that this ruling was erroneous. [FN4]

FN3 The court's ruling was somewhat ambiguous. After questioning the witness concerning his medical training, the court simply stated: "The witness is not qualified as an expert on the subject of insanity under the rules, as I understand them, and that is it, period. The witness will be excused." During argument on a motion for new trial, the court attempted to clarify its position. "I didn't find, I invite your attention to this, I did not find that a psychologist, as such, would not be qualified and on the case of the other man [Dr. Kaplan] I simply asked the question, in the presence of the jury-to the District Attorney I may have gone so far as to say I had my doubts about his qualifications, and he said he had no objection to that man testifying, so he testified. Now, I still don't think it is proper and you could argue all day and I wouldn't change my ruling. ... Here is a man that comes in, glib of tongue, hasn't had a day's medical training at all and he is going to qualify as an expert on sanity, when a part of the mental condition of legal insanity, as we know it in California, is a medical proposition and I would like to see the Supreme Court tell me I am wrong. There is no use to argue that point any further. I am adamant in my opinion on that." Despite the court's statement that it did not hold that a psychologist as such is not qualified, it apparently based its exclusion of Dr. Worthington on the ground that he did not have sufficient medical training.

FN4 The prosecution did not object to the use > of Dr. Kaplan because his views had already been presented to the jury at the trial on the issue of guilt. The court, however, made the following comment to the jury on Dr. Kaplan's testimony: "I will just simply instruct the jury that I don't know whether this witness is qualified either, because he holds no license to practice medicine, any kind of medicine in this state, he is not a psychiatrist and he is not licensed as such. ... I may say this to the jury, that a lay person, like we are, may testify as to ... our opinion as to the sanity of an individual if we are acquainted with him and with his habits of life. ..." This comment also raised the question whether only a medical doctor is qualified as an expert on legal sanity.

(7) A witness is qualified to testify about a matter calling for an expert opinion if his peculiar skill, training, or experience enable him to form an opinion that will be useful to the jury. (Code Civ. Proc., § 1870, subd. 9; Estate of Toomes, 54 Cal. 509, 514-515 [35 Am.Rep. 82]; Oakes v. Chapman, 158 Cal.App.2d 78, 83-84 [322 P.2d 241]; McCormick, Evidence, § 13.) (8) Although the determination of the qualification of a proffered witness is ordinarily within the discretion of the trial court (People v. Busch, 56 Cal.2d 868, 878 [16 Cal.Rptr. 898, 366 P.2d 314]; 2 Wigmore, Evidence (3d ed.) § 561), the standards used in the exercise of this discretion, like other questions of law, are subject to review. Recent cases considering the point have held that a qualified psychologist can testify concerning a defendant's mental condition. (Jenkins v. United States, 307 F.2d 637, 643-646; Hidden v. Mutual Life Ins. Co., 217 F.2d 818, 821; People v. Hawthorne, 293 Mich. 15, 22-26 [291 N.W. 205]; State v. Padilla, 66 N.M. 289, 297-299 [347 P.2d 312]; Watson v. State, 161 Tex. Crim. 5, 8 [273 S.W.2d 879]; cf. Carter v. State (Okla. Crim. App.) 376 P.2d 351, 359- 360. But see Dobbs v. State, 191 Ark. 236, 239-242 [85 S.W.2d 694]; cf. State v. Gibson, 15 N.J. 384, 391 [105 A.2d 1]. See generally Lassen, The Psychologist as an Expert Witness, 50 A.B.A.J. 239; Louisell, The Psychologist in Today's Legal World, 39 Minn.L.Rev. 235; Scheflen, The Psychologist as a Witness, 32 Pa.B.A.Q. 329.) Many cases have also noted the use of psychologists in criminal cases without objection or comment. (E.g., People v. Busch, supra, 56 Cal.2d, at p. 875; People v. McNichol, 100 Cal.App.2d 554, 558 [224 P.2d 21]; United States v. Chandler, 72 F.Supp. 230, 237; see also People v. Spigno, 156 Cal.App.2d 279, 288-291 [319 P.2d 458].)

(6b) The defense attempted to prove through two psychologists that defendant was suffering from a temporary 801 functional psychosis at the time of the crime that made him legally insane. The prosecution's psychiatric experts denied that such a disability could exist. Without the psychologists, therefore, defendant could not establish an insanity defense. The alleged disability did not involve a matter of mental illness completely within the realm of a physician. (9) A functional disorder is by definition nonorganic and without a biological cause. (6c) The trial court erred in ruling that only one with medical training could testify on the issue.

(10) It does not follow that all psychologists are competent to give an expert opinion on sanity. Many practicing psychologists are not concerned with problems of abnormal psychology and are not familiar with the clinical branch of their field. A certain level of training and experience is also necessary; one with only an undergraduate interest in psychology who has since pursued other fields would certainly not be qualified to give an expert opinion. (Cf. People v. Chambers, 162 Cal.App.2d 215, 219-220 [328 P.2d 236].) Moreover, not all questions relating to legal sanity can be answered by a psychologist. (See 2 Wigmore, Evidence (3d ed.) § 555, p. 634.) The interpretation of an electroencephalogram or the physiological effect of drugs, for example, may be beyond the ken of a psychologist without medical training. Whether a psychologist qualifies as an expert on sanity in a particular case depends on the facts of that case, the questions propounded to the witness, and his peculiar qualifications.

The judgment is reversed.

Dissenting.

In my view the evidence which was properly presented to the jury amply supports the verdicts as to guilt, sanity, and penalty. It must be recognized, however, that under the present status of relevant law as developed in Escobedo v. Illinois (1964) 378 U.S. 478 [84 S.Ct. 1758, 12 L.Ed.2d 977], and People v. Dorado (1965) ante, p. 338 [42 Cal.Rptr. 169, 398 P.2d 361] (and made applicable ex post facto in favor of the accused and against the People), the prosecuting attorney, properly under the old law 802 but erroneously under the new, in his argument emphasized the difference between defendant's fact-statements as given before, and those given after, he had conferred with counsel and thereby "had acquired sophistication of learning that murder isn't just murder, it is of varying degrees and varying types and varying punishments, ..."

The old rule looked with favor on ascertaining the truth; the new rule looks with more favor on giving the illiterate an equal opportunity with the literate to falsify to his own advantage. Thus must police and judicial skills in sorting fact from fiction be developed the more; and thus will the practiced discernment of the trial judge-and of penal boards-probably have better opportunity to correctly recognize basic character and act accordingly. The difference between honesty and cupidity should not be overlooked. Enlightened perjury-or the giving of further opportunity to present it-does not appeal to me as a basis for finding a miscarriage of justice. In the circumstances of this case I am not persuaded that the verdict and judgment work a miscarriage of justice. (See Cal. Const., art. VI, § 4 1/2; People v. Watson (1956) 46 Cal.2d 818, 835-836 [299 P.2d 243] [12].)

I must also specifically dissent from the majority's holding that the trial court erred as a matter of law in ruling that the witness, Richard E. Worthington, Ph.D. (he had taught psychology and treated emotional disturbances) was not qualified to testify helpfully as an expert witness on any material issue of fact then before the court. A trial judge's discretion in this area should be well-nigh absolute. He is in a position far superior to that of any appellate court to appraise the significance of evidence. An appellate judge can merely read what a transcriber typed from what a phonographic reporter's notes reflect of what the reporter believed he heard. Perhaps an electronic recording device also recorded on disc or tape the sounds of the courtroom. But human reporter or electronic impression get only sounds; the attentive trial judge sees as well as hears. And as every experienced trial judge knows, that which he sees may well be more truth revealing than that which he hears.

From my reading of the record I cannot conclude that the trial judge in his handling of this case was other than fair, competent, careful, patient and sound in all material rulings, including his denial of a motion for a new trial.

For the reasons above stated I would affirm the judgment.

TOPANGA ASSOCIATION FOR A SCENIC COMMUNITY, Plaintiff and Appellant,
v.
COUNTY OF LOS ANGELES et al., Defendants and Respondents; JAMES WARREN BASSLER et al., Real Parties in Interest and Respondents

L.A. No. 30139.

Supreme Court of California
May 17, 1974.

SUMMARY

In administrative mandamus proceedings, the trial court refused to disturb a variance granted by a county agency permitting a mobile home park on about 28 acres of an area zoned for light agriculture and single family residences. (Superior Court of Los Angeles County, No. C-7268, Robert A. Wenke, Judge.)

The Supreme Court reversed and remanded the cause to the trial court with directions to issue a writ of mandamus requiring the county board of supervisors to vacate the order awarding a variance. The trial court was also directed to grant any further, appropriate relief. It was expressly held that regardless of the terms of a local zoning ordinance, the governing administrative agency, in adjudicating an application for a variance, must make findings such as will enable the parties to determine whether and on what basis they should seek review and, in the event of review, to apprise the court of the basis of the agency's action. Also, it was held that as a prerequisite to sustaining a variance, the court must determine that substantial evidence supports the agency's findings and that they support the agency's decision. It was pointed out that Gov. Code, § 65906, outlining the circumstances under which a variance may be properly granted, emphasizes disparities between properties, rather than the treatment of the subject property's characteristics in the abstract. The court noted that the agency's report focussed almost exclusively on the qualities of the subject property and failed to provide comparative information on the surrounding properties, with the result that the agency's summary of "factual data," on which its decision apparently rested, did not include facts sufficient to satisfy the Government Code provision.

In Bank. (Opinion by Tobriner, J., expressing the unanimous view of the court.)

HEADNOTES

Classified to California Digest of Official Reports

(1) Zoning and Planning § 4--Variances--Findings.

Regardless of whether the local zoning ordinance commands that the variance board set forth findings, that body must render findings sufficient both to enable the parties to determine whether and on what basis they should seek review and, in the event of review, to apprise a reviewing court of the basis of the board's action.

(2) Zoning and Planning § 4--Variances--Judicial Review.

Before sustaining a zoning variance, a reviewing court must scrutinize the record and determine whether substantial evidence supports the administrative agency's findings and whether these findings support the agency's decision. And in making these determinations, the reviewing court must resolve reasonable doubts in favor of the administrative findings and decision.

(3) Zoning and Planning § 4--Variances--Administrative Mandamus.

Code Civ. Proc., § 1094.5, governing judicial review of administrative agencies' adjudicatory decisions by mandamus, applies to the review of zoning variances awarded by bodies such as the Los Angeles County Regional Planning Commission.

(4) Administrative Law § 139--Administrative Mandamus--Court's Duties.

Code Civ. Proc., § 1094.5, relating to administrative mandamus, contemplates that, at a minimum, the reviewing court must determine both whether substantial evidence supports the administrative agency's findings and whether the findings support the agency's decision.

(5) Administrative Law § 143--Administrative Mandamus--Record of Administrative Proceeding.

Implicit in Code Civ. Proc., § 1094.5, relating to administrative mandamus, is a requirement that the administrative agency which renders the challenged decision set forth findings to bridge the analytic gap between the raw evidence and the ultimate decision or order.

[See Cal.Jur.2d, Zoning, § 209; Am.Jur., Zoning (1st ed § 225).]

(6) Zoning and Planning § 4--Findings--Contents.

Although a zoning variance board's findings need not be stated with the formality required in judicial proceedings, they must expose the board's mode of analysis to an extent sufficient to enable the parties to determine whether and on what basis they should seek review and, in the event of review, to apprise a reviewing court of the basis for the board's action. (Not approving the language in Kappadahl v. Alcan Pacific Co. (1963) 222 Cal.App.2d 626, 639 [35 Cal.Rptr. 354]; Ames v. City of Pasadena (1959) 167 Cal.App.2d 510, 516 [334 P.2d 653], which endorses the practice of setting forth findings solely in the language of the applicable legislation.)

(7) Zoning and Planning § 4--Granting of Variance as Quasi-judicial Administrative Function.

Although the adoption of zoning regulations is a legislative function, the granting of variances is a quasi-judicial, administrative function.

(8) Zoning and Planning § 6(1)--Contractual Nature of Zoning Scheme.

A zoning scheme is similar in some respects to a contract; each party foregoes rights to use its land as it wishes in return for the assurance that the use of neighboring property will be similarly restricted. The rationale is that such mutual restriction can enhance total community welfare.

(9) Zoning and Planning § 4--Variances--Need for Compliance With All Legislative Requirements.

Inasmuch as a zoning variance may be sustained only if all applicable legislative requirements have been satisfied, the question whether a particular variance which had been granted by a county agency conformed to the criteria set forth in an applicable county ordinance became immaterial in the Supreme Court's administrative mandamus review of the variance once that court had concluded that the criteria set forth in Gov. Code, § 65906, for the granting of a variance had not been met.

(10) Zoning and Planning § 4--Variances--Statutory Criteria.

Gov. Code, § 65906, setting forth criteria for the granting of a zoning variance, emphasizes disparities between properties, not treatment of the subject property's characteristics in the abstract, and contemplates that, at best, only a small fraction of any one zone can qualify for a variance.

(11) Zoning and Planning § 4--Variances--Applicant's Burdens.

Speculation about land neighboring on land for which a zoning variance is sought will not support the award of a variance. The party seeking the variance must shoulder the burden of demonstrating to the applicable agency that the subject property satisfies the requirements for the variance sought. Neither the agency nor the reviewing court may assume without evidentiary basis that the character of neighboring property is different from that of the property for which the variance is sought.

(12) Zoning and Planning § 4--Limitations on Granting of Variances.

Radical alteration of the nature of an entire zone is a proper subject for legislation but not for piecemeal adjudication by an administrative agency through the granting of variances for large parcels.

(13) Zoning and Planning § 4--Prohibition of Variance Granting "Special Privilege."

In the absence of an affirmative showing that a particular parcel in a certain zone differed substantially and in relevant aspects from other parcels therein, a variance granted with respect to that parcel amounted to the kind of "special privilege" explicitly prohibited by Gov. Code, § 65906, establishing criteria for granting variances.

We examine, in this case, aspects of the functions served by administrative agencies in the granting of zoning variances and of courts in reviewing these proceedings by means of administrative mandamus. We 510 conclude that variance boards like the ones involved in the present case must render findings to support their ultimate rulings. We also conclude that when called upon to scrutinize a grant of a variance, a reviewing court must determine whether substantial evidence supports the findings of the administrative board and whether the findings support the board's action. [FN1] We determine in the present case that the last of these requisites has not been fulfilled.

FN1 We recently held in Strumsky v. San Diego County Employees Retirement Association (1974) 11 Cal.3d 28 [112 Cal.Rptr. 805, 520 P.2d 29], that if the order or decision of a local administrative agency substantially affects a "fundamental vested right," a court to which a petition for a writ of mandamus has been addressed upon the ground that the evidence does not support the findings must exercise its independent judgment in reviewing the evidence and must find abuse of discretion if the weight of the evidence fails to support the findings. Petitioner does not suggest, nor do we find, that the present case touches upon any fundamental vested right. (See generally Bixby v. Pierno (1971) 4 Cal.3d 130, 144-147 [93 Cal.Rptr. 234, 481 P.2d 242]; Temescal Water Co. v. Dept. Public Works (1955) 44 Cal.2d 90, 103 [280 P.2d 1].)

The parties in this action dispute the future of approximately 28 acres in Topanga Canyon located in the Santa Barbara Mountains region of Los Angeles County. A county ordinance zones the property for light agriculture and single family residences; [FN2] it also prescribes a one-acre minimum lot size. Upon recommendation of its zoning board and despite the opposition of appellant-petitioner - an incorporated nonprofit organization composed of taxpayers and owners of real property in the canyon - the Los Angeles County Regional Planning Commission granted to the Topanga Canyon Investment Company a variance to establish a 93-space mobile home park on this acreage. [FN3] Petitioner appealed without success to the county board of supervisors, thereby exhausting its administrative remedies. Petitioner then sought relief by means of administrative mandamus, again unsuccessfully, in Los Angeles County Superior Court and the Court of Appeal for the Second District.

FN2 Los Angeles County Zoning Ordinance No. 7276.

FN3 Originally the real party in interest, the Topanga Canyon Investment Company has been replaced by a group of successoral real parties in interest. We focus our analysis on the building plans of the original real party in interest since it was upon the basis of these plans that the zoning authorities granted the variance challenged by petitioner.

In reviewing the denial of mandamus below, we first consider the proper role of agency and reviewing court with respect to the grant of variances. We then apply the proper standard of review to the facts of the case in order to determine whether we should sustain the action of the Los Angeles County Regional Planning Commission. 511

1. An administrative grant of a variance must be accompanied by administrative findings. A court reviewing that grant must determine whether substantial evidence supports the findings and whether the findings support the conclusion that all applicable legislative requirements for a variance have been satisfied.

A comprehensive zoning plan could affect owners of some parcels unfairly if no means were provided to permit flexibility. Accordingly, in an effort to achieve substantial parity and perhaps also in order to insulate zoning schemes from constitutional attack, [FN4] our Legislature laid a foundation for the granting of variances. Enacted in 1965, section 65906 of the Government Code establishes criteria for these grants; it provides: "Variances from the terms of the zoning ordinance shall be granted only when, because of special circumstances applicable to the property, including size, shape, topography, location or surroundings, the strict application of the zoning ordinance deprives such property of privileges enjoyed by other property in the vicinity and under identical zoning classification [¶] Any variance granted shall be subject to such conditions as will assure that the adjustment thereby authorized shall not constitute a grant of special privileges inconsistent with the limitations upon other properties in the vicinity and zone in which such property is situated." [FN5]

FN4 1 Appendix to Journal of the Senate (1970 Reg. Sess.) Final Report of the Joint Committee on Open Space Land (1970) pages 94-95; Bowden, Article XVIII - Opening the Door to Open Space Control (1970) 1 Pacific L.J. 461, 506. See Metcalf v. County of Los Angeles (1944) 24 Cal.2d 267, 270-271 [148 P.2d 645]; Gaylord, Zoning: Variances, Exceptions and Conditional Use Permits in California (1958) 5 U.C.L.A. L.Rev. 179; Comment, The General Welfare, Welfare Economics, and Zoning Variances (1965) 38 So.Cal.L.Rev. 548, 573. See generally Note, Administrative Discretion in Zoning (1969) 82 Harv.L.Rev. 668, 671. The primary constitutional concern is that as applied to a particular land parcel, a zoning regulation might constitute a compensable "taking" of property.

FN5 A third paragraph added to section 65906 declares: "A variance shall not be granted for a parcel of property which authorizes a use or activity which is not otherwise expressly authorized by the zone regulation governing the parcel of property." This paragraph serves to preclude "use" variances, but apparently does not prohibit so-called "bulk" variances, those which prescribe setbacks, building heights, and the like. The paragraph became effective on November 23, 1970, 19 days after the Los Angeles County Regional Planning Commission granted the variance here at issue. Petitioner does not contend that the paragraph is applicable to the present case.

Applicable to all zoning jurisdictions except chartered cities (Gov. Code, § 65803), section 65906 may be supplemented by harmonious local legislation. [FN6] We note that Los Angeles County has enacted an ordinance which, 512 if harmonious with section 65906, would govern the Topanga Canyon property here under consideration. Los Angeles County's Zoning Ordinance No. 1494, section 522, provides: [FN7] "An exception [variance] may ... be granted where there are practical difficulties or unnecessary hardships in the way of carrying out the strict letter of the ordinance, and in the granting of such exception the spirit of the ordinance will be observed, public safety secured, and substantial justice done."

FN6 Government Code section 65800 declares that the code chapter of which section 65906 is a part is intended to provide minimum limitations within which counties and cities can exercise maximum control over local zoning matters. Article XI, section 11 of the California Constitution declares that "[a]ny county, city, town, or township may make and enforce within its limits all such local, police, sanitary and other regulations as are not in conflict with general laws."

FN7 This section recently was repealed but was in force when the zoning agencies rendered their decisions in the present case. For purposes of more succinct presentation, we refer in text to the section in the present tense.
